GOOD ROADS CONGRESS

Mayor Nicholls is Asked to Name Three Delegates

Mayor Nicholls, of Charlevoix, Michigan, has been requested by the Hon. Logan Waller Page, president of the American Road Congress and director of the United States Office of Public Roads, to name three delegates to attend the sessions of the Congress at Detroit during the week of Sept. 29, as the representatives of the city.

Twenty-eight great organizations are taking part in the congress under the leadership of the American Highway association and the American Automobile association. In his letter to the mayor, President Page calls attention to the fact that practically every state highway commissioner will be present and take part in discussing the important problems of road construction and maintenance, and that some of the foremost men in public life will devote their attention to the great question of national aid to road improvement in an endeavor to work out a policy which may be substituted to the congress of the United States with the support of the organized road movement of America. The Secretary of Agriculture, Hon. David F. Houston, will be the spokesman of the national administration at the congress. An important move bearing upon state legislation will be made at the session to be held under the auspices of the American Bar association, at which steps will be taken toward the formation of an official interstate commission on for codifying and simplifying state road laws.

President Page calls attention to the exhibits to be made by the United States government, the states and nearly a hundred of the leading manufacturers of the congress which will illustrate every known method, material and equipment for road construction and maintenance. He urges the city and county to be officially represented, as the congress is in reality a training school where a very great amount of useful information can be obtained through attendance at lectures, inspection of exhibits, conferences with leading specialists in road and street work, and the collecting of the many instructive bulletins and documents which will be available for distribution.

The headquarters of the congress is in the Colorado Building, Washington, D. C., in charge of J. E. Pennybacker, General Secretary.

ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES

Justices Must Turn Over Fine Money To County Treasurer

Our readers will remember reading in the report of J. A. Dresser, the expert accountant, who examined the county books, last fall, says the East Jordan Enterprise, that the justices of the peace in the cities and villages had been following what appears to have become a common practice, of turning in fines collected for the violation of local ordinances into the city or village treasury instead of reporting and turning it in to to county officials, as Dresser insisted the law required.

The interest of the public in the matter is found in the fact that if the fine-money is turned into the city and village treasuries it helps out their taxation to that extent, while if it is turned over to the county it goes to swell the library fund, which is apportioned to the several townships and school districts, and can be used for library purposes only.

The County Board instructed Prosecuting Attorney Fitch to investigate this matter and report. In decisions examined the question was not left as clear as could be desired, so he submitted the following to the Attorney General:

"It is the practice in this county for Justices of the Peace to turn over to their respective municipalities all fines collected by them for violations of their various municipal ordinances. Is this proper, or should all fines be paid over to the County Treasurer?"

The Attorney General replying thereto, says:

"I would respectfully call your attention to Act No. 32, of the Public Acts of 1909. Also to section 1369 to 1374 of the Township Officers' Guide, and section 14 of article XI of the 1908 constitution. From a reading of the above you will no doubt see that it is the duty of the Justice of the Peace to return the proceeds from fines and penalties to the County Treasurer, who in turn makes the distribution to the several townships, districts, township districts, villages and cities in the county for school and library purposes."

From the foregoing it would seem that Mr. Dresser was right in his contention, and that the cities and villages may be asked to come across with the fine money they have received improperly.

Coming September 15.

Monday, September 15th is the date when J. Leahy, the Optometrist, will be at Baker's Inn. He will remain two day. Headache, dizziness and all symptoms of eye strain cured. Fitting children's eyes a specialty. Glasses guaranteed to fit.

CAPT. JIM REID

Veteran Wrecker Passed Away—Well Known in Charlevoix

A Sarnia special of the fifth says: "The funeral of the late Captain James Reid, president of the Reid Wrecking Co., of Sarnia, Ont., who died in Dearborn, Tuesday, took place today at 2:30 o'clock from the family residence to Lakeview cemetery.

"The services were conducted by Rev. Canon David, under the auspices of the Masonic order, of which Captain Reid was a member. Captain Reid was well known in marine circles, standing high in the estimation of Sarnians. He was influential in bringing the big Hall sawmill here and also the plant of the Cleveland-Sarnia company. For the latter effort he was given a public banquet.

"Scores of prominent marine men from all over the lakes were present with members of half a dozen or more lodges to which the veteran wrecking master belonged. The floral tributes were magnificent and weighed hundreds of pounds. Anchors, lighthouses, steering wheels, and other appropriate marine designs were represented among the offerings.

"A number of prominent marine men from Detroit were present, including Capt. H. W. Baker, who was associated with Capt. Reid in a number of wrecking operations."

GREAT LAKES FISHERIES

U. S. Will Ask Canada to Join in Increased Propagation of Fish

The fisheries of the great lakes will be one of the subjects discussed at the international fisheries conference to take place at Copenhagen, Denmark, from Sept. 15 to 21.

Hugh M. Smith, United States fish commissioner, who left for the conference last week, goes with instructions from the department of commerce to ask for co-operation by the Canadian authorities in the propagation of fish in the great lakes on a more extensive scale than has ever been undertaken. The authorities of all the great nations have recognized the importance of international agreements looking toward the increase in the supply of fish.

It is now believed that much can be done to reduce the cost of living by the encouragement of fisheries.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Sweet, on account of his knowledge of the great lakes, is especially interested in the subject.

The Poor Superintendents

The State Association of Superintendents of the Poor will close its annual session here tonight (Thursday) after a most profitable and enjoyable meeting. About two-thirds of the counties of the state, from Hillsdale, Kalamazoo and Jackson on the south to Iron and Houghton on the north are represented. Many of the superintendents are accompanied by their wives.

The program as published in these columns last week was carried out fully, and each topic was thoroughly threshed out in general discussions. The delegates were shown about the city and its near environments, and all expressed themselves as gratified not only with the success of the convention, but with the courtesy and hospitality shown by our people.

Tuesday afternoon Miss Nita Mayne entertained the convention with character readings and recitations, and received a very flattering reception.

INDIAN CHILDREN

Government Agents Gathering Up Northern Michigan Kids for Western Schools

The melancholy days soon will arrive for the Indian children of northern Michigan who are daily expecting the arrival of the government school agent to take them to the western Indian schools.

In Michigan there are about 3,000 Indian children of school age. While the state is able to look after the education of a large part of them through its Indian school at Mt Pleasant, and the district Indian school at Ishbatown, in Leeland county, and the Catholic school at Cross Village, on Sturgeon Bay, there remains a large percentage of these children beyond the reach of the educational facilities. Hence the federal government places many Indian children in the schools at Chamberlain, S. D., the Lawrence, and Haskell schools in Kansas, and the Kiowa agency school, in Oklahoma.

Early in the fall the agent visits the northen part of Michigan to gather as many of the children as he can induce to enter the western schools. Any child over 12 years old who is half-Indian blood, is eligible. In Leeland, Grand Traverse, Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet counties, Indian families are preparing to send their children west. Not all of them will remain at the school, however, as the pupils frequently "skip" and return home on foot.

Carrying out the theories of the government that the Indian should become a tiller of the soil large school farms are maintained in connection with the western schools. Upon these the boys and girls are given a thorough course in agriculture. Manual training and domestic science classes, which include dressmaking and tailoring also are a part of the western Indian schools curriculi. Not many of the students of the Indian schools take up agriculture, but many boys and girls enter tailoring shops after they return to Michigan, where they develop into expert "buchelmen."

Make Application at Once

The county clerk issues a warning to aliens who have taken out their first papers prior to the new law, which went into effect Sept. 27, 1906, and who have neglected to apply for their second papers.

Under the new law, Section 4 reads in part as follows, viz: Not less than two years nor more than seven years after he has made such Declaration of Intention he shall make and file a petition in writing, etc.

Section 3, of the Naturalization Regulations reads in part as follows, viz: Aliens who declared their intentions prior to June 29, 1906, in accordance with the requirements of law, must comply with all the requirements of the Naturalization act of June 29, 1906, in petitioning for naturalization.

All aliens who declared their intentions on or before September 27, 1906, must file their petitions for citizenship not later than September 27, 1913. And any alien who fails to comply with this law, must before he can become a citizen, again declare his intentions, and wait two years and three months.

ANNUAL BARGAIN DAY EXHIBIT

The Charlevoix Retail Merchants' Association Announces Its Annual Agricultural Exhibit

Saturday, Sept. 20th, is the date set for the annual bargain day agricultural and pomological exhibit of the Charlevoix Retail Merchants' Association, in the Vought garage, Antrim street.

The local merchants are offering an unusually attractive list of prizes and the competitive display of the fruits and garden and field products of this section is expected to eclipse anything yet pulled off in this city.

These exhibits approach very closely to a county fair exhibit, and, as an important adjunct of the event, they bring the farmers together, as they also bring the farmers and the merchants together, a feature of the gathering that cannot fail to be beneficial to both.

Make arrangements to come and bring a good exhibit.

To Parents

As a child's success in school depends on the condition of the eyes, it is the parents duty to know the condition of their children's eyes at the beginning of the school year. This you can learn by consulting J. Leahy, the Optometrist, when he comes Sept. 15-16, as he fully understands the care of children's eyes.

THE FORBIDDEN FRUIT.

Maybe it Was a Quince Eve Ate in the Garden of Eden.

Why and how it has happened that the apple has been spoken of as the fruit that was forbidden in the Garden of Eden is one of the great puzzles of biblical scholars. The fact is that in Genesis iii., where the incident of the eating of this fruit of the "tree of knowledge of good and evil" is mentioned, no name whatever is given to that fruit. All that is said is: "And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat." (Verse 6.)

In fact, scholars doubt very seriously whether it was the apple at all. They suggest that all evidence points to it having been the quince, the fragrance of which was held in the highest esteem by the Orientals. Another point in favor of the quince is that it is the fruit which was sacred to Venus, the goddess of love, and in a great many of the ancient writings the quince is very frequently mentioned in this manner. In Babylonia Ishtar took the place of Venus in the Roman mythology, and it should be remembered that the story of the creation originated with the Babylonians. All evidence seems to point away from the apple having been the "forbidden fruit," and toward the quince as having been that fruit of the "tree of knowledge of good and evil."—Tit Bits.

DREAMING OF FALLING.

What Happened in the One Known Case of Hitting the Ground.

Probably all of us have dreamed that we were falling down the back stairs or a high cliff, then gliding swimmingly off into space. This dream gives the same sensation as a rapidly descending elevator or a fast swaying swing. We are worried for the instant about what will happen when we strike bottom, but we never strike. Either we are off on another dream before that disastrous event happens or we awake.

There is an old superstition that if one ever hit the ground the shock would kill the dreamer, but this is difficult of proof, for, as our Irish neighbor might remark, the only way it could be proved would be to have the dreamer wake up dead and tell us about it.

Of the thousands who wrote letters a few years ago to an Englishman who had published an essay on the subject but one correspondent had dreamed that the fall continued clear to the ground. This woman dreamed she fell off a tall rock. When she hit the ground she was broken into small bits, but a sort of second self gathered up the pieces and glued them together, making a piece of humanity as good as new. This dream, however, is unique. —Chicago Tribune.

BONNY BLUE BONNETS.

And the Towns in Scotland Famed For Their Manufacture.

Since 1590 the town of Stewarton, Scotland, has been noted for its manufacture of the "blue bonnet," famed in song. In the infancy of the trade Glasgow was its chief market, and was visited yearly at the great July fair by the bonnet makers with their year's manufacture of nightcaps and bonnets. A record of 1650 shows that the Stewarton corporation was penalized by the Glasgow trades because of the insufficiency of its yearly product.

In 1720 the Stewarton corporation consisted of thirty-five members, who were bound by very stringent rules to keep up the price of bonnets, by periods of compulsory desistance from trade. In one instance an offender was fined $20 for going to work at Kilmarnock.

The Stewarton bonnet makers held themselves and their goods superior to those of Kilmarnock, and a fine of $250 was imposed for the offense of selling Kilmarnock bonnets as Stewarton ones.

In 1750 a law was passed enforcing the use of indigo only as the dyestuff. In the early days of the industry the bonnets were knitted in the open air, when the weather was favorable.—Argonaut.

HE KNEW THE ENGLISH.

Consequently the "Heathen Chinee" Took No Chances.

An Englishman who was appointed to an important post in China got married soon after. Among the recipients of the usual little cardboard boxes containing a piece of wedding cake was a Chinese merchant with whom the bridegroom had an outstanding account for goods supplied. After the honeymoon one of the first persons the newly wedded husband met was his celestial creditor.

"And how did you like the cake?" said the Englishman laughingly, after the usual congratulations.

"Ah, ha!" returned the Chinaman, with a cunning leer. "Me no such big fool to eat him, sah. Me put cakee in fire, burn him up. He, he!"

"Oh, that's too bad!" said the Englishman, very much hurt. "You might have tasted it at least, out of compliment to my wife and myself. Why didn't you?"

"Me too clute, sah," said the celestial, with the same cunning smile. "You owe me mouce, sah; sendee poison cakee; I eat him; I die; you no payee up! Hospital. He, he, he! I know your Inglisch!"—Exchange.

Breaking It Gently.

"Mamma, don't you think Schiller quite out of date?"

"I certainly do."

"I'm so glad. I just smashed his statuette in the drawing room."—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Northern Michigan

Prof. A. T. Greenman and family have returned from Ann Arbor, where he attended the summer school and took up some special work during his vacation period. They also visited friends and relatives in several places while away from home.—Boyne City Times.

Postmaster A. K. Dougherty of Elk Rapids, has forwarded his resignation to the department at Washington, subject only to the appointment of his successor. In other words, it is an "immediate effect" instrument. The family will become residents of Lansing, and will remove to that city in the near-future.

The West Michigan Soldiers' and Sailors' association have decided to change the place of meeting from Reed City to Bellaire, and they will go there Sept. 16, 17 and 18. They will reorganize in a thorough manner, and it is stated that they would very much like to return to Traverse City for their meeting next year.

As the result of investigation by state officers, Petoskey will be obliged to build a separate tank to take care of the sewage, which is now emptied into Little Traverse bay in close proximity to the intake of the wells which supply the water for the municipal water system. The matter has been under consideration for some time, but lack of funds has prevented official action.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Johnson and little daughter, Lilace, came over from Charlevoix Friday to remove their household goods to that place. Mr. Johnson will be remembered by many from the accident at the Cooperage in which he lost his right arm. In spite of this handicap, he is carrying on a very successful cabinet making business in Charlevoix, specializing in children's furniture. Both Mr. and Mrs. Johnson have many friends here who will be glad to hear of their prosperity.—Boyne City Times.

It has been learned that James L. Campbell, the first editor of The Boyne Citizen, has gone into partnership with his son, Tom, and organized a newspaper at Alba, which will be known as the Alba Review. Mr. Campbell was among the pioneer residents of Boyne City and lived there with his family for a number of years. About 17 years ago they moved to Elmira, thence to Barryton, and other southern Michigan cities, but "Jim" has always had a warm place in the hearts of old Boyne City friends, who wish him all sorts of success in this last launching into the newspaper world.

As an evidence of the productiveness of the soil in Emmet county, the farm of Charles Krussell, a short distance southwest of Petoskey, is a fair example. Mr. Krussell has just finished the harvesting of his crops. From thirteen acres he obtained nine hundred bushels of oats, averaging about seventy bushels to the acre. Two hundred and thirteen bushels of barley were realized from six acres, and sixty bushels of wheat from three acres. Good farming land in this vicinity is in great demand, and the indications are that the price of land will double itself in a short time. Inquiries are made every day about farms.

A large number of Petoskey residents are anxiously awaiting the announcement of the appointment of a new postmaster for this city.

Postmaster Pailthorp resigned a short time ago, to take effect Sept 1, but as no one has yet been appointed for the position he continues in the office. Mr. Pailthorp was appointed postmaster two years ago following the death of Postmaster Buckley. His term would not have expired yet for two years had he not resigned. E. L. Rose, ex-mayor and former pioneer groceryman, is considered the most likely prospect for new postmaster. An appointment will soon be made, according to word from Washington.

Judge Lamb, of Cadillac, notified the attorneys in the case of his decision in the McManus-Walloon Lake case, which has been argued in different forms for the last 10 years. His decision requires the dam in the outlet of the lake into Bear river to be lowered 10 inches. This is a compromise by both parties, as the McManus interests demanded the level to be lowered 26 inches and the Walloon Lake association want the present level maintained. It was a question between injuring the Walloon resort, by lowering the lake 26 inches or injuring mills along Bear river by holding the water back. Judge Lamb decided on a medium between the two extremes.

RESTAURANTS TO OBEY LABOR LAW

COMMISSIONER SAYS THEY ARE NOT EXEMPT FROM 54-HOUR LAW.

WOMEN ARE OVERWORKED

James Cunningham Sends Out Inspectors to Notify Proprietors and Agencies That They Must Obtain License.

Lansing—James V. Cunningham, state commissioner of labor, announced that he had received several complaints from various parts of the state to the effect that the 54-hour law for women was being violated by restaurant owners, and the deputy inspectors will pay particular attention to the eating houses in the future in their Detroit inspection trips.

At present, blanks covering nearly every line of business imaginable are in the hands of the factory inspectors, but for some unknown reason, restaurants were overlooked. Commissioner Cunningham stated that he knew of no reason why the restaurant rooms should be exempt, and said that he intends to obtain report on the number of women employed in each Detroit restaurant as well as reports on the health, for sanitary conditions, and other data.

This action is a direct result of complaints that women were working as many as 80 hours a week in restaurants.

According to the provisions of the 54-hour law, mercantile and other places where perishable goods are kept are exempt, and although the law does not specify, it has been generally understood that the eating houses were so included. Commissioner Cunningham stated that he knew no good reason why the restaurants should not comply with this law.

After a conference with Assistant Prosecutor Thom, Commissioner Cunningham sent three inspectors out Monday to notify all such employing agencies that they must obtain licenses or prosecution would be started Wednesday.

The job agents are experiencing some difficulty, it is said, in securing surety bonds of $1,000 which the law provides for.

Michigan Horseshoers Convene.

About 200 members of the Michigan Horseshoers' association were present when the twentieth annual convention opened in the auditorium of Eaglesh.

W. S. Linton, president of the board of trade, gave the address of welcome. President L. Shagard, Grand Rapids, and Charles Schmid, Saginaw, also responded.

J. C. Buckley, Detroit, editor of the Horseshoers' Journal, offered a resolution to state that within the last ten years the number of horses has increased 100 per cent, and although the motor had crowded the animals for a time, they had come back to their own.

An effort will be made by the organization to secure the establishment of a chair of horseshoeing in the university of Michigan or the Michigan Agricultural college. The latter is preferred.

Worms Kill Hogs in State.

Through the ravages of a pinkish white worm which is causing the death of hundreds of hogs in southwestern Michigan there will be a loss this season to stock raisers estimated at over $100,000. Some of the individual losses have already reached over $1,000.

The first infection was noted in the swine in the southern part of the county several weeks ago. It has spread through several counties, nearly half in its wake. Many herds in the vicinity of Dowagiac have become infected and the loss to some of the hog raisers is considerable.

This worm bears the scientific name of ascaris suis. It is thought to be a form of hog cholera, but it did not yield to injections of serum, and is from the state agricultural bureau. It was then discovered by herd owners as one thing but worms, until one farmer dissected several hogs and found worms in the intestines.

Buffalo Delegates Named.

Charles F. Merrifield of Grand Rapids, James J. Jakway of Bangor, Isabor and David A. Fitzgibbon of Port Huron, have been appointed by Governor Warner as delegates from Michigan to the national conference on state and territorial health, to be held in Buffalo, October 22-25. Dallas Rodenmann of Kalamazoo, A. T. Edwards of Houghton and John Nagel of Ionia, will have been named as alternates.

Clothiers Elect Officers.

The Michigan Retail Clothiers' association, in convention at Port Huron, chose Detroit as the next meeting place. The officers elected are: President, E. Marcus, Bay City; first vice-president, Samuel Pelz, Kalamazoo; second vice-president, J. E. Hutchins, Grand Rapids; secretary-treasurer, Joe Rosen, Hancock; executive committee, Meyer S. May, Grand Rapids; L. E. Oppenheim, Bay City; Sam Rosenberg, Flint; H. J. Hosseman, Grand Rapids; E. J. Hickey, Detroit.

July Death Rate.

Secretary of State Martindale has issued the following mortality report:

"There were 5,541 deaths reported to the department of state as having occurred during the month of July, 1913. The number corresponds to an annual death rate of 12.1 per 1,000 estimated population. In July, 1912, the above there were 251 still births reported, which, if added, would make 5,792 as against 5,541 as compared with the month immediately preceding.

Women Appointed by Ferris.

Governor Ferris has appointed the following delegates from Michigan to the international congress of agricultural colleges and experiment stations to be held in Tulsa, Okla., October 22 to November 14:

Mrs. Martha Barber, Mrs. E. J. Cresta, Mrs. Dora Stockman, Lothar L. Wright, Lansing; Miss Agnes Hunt, A. M. Brown, J. L. Snyder, R. S. Shaw, East Lansing; Miss Jessie Buell, Ann Arbor; Mrs. O. M. Burch, Armada; Mrs. Emma Campbell, Ypsilanti; Mrs. Rose E. Helms, Adrian; Mrs. Charlton W. Scott, Rapid City; Mrs. H. H. Fulcher, St. Louis; Mrs. Louise Peterson, Stephenson; Mrs. V. D. Saunders, Rockford; Mrs. Mary Robertson, Fremont; Mrs. Clara McDermid, Battle Creek; Miss Julia Hall, Hamburg; Mrs. Mollie Hoak, Tecumseh; Mrs. John F. Herrick, Big Rapids; Robert D. Graham, Grand Rapids; Alfred P. Dobson, Clare; William H. Wallace, Saginaw; L. A. Whitehead, John W. Sparks, Detroit; Isaac Woodman, Paw Paw; Amos B. Mosessohn, Big Rapids.

Governor Ferris has also appointed the following delegates to the fifteenth anniversary celebration of the emancipation of the slaves to be held at Philadelphia, September 15: Mrs. Hattie Taylor, Detroit; Mrs. Stanley Worthington, Detroit; Mrs. Rebecca Hall Elliott, Detroit; G. P. Cox, Mackinac Island; Samuel G. Thompson, Detroit; August Bedwell, Kalamazoo; William Atwood, Saginaw.

Butterfield Joins State Fair.

It will be welcome news to those interested in the welfare of the Michigan state fair to learn that I. H. Butterfield, for many years connected with the fair in the capacity of secretary, has consented to lend an expert hand in making the fair a success in emphatic success.

Mr. Butterfield assumes charge of the detail work of the fair today and he will be a busy man from now until the opening of the fair. It will be not been that Mr. Butterfield was a very close friend of the new general manager, George W. Dickinson, it is extremely doubtful if he would have allowed himself to be drawn from the office of secretary to the state fair board.

Every year since Mr. Butterfield retired from Michigan state fair service, he has been asked to come back and direct the grooming of the exhibits, but he always declined to be induced because of pressing business matters.

However, just before embarking for his extended tour of Europe this spring, Manager Dickinson secured Mr. Butterfield's consent to oversee the filling of this year's exhibits.

When it is known that the acceptance of the position means the age of eight work from now until fair time, it can be realized what a sacrifice Mr. Butterfield is making for the sake of the state institution. It is so easy to wrongly list the entries and thus create a feeling of antipathy of an exhibitor that Manager Dickinson is breathing much easier this week than one week ago.

Mr. Butterfield was connected with the Michigan state fair staged in Pontiac, and was instrumental in having it shifted to Detroit rather than to either the City or Saginaw as was contemplated at the time.

"I have seen the Michigan state fair grow from more than a seat of superficial country vaudeville into a great and growing power for educational good in the community," said Mr. Butterfield in discussing the situation Wednesday.

"I have firmly settled convictions that the fair leads have a man at the helm now, George W. Dickinson, who will put the fair on a firm basis. The little 'g' gave the fair the impetus to note the volume of entries for this year, but what I did see convinces me that the list will be the largest, and best balanced in the history of the fair."

State Workhouse Site Selected.

The state board of control composed of Governor Ferris, Secretary of State Martindale, Auditor General Fuller, Attorney General Fellows and Land Commissioner Sagatoon has selected the Marston farm on the Kawkawlin stone road, three miles south of Bay City, as the proposed site for the Bay county house of correction.

This information was officially reported to the special committee of the board of supervisors, held at the Bay City courthouse.

The farm consists of 233 acres, and the state board requires 160 acres additional. A recommendation will be made to the board of supervisors at the October session that a special election be called in November to vote on the question of bonding the county for $75,000 for the purchase of the site.

Increase in State Tax.

Auditor General G. H. Fuller, who was in Pontiac on a tour of visiting Genesee and Lapeer counties, stated that the state tax this year would be $3,000,000 more than ever before.

Addition to State Asylum.

Work will begin at once on the new addition to the state asylum at Kalamazoo, left vacant by the recent Construction company of Cadillac. The state also will erect a building to be used as a shop for the work on its own time. Some of the patients will be employed to room in the wards.

There is $20,000 for building a new building for male patients, but work will not be started on this until spring.

New Incorporations.

Articles of incorporation have been filed with the secretary of state by the following firms:

Niagara Land & Timber company, Niagara Falls, $100,000. Lumber. Clarence Renovating company, Ypsilanti, $25,000. Otto Brodhage American laundry, Grand Rapids, $100,000. Laundry. Michigan Stamping company, Detroit, $3,000. Incorporated to deal in coal, retail stamps, printed matter. J. L. Jones and Charles H. Jenks, Grand Rotor company, Detroit, increase from $162,900 to $220,900.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES

WHERE EDISON LEARNED TELEGRAPHY

On August 28 Thomas A. Edison is going back to Mount Clemens to visit the old passenger station where he learned telegraphy and began his career in the electrical world. He will be the guest of the city for the day, and it is expected that he will once more sit at his old place in the window facing the track as he did when the "Wizard" to send a message to President Wilson. Part of the old instrument at which Edison worked is still stored in one of the station buildings.

BANKERS WIN POINT

SENATE GETS OPINION ON THE CURRENCY BILL.

Senator Owens Sees Merit in Plan to Reduce the Quantity of Bank Reserves.

Washington, Aug. 26.—In answer to the criticism of the currency bill made by the conference of bankers at Chicago, the administration's forces in the house will tighten up the lines and a more vigorous indorsement of the currency bill as it now stands will be the result.

Informal conferences of Democratic members of the house currency committee emphasized the fact that the active supporters of the president's currency plan expect to pass the measure through the house without substantial changes.

The proposal to reduce the quantity of reserves and give country banks the privilege of keeping part of their reserves in the large cities had many supporters, and ultimately may be worked into the bill in the senate, but the change is not expected in the house.

The bankers will have an opportunity to present their views openly to congress after the currency bill gets into the senate. Chairman Owen of the senate currency committee said that while hearings had not yet been arranged, he expected leading representatives of the various "factions" regarding the banks of the country would be invited to give their views of the bill to the senate committee.

"I see a great deal of merit in the proposal to reduce somewhat the quantity of reserves," said Senator Owen.

The fact that the leading bankers hold differing views of the effect of the new legislation, particularly with regard to the possible reduction of loans and curtailment of credit, has led members of the senate committee to believe that a further discussion of the bill in open hearings would result in winning the cooperation and support of a large portion of the banking fraternity of the country.

MAY ASSIST SULZER

SENATOR NOW IN PRISON, SAID TO HAVE EXPOSED TAM-MANY CONSPIRACY.

GOVERNOR'S COUNSEL SPLIT?

New York Executive's Attorneys Are Reported to Be Estranged Over Demand for Indictment of "Boss" Murphy.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 27.—An uncofirmed report was revived among politicians here Monday that Senator Stilwell, who is now serving a sentence in Sing Sing for bribery, had made a confession to Governor Sulzer, implicated five senators, one assemblyman and several Tammany men. Asked about the report, Governor Sulzer said he was not responsible for it.

The indictment of Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany hall, Aaron J. Levy, leader of the Democratic majority in the assembly, and James Fravler, chairman of the committee which investigated Governor Sulzer's campaign contributions, has been requested by the district attorneys of New York and Albany counties by Judge Lynn J. Arnold of Albany, an ardent Sulzer supporter.

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 26.—Harry K. Thaw, reconciled with his Canadian lawyers to the proceeding to be followed when he will be arraigned in the superior court on a writ of habeas corpus, spent a restful Sunday in the Sherbrooke jail as it announced that no matter if William Travers Jerome did take charge of New York's case, he (Thaw) was not fearful of the outcome.

"I faced the death chair twice," said Thaw. "Why should I worry about going back to Matteawan?"

Having found it useless to argue with him, Thaw's lawyers brought about a truce to the breach that for a time threatened by agreeing to let Thaw manage the publicity end of his case.

To Thaw this end has become predominant. He has been told that he is likely to be deported to Vera Cruz after the immigration authorities take him into custody, and Sunday a plea was made a request for a list of his lending newspapers of that state.

"I may have some very important statements to give them," he said.

Governor La Force, when asked about rumors of his being escaped or being rescued from jail, said that if he thought there was any danger of his being rescued he would put it known as the murderer's self.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Refiterating his charge that Representative McDermott of Illinois had "lipped him off" on numerous occasions regarding the prospects of protabor legislation, which the National Association of Manufacturers wanted to kill, Colonel Mulhall, former lobbyist for the manufacturers, again took the stand before the house lobby investigating committee Friday. Mulhall said that he was instructed specifically that the 1910 McDermott had sent him word he be on the lookout for a labor bill amendment to the sundry civil bill. J. N. McMullen, said to be the bearer of the McDermott warning, H. E. Simmons Predicts Bill Will Have Presidential Signature by That Date.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Chairman Simmons of the senate finance committee on Sunday predicted the senate could complete the tariff bill and pass it by September 15. The measure could be finished by the conference committee and signed by President Wilson by September 16. Only unforeseen delay in debate will prevent the tariff from becoming a law by that time, in the opinion of Senator Simmons.

Score of Girls Leap at Fire.

Gunboat Sunk in Maneuver.

Malmo, Sweden, Aug. 25.—While participating in the annual maneuvers of the Swedish fleet one of the Swedish gunboats was sunk by a collision in the circular room, the state department, oval in shape, which is now called the "Cabinet room." The room is a very pretty one. Thus it came about that the wedding presents represented a value of more than $100,000.

Certainly no marriage ever started out with a fairer outlook. But unfortunately the prospect was not realized. Sarterts, who was an idler, like many Englishmen of his class, did not make a satisfactory husband, and Mrs. Sartorts was eventually compelled to divorce him. Her second husband, Mr. Tyler, took to himself a French girl, Cecile Mouthard, and is now residing in France. Two daughters are married.

A little over a year ago—Mr. Sartorts having married a second wife—one Miss Hatch Jones, being married to him in the same month that Mrs. Tyler married.

On the evening of Jan. 31, 1842, Elizabeth Tyler, the daughter of President Tyler, died in the presence of relatives, who had assembled in the blue room of the White House to William Waller, a member of President Tyler's cabinet.

It is not possible in all instances to trace the subsequent history of the White House brides, some of whom, indeed, such as those of the Lincoln administration, were married and married again, so that it is not the fact that they were married in the White House

Dolly Madison's marriage Mrs. Tyler died, and within a short time the widowed president took to himself a second wife, whose name was Julia Gardiner. She was a New York girl.

Returning from abroad with her father, Miss Gardiner visited Washington and met President Tyler.

Soon afterward President Tyler became engaged to Miss Gardiner, and they were married in New York, the bridal party returning immediately to the White House, where the wedding reception was held.

Mrs. Tyler was fifty-six and his bride only twenty. John Quincy Adams, then in congress and a bitter opponent of President Tyler, on his marriage as a "union of January and May."

Young Mrs. Tyler did not live in the White House to a Kentucky widower named Todd, who was an associate justice of the Supreme court. Her mother was the first White House wedding and was celebrated with all the relat possible in those comparatively simple days.

It will be noticed that only four of the twelve White House brides have been daughters of Presidents. The first of these was Marie Monroe, the second Elizabeth Tyler, the third Nellie Grant and the fourth Alice Roosevelt. Jessie Woodrow Wilson will be the fifth.

LIND ENDS MISSION

WILSON'S SPECIAL ENVOY LEAVES MEXICAN CAPITAL DE-LIEVED EFFORT IS FAILURE.

EMBASSY MAY BE CLOSED

President's Representative Calls on Foreign Minister Gamboa and Bids Him Good-by so as Not to Be Called a Snob.

Mexico City, Aug. 27.—President Wilson's special envoy, John Lind, has ended his mission in Mexico and has been ordered home. He left for Vera Cruz on Tuesday.

Mr. Lind called on Foreign Minister Gamboa to say good-by. There was nothing in their conversation to indicate that Mexico would recede from its position.

William Bayard Hale, who has been in Mexico City in an official capacity, will accompany Mr. Lind, or depart soon afterward.

The next step most probable, it is thought, will be the closing of the American embassy. Mr. Lind refused to affirm or deny this.

Rumors persist that General Huerta, who has been summoned to the capital, will be more provisional president, but confirmation is lacking, and this report is offset by another that General Huerta has called in most of the reliable officers and many of those on detached service to report for duty.

Felix Diaz, who started for Japan as special Mexican ambassador, is also said to have received a summons to return to the capital.

The mission of Mr. Lind came to a sudden end after he called on Mr. Gamboa and told him he would return to Vera Cruz Tuesday on an early train en route to Washington.

"I will not go away without letting them know I am not sneaking away," Mr. Lind told a correspondent later.

Asked if his going meant an end to diplomatic negotiations, Mr. Lind smiled sadly and said:

"I am going back to Washington. I wish I could tell you more, but I cannot. I expect to remain two or three days at Vera Cruz and be a passenger on the liner Morro Castle, sailing Thursday, soon. I will not return to the United States on a warship."

Then your diplomatic mission has failed?" was suggested. "What will be the next move?"

"If I were a prophet I might be able to tell you, but I am not."

Mr. Lind appeared to be depressed.

"The American embassy will remain in Mexico and the Mexican embassy in Washington," was a statement given by Minister Gamboa. "The return of Mr. Lind to Washington was due to orders he received from President Wilson to return home. Negotiations between Mexico and Washington in reference to the Lind mission have been broken off, but I am preparing another note replying to that of Mr. Lind."

Mr. Gamboa declared there would be no more official intercourse. He refused to say what kind of a note he was preparing to present to Washington.

"Mr. Lind will be given every protection to his departure from Mexico to Vera Cruz," said Minister Gamboa.

A battleship is reported waiting at Vera Cruz to take Mr. Lind to the United States.

"This government is not aware that European nations are accepting presents from Mexico and from the American proposals," Minister Gamboa went on. "No official advice have been received by the foreign office department indicating that Latin America or South American countries are supporting Washington in its stand on Mexican situation."

In diplomatic circles it was said suggestions made by European envoys were merely that Mr. Lind be given a hearing.

A special cabinet meeting was called but was kept secret despite rumors.

NEEDED SOME TOUCHING UP

Father Evidently Has His Own Opinion of What an Honest Man Should Look Like.

Outside the photographer's establishment in the little country town stood two figures—evidently father and son. At last they went in. "Oh wait, yer to take a picture of our Joseph yere, maister," said the fond parent, and Joseph was promptly placed in a chair and requested to compose the features for a while. The photographer's specialty was quick developing and soon several negatives lay before the purchaser. The father gazed uneasily at them for a space, and then said, nervously: "You say in the window, maister, as how yer can touch up the pictures to give any effect agreeable to yer customers." "That I do," assured the artist, readily, hastening to add, with his best professional smile: "But in you son's case my retouching is absolutely unnecessary." "Ow, aye," said the father. "That he mun like Joseph, but to tellee truth, he's got to send us wi' his testimonials for a job, and I'd like yer to alter his photo to make him look honest-like!"—London Tit-Bits.

FACE BROKE OUT IN PIMPLES

Falls City, Neb.—"My trouble began when I was about sixteen. My face broke out in little pimples at first. They were red and sore and then became like little boils. I picked at my face continually and it made my face red and sore looking and then I would wake up at night and scratch it. It was a source of continual annoyance to me, as my face was always red and splotched and horrid at the time.

"I tried everything and others, but I could find nothing to cure it. I had been troubled about two years before I found Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and tried them and then bought some. I washed my face good with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment at night and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. The next morning I washed it off with the Cuticura Soap and hot water. In two days I noticed a decided improvement, while in three weeks the cure was complete." (Signed) John Kossler, Jan. 15, 1913.

Most Powerful Searchlight.

The new Italian searchlight projectors made by the Algemeine establishment of Berlin are among the most powerful yet to be produced, and their candlepower, which is also high for continuous use, is stated to exceed 15 hundreds of millions. What a striking illustration of the progress of lighting the arc. The large carbons are now moved back and forth by small electric motors and suitable gears, current being applied to the motors by a set of switches worked from the top of the carbons in the best way. The base of the projector contains other motors for all the searchlight movements and a distant lever control is so designed that turning the lever in all directions makes the projector also follow these same directions for pointing the beam. These searchlights will carry several miles and still give light enough to read by.

CALLED DIPLOMACY TO AID

Officer's Imitations of Purse Overcome and Cashier's Hospitality Returned in Fitting Manner.

A veteran in the United States army recently told of the shrewdness displayed by an officer in his old day. He had been appointed to the command of an army post on an Indian and a great way from San Francisco. Soon after his arrival there a French Count dropped aboard in the harbor. The commander invited the nobleman to a dinner, and had the cashier of the post, who was a French Canadian, to act as host. The dinner was a very elaborate affair, and the cashier had spared no expense in the matter of wines and liquors. The Count was a good fellow and entertained him royally.

The dinner ended, the commander said to the host: "Count, I have a little joke on you. I have invited the officers of the post to dine with us tomorrow, and I want you to be host. Do the thing in the best way you know how, and I will see that you are reimbursed."

The Count was nothing loth, and the next day he was in honor bound to return the compliment, and he was staggered by the expense involved.

To give a banquet befitting his dignity as a United States officer entertaining distinguished representatives of a foreign nation would mean bankruptcy, so the government had not authorized him to draw on its treasury.

WHAT has become of the White House brides? There have been twelve of them. Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson will be No. 13. But she feels no superstitious alarm on that score, 12 being the luckiest of numbers in the Wilson family.

It is interesting to consider the fact that three of the round dozen of White House brides, including the first one, Lucy Payne, and the last one, Alice Roosevelt, married congressmen. Also that two, Della Lewis and Nellie Grant, became the wives of foreigners. Only one president, Mr. Cleveland, was married in the White House, although another, Mr. Tyler, took to himself a second bride during his term of office.

In earlier days White House weddings were always celebrated in the East room, but in modern times, the state dining room, which is now called the blue room, has been the place where society has expanded to such an extent, numerically speaking, that, with perhaps the exception of the sacrificial movements and a distant lever control is so designed that turning the lever in all directions makes the projector also follow these same directions for pointing the beam. These searchlights will carry several miles and still give light enough to read by.

OLD FORT COLTON

Now New York's Famous Aquarium at the Battery.

ONCE NAMED CASTLE GARDEN.

The Historic Building in Its Day Has Heard the Eloquence of Daniel Webster, the Fiery Oratory of Kossuth, and the Divine Voice at Jenny Lind.

Before New York had a national building at the Battery became the Aquarium it had changed from fort to reception hall. Even at a comparatively early date in the city to gateway of the promised land. Long before it became the home of the fiery ethic the building resounded with shouts for Lafayette, Andrew Jackson, Tyler, Van Buren. It heard the eloquence of Daniel Webster, the fiery oratory of Louis Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot, and the divine voice of Jenny Lind, the Swedish Nightingale.

When the building was new it stood on a little island separated from the mainland by some 200 feet of water, that was reached by crossing a clumsy bridge. A great part of Battery park was then water, and it was the filling in of this stretch that made the aquarium a part of the mainland. The reason for building it on an island away from the main shore was disclosed in a government order to Colonel John Williams, who had charge of the construction of the proposed fort. This order said to construct the edification so that the place could be trained on both the North and East rivers.

"A foundation should be made sound the bottom of the old Battery, where the flagstaff is placed, extending forty or fifty feet from the present, and upon this foundation a battery should be constructed in such manner that the fire on the right will take in the North river, while that upon the left will range along the counties of the old Battery."

Such were the orders the government gave Colonel Williams. But Colonel Williams said it was impossible for guns to command the entrance to the North and East rivers if they were placed at the old Battery. Two hundred feet out from the shore was the least distance at which that result could be accomplished, and some time afterward the secretary of war authorized the colonel's plan for the fort's construction.

In 1822, eleven years after its erection, when the military headquarters was transferred to Governor's island, the federal authorities called Fort Colton as the present aquarium was then called—back to the city. Throughout the war of 1812 not one shot had been fired at an enemy from this fort, nor had one been fired since. The embrasures for the thirty and thirty-two pounders that were never used against the enemy all the been in the nine foot outer wall.

It was then that the former fort became a place of amusement and received the name of Castle Garden, a name which it retained for three quarters of a century. Two years after the shifting of archives to Governor's isle and Castle Garden was the scene of a great reception given to General Lafayette when he visited America in 1824. It was also the scene of a great memorial service when he died ten years later.

It was there that Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph, first demonstrated the possibility of controlling an electric current in 1835. During those early years, too, it was the place of the receptions given to American presidents when they visited New York. Jackson, Tyler and Van Buren were received there, and later on the Prince of Wales. There also many great political meetings were held. Some of Daniel Webster's greatest orations were delivered there.

Castle Garden was widely proclaimed as the first real home of opera in America. The great auditorium, now occupied by fish, ordinary and extraordinary was then packed nightly with people who gathered to hear those famous artists of the middle nineteenth century: Maiberan, Sontag, Marie, Grisi, the members of Julien's orchestra—best known of all—Jenny Lind, whose all the theatre-going public of the United States and Europe worshiped. The first night in 1850 that the Swedish Nightingale appeared at Castle Garden, under the management of P. T. Barnum, the choice seats for several hundred dollars. Her tremendous popularity was made even greater when she gave to local charities the $10,000 which composed her share of the box office receipts.

The next year Louis Kossuth, the famous Hungarian patriot, came from England to the United States and made an address to a vast and enthusiastic throng in Castle Garden.

This story of the last great receptions held in the historic old building. Four years later it was converted into an insane asylum, and in 1855 the city of New York and from then until 1890, when the Immigration office was removed to Ellis island, it served as the gateway through which 8,000,000 people arrived to work out their destinies in the new world. In 1896 it became the aquarium of New York City.

TRIED TO BE TACTFUL.

Yet Little Glory's Scheme Didn't Work Out According to Rule.

"Children," said Mr. Tinkins, who had been suddenly moved to deliver a little sermon as he swallowed his second egg at breakfast, "whenever you hear anybody say anything mean or ungracious, act as though you hadn't heard it. Talk about something else and pretend you don't hear. That's what we call tact."

When Mr. Tinkins got home that afternoon from the office he observed that somebody had strewn his favorite golf clubs and all his golf balls over the front yard. Simulating his six-year-old daughter Glory, he said sternly:

"Glory, did you get all dirty golf things out and put them here where anybody could steal them?"

"Dad," replied Glory with perfect composure, "isn't it too bad our ice cream freezer's out of order, Aunt Mary can't make any ice cream?"

"Glory, did you dig up all this turf knocking those balls around?"

"And Uncle Randolph came and took mother for a ride in his auto, confided the six-year-old. "When are we going to get a new auto, dad?"

"But, Glory," said Mr. Tinkins, "I want to know about these golf clubs. Did you move them around here? Why don't you answer?"

"Well, yes I did," said the young person, "but I was trying to change the subject, because I didn't want you to know that I had something mean and unpleasant."—New York Post.

MUNICIPAL PAWNSHOPS.

In the Mont de Piete the Parisian Has a Model Institution.

The story of the Mont de Piete, the great pawnshop of Paris, reads like a romance. It is the survival of an old bank established by a religious order established in eight every. This benevolent enterprise was given up to be started afresh under the direction of the government in 1801, when Napoleon was near the height of his glory. The profits go to the state and to charity—to the schools and department aid to the hospitals of Paris. These charities benefit about $200,000 a year.

The storage facilities of the Mont de Piete are admirable. The Frenchman may pawn his feather bed. When it comes back to him it, as well as mattresses, blankets and all bed furniture, has been thoroughly disinfected. The rate of interest on loans is small, and encouragement by all means the redemption of the goods on which money has been advanced. As the Mont de Piete advances money only on a conservative valuation—a rule to the value of two-thirds of the article pawned—there is generally a surplus to go to the pawner if the pledge is sold.

Municipal pawnshops in Berlin charge 12 per cent, in Brussels 7 per cent and in Madrid 6 per cent.

In London for small loans the pawnshop rate is from 60 to 1,000 per cent per annum.—Indianapolis News.

BARGAINS IN TITLES.

Plenty of Foreign Countries Where You May Find Them.

Although foreign countries do not openly advertise their readiness to do business with those who aspire to affix a handle to their names, the fact is generally recognized that a considerable traffic in titles is carried on.

The tiny republic of San Marino, which does a roaring trade in titles of nobility at fixed rates, devotes a great part of its revenue to the maintenance of its foundling and orphan asylum. It will make you a count for your money, if such is your desire, a duke for $5,000 or an earl for $2,750.

An idea of the traffic done in titles may be inferred from the fact that a German firm trading in Sweden sends out a circular marked "Private and confidential" offering to secure any orders you desire in Sweden for you.

The order of St. George vary in price in different countries. In Sicily it costs $150, and in Italy more than twice as much, but you may become a Knight of Malta or Templar for as little as $75.

The time of titles does rather a prosperous business with the Order of the Redeemer, which can be had for $25, while Serbs bestows the Order of Takova for a little sum. The Prince of Monaco has for disposal the Order of the Star, for which he asks $175, and for $70 less one can secure the Order of the Iron Crown of Italy from the Duke of Perugia.

Although time cannot be bartered to Parliament it is, of course, an open secret that a generous contribution to political funds often paves the way to a place in the peerage. Accepts of this, it is interesting to note the fact that Franz Kossuth, the son of the famous patriot, charged the Hungarian government with receiving no less than $1,450,000 by selling baronet titles.

Another phase of this traffic in titles is revealed by carefully worded advertisements which have appeared in London papers from time to time, offering for sale the titles of baronetcies held by families of France. It is not so long ago since three dukes, two of which were French—one a cousin and the other of a marquis respectively—and one of an Austrian prince, were put up for sale in London, the prices ranging from $20,000 to $,000.—London Stray Stories.

A Capturer Royal Standard.

The British navy contained which fills the center of the ceiling of Trophy hall, Anacostia, is a splendid example of our restoration. Professor Wash burn said that this flag was "in about as fine condition as we charged her," yet to day it looks as if it had just left the hands of the weaver. A great deal of historic value is attached to this flag, as it is the only British royal standard in the possession of a foreign nation. In 1813 Commodore Isaac Chauncey and General Morgan Lewis captured the city of York, now Toronto, and took from the parliament house there this royal standard.—Christian Herald.

Mental Strain Bridge Echoes.

Among a most noted schools is that heard from the suspension bridge across the Mental strait. The sound of a blow from a hammer on one of the main piers of the structure is returned in succession from each of the cross beams that support the roadway and from the opposite pier at the distance of 576 feet, in addition to which the sound is many times repeated between the water and the roadway at the rate of twenty-eight times in five seconds.

MINNESOTA WORK
The New State Master Enthusiastic Over the Outlook.

An Account of a Grange Field Day at Austin, Minn., Where a Grange Parade Was Witnessed by 10,000 People. And the "Goat" Was There.

National Lecturer N. P. Hull of Michigan gets the National Grange Monthly of what he witnessed this summer in Minnesota at a grange field day, and it is worth reading.

In the course of my grange work, this fall I have attended many grange field days, but have never attended a more successful one than that held at Austin, Minn., June 11. This field day was held under the auspices of the Mower county Pomona grange, and there are affiliated with this Pomona twenty-two subordinate granges. The exercises opened with a parade at 11 a. m. which was fully three-quarters of a mile long and was preceded and followed by brass bands. Nineteen of the twenty-two granges had floats representing some phase of grange or farm work.

The Pomona float consisted of two wagons with specially made platforms, hitched together and drawn by six sleek horses with their harness wrapped with white binding. The floats represented "Then" and "Now." The platform representing "Then" had on it an old fashioned well curb, sawed and hewed, a log cabin with an old fashioned washboard, a dash churn, a grain cradle, etc. The "Now" was equipped with a gasoline engine hitched to a shaft. To the shaft were bolted a modern cream separator, a large cream can, a large cheese hoop, a sanitary milk pail, decorated fruit drawn by six horses, bearing brass mounted harness. Upon the platform twenty of the young members of the Austin Band were banners, "Grange Band," and the band was followed by two horses ridden by two horses ridden by two boys representing a motion, a young man and young lady on this goat. Another float showed a farm home with a large barn and silo; some fields laid out in crops and trees growing thereon.

The goat not result a description of the many beautiful and comical features of this parade. Fully 10,000 people lined the streets of Austin watching the parade. About four people attended the afternoon meeting, which was held in a nice park in the city. The program consisted of music, short talks and addresses by the state master the state lecturer, the state master and the lecturer of the national grange. Again is the home of C. L. Bier—master of the Minnesota state grange. This magnificent field day speaks volumes for the hustle and ability of Brother Bier and for the loyalty and enthusiasm of the many faithful members of the Order in that locality.

Blind Farmer Who Does Things.

Rufus A. Warren of South Bend, Ind., is a blind farmer who successfully operates a seventy-five acre farm. He keeps a dairy of ten or twelve cows, some young stock and hires all of the usual cropping work of the farm. Mr. Warren's part of the farm work is to care for the live stock and the building. He feeds and otherwise cares for the live stock without any assistance whatever. He milks the cows and climbs into the haymow and throws down roughage. Recently Mr. Warren installed a system of running water from a spring into a house and barn. The house overflow is the barn supply. Another piece of work done by Mr. Warren without aid of any kind was the construction of three horse stalls, which have the appearance of being built by a carpenter who understand the business. Cart bodies, sled platforms and hayracks used on the farm are his handiwork. A layman would say that he can be knocked down and stored away in a small space is one of his best achievements.

Organization Goes Briskly On.

TRAVELING ENGLISHMEN.

They're Prepared For Anything, From Golf to Sudden Death.

The equipment of the traveling Englishman is the eighth wonder of the world. He is ready for any emergency from golf to sudden death. I encountered being in a compartment on the Paris last train with an English family and their baggage, and I do not remember ever being so pleasantly entertained as I was on that trip. As to the baggage, there were twenty nine pieces of the hand variety which it took pater a half hour to dovetail into the racks while the train stood in the dingy station at Calais and another half hour to pry out when we reached the dreadful Gare du Nord.

This was only a detail, however, and I have never in my life seen a more work hunter to get a family of three women comfortably settled. It was in vain that they protested against sacrifices and rugs against muffling sable and speckled fruit. Before, a man, he knew so much better than they, lined they needed, and he gently but firmly had his way.

Finally he dozed off to stress, resting audibly from his labors. He laid loken of his golf clubs, with the umbrellas, capes and pockets, and as his eyelids became jolted in his momentary withdings I plainly saw a good sized holster protruding through the sleeve and contralds, evidently stripped round his portly waist.

"Aha!" I said to myself, "here we have a mystery! My counsels be perhaps a spy in some foreign country." This holster—with its supposed brace of firearms—fascinated me supernaturally, and about it I built a lovely blood curdling romance as we speed on through the mountainous French country. Finally my neighbor awoke, rosy and refreshed, and upon one of his daughters asking him some question about Paris he unbuckled the holster, took it off and while I watched with indrawn breath opened it and calmly extracted—a golfing book. What else that dreadful case may have contained I have no means of stating—perhaps a few sandwiches or a bottle of Scotch.—Dibuctor.

FRENCH FAMILY DINNERS.

People Who Eat Sensibly and Make the Most of Their Food.

A typical French dinner—not an exceptional one, mark you, but such a dinner as a small tradesman's family would have—is incomparably superior to the plain roast dinner.

There would be first of all, a few relishes, according to the season of the year, radishes, ice cold sardines, olives, caviar. Just a little of each with which to whet the appetite, then the soup to excite gently the liquids of the throat and stomach, then a little entree—usually a bit of fish with appropriate vegetable, or a handful of vegetables fin-ment with sauce, or. Then, and not till then, does the chief course appear.

It may be a roast, or game, or chicken, or chops, but in no case will it be anything which is not in harmony with the previous courses and it will be eaten in moderation, for the edge of the diner's appetite will have been dulled by the lighter foods which have preceded it. With it comes the salad and throughout the rest of the meal the possible changes of the season, and never, never by any possibility will it be such a dreadful hybrid as the tomatoes, strawberry and green pepper thing after the salad have left the fruit or mellow cheese, and then coffee.

It will take two hours to eat such a dinner, but it will take only half that the typical American dinner costs to pay for it and there will be no bad digestion afterward no matter of what the dinner is composed.—Princess Hanna in an interview by Louise Hite in the Delineator.

SATURDAY BATHING.

A Custom the Incident Borrowed From the Orient.

Most turkishness, judged by modern standards, were surprising but remained in their personal habits. In England, France and Germany bathing was an almost unknown custom. Later on the Crusades. The pilgrims from the East brought home with them ideas of the bath as help in the treatment of disease, and bathrooms were gradually introduced into the hospitals. From the hospitals the ideas of bathing spread gradually. People who had been treated there saw the value of keeping one body clean in order to resist disease. The great plague that swept over Europe in the early years of the fourteenth century helped to teach this lesson.

By the fifteenth century there was scarcely a large city that did not possess a well patronized public bathing establishments although it was not until the seventeenth century that the Turkish bath was introduced, and not until the eighteenth century that sea bathing became known, which ever since Indians was tried experimentally.

Saturday was chosen as bathing time and the reason is not difficult to imagine. On Sunday everybody was compelled to go to church, whether he would or not. As the Mosiem in the land bathed before entering the mosque so did the medieval man before entering his church. Saturday is associated in bath on Saturday afternoon in order to be clean the following day. There was even a definite place in the house to the children whose parents were too busy to pay for their baths.—New York Post.

SLEEPING CARS IN AFRICA.

They Are Not Too Clean and the Conductor Makes the Beds.

Describing railroad travel in South Africa, E. W. Howe in his Monthly says:

"Soon after the train conductor looked at our tickets he proceeded to lug two huge tags of bed clothing into our compartment and make up two beds. We paid $1.20 for the use of the bed clothing two nights; the charge would have been the same for one night. So that we will have a large compartment to ourselves two nights and a day and pay only $1.20 above the regular fare. The beds were comfortable, though somewhat narrow, but we slept as well, I imagine, as people usually do on a sleeping car. On our door and on our window were placards announcing that the compartment was reserved, and we were not disturbed during the journey. When this reservation placard is not displayed any one into a right to a seat or bed in a compartment that is not full.

"The South African sleeping cars are not at all bad, except that the train conductor has no much to do that he cannot keep them as clean as they should be. The conductor did not pull his nay sheet at night, but I knew he was very busy and overlooked his neglect.

"I wish the haughty conductors of American passenger trains could meet our conductor with his cots off, making up beds. I wish they could also see the dirty sheets which cover seats 2,000 miles of travel and road from Durban to Victoria Falls and back to Bulawayo. I am unable to understand them, but the conductors have no difficulty.

"On one or two trains we have been in there were a man who was the conductor, but on at least two crowded trains on which we traveled the conductor has not an idea of whatever in making up the beds; the most curious thing I have ever noted in Indian travel. There is a steward on the train who is also cook, and he makes up the beds, he does not assist the conductor in the chamber work. When these conductors are talked the tickets they are haughty as are American conductors, but when they begin lugging the sheets and pillows and mattresses they are as humble as the most timid traveler could wish."

KEYS AS THEY TURN.

Most of Them Unlock by Twisting from to the Right.

"You would be amazed," said Professor Loskabowl informally, as he started to unlock his desk in preparation for the morning's classwork, "to know how many persons are unable to tell offhand which way a key turns to unlock a door. As a rule, they are of the best informed men of my acquaintance, yet on demand they seem not to be believed most keys unlock to the left perhaps as often as to the right. Stand before the side of the door you face, the key to almost anything except a door is pretty sure to be so made as to unfasten the lid or drawer or roller apron which you open. In any case, however, it is one requires to prove the truth of this fact—a certainty that arises once in a while may be well worth knowing."

And the professor abscentmindedly tried to unlock his desk by turning the key to the left.—New York Times.

Simplified Spelling.

Lovers of simplicity in spelling should make a pilgrimage to Nevendon, in England, where the simplified spelling reaches in the eighteenth century were almost unknown. Nevendon dates from the Crusades. The pilgrims from the Holy Land brought home with them a bag of Geekup Kollins for his gall too chaste and pale. Also he also brought a bag of sewing yeze." The mysterious word yeze, to others than the wife and daughter of "Geekup Kollins." Any one of us who has lived in the cap of feminine nilluinzy to the dregs may accept gall as the right spelling.—Louisville Mail.

MAGIC OF HOUDIN

He Scared the Algerians and Conquered the Nation.

A LITTLE BLACK BOX DID IT.

By the Aid of a Magnet and a Current of Electricity He Struck Terror to the Hearts of the Arabs and Took All the Desire For Fight Out of Them.

"These are great times." exulted the Electrician to his friend the Old Fogy. "With machine guns and other instruments of war we certainly are going some in the fighting game."

"Yes," agreed the Old Fogy as he adjusted his glasses, "but do you know that before such things were dreamed of an entire nation was conquered with a magnet and a little black box?"

And the Electrician confessed, "No!"

"You have heard, no doubt," the Old Fogy reminded, on, "of the marvelous inventions of Robert Houdin, the great French magician? I was one of the great things with electricity when Alexander Graham Bell was an infant.

"Houdin applied electricity to many of his magical experiments and developed the Parisian public for years in his little theater. When he retired he was the most favored performer of his day and had served in the palaces of royalty."

"Houdin all about that," snapped the Electrician. "What about the black box?"

"Coming to that, boy; coming to that. Houdin retired to his family estate on the left banks of the River Loire near St. Gervaise, hoping to end his days in peace. But after a year or so Houdin came to him through a military friend a request from the French government to go to Algeria.

"In his memoirs, translated into English, Houdin says that he felt like death. He says that the Marabouts of that country, a sort of medicine men and wonder working priests, controlled the masses and incited them to internecine war, and that they baffled by their tricks. These tricks, he assures us, were of the simplest and most primitive type.

"It was the hope of the French government that Houdin by his mysteries could demonstrate that the white conquerors were more powerful. And Houdin did it."

"With the little black box and the magnet?"

"Yes. His recital of his performance in Algeria is exceedingly interesting. Some of the most distinguished native were there. Houdin showed them all sorts of things; allowed himself to be shot at and caught the bullet unharmed and many other such feats.

CUTTING VENEERS.

Three Methods Are Used—Sawing, Slicing and the Rotary Cut.

Veneer is very thin lumber. The raw material is usually purchased in logs of random lengths. Some logs are cut into fitches and in turn sawed into thin sections called sawed veneer. In other cases the logs, after being steamed, are sliced in sharp knives. This method produces sliced veneer. Neither of these processes is as extensively used as the third, the rotary cut, although for certain purposes they are of importance.

The structure of the wood, the size of the logs and the use for which the veneer is designed largely determine the process employed. Some foreign woods are very hard and, like soft domestic woods—the conifers, for instance—often produce the best veneer when sawed, while for other woods the slicing method is preferred. Where the product is for fine exterior finish and has to be selected and matched according to the figure or grain, sawing is the favorite method.

The rotary cut process is similar in principle to the slicing process. The log, after being steamed, is revolved against a fixed knife the length of the log and wide sheets are sliced off.

Veneers are cut into a number of thicknesses. The domestic woods, rotary cut, range from five-sixteenths to one-fifteenth of an inch and the imported woods from three-sixteenths to one-thirty-fourth. In the sawed and sliced products the thickest veneer is five-sixteenths.—Indianapolis News.

FEATS OF MEMORY.

One Man Who Astounded Wesley by His Knowledge of the Bible.

One of the most astonishing memorier feats on record is recorded by John Wesley. "I knew a man about twenty years ago," writes Wesley, "who was so thoroughly acquainted with the Bible that if he was questioned as to any Hebrew word in the old, or of any Greek word in the new Testament, he would tell, after a little pause, not only how often and in what place the other occured in the Bible, but also what it meant in every place, taking it as Dr. Thomas Walsh. Such a master of Bible knowledge I never saw before or and never expect to see again."

Walsh had a close rival in Mezzofanti, who according to James Stephen, could repeat "all Demosthenes by heart, and all Milton, as well as a great part of the Bible."

A strange instance of freak memory is recorded in the case of a servant girl in a Scottish manse. She was almost illiterate, yet when delirious in fever, surprised those around her by repeating long passages of the Bible in Hebrew. The kitchen where the girl spent her evenings adjoined the minister's study. He was accustomed to read aloud. The girl had not understood or consciously taken heed of the reading, yet her mind had seized upon and stored the phrases.—London Chronicle.

"Good Luck" Amulets.

Mr. Edward Tylor, in a lecture to the members of the Folk Lore society, ex-plained his collection of amulets for good luck and for protection against the ecents of the British islands. It was with no small difficulty that he secured his specimens and certified their history. Scarcely here and there he met old men of the sea who had no longer any direct personal interest in the wave of Bilingsgate; for it was an unwritten law among the fishermen that to communicate the nature of the charm was to destroy its efficacy for good luck. These charms were anything but charming in themselves—old dead fish, small stones with holes in them which were suspended in the bow of the boat, an old penny found in the stomach of a dogfish which became one fish evidently liked it, would entice other fish as well, or a portion of a dried kingfisher, as this bird was believed to bring good weather.—London Standard.

Changes of Climate.

A scientist who recently investigated the causes of secular variations in temperature at the earth's surface thinks that they are more probable due to changes in the amount of carbonic acid in the atmosphere than to variations in the heat of the sun. If the amount of carbonic acid that the air now contains were diminished a little more than half the mean temperature all over the earth would, it is stated, drop about eight degrees, which would be sufficient to bring on another glacial period. On the other hand, an increase of carbonic acid between two and three times its present amount would raise the mean temperature 15 degrees and renew the hot times of the eocene epoch.—Boston Post.

Impossible.

An automobile manufacturer tells of a bright young man in his employ who came to him not long ago for a raise in pay. He was a valuable workman, but he was already getting what his employer considered a fair salary.

"How much do you expect and what do you want it for?" he asked. "You have no family responsibilities and should be able to save money on what you are getting now."

"That's the point," said the young man with a smile. "I am engaged to a girl. I only want enough so that I can get married and live comfortably."

"Great Scott, man!" cried the boss. "You aren't in such a hurry! I'll give you enough to get married on, but that's as far as I can go."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Douglas' Saying About Vermont.

Stephen A. Douglas, who was born at Brandon, Vt., originated the oft quoted saying, "Vermont is a good state to emigrate from."

This familiar stock saying, which contains a compliment and a knock, is a good example of Douglas humor, which always had in it a peculiarly Vermont quality. It is said that Douglas' actual words were these: "Vermont is a good state to be born in, a good state to be educated in, and a good state to emigrate from." This made the remark 10 per cent more than it is in the Boston and more complimentary form. But when Douglas uttered it the people of Vermont received it with roars of laughter.—New York Mail.

USING SUDDEN WEALTH.

Why? Why, You Do It You Fall Heir to Three Hundred Million!

Some time ago a man was "knocking" Andrew Carnegie for "the cash," meaning, of putting up all these libraries, and finally for lack of something else to say, I asked him casually: "Well, what would you do if you had 300 million dumped into your lap?"

He gulped once or twice, went into a sort of trance, and finally said: "Why I'd—I'd—why, blamed if I know"—and then we talked about something else.

Since then the subject has crossed my mind many times, and I am not sure that the proper solution is any nearer. If you ask the question of ten of your friends, you will at least get a fairly answer from each of them:

"Buy me a yacht and travel all the time." "Build the finest home in the country." "Buy all the pork and beans in the world and throw them to the fishes," etc., these being a few of the actual answers given me. After-wood, on reflection, each one will really try to say what he would do, but the human mind finds it difficult to comprehend such an amount, or even the interest on it, which at 5 per cent would be $15,000,000 yearly.—International Magazine.

ELEPHANT COURTSHIP.

Feats of Strength by Which the Lady Chooses Her Mate.

When two male elephants compete for the companionship of a female they do not forget their dignity so far as to fight for the lady. They simply face each other squarely. Then one of them pulls down a branch from a tree to use for a club and lays it at his feet. The other takes a larger branch or pulls up a big shrub by the roots and lays it at his feet.

Number one then tackles a still big tree branch, and this arranged with the tusks, goes on, turns and turns about, and at last the contestants fling down trees wholesale, and the one who fails to uproot his tree to turn is shown off by the lady elephant, who has been an interested spectator of the strange duel. She goes off with the possessor of the largest tree, and the vanquished elephant retires shamefaced.

This trial of strength species of courtship is very remarkable when contrasted with the ardent of battle of which other animals and shows the highly developed intelligence of these enormous creatures.—Wide World Magazine.

Another Illusion.

"Had an interview with a farmer just long," said the poet, "which gave me quite a shock."

"How was that?"

"He told me that new mown hay had no points of superiority whatever over hay a year old."—Pittsburgh Post.

A Proof.

"Does Emily date so on that young man of hers?"

"Does she? At this moment she is changing her brown hair to a golden because he likes blonds best."

"Oh, I see! She's positively drying for him."—Baltimore American.

Too Numerous.

A darky employed as an office boy in Kentucky came to work one morning with a face that looked as though it had been run through a meat grinder.

"Henry," demanded his surprised employer, "what in the world has happened to you?"

"Well, sah, boss," explained Henry, "I got into a little argument ter'day wif another nigger, and he—he—he jes' ketched ketch me over his jaw!"

"Well, sah, it seemed lak dat irritated him. He took and shocked holt of such eyes and bit one of mah years mighty nigh off and split mah lip and knocked two of mah teeth loose, and then he th'owed me down and stamped me in de mouth. Honest, boss, I never did get so sick of a nigger in mah life!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Not Lost.

Mother—Oh, Willie, you naughty boy, you have been fighting again and lost two of your teeth! Willie—No, I didn't; number three and one in my pocket.—Lippincott's Answers.

She Might Do Right.

In the opinion of the average wife her husband could do no wrong. Occasionally, however, from home—Chicago Record-Herald.

"The great powerhouse of life are some times in no something to love and something to hate for."—Thomas Chalmers.

We have luckily escaped any serious automobile accident this season and it is a wonder. The speed limit in the city has been continuously and flagrantly disregarded by some people. Some of these violators have been report Chafeure, but many have been machines from neighboring towns, who seemed to snap their fingers at the ordinance. Next season we should start in with a special automobile officer who will prosecute every violator.

THEIR EYES BELIE THEM.

Seals Are Ferocious and Devour Live Fish Inch by Inch.

Seals are still numerous and are disliked by Labrador fishermen because their skill is so much greater. Dr. Grenfell says that he has known a seal to haunt a net so persistently that to get any fish the owner had to watch all the while for one end of it, and even then the seal would sneak away off the fisherman's hand as he raced to be first to disentangle the salmon.

The large, gentle eye makes the seal's appearance exceedingly attractive and those inclined to be sentimental have found in him a great source for their affusions. As a matter of fact, he eats his prey alive. He will take a bite out of a fish and leave the rest to struggle away and die slowly. They are fierce fishers and will catch and eat birds swimming on the surface of the water.

One was seen devouring a salmon alive. The seal swallowed him by inches, swimming a mile while the struggle lasted. It seemed an open question whether he would succeed or not. Another seal was seen to capture a gull on the water, but the unfortunate bird succeeded in flying free of the seal's jaws, leaving the seal to let the wounded victim go.—Chicago News.

MANAGERIAL ABILITY.

If You Think You Possess It Here Is a Test You Might Try.

Any one who has to manage men or things must be able quickly to bring order out of confusion. Test your friend's talent in this respect by writing to your order five words of a special class, such as the names of five flowers or five persons or of five famous poets, with the first letter always in the right place, while the order of the other letters is changed.

The person on whom you are experimenting knows only to which class the words belong—whether they are the names of animals or of flowers or of poets. See how long it takes him to write the five correct words in place of the disordered ones.

The animal card may read, "Tetrol, stalemo, dilo, ontel, gaffer," and the vegetable card, "Vellis, diffodil, mofor, mesadum, ramsoh." Some persons will be able to read at once, "Turtle, elephant, donkey, mouse, giraffe," and the other card, "Violet, daffodil, maple, mushroom, chestnut."

Others who have not talent for rearranging the elements of a confused alphabet will delay at the words, unable to make any sense of them.—Hugo Munsterberg in Youth's Companion.

Before and After.

"Did you notice how shifty that beggar limped when he came in?"

"Yes; I noticed also how briskly he walked out after you had given him the price."—Judge.

Artistic Exhibition.

From the earliest ages the reproduction of scenes from the scriptures, particularly those embracing the figure of Christ, have been a favorite subject of the world's greatest artists. Many of the art galleries of Europe are fairly crowded with wonderfully life-like scenes and portraits of the Divine Master. For the first time in the history of the world the reproduction of these scenes and the characters associated with Him have been produced in motion picture films. The Kalem company, at an expense of over $100,000 and over a year's time spent in the Holy Land, have at last produced the complete Biblical story, "From the Manger to the Cross." Actually in every detail reverent in the entire treatment and perfect from a photographic standpoint, the picture has come to the Majestic Theater and will be shown on Thursday, Sept. 18. It is a masterpiece in every sense of the word. Five wonderful reels of Bible history, instructive, awe-inspiring and doubly interesting to students of religious subjects. Endorsed by the world's greatest ministers and teachers it is a picture that should not be missed.—C. V. Miles, Manager.

"HANDS OFF" IS WILSON'S POLICY

Nonintervention and Neutrality Toward Mexico.

TO PROTECT ALL AMERICANS

President's Message Declares Fighting Factionists Are to Be Held to Strict Responsibility for Safeguard of Foreigners—Americans Urged to Leave.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—President Wilson appeared in person before congress and laid bare to the world the details of the nation's efforts to bring about peace in Mexico, the facts concerning Huerta's rejection of the peace proposals and the policy to be pursued by this government.

The message was distinctly specific in tone and contains little in the way of recommendation for future policy except the single one that this government must urge earnestly that all Americans should leave Mexico at once and that the United States should assist them to get out of Mexico in every way possible.

The president counsels delay before further action is taken, and says:

Impatience Would Be Criminal.

"Impatience on our part would be childish and would be fraught with every risk of wrong and folly. The door is not closed against the recognition, either of Huerta or any other party, no or upon our own, of the effort to bring order out of the condition by friendly cooperative action, should fortunate occasion offer.

Urges Americans to Leave.

"We should earnestly urge all American to leave Mexico at once, and should assist them to get away in every feasible way. Not because we would seem to slacken in the least our insistence upon the rights of life and their interests, but because it is imperative that they should not take the responsibility of life if it is physically possible for them to leave the country. We would let everyone who assumes to exercise authority in any part of Mexico know in the most unequivocal way that we shall vigilantly watch the fortunes of those American citizens who are not yet away, and shall hold those responsible for their safe-keeping to a definite reckoning.

Will Remain Neutral.

"For the rest, I deem it my duty to exercise the authority conferred upon me by the law of March 14, 1912, to see to it that neither side to the struggle now going on in Mexico receive any assistance from this side of the border. I shall follow the best precedents of nations in the matter of neutrality by forbidding the exportation of arms or munitions of war of any kind from the United States to any part of the republic of Mexico.

"I am happy to say that several of the great governments of the world have given this government their generous moral support in urging upon the provisional authorities at the city of Mexico the acceptance of our proffered good offices in the spirit in which they were made.

Gamboa's Reply to Wilson.

Washington, Aug. 28.—The following is a synopsis of the reply of Senor Gamboa to the proposals of the American government conveyed through Hon. John Lind, as transmitted to congress by the president:

In his reply to the American proposals Senor Gamboa, the Mexican minister of foreign affairs, urges the adoption of a modus vivendi by which the contest may be brought to a close. He says that the proposals of the American government conveyed through Hon. John Lind, as transmitted to congress by the president:

In his reply to the American proposals Senor Gamboa, the Mexican minister of foreign affairs, urges the following points:

That President Wilson implicitly has the world on his side in being made to ward the restoration of peace in Mexico.

That the fact the Mexican government rejects the proposals of mere pleasure on the part of the United States of America, but because it is the fact that the Mexican government realizes the responsibilities of similar friendship for Mexico, not as an act of selfish interest, dictates.

All America Cries for Settlement.

"The political situation in Mexico is incompatible with the fulfillment of international obligations on the part of Mexico, with the civilized development of Mexico herself, and with the maintenance of tolerable political and economic conditions in Central America. It is no common occasion, therefore, that the United States of America cries out for a settlement.

"Such a settlement seems to us to be conditioned on: (a) An immediate cessation of fighting throughout Mexico, a definite armistice, solemnly entered into and scrupulously observed.

(b)—Security given for an early and free election in which all will agree to take part.

Huerta Must Not Be Candidate.

"(c)—The consent of General Huerta to bind himself not to be a candidate for election as president of the republic at this election; and

"(d)—The agreement of all parties to abide by the results of the election and cooperate to the most loyal way in organizing and supporting the new administration.

"The government of the United States will be glad to play any part in the settlement of a. in carrying out which is honorable and consistent with international right. It pledges itself to recognize at once any proposal to assist the administration chosen and set up in Mexico in this way and on the conditions suggested.

"Taking all the responsibility upon itself of the government of the United States can concede of no other course than to justify those who are now attempting to shape the policy of our government in the matter of its dealing the offices of friendship. Mexico is our neighbor and has filled world a satisfactory reason for rejecting our good offices.

Lind Proposed Armistice Twice.

Mr. Lind executed his delicate and difficult mission with singular tact, firmness, and made clear to the authorities of the city of Mexico not only the purpose of his visit, but also the spirit in which it had been undertaken. But the proposals he submitted were rejected, in a note, the full text of which I take the liberty of laying before you.

"I am led to believe that they were rejected partly because the authorities at Mexico City had been grossly misinformed and misled upon two points. They did not realize the spirit of the American people in this matter, their earnest friendliness and yet their determination that among the nations be found for the Mexican difficulties, and they did not believe that the present administration spoke, through Mr. Lind, for the American people.

"Meanwhile, what is it our duty to do? Clearly, everything that we do must be united in patience and done with calm and disinterested deliberation. Impatience on our part would be childish, and would be fraught with every risk of wrong and folly. We can afford to exercise the self-restraint of a really great nation which realizes its own strength and scorns to misuse it. It was our duty to offer our active assistance. It is now our duty to show what true neutrality will do to enable the people of Mexico to set their affairs in order again and wait for further opportunity to offer our friendly counsels. The door is not closed against the resumption, either upon the initiative of Mexico or upon our own, of the effort to bring order out of the confusion by friendly cooperative action, should fortunate occasion offer.

For the first time since Washington a president of the United States read a message to congress on foreign affairs. When Woodrow Wilson read his message to congress he read half of the great document reading his message, and shows Speaker Clark and Vice-President Marshall in the background.

ANDERSON WINS RACE

TAKES SECOND ELGIN CONTEST IN A STUTZ.

De Palma Wins First Day's Event, His Time Being 4:11:16—Dawson Was Next.

Elgin, Sept. 2—Gil Anderson, in Stutz, made a whirlwind finish in the Elgin National Road race Saturday, winning the Chicago automobile club trophy after one of the most sensational contests known to the sport. His time was 4:12:22. His average time per hour, being 71 1-10 miles.

R. K. Mulford, in a Mason, was second, crossing the line in 4:26:31.

"With one of the concerning cars on fire on one side of the track and the militia unable to keep the throng of spectators from swarming over the course, Ralph de Palma finished first in the contest for the Chicago Automobile club trophy here Friday.

Joe Dawson, even a favorite of the automobile race fans, took second place in his Delisle, while Chandler in a Mason was awarded third place after a contest in which was exhibited some of the best racing generalship ever witnessed in the west.

There were no accidents to mar the sport, with the possible exception of slight injuries sustained by Harry Endicott in his Sphere car, which burst into flames on the back stretch.

The car, we understand by his mechanician, was taken to the hospital, where it was said his burns were trivial and that he would be able to be long grind was the principal thing for which the contest was held.

In Palma's elapsed time for the whole distance was 17:56 minutes, which was at the average speed of 66.8 miles per hour. Dawson's time was 17 minutes, while Chandler finished third.

The details of the race show that Barney Oldfield, who had the exhibitions of skillful driving and generalship ever seen in the west.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES

Camp Forry, O., Aug. 30.—Francisco Zagara Italian, a Peruvian, was killed when a rifle in the hands of Juan E. Zagara was accidentally discharged. This is the first fatal accident that has occurred at the militia encampment.

Versailles, Aug. 30.—A charge of murder and of fighting duels has been lodged against Captain Golon of the French artillery. Captain Golon fell, accompanied by his second.

Buffalo, Aug. 30.—Thousands of spectators attending the Erie County fair at Hamburg saw Albert Gerner, twenty-three years old, of Gloucester, N. J., in a biplane, lose his grip on the trapeze of his parachute and plunge 200 feet to his death.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Speaker Clark left the capital for Maine to speak in behalf of Congressman Hinds and their interests, but because it is imperative that they should not take the responsibility of life if it is physically possible for them to leave the country. We would let everyone who assumes to exercise authority in any part of Mexico know in the most unequivocal way that we shall vigilantly watch the fortunes of those American citizens who are not yet away, and shall hold those responsible for their safe-keeping to a definite reckoning.

AMERICANS PROTEST

U. S. CITIZENS TAKEN FROM MEXICO IN STEERAGE—THEY BITTERLY OBJECT.

HUERTA GROWING STRONGER

Provisional President's Rebuff of Wilson Has Given Him Hold Upon the People—Lind to Leave Vera Cruz.

Mexico City, Sept. 1.—Many of the Americans who are heeding President Wilson's warning to leave Mexico are indignant over the class of transportation offered. Telegrams from Vera Cruz and Tampico Monday indicate that the only passage the consuls are authorized to provide is "steerage, or the lowest price ticket available." Some of the American officers who proceeded to express to shift themselves of the proffered transportation home have refused to accept, saying they prefer to take their chances in Mexico "to being herded in the steerage."

This for no intimation has been received by Consul General Shanklin that any means of transportation is being provided except by such passenger and merchant vessels as ordinarily ply along the coasts or those leaving from gulf ports.

Consul General Shanklin has been notified that a transport will leave San Francisco the last of the week for ports along the west coast as far as Salina Cruz, and it is expected the round trip will be made within a month.

Washington, Sept. 3.—While President Wilson and Secretary Bryan are still waiting patiently in expectancy hope that the Huerta regime will collapse in Mexico City and thus end the situation which has been precipitated from the rejection of all the Lind proposals, Huerta's position is daily be strengthening rather than weakening as position.

It was announced officially at the White House Monday night that there had been no dispatch of any kind from Special Envoy John Lind since last week and that he does not look for a resumption of negotiations on our part.

President Wilson is still in Cornish, N. H., and Secretary Bryan is in Maryland on another one-night stand Chautauqua tour.

No instructions are forthcoming, however, that there is the slightest possibility that Mexico will make any satisfactory response to the demands made upon her. Mexico City dispatches indicate that President Huerta has been strengthening his administration from a popular standpoint, particularly by his defiance of the United States. President Wilson's call to all Americans to leave Mexico at once is regarded here to have strengthened Huerta's position.

There is also considerable danger of an unbridled outburst in congress if the house leaders have their end of the capitol fairly well in hand.

Clark Speaks in Maine.

Unity, Me., Aug. 30.—Speaker Clark urged the voters of the Third Maine congressional district to elect a Democrat to succeed Hon. Charles Fletcher Prescott Goodwin, a Republican, September 9.

Destroy Moonshiners' Still.

Springfield, Mo., Sept. 2.—What was believed to be the last illicit still in the Ozarks was destroyed Saturday by federal officers near Bradley in Stone county. The moonshiners escaped.

Weather Man Reduced in Pay.

Washington, Aug. 30.—As punishment for the inaccurate weather forecasts made by Dr. Isaiah Bowman, director of the census, and Mr. Conger, weather bureau chief, have been reduced from a higher grade and pay and made local forecaster at Detroit, Mich.

Four Killed, Many Injured.

Peterborough, Ont., Aug. 30.—Four persons were killed and many injured when the Turnbull department store at George and H streets collapsed. The clerks, workmen and shoppers went down in the crash.

ERUPTION ON ANKLE BURNED

Kingsville, Mo.—"My trouble began by a pimple on my ankle. It spread over one-half my ankle, sometimes it would be two years at a time before they were healed. There were many nights I did not sleep because of the great suffering. The sores were deep running ones and I could not wear shoes or even bear to anything to touch them. The sores had been in all the time and sting like a lot of bees were confined around my ankle. I could not bear to scratch it. It was so very sensitive to the touch. I could not let my clothes touch it. It was so very red. I made what I called a cap out of white felt, blotting paper and rubber cloth and put on the ankle. This I wore night and day.

"I had tried remedies for most of the eighteen years with no effect. I saw a testimonial of some Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The very first time I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment I noticed a change for the good the pain right then. Testing Hardness of Steel.

A very simple method of determining hardness of steel by means of a pendulum has been recently tested for testing the hardness of steel balls. It consists of a tubular standard fitted with a hardened steel ball at the lower end, which is placed upon the steel to be tested. At the upper end of the standard is a cup. In the cup is a weight, the standard may be brought to true vertical position, mounted on the standard is a cylindrical drop weight. This is raised to the top of the standard and allowed to drop, striking a weight-receiving block at the bottom of the tube. The number of blows from the impact to the steel ball, and makes an accurate measure of the hardness of the material.

BEAR DAMAGED BY DISEASE

Prof. A. R. Potts of the farm crops department of Michigan Agricultural college, has been in Ann Arbor, Michigan in search of bean seed that is free from anthracnose, which is a vegetable disease that is ruining the bean crop of southern Michigan.

This disease has existed in the state for many years, and each year it has become more prevalent. The last the damage to the growing crop is so great that many fields of beans will not be harvested.

Professor Potts recently inspected 15 fields in the central part of the state, and found indications of the disease in each.

Professor Potts feels sure, however, that in the northern and western parts of the state the conditions are not free from the disease to be getting the seed from these and taking it to southern Michigan and having the farmer raise it. He believes that the disease can be stamped out.

Mr. Ed. Gerner of Ann Arbor has brought about $2.25 but the year it will be somewhat lower in price.

Grand Rapids Man President.

Representing 28,000 members of the Christian Endeavor society in Michigan, the delegates to the twenty-fourth annual convention in Grand Rapids unanimously passed resolutions expressing the greatest confidence in John Ray B. Lindsey of Denver as fellow.

"In view of the recent unwarranted attack being made on Judge Ben H. Lindsey of Denver by his political enemies who are trying to discredit his magnificent work,

"We, the representatives of 700 Christian Endeavor societies with 28,000 members in Michigan in convention assembled, hereby express our appreciation of the splendid consistent life and great work of Judge Lindsey.

"We express our utmost confidence in him and assure him of our sympathy and support in all his great work for humanity.

"Christian Endeavorers love Judge Lindsey and his work."

Officers were elected as follows: President, Rev. H. C. Rosbier, Grand Rapids; vice-president, Upper Peninsula, Rev. R. A. Bartlett, Sault Ste. Marie; vice-president, Lower Peninsula, Howell, Detroit; superintendent junior department, Miss Helen L. Hershaw, Grandville; superintendent missionary department, Mrs. F. B. Hitch, Ionia; superintendent rural work, Miss Kate Butterfield, Bay City; superintendent state work, Rev. E. T. Lindsay, Saginaw, and Dr. J. Percival Huget, Detroit.

Business will likely get the next convention.

Militia Draws $170,000 in Strike Zone.

Already it has cost the state of Michigan $170,000 to maintain the state troops in the copper country, and it is expected that the expense will exceed $200,000 before all the militiamen are withdrawn.

Adjutant General Stevens says that it is impossible to tell the exact amount the troops have expended as the detailed statements from the military board have not been received, as yet. He says that it will cost $170,000 from the general fund of the state treasury to pay the troops authorized in the copper country.

He said that it is due to the fact that the last legislature gave mandatory effect to an act which provided that the cost of calling out state troops should be charged against the general fund of the state. The militia and credit it to the newly created insurance fund.

The big state tax and the approaching shortage in the general fund is causing some concern among those who signed appropriations to such an extent two years ago. It was necessary to give the various state institutions twice as much this year.

Millions of Bees for Fair.

Including the bees in the observatory hive which the state bee school will show in the shape of honey, it is estimated that no less than 10,000,000 of the insects will be on hand when this year's Michigan state fair is succeed.

This interesting exhibit will take place in the spacious apiary department of the state building, and is bound to prove one of the most instructive on the grounds. The fair officials have made a slight departure from the usual method of arranging the exhibits in this department, taking into consideration the selling qualities of the honeycomb, as well as the matter of appearance and completeness of filling in the comb. This making of the flavor an important factor has long been advocated by those in the honey industry.

General Manager Dickinson feels that the honey men are not alone in the bee industry to supply table wants. Many farmers in the state are fond of the table delicacy. The fair officials also propose to show that the honeybee is a great waste is going on; that an industry which only needs a little "coaxing" to make big returns is going begging in Michigan.

Few Forest Fires During Year.

J. E. Knox, secretary of the Michigan Hardwood Manufacturers' association, said that the association members have had been bothered very little with forest fires during the summer.

A complete system has been put into the holdings of the association by a watchman and patrolman who made it almost impossible for large fires to get started. The patrols have the power of deputy sheriffs, a power given them by the state, and they are in a position to enforce their requests to farmers and hunters who are careless of how they throw matches about or leave fires.

Pontiac Picked for Reunion.

Veterans of the Twenty-second Michigan infantry, which concluded its reunion in Rochester, decided to hold the forty-eighth reunion in Pontiac in 1914.

The officers elected are: President, D. J. Hammond, Pontiac; vice-president, Newton Babcock, Pontiac; secretary and treasurer, Capt. J. H. Woodward, Detroit.

Ninety-three out of one hundred registered members attended the reunion.

Incorporations.

The following Michigan firms have filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state:

Detroit Ball Bearing company, Detroit, $1,000, incorporated to operate an automobile repair shop, principal stockholder, Jos. Joseph Pasler and Harry Forney; Enclosure Duty Manufacturing company, Detroit, $1,000, incorporated to manufacture jollies, principal stockholders, Fred Stemke and John Stemke; Holland Furniture company, Holland, $500, incorporated to deal in chairs, tables, etc.

Indict Slayer of Doctor.

Cairo, Ill., Sept. 4.—Harvey B. Fields was held by the jury without bail for the murder of Dr. E. E. Gordon, whom he shot and killed. Mrs. Fields boasts out her husband's story that the doctor shamed her.

Fence Rail Victim Files Suit.

Waukegan, Ill., Sept. 4.—The property of Jacob Hagland was sold in the circuit court here by attorneys representing Mrs. Minnie Hagland, who claims the recent rail riding at Volo against six women.

Five Held for Big Theft.

Toledo, Sept. 4.—Five men were arrested here on suspicion of being concerned in a robbery of $625,000 pearl necklace from the Grand Duchess Marie Tarnowska, the other charged to former Governor Osborn.

The Duchess appears to be worth an extent two years ago that it was reported she was the victim of an extortion plot.

26 DEAD IN WRECK

WOODEN PULLMANS ON NEW HAVEN ROAD SMASHED IN REAR-END COLLISION.

"BANJO" SIGNALS BLAMED

Officials Admit Block Signals Had Been Ordered Replaced—Commerce and Congress to Probe Disaster.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 4.—Twenty-six persons were killed and nearly fifty injured, some of whom may die, in a rear-end collision on Tuesday on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad six miles north of here.

The first section of the White Mountain express, bound for New York, speeding along at probably forty miles an hour, in a thick fog, rushed by a danger signal, it is said, and crashed into the rear of the second section of the Bar Harbor express, standing 100 yards beyond the block signal.

The White Mountain engine cleaved through the two rear Pullmans, crushed both of wood, splitting them in two and tossing their wreckage and three score of unscathed human beings, some alive, some dead, on either side of the track.

The third car, also of wood, and occupied by forty boys on their way from a summer camp at Monmouth, Me., was thrown into the air and all but completely lifted off the track. The car fell on its side, crumpled up, and caught fire from the stoves and injured several others.

Howard Hilliard, the newly elected mayor of the road, who was returning from his summer home in New Hampshire to attend the fall meeting, was over the scene of the wreck on an inspection tour when it occurred.

Practically all the passengers on both trains were returning from summer vacations. No one was hurt in the White Mountain train.

The accident was reported to the commerce commission wired the road officials to make a report. The order was issued, as the wreckage was seen on fire at sight.

The New Haven officials were frank to admit that the so-called "banjo" signal system, which on this part of the line has not yet been replaced by the semaphore system recommended by the public utilities commission last December, was in a measure responsible for the wreck.

Those killed in the wreck:

William Hutchin, Norfolk, Va.

Harold Avery, New York.

Miss Margaret Armstrong, Washington, D. C.

Miss Marie L. Dullitt, Philadelphia.

Albert Green, Boston.

Royal W. Hotchkiss, New Haven.

Miss Merrill, Philadelphia.

Miss Harriet Biddle, Torresdale, Pa.

Miss Murphy, New York.

F. F. Martin, Hyde Mawr, Pa.

Mrs. H. F. Martin, Hyde Mawr, Pa.

C. N. Langdon, Hyde Mawr, Pa.

Miss Stoddart, New York.

A. Crozier Fox, Elkins Park, Pa.

Frank B. Rutter, Scranton, Pa.

Miss Agnes Rutter, Scranton, Pa.

Miss E. K. Davis, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Yates, Philadelphia.

Died at hospital:

Philo Hotchkiss, New Haven.

George T. Bliss, New York.

Mary Jane ——, residence unknown.

Harry K. Jones, New York.

Unidentified dead:

Elderly man, aged sixty, six pounds, brown mustache, bald gold band ring inscribed "For life and for death—4-30-1900."

Man, gray hair, brown eyes, smooth face.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Upon the receipt of news of the New Haven wreck, Chairman Clark of the interstate commerce commission sent a wire to direct an investigation. Telegrams were sent by the commission to field inspectors, directing them to report to Washington at once.

Representative Britten of Illinois in a resolution setting forth that a number of passengers had been killed or injured in fourteen wrecks during the past year, mostly on the New Haven road, proposed that the interstate commerce commission be directed to make an immediate and thorough investigation as to the cause of the latest accident. The resolution would direct that the commission report its findings for immediate consideration of remedial legislation. The preamble declared that the casualties indicated extreme negligence on the part of the traffic managers and officers of railroads, obsolete, unsafe and inadequate equipment, or that the "desire for dividends is paramount to the proper protection of the traveling public."

Tess Whisky: Score $5,000.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 4.—Thieves entered the store of a supply company, robbed the cash drawer of five dollars, sawed the hinges of a steel safe where $5,000 lay, stole three quarts of whisky and left the money.

Dogs to Solve Big Theft.

Waverly, Ia., Sept. 4.—Bloodhounds were employed in an effort to find the theft of $44,000 in cash and securities from the home of Frank Henry Woodford, a bachelor and one of the wealthiest men in this section.

Fraud Charged.

Paris, Sept. 4.—Five men were arrested here on suspicion of being concerned in a robbery of $625,000 pearl necklace from the Grand Duchess Marie Tarnowska, the other charged to former Governor Osborn.

The Duchess appears to be worth an extent two years ago that it was reported she was the victim of an extortion plot.

NEWS OF MICHIGAN

Owosso.—Charles Jenkins, forty years old, is in a crippled condition with his arms so badly burned that he may lose both. While he was working in the plant of the Commerce Power company lightning struck a wire, which he was holding.

Mt. Clemens.—Benjamin Friday, twenty-six years old, of Richmond, was fatally hurt, and George Fusow, twenty-seven years old, and wife, of New Haven, were seriously injured a half mile west of New Haven when two motorcycles they were riding collided.

Porterville.—Russell, the eleven-year-old son of Charles Root, is dead from the effects of being laboured by a Grand Trunk train here when the hired man, Ed Howley, and the horse were killed instantly. Russell lost both feet and was otherwise mangled. His three sisters escaped with slight injuries.

Saginaw.—Ernest Clark, a constable of Carrollton, was arrested by Sheriff Hinsdale on a writ of claims asking $5,000 damages for false imprisonment in connection with the arrest of Stanley Novack, employed at one of the local machine shops. Novack's arrest was accasioned for alleging threats against a non-union man July 19 and was detained in the county jail for two days.

Lansing.—Two jockeys have been discovered in the laws of 1913. One pertains to a spark arrester for threshing machines, which seems to be good fuel, but says nothing about those in which coal is used. The other refers to "proper" fire extinguishers, but makes no mention of who shall be the judge of the fitness of the extinguisher.

Pontiac.—Veterans of the Twenty-second Michigan infantry, which concluded its annual reunion in Rochester, decided to hold the forty-eighth reunion in Pontiac in 1914. The officers elected are: President, D. J. Hammond, Pontiac; vice-president, Newton Babcock, Pontiac; secretary and treasurer, Capt. J. H. Woodward, Detroit.

Ninety-three out of one hundred registered members attended the reunion.

Frankfort.—During the season just closed Frankfort fruit men shipped 75 carloads of fruit, averaging an average price of $1.50 per crate. Charles Ramsdell, who handles these fruits, it is estimated that fully 10,000 crates rotted on the bushes because of lack of help to harvest them, causing a loss of $15,000. Fruit men are now busily engaged in harvesting the early peach and apple crop. Hundreds of barrels of apples are being shipped to Chicago every day. Peaches, pears and plums will follow.

Belleville.—A Carmelite truck, out of Detroit, an interurban car, crowded with passengers, crashed into an automobile, dragged the truck, snapped a telephone pole and plowed its way into the ditch at the rate of from 150 feet from the crossing. Seventeen persons were injured, two probably fatally. Charles Littlewood, who was alone in the automobile, was badly crushed. Mrs. Rachel Silverman, Mount Clemens, is the other gravely injured person.

Grand Rapids.—A frayed rope supporting a scaffold on which Alvin and Robert Berg, painters, were working on the Ann street bridge, broke and precipitated the brothers into the river, a distance of 40 feet. The men had been warned by city employes that the rope was weak, but failed to replace it, but failed to do so. The death is the first for which the city is liable under the employer's liability law. One-half the sum of $5,000 is payable in a period of 200 weeks, or $2,625, is due the dead man's family.

Ionia.—Clasping in her arms the dead body of her nine-month-old child, Mrs. Mark Mathman was found dead in a stock tank on the Mathman farm in Ionia township. Mrs. Mathman had been in poor health recently, and it is believed that she temporarily became insane. The bodies were found by Mrs. Mathman's son, Leo, and Mrs. Mathman's sister, Mrs. Adrian farmer, was away at the time, but returned before the bodies were found. The child were lying face downward in the water. No inquest was deemed necessary. Mrs. Mathman leaves four small children. She was thirty-two years of age.

River Rapids.—A well from which two very different kinds of water flow was drawn in the novelty which Peter Fuhrmann, a farmer living three miles north of Rapid River, has on his place. When drilling his well at a depth of 85 feet, Fuhrmann struck a vein of mineral water with a salty taste. He plied the vein and a gushing stream of water resulted. Continued flow of water resulted. Wanting a clear drinking water Fuhrmann continued to drill and at a depth of 260 feet he struck a fine flow of water of a clear crystal. This was also piped and by the use of valves the same pipe which give forth either a mineral sulphur water or the clear cold water of the deeper vein.

Ionia.—Charles Marion, who lives near Matherton, and his wife, daughter of Hiram Wells of Matherton, are under arrest on a charge of larceny of $40 from Frank Cooper, who lives in Clinton county. Cooper invited the Mellvlles and Marines to his home. The visitors were served, it is said, and in the evening when Cooper

Ed Reulbach Pitching Well For Brooklyn.

When the Brooklyn ball team of the National league acquired Pitcher Ed Reulbach from Chicago it did a fine stroke of business.

Reulbach has displayed impressive form for the Flatbush aggregation and Manager Dahlen says he thinks the city of churches by walloping the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Reulbach is a veteran twirler, who for several years has prolonged his career of active play for an unusual number of years.

After Crack Outfielder.

Left Fielder Fillbrown of the Montreal International league team, probably will be sold to a major league club for a big price. Owner Lichtenstein of the Montreal club demands $10,000 in cash and two players for Fillbrown's release. Though the terms are pronounced excessive, the New York Americans, Brooklyn, Chicago Cubs, Cincinnati Reds, Pittsburgh and Boston Red Sox and Braves are considering the Montreal club's proposition. It is said that as much as $6,000 had been offered for this young player. Lichtenstein may close a deal for $5000 more. Gilbooley is a heavy hitter and one of the best fielders and base runners in the league.

Johnson's Diet on Pitching Days.

Walter Johnson, the great twirler for the Washington Americans, is shedding himself to play on a diet of pudding, sherbet, cake and iced tea. The Senator pitcher discovered this officially a few days ago on the ship "Minnehaha" on his exhibition tour. "I don't believe in eating much," he said. "I'm going out to the ball game to-day and I'm going to pitch and for a ball player, I like pudding and sherbet particularly on a day when I am going to pitch. Sherbet or ice cream is soothing to the stomach, and so is iced tea. Then when I come back to the hotel I eat my heartiest meal of the day."

Lavigne to Coach.

There is jubilation among the football men of Westminster college, Fulton, Mo., through the appointment of C. P. Lavigne, the former Missouri star, to coach the school's eleven for the coming season. Lavigne was a crack football man while in a Tiger uniform and capitaled the team in 1911.

He succeeds Lionel Tipton, a former Missouri university athlete, who coached the Blue Jays in 1911 when they won the state collegiate championship. Lavigne assisted Tipton during that season.

Kearns Still Supreme.

That Frank Kearns is still the champion of the wheel was proved recently when he defeated Jackie Clarke, the Australian, in two out of three heats of a mile match race at the Newark, N. J., velodrome. Clarke had beaten every rider of note all the way from Kearner. He won the first heat from Kearner in the race in question, took them in the second the American took the verdict by inches only in the final heat. The duelling heat went to Kearner by three-quarters of a length. He got the point. Clarke's form in the leg and wan never heeded.

Dreamland.

All dreams are rapid. A tutor fell asleep as a scholar was reciting, dreamed a little playlet and awoke to hear the end of the boy's sentence, skipped time not more than fifteen seconds. Touch, sight and hearing are prominent in dreams, but taste and smell exceptionally rare. Dreams can be made to order by suggestion, but not by the dreamer. "Red Riding" in the car of a sound sleeper or allow a sudden draft of cold air to play on the back of his neck and he will dream to order, but he can't go to sleep with his mind made up to dream of any certain thing and then actually dream of it. In spite of this fact books are sold in Europe which tell what one must do in order to dream the lucky number in the lottery. Furthermore, there are societies in dreamland. One accused himself of the most atrocious crime with an feeling at pity or guilt.—Chicago Tribune.

Power of Suggestion.

What he calls an "effective suggestion test" is given by Professor Hugo Munsterberg in an article on "How Can We 'Know Ourselves'" in the Yoseph's Magazine. "Draw several pairs of circles," writes the professor, "and let your friend decide which circle in each pair is the larger. In some cases make one circle slightly larger than the other; usually, however, make the circles of each pair the same size. In each circle write a figure of two digits. Although the circles are alike, you will find that if in one you have written a small number, such as twenty-one, and in the other a larger number, such as seventy-nine, the boy or girl who is upon is suggestion will tell you that the circle that contains the higher number is the larger. The size of the number suggests a wrong idea about the size of the circles."

Saved by April Fool Time.

When Francis, duke of Lorraine, and his wife were awaiting death in the prison of Nancy they chose as the day for an attempt to escape the 1st of April.

Disguised as peasants, says a chronicler, the one bearing a hod on his shoulder, the other carrying a basket of rubbish on her back, they took at an early hour of the day passed through the gates of the city. A woman having a knowledge of their persons ran to the guard to give notice to the sentry.

"April fool!" cried the soldier, and his comrades to a man shouted out, "April fool!"

The governor, to whom the incident was related as a great jest, became suspicious, and ordered an investigation, but it was too late, for in the meantime the duke and his wife were well on their way. The 1st of April had saved them.

Captain Cook's Shilling.

Young James Cook, destined later to become England's greatest navigator, was at seventeen placed on probation in the shop of a cloth tradesman at Staithes, near Whitby. Before a new shilling in the till, the lad took it and replacing it by one of his own. The master, missing the bright shilling, searched Cook's box and found it there. Sent for a constable and for Cook's father and charged the boy with theft. The boy declared his innocence and explained. The master expressed his regret, and although Cook's father and the master both pressed him to stay, his reply was: "No, father, I can't. Once a thief, always a thief. I must go." And he then went to Whitby and was there apprenticed to the sea.—"Captain James Cook."

"Chouse" Seymour.

There was an Irish actor named Seymour, who had the nickname "Chouse," which came from his unlucky slip in the passage in "Othello." "When I love thee not chaos is come again." It was in Cork that he made the break, and Cork did not forget. When he returned a year later the city was recorded by an artist in chalk, "Chouse has come again." He played Othello and the gallery observed, "Doneel good, Chouse!" The dying Moor sat upon shook his fist in the direction of the observer and hurtled him, if he were a man, to come down and have his head punched.

A Modern Aesop.

As a Yonkers lady Countess was about to narrate some Reminiscences of her Youth, a pert young Chimpanzee remarked that "Snake Stories were so awful Boa," whereupon the Serpent did him in his Tail Enfold, saying that even Monkeys had their Place in the Economy of Nature.

Moral.—You should never miss a Person who has the Age on you.—Boston Herald.

No Room For Cream.

"My dear," as the young husband did you speak to the milkman about there being no cream on the milk?"

"Yes. I told him about it this morning, and he has explained it satisfactorily. I think it is quite a credit to him too."

"What did he say?"

"He said that he always filled the jug as full that there is no room on the top for the cream."—Paris and Home.

Bald Comparison.

A visitor from South Africa, on being asked for his opinion of Niagara Falls, hesitated in the questioner in his turn asked, "What do you think of Victoria Falls compared with Niagara?" The Yankee only said, "Victoria falls compared with Niagara is mere frontal perspiration."

A Prescient Mistake.

"Pat, man seems to think he is the voice of the people," said the curious observer.

"He does," replied Senator Sorghum, "when as a matter of fact he's only one of the people with a voice."—Washington Star.

A Safe Choice.

Point Not Well Taken.

Mrs. Tinkler (to small daughter saying prayers)—A little louder, dear. I can't hear. Daughter—Yes, but I'm not speaking to you.—New York Post.

Buy Land, Young Man.

Ownership of real estate is a certificate of merit. The young man who seeks a position of responsibility can furnish no better recommendation than the deed to well chosen city or farm property paid for out of his earnings. Debt due to speculation is a tremendous handicap to the young man. Real estate is the anchor to which the multimoldi ship has been wrecked on just such a rock. But debt incurred to purchase real estate is different, instead of causing discouragement and impairing a man's vitality to success in his life work, it is a powerful incentive to industry, and almost infallibly adds thrift and good habits to the character. The most solid foundation of financial independence is the possession of real property, because as population increases its value usually grows. The young man who is about to marry can give his bride no more eloquent proof of affection than that he has bought it in a fact that the couple who begin married life under their own roof and dom end it in the divorce court.—Chicago Journal.

What a Sparrow Did

What is perhaps the most remarkable accident that ever occurred was reported from Germany. A large number of men were working at fair speed along a boulevard lined with trees. Large flocks of sparrows were in the trees, and several boys were taking pleasure in frightening them by throwing stones at the birds with sling shots. One pebble, particularly well aimed, struck a sparrow in the upper wing and sent him gliding through the air directly toward the driver of the car; the bird struck him full in the face, and in the next instant things began to happen. The driver clutched at his eyes, the car lurched into the ditch, knocking down a telegraph pole, valuted to a plowed field on the other side of the ditch, and went full force into a huge haystack. Despite this wild averse, no one was even scratched except the driver, whose eyesight was damaged by the clash of the sparrow. The whole incident had taken far less time than needed to relate it.—Leslie's.

Origin of Norfolk Jackets.

What is the origin of the Norfolk jacket, and why the strips or plait and belt?

The name is derived from the county of Norfolk, on the southeast coast of England. The shore of the county is marshes intersected by tidal streams, locally known as "the broads," an ideal spot for shooting wild fowl. The history of the country is such that the shooter may carry his own game bag and ammunition, for loaders would be more bother than they are worth. Accordingly their dress developed a shooting jacket with conveniences for this employment. The strips or plait on the game bag and powder horn or cartrouche box, the strips to distribute the weight more fairly upon the shoulders. Modern fashions of tailoring have retained these conveniences in a form of conventionalized ornament.—New York Sun.

Mystery of a Missing Will.

In July, 1910, Frederick Holden Turner, a well known London solicitor, had a stroke of paralysis which left him quite helpless, yet with his mind perfectly clear. Soon after his seizure he told his nurse to fetch a drawer from his writing table. He made her take out a particular paper and put this into an envelope and seal it. He then said, "Write on the outside, 'My last will.'" This she did also.

The envelope was put back and the drawer locked.

After Mr. Turner's death his nephew went with the nurse to the drawer only to find that the will was missing from the self sealed envelope.

The envelope itself was shown in evidence, but the mystery of the disappearance of its contents could not be solved.—Pearson's Weekly.

Taking All the Blame.

"I was a fool ever to marry you," sobbed Mrs. Winks.

"Now, my dear," said Winks nobly, "I cannot permit you to take the blame for that. It was I who was the fool for asking you. The mistake was not yours, but mine."—Harper's Weekly.

The Compliment.

"Oh, me, I passed, and to teacher spoke about me particularly. It made my face red to hear her."

"That was fine! What did she say about you, dear?"

"She said she never expected I'd pass at all."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Limit.

It was an English ship with an English crew and an American passenger list. Two stewards were sitting at a heated altercation and pouring forth anathemas upon each other's heads, when an a crowning insult was said to the other. "Aw, you ceta foot like a passenger."—Argonaut.

Aspiration sees but one side of every question, possession many.—Lowell.

Strengthen Weak Kidneys

Don't suffer longer with weak kidneys. You can get prompt relief by taking Electric Bitters, that wonderful recently praised by women everywhere. Start with a bottle to-day, you will soon feel like a new woman with ambition to work, without fear of pain. Mr. John Dowling of San Francisco, writes:—"Gratitude for the wonderful effect of Electric Bitters prompts me to write. It cured my wife when all else failed." Only 50c at druggists.

The Rosetta Stone.

The Rosetta stone was found in 1799 by a French engineer officer in an excavation made near Rosetta. It has an inscription in three different languages, the hieroglyphic, the demotic and the Greek. It was erected 195 B. C. in honor of Ptolemy Epiphanes because he remitted the dues of the priests that year. The great value of the Rosetta stone lies in the fact that it furnished the key whereby the Egyptian hieroglyphics were deciphered.

Woman's Wiles.

"What a bold bland seems to have on all her rejected suitors."

"Why shouldn't she, the artful thing! She always tells a man when she refuses him that she is afraid to marry a handsome man because she would be so jealous."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

GRANGE AND COUNTY FAIRS.

They Can Co-operate to the Advantage of Both—Work at Some Granges.

Recently the management of a county agricultural society in New York state addressed a communication to every grange in its county asking how each would co-operate to make the fair more successful and invited suggestions on the fair management. We believe that every county agricultural society has a right to thus enlist the assistance of the granges, and it is their duty, because it is directly in their line of duty to respond cheerfully and in some practical sort of way. The grange should lead in any such agricultural enterprise, and it should assist the fair authorities in the making of an educational exhibit and not an interesting one simply. How can they do this?

There should be a grange headquarters at the fair to begin with. There should be exhibits by subordinate or county granges, or both, and these exhibits should be located in the main building so that they could be easily compared by the public. For these exhibits liberal premiums should be offered, even if a lower price has to be cut out of the program. There should be boys' judging contests of various kinds. Young folks' debates could enter from different granges and thus incite a spirit of fraternal rivalry. Young men from the granges could be readily coached by some expert in the matter of judging, and it matters little what kind of judging is undertaken. Various classes of live stock, grains, fruits, vegetables—in fact, every department of the fair could properly come within these judges' provinces. For the lower pride in judging give a free trip to the state fair, while for the main prize there might be a scholarship to the Agricultural college for a short term or a full term if possible. There are many ways the grange can actively interest itself in the fair, and then when the fair is over let some one or more persons explain to the grange some of the more interesting educational features of the exhibition. We have not said anything about the floral parade, which is so attractive a feature of some county fairs. One county fair association in New York state offers very liberal premiums for decorated wagons and automobiles. Every one who enters a decorated vehicle gets $20, and there is an additional first prize of $40 to the winner, with other liberal prizes. On these terms a grange is sure of something, and it may be something very much worth while.

Old Theories About Lightning.

Our forefathers had many theories about lightning. According to them no one could be struck by lightning who asleep, and no tree struck by lightning could be burnt. Splinters from such a tree, diligently derived, were, of course, presumed to be taste than the dearest forces. And the old time schoolboy firmly believed that if he were rash enough to mention lightning directly after a flesh the important part of his raiment would be immediately gone. And many were the attempts to lend his fellows in that predicament.—London Chronicle.

The Fall of Rome.

Odoacer, the Goth, was proclaimed king of Italy A. D. 476. This ended the Roman empire of the west. The Byzantine, or eastern empire, founded A. D. 395, with the division of the empire by Theodosius, fell A. D. 1453 with the capture of Constantinople by the Turks. In fact, it cannot be said that any, or even two, nations ever threw them. Rome was overthrown by the invasion of the whole barbarian world, assisted by the inherent corruption of the Roman people.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Henrietta Lowe has resigned after twenty-one years of service as censor of books for the Chicago Public library.

Senora Mancoal, wife of the new president of Cuba, is a native of Havana, but, like her husband, was educated in the United States.

Miss Olde Painter of Jacksonville, Fla., succeeds her deceased father as head of the Painter Fertilizer company, a $500,000 concern. She is twenty-two years.

Mrs. Osaip Gabrilowitsch, daughter of the late Mark Twain, has resumed concerts in the smaller German cities. It is said the critics frequently have alluded to her as a Russian or praised her muscle immensely.

Miss Hannah Wheeline, official headtaster for the government, is an expert chemist in the agricultural department. She is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati. In a model kitchen equipped with every scientific apparatus she conducts experiments the results of which are later announced in government reports of interest to housekeepers.

Art and Artists.

Timothy Cole, the wood engraver, has been elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, of which William Dean Howells is president and in which there now remains but a single vacancy in the membership of fifty.

Lucien Simon, the artist, was born in Paris in 1861 and became a student in the Julien academy, but for his success he is indebted almost entirely to his own efforts. Though well known as a portrait painter, he has made a specialty of scenes in Brittany.

Sir Hubert von Herkomer, one of the greatest artists of the day, has gone into the business of film production. With the intention of making motion pictures of artistic and education al quality as well as realism. He is a Bavarian by birth, founder of the Herkomer School of Art at Bushey and has received many honors and titles.

Joining the Majority.

Remember when you get the worst of it that you have again switched over on the side of the majority.—Albany Journal.

A pretty Bovine Paris widow's love affairs came to a climax at Boyne Falls one night last week at the home of John Arnold, a bachelor, when he shot his own brother, Jesse, in the abdomen with a .38-calibre revolver.

According to the story Jesse told officers who came to the Petoskey hospital today, he got a surprised the shooting, which will probably prove fatal, was a sequel to his arrival. John has been courting Jesse's sweetheart for several weeks against his advice. Other suitors have been giving him a hard time, and resented Jesse of aiding his rivals. After a warm argument, John struck at his brother. Jesse successfully warded and came back with a right to the jaw. John got his revolver and fired. The wounded man's wife came upon the scene and helped her husband home. John fled. Although weakened from the loss of blood, the injured man hitched up a horse and was driven to the depot in time to catch a train for Petoskey, where he came immediately to the hospital, leaving his wife at home to care for their four children. The bullet was removed. He takes a charitable view of his brother's action.

"John didn't mean to hurt me," Jesse told the officers. "He had been sick for a long while and I think his mind was affected by it."

Profits in Poultry

People who make money out of chickens, ducks and other fowls speak highly of the conditioning and fattening qualities of HARVILL'S OPTION POWDER. It makes young chickens thrive, keeps away disease and increases the yield of eggs. The successful poultry raisers nearly all use it. Price 25c and 50c per package. Sold by B. A. Herman, Druggist.

Artistic Exhibition

From the earliest ages the reproduction of scenes from the scriptures, particularly those embracing the figure of Christ, have been a favorite subject of the world's greatest artists. Many of the art galleries of Europe are fairly crowded with wonderfully life-like scenes and portraits of the Divine Master. For the first time in the history of the world the reproductions of these scenes and the characters associated with His life have been produced on the motion picture films. The Kalem company, at an expense of over $100,000 and over a year's time spent in the Holy Land, have at last received the complete Biblical story, "From the Manger to the Cross." Accurate in every detail, reverent in the entire treatment and perfect from a photographic standpoint, the picture now comes to the Majestic Theatre and will be shown on Thursday, Sept. 18. It is a masterpiece in every sense of the word. Five wonderful reels of Bible history, instructive, awe-inspiring and doubly interesting to students of religious subjects. Endorsed by the world's greatest ministers and teachers it is a picture, that should not be missed.—C. V. Miles, Manager.

Weather Injector Schneider of the Grand Rapids station has at last succeeded in proving that the present summer has been the hottest in 40 years.

While in the arms of his mother at the Antrim county fair Friday, five-month-old Clifford Rowland was struck in the head by a stray bullet from a shooting gallery and died so profoundly that for a time his life was in danger. The bullet had passed through a crevice in the backboards of a shooting gallery which was ordered closed. The child will recover.

People going to the early morning Michigan Central train at Indian River were horrified to see a man's body dangling from a tree by the wayside. Investigation revealed the fact that Lyle Dagwell, in the employ of the Michigan Central night Co. had sustained a shock of 2400 volts from a live wire with which he came in contact while climbing trees for the passage way of a new electric circuit. Mr. Dagwell, the 19-year-old son of Harry Dagwell, prominent Indian River man, started out for his work at 5 o'clock. His lifeless body was discovered at 6 o'clock—at 1 o'clock it was found hung suspended in the tree in full hour. Physicians worked over the body but were unable to resuscitate him. A Cheboygan undertaker and coroner were summoned.

A late St. Louis paper contains the statement that the residence of J. M. Teasdale, in that city, during the absence of the family in Charlevoix, was entered by burglars, who carried off a large amount of silverware and other valuables. Much of the silver was presents from friends.

There is a well grounded report that petitions are already in circulation for the submission of the local option question next spring, and the usual stock "arguments" are being made up, classified and memorized by the "drys" for the benefit and edification of the voters. But there is one fact that stands. Saloons are a public nuisance and a blot on civilization.

Successor to Beulah Home

Albion Recorder. What will be known as the "Starr Common" school, the nucleus for memorial and nonmotless boys is to be instituted at Lake Falls lake, on the outlet west of the city, about November 1. The organization of the new school is Floyd Starr, a graduate of the colleges, who has been in charge of the affairs of the Beulah home for more than a year, and Miss Lorraine Fairman Swift was forced to sever his connection with that institution.

Starr recently purchased several acres of land adjacent to the west shore of the lake some time ago and a cottage office will accommodate ten boys and the superintendent and his wife, with other helpers if necessary. It has been built on the property since the last year.

Mr. Starr, who was in the city Friday has arranged for the disposition of all the boys at Home City with the exception of ten of the little chaps, who will be brought here some time next month, it is likely. While the one building will probably suffice for the present needs of the institution it is Mr. Starr's intention to increase his plant as soon as necessity arises, and it will not be many years before the Blue Community will approach and pass in extent and scope of work the Home City home at the time of its most flourishing condition.

Death of Mrs. Emily Page.

Mrs. Emily Page died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Peters, on Mace street last Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Page was born in Yorkshire, England, October 20, 1832. Early in her life she married Edward Page, and after a few years they came to America, on leaving first in Philadelphia then in Canada, coming finally to Charlevoix twenty-five years ago.

Mr. Page died 19 years ago, since which time Mrs. Page has made her home with her daughter. Four children and seven grandchildren survive her.

For 55 years she was blind, an affliction which she bore with remarkable fortitude and cheerfulness. The funeral was held at the home last Saturday afternoon, Rev. C. L. Taggart officiating.

Light to the North Pier

Chas. Butler, of the construction and repair department, lighthouse service, was here last week and took measurements for the installation of an electric light of fifty candle power, enclosed in a prism lantern set mounted on an iron frame. The fixed red light will remain on the south pier.

This additional light will be a great aid to navigation.

THE LADY LIGHT KEEPER

Mrs. Dan Williams, Harbor Point Light Keeper, Retires

After serving 44 years as the keeper of lights on Lake Michigan, Mrs. Daniel Williams will retire after November 1, and with her husband, will settle at Charlevoix.

There never was a lighthouse like the one on Harbor Point "Little Traverse Bay" where Mrs. Williams has been stationed the last 29 years. The place is an ideal home comfortably furnished and clean. Mr. and Mrs. Williams pride themselves on their lighthouse home, where they are daily visited by interested summer resorters who have heard of the "Lady Light Keeper"—the only one on the great lakes.

Mrs. Williams has a romantic past with which she details in her book "The Child of the Sea," telling of her life among the Mormons who were ruled by King James Jesse Strang on Beaver Island about 50 years ago.

All her life Mrs. Williams has been associated with life on the lakes. She was born on Mackinac Island, her father being Walter Whitney, a ship's carpenter. Elizabeth was the only girl in a family of four children and all the others were sailors.

The Whitney family moved to Beaver Island when Elizabeth was a mere child. At that time King Strang's kingdom was at the height of its glory. Her adventures were many and exciting, and the Mormons finally went so far as to drive the Whitneys from the beavers. They then moved west to Charlevoix and later to Traverse City, Elizabeth being educated in the public schools of the latter place. And 27 years after leaving the beavers they once more established a home there, King Strang and his tribe having been forced to vacate.

Miss Whitney was married in 1864 to Clement Van Riper, a teacher in the schools of Garden Island. For several years they resided on the island, Mrs. Van Riper aiding her husband in his duties. In 1869 they retired and Mr. Van Riper was appointed keeper of the Beaver Island lighthouse, of which he remained in charge till his death by drowning in 1872, when his wife was appointed keeper. Three years later she became Mrs. Dana Williams, marrying a friend of her childhood days on Mackinac Island. They looked after the Beaver Island light till 1884 when they took up their abode in the new lighthouse erected at Harbor Point.

During the season of navigation Mrs. Williams has kept the Harbor Point light burning, assisted by her husband, since the station was built and they leave it with no little sorrow. However they feel they have done their share toward saving the storm-tossed craft of Lake Michigan, and feel justified in occupy a home at Charlevoix, where they have spent the last few winters.

Although, after these 44 years of service, Mrs. Williams has "surrendered," she cannot get away from the water any more than can her husband and their future residence will be located on the shore of Lake Michigan, where they can salute the passing ships the same as they have done at Harbor Point.

So next season strange hands will fill and trim the Harbor Point light, and Lake Michigan will no longer boast of its "Lady Light Keeper."

THE MERCHANTS EXHIBIT

Many Farmers Too Busy to Come Out But Exhibit Great in Quality

There were not as many exhibits at the Saturday Merchants' agricultural show as there were last year, owing to so many of the farmers being busy with gathering the fall crops and the attendance was not up to expectations.

But the quality of everything on the shelves, especially the fruit, was something to be proud of. No finer demonstration of what Northern Michigan can do was ever made anywhere. Following is the list of awards:

County Normal Notes.

(LETHA L. JACOBS)

The Normal opened with an enrollment of 40 students.

East Jordan—Rhoda Cliffe, Ester Walker.

Boyne City—Gladys Johnson.

Charlevoix—Lila Howe, Bertie Howe, Edna Srigley, Ethyl Jacobs, Hattie Hamlin.

Central Lake—Velma LaGount.

Four are graduates of high schools and the remainder of the class have finished eleven grades.

The class in their language work, told fables, discussed material to be used as well as the method of teaching language. They dramatized a story; this is the first dramatic work which has been done by a class the first week of attends.

Prof. Walter H. French from the Agricultural College at Lansing gave the class an interesting talk on the work done at Michigan Agricultural College.

Miss Hazel Mills of "IS" visited the room Thursday morning. She told the class about her pupils, giving a very graphic account of this Indian school.

Miss LaCount has been teaching in the Lincoln school the past week, assisting Miss Hanniker, who was greatly crowded.

Just Three days of musical feast at the Majestic. Don't miss it.

Local Option Committee Meet

A Meeting of the Charlevoix County Local Option Committee was held in the city last Thursday. Members of the committee from all parts of the county were present including W. J. Pearsons chairman.

There was much enthusiasm and an abiding confidence as the result of the election next spring, when local option will undoubtedly be submitted.

Another meeting of the committee is called for October 16 at 1:30 p. m. at Wilson's hall, when the committee on organization will report.

Henry Morgenthau, Named Ambassador to Turkey.

© by American Press Association.

Henry Morgenthau of New York, selected by President Wilson as ambassador to Turkey, although active in public affairs has never held political office. He has long been a close friend and warm supporter of Mr. Wilson, and his services as chairman of the finance committee of the Democratic national committee were invaluable.

Born at Mannheim, Germany, in 1866, Mr. Morgenthau came to New York with his parents when he was still young enough to enter the public schools. Graduated from the high school in 1885, he attended the City college for one year and then entering Columbia Law school received his diploma in 1889. A year later he became a member of the firm of Lamb, Morgenthau & Guggenheimer and practiced successfully until 1898, when he retired to devote his entire attention to business, in which he has been eminently successful.

Mr. Morgenthau is president of the Free Synagogue and is president of Temple Emanu-el, a Hebrew social and fraternal house. He is a director of Mount Sinai hospital and a member of the United Charities building and the Loeb-Cornelsmont house. He is also a member of many clubs.

Miss Jessie Wilson's Fiance.

When the engagement of Miss Jessie Wilson, President Wilson's daughter, and Francis B. Sayre was first announced, Norwalkers was named as the place of the wedding. Recently, however, it has been rumored that the ceremony would occur at an earlier date, some weeks prior to the time originally set. At present the prospective son-in-law of President Wilson is a member of the staff of the Bethlehem Plaindealer, of Bethlehem, Pa., and is twenty-eight years of age. He is a nephew of the late Robert H. Sayre, builder and

JEROME NOT GUILTY

NEW YORK PROSECUTOR EXONERATED ON CHARGE OF BRIBING—REGRETS ARREST.

LAWYER DELIVERS ADDRESS

Asserts He Did Not Misinterpret Sentiment of Best People in Community in Action of Few Who Caused His Arrest.

Coatsicook, Que., Sept. 10.—W. T. Jerome was acquitted on Tuesday of the charge of gambling while waiting for the immigration authorities to pass on the case of Harry K. Thaw. This is highly significant at the humiliation which he had been subjected.

Jerome, in a letter special to Canada the Canadian people for the way he had been received, and said he would not be Pattengill's successor if he had Canadian people toward him by a vote of 4 to 1 it was a fine compliment.

Only three witnesses were examined when the decision was rendered that there was no case and acquitted the defendant.

Jerome surrounded by a heavy guard of police men, was in court prepared to go on trial. A mob of angry citizens of Coaticook followed him.

In addition to Jerome's personal guard, newspapers were admitted to the courtroom and about the corridors of the building.

The authorities, plainly fearing an outbreak by the infuriated Canadian people, became alarmed at the attempts to escape punishment through the intervention of the Jerome family in Canada.

The appearance here of Jerome, his own prosecutor of this district, as an attorney for the defense of Thaw was plainly intended to shield his friends, and as the hour of the trial was reached the threats against the life of the prosecutor became more and more.

Jerome had left his home at midnight unknown, and had had friends of the immigration department. The police promptly ended the demonstration against the lawyer.

The incident has caused much uneasiness in Canada. It is believed the ultimate liberty was never free from obstacles than it is at present. Some of the friends of Stanford White plan to make bitter attacks on the Canadian immigration laws. The first attack will come on the particular section of the law which provides that only Canadians have the right to plead to the courts against deportation orders. This will be amended, the Thaw lawyers say, to the privy council in England, if necessary.

SOCIETY WOMAN FOUND DEAD

Body of Mrs. W. B. Smith, Grandchild of Marvin Hughitt, Discovered in Lake Michigan.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—The body of Mrs. Walter B. Smith, daughter of Marvin Hughitt, president of the Chicago & Northwestern railway, and granddaughter of Orson D. Munn, president of the Northern Trust company, was found in Lake Michigan near the city park at Lake Forest on Monday. A rope was tightly knotted about Mrs. Smith's neck. On the beach was a small mound of sand and pathetically decorated with flowers. The police declared it was a case of suicide. Deep despondency was ascribed with horror at the news of the tragedy which spread like wildfire through the village. Mrs. Smith, who formerly was Florence McCullough, born here in 1884. She is survived by her husband, two children, aged 6 and 4 years, and a grandchildren. Her mother, Mrs. Marvin Hughitt, and her sister, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, are in Chicago and eastern society, was married to Walter B. Smith June 1, 1905. The wedding was one of the most fashionable events of the season. She was the granddaughter of Marvin Hughitt, former president of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad, and now chairman of the board of directors.

THAW IS DEPORTED

MATTEAWAN FUGITIVE IS RUSHED TO VERMONT TOWN BY AUTHORITIES.

ACTION CAUSES SENSATION

Pittsburgher Yells "It's Kidnaping" as Immigration Officials Hustle Him through Streets of Coaticook to the United States Line.

Norton's Mills, Vt., Sept 11.—Harry K. Thaw reached this point from Coaticook in charge of E. Hakes Robertson, deputy superintendent of immigration for Canada, about 8.30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Coaticook, Que., Sept. 11.—Harry K. Thaw was taken from the immigration station to the Vermont border at eight o'clock Wednesday morning by superintendent of immigration Robertson.

As Thaw left the station he yelled that it was kidnaping. Robertson's only answer was that it was entirely legal.

Thaw was taken from the detention quarters of the immigration building at Coaticook at eight o'clock by E. Hakes Robertson, deputy superintendent of immigration for Canada.

Robertson produced a warrant signed by Minister of Justice Doherty, who is also acting minister of the interior, ordering the removal of Thaw.

Move in Defiance of Court.

These proceedings were taken in defiance of a court proceeding instituted in this city by Thaw's lawyers, and in the face of an injunction holding up the order of deportation handed down by the immigration board of inquiry last week.

When word was received here from Coaticook that Thaw had been deported it created consternation among Thaw's lawyers. They had expected to hold up deportation for six months at least, possibly a year and perhaps longer. Thaw's lawyers, when the news reached, were in conference.

Thaw was under complete control of himself as he was whirled through the streets of Coaticook from the immigration building. He shouted and waved his arms until he was exhausted. The authorities had purposely chosen an early hour when few persons were about.

Mr. Robertson had to forcibly hold Thaw in the automobile as the lad's lips strained with all his might to leap to the ground. Thaw implored the bystanders to help him, but was attacked by his screams to help him, but they did not attempt to interfere.

Fight Shifts to United States.

O'SHAUGHNESSY SAYS MEXICO'S HEAD MAY BE IN RACE.

Trevino Stated for Minister of War Instead of President, as Was Supposed.

Washington, Sept. 9.—Two phases of the Mexican situation attracted much attention in official circles Saturday.

One was the published disclaimer of Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American chargé d'affaires at Mexico City, that any positive assurances had been given him of the intention of Victoriano Huerta not to be a candidate in the approaching elections.

The other was the receipt of private telegrams stating that Gen. Geronimo Trevino would be made minister of war soon to succeed General Blanquet. It had been generally supposed here that Trevino was soon to come back to Mexico City by Huerta to be given the reins of the government as provisional president, while Huerta entered the presidential campaign.

JAPS DEMAND WAR

MOB STORMS FOREIGN OFFICE—ASKS TROOPS BE SENT AGAINST CHINA.

U. S. IS ALSO ASSAILED

Seek Revenge for Killing of Troops at Nanking—Uprising Directed Against Diplomatic Position of Empire Unparalleled in Its History.

Tokio, Sept. 9.—On Sunday a dramatic chapter was written in the history of Japan. The assassination of Montiano Abe, director of the political bureau of the Japanese foreign office, has inflamed the masses.

Fifteen thousand persons gathered in massmeeting in Hibiya park, calling for military action against China. A majority of these marched to the foreign office and clamored for admission. They demanded the dispatch of troops to China to take such measures as were necessary to obtain satisfaction for the killing of Japanese at Nanking, or failing this, the resignation of the minister of foreign affairs, Baron Nobuaki Makino.

The speakers denounced the emptiness of Japanese diplomacy in connection with the Nanking affair, and stated the insult to the Japanese flag should be avenged and wiped out. The manifestation was clearly an explosion of popular resentment against the ministry's treatment of the Canton and Chinese questions.

Profiting by the lessons of riots which followed the conclusion of peace between Russia and Japan, the government had taken the precaution by refusing to allow a single soldier or policeman at the scene. The manifestants, many of whom were students, were orderly during the whole part of the proceedings.

A score of agitators, including a girl, addressed the assemblage. It was declared it was never constituted to the upholding of the empire and had always ended in failure. The incidents in China were unbearable.

Suddenly the cry to march on the foreign office was raised and there was a general stampede, many persons barely escaping being crushed. The crowds surged through the streets, bearing aloft the gesticulating leaders, and reached the foreign office with a rush. The gates were locked.

Scores of the demonstrators pounded on the gates and called for them to be opened, but in vain. The underofficials refused. A delegation was appointed, the members of which climbed the high gates, and then entered a long parley.

Meanwhile the crowd was cheerful but determined. It showed amusements on a beautiful golden girl struggling by a rickshaw, but quickly stoned a photographer seeking to take snapshots of the chief delegate, who, having freed himself, mounted the portals to report progress. Perched unsteadily on the pinnacle he made a fantastic picture, and a harsh harangue followed. The demonstrators demanded either the dispatch of troops or the retirement of the foreign minister.

According to the official version, the voice of the people spoke, that the agitation will never end until our demands are granted.

SENATE O. K.'S TARIFF

UNDERWOOD-SIMMONS MEASURE PASSED BY SENATORS—VOTE OF 44 TO 37.

BILL NOW GOES TO HOUSE

Only Perfunctory Conference Remains—Document Expected to be Signed by President Wilson Before Coatsicook.

Washington, Sept. 11.—By a vote of 44 to 37 the senate on Friday passed the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill.

Senators Thornton and Samuel of Louisiana were the only Democrats to vote against the bill, while Senator Poindexter, Progressive, and Senator La Follette Republican, voted for the measure. Senator Lewis was paired with Senator Gronna, but announced that he intended to vote for the bill anyway and did so.

Vice-President Marshall announced the conference on the bill Saturday Simmons, Shively, Johnson and Williams, Democrats, Penrose, Lodge and La Follette, Republicans.

The conference work should be completed within two weeks and the measure passed and signed by President Wilson before Christmas.

Among the articles placed on the free list were: raw wool and yarns, cotton seed, wool, hoop, pelmi paper, vegetable parchment, cotton seed, wood pulp, pig iron, steel ingots, cotton ties, cotton bagging, jute, hemp, tapestry and moving pictures. Sheep exposed, wool rolls, cement, milk and cream, fish, potatoes, onions, rice, barley, oats, corn, corn cornmeal, cash registers, sewing machines, type and typewriting machines, lumber and hair of the angora goat.

The senate placed in the bill a tax on cotton futures, aimed to prevent gambling.

In the chemical schedule the senate has made considerable number of amendments, the reductions and increases being about equally divided. In the house bill the duties on dyes, with the exception of those made in America, were placed on the free list.

The house had a duty of eight ler. on the iron and steel schedule put it on the free list. The house also had a duty of eight per cent. on iron slabs, blooms, etc., and the senate added them to the free list. Senator Penrose placed the duties of automobiles valued at less than $1,500. It also reduced the duty on motorcycles from 40 per cent. ad valorem to 25 per cent.

In the agricultural schedule the senate free listed cattle and sheep, which the house taxed ten per cent. ad valorem. It reduced the duties on oats from ten cents a bushel, the house rate, to six cents. It reduced the duty on beets from ten per cent to five per cent ad valorem. It reduced the duty on peas from fifteen cents to ten cents a bushel, the house rate, while the house had taxed at ten cents a bushel, on the free list. The senate placed a duty of one-tenth of one cent a pound on bananas. The senate placed a tax on the importation of bundles used in the manufacture of brooms.

The senate made slight increases in yarns and tops. It reduced the rates somewhat on cotton manufactures. Many large reductions were made in the flax, hemp and jute schedule, including the free listing of flax, hemp and jute. In the wool schedule the senate reduced tops from fifteen per cent. ad valorem to five per cent, and on yarns from 15 per cent. to 10 per cent. Wool blankets valued at less than 40 cents per pound were put on the free list.

The income tax section of the bill provides for an exemption of $3,000 with an additional $1,000 if a man or woman be married, and $500 additional for each child under 18 years of age. The rates then are to be one per cent on all incomes from $3,000 to $20,000, two per cent on all income from $20,000 to $50,000, three per cent. on all income from $50,000 to $75,000, four per cent. on all income from $75,000 to $100,000, five per cent. on all income from $100,000 to $250,000, six per cent. on all income from $250,000 to $500,000, and seven per cent. on all income in excess of $500,000, seven per cent.

President Wilson issued the following statement:

"A fight for the people and for free business which has lasted a long generation through has at last won handsomely and completely. A leadership and a unanimous party in congress has shown both houses of which the Democratic party has reason to be very proud. I am sure that we have been connected with the government at this time."

Probably Judge, with a Little Thought, Would Have Expressed Himself in Somewhat Different Manner.

There was at one time in Georgia a judge who had many duties beside his legal ones to perform, but who never for a moment forgot that he "embodied the law" under any and all circumstances.

On occasion he was called upon to act as auctioneer to dispose of some merchandise left by a dry goods merchant who had died some time before.

During the auction one of the bidders created a disturbance, and finally the exasperated auctioneer, assuming his office, or judge, fined the man $10, and sent him to jail for contempt of court.

An attorney made an application to remit the fine and release the prisoner, on the grounds that there had been no contempt of court. He maintained that the judge when acting as auctioneer was not a court, and therefore was not liable to contempt.

The judge heard this application presented with rising wrath, and assuming all the dignity which his position, he glared fiercely down upon the diminutive attorney.

"Do you think," he asked, in stentorian tones, "I would have you know that I am judge of this place under any and all circumstances, and that I judge all the time, air, from the rising of the sun to the setting thereof, and that I act as such," shaking a forefinger at the astonished lawyer, "and I am now, sir, that I am always and everywhere an object of contempt."—National Weekly.

WATERY BLISTERS ON FACE

Smithville, Ind.—Six months ago my little girl was taken with a few red simples come on her face which gradually spread causing her face to be very much irritated and a fiery red color. The simples on the child's face were in watery blisters, first a small blotch on the skin then kept enlarging until it was in a few days her whole cheeks were fiery red color and instead of the little blisters the skin would dry and then would break and seemed to itch and burn very badly.

"We used a number of remedies which seemed to give relief for a short time, but never her face worse than ever. Finally we got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I washed the child's face with very warm water and Cuticura Soap, then applied the Cuticura Ointment very lightly. After doing this about three times a day the itching and burning seemed entirely gone in two days and in about two weeks time her face seemed well. That was eight months ago and there has been no return of the trouble." (Signed) Mrs. A. K. Wooden, Nov. 4, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free with 32-p. skin book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston." Adv.

An Anniversary.

A man may be rough looking and yet have a touch of sentiment about him.

A ragged, ill kept looking man appeared at the door of a Providence woman's home, and in a pleading tone asked.

"Have you a piece of cake, lady, to give a poor man who hasn't had a bite for two days?"

"Cake?" echoed the woman in surprise. "Don't bread good enough for you?"

"Certainly, yes, ma'am. But this is my birthday," explained the tramp.—Harper's Magazine.

Tar and Feathers.

Tar and feathers are not a peculiarly American punishment. Richard the Lion Hearted first prescribed this punishment. It was when he was getting out for the third crusade that he gave warning that "a robber who shall be convicted of theft shall have his head cropped after the fashion of a champion, and boiling pitch shall be poured thereon, and the feathers of a cushion shall be taken out on him, so that he shall be known."

Something to Remember.

"Now is the time to pitch in and achieve now, now!" said Norman Hapgood, in a political address in New York.

"Remember, my friends," said Mr. Hapgood, "the proverb is the future, from which you hope so much."

A Cure's Holiday.

On feast days the life of the curé of the seventeenth century was enlivened with such amusements as a bottle to the death between a well seated beer and a spectrum, in which, it is said, "frequently the man lost his life. In the event of a successful issue the spectrum was awarded by beer taken to the royal cellar, where he was at least to drink to its capacity.

Curves of Japanese Roofs.

Western architects are often puzzled by the origin of the Japanese curve and the case with which Japanese carpenters can so accurately construct such dull architecture design. The curve of a dilapidated temple roof is almost so difficult a line to draw or man has contrived, but how the Japanese carpenter can so accurately work in reproducing it has never been explained. Modern artists and writers see in these unique and beautiful curves a resemblance to the sagging outlines of his primitive tents centuries ago by the forefathers of the Japanese race, who dwelt on the burning plains of China, but these does not appear to be any evidence to support such a conclusion. The curve is a catenary, the most beautiful perhaps of all natural curves, formed by gravitation when a chain or cord is suspended between two points.—London Globe.

Steer Clear of the Police.

One thing that convinces motorists and temobile drivers beyond all else, says the New York Times, is the name of them ever runs down a traffic patrol man. Thousands and hundreds of thousands are crossed every day in New York every day of the year, and if they were so inclined they have many from their calling would be extra hazardous. They stand to what for cash loss would be the most dangerous, silliest conceivable weight in the mind of the side of the road. Still amount bias and monstrosities and other vehicles swing from by dozens, scores, hundreds, thousands, and on holidays tens of thousands. There is nothing to prevent any traffic policeman from being crushed at any moment of his days work. No matter how careful he may be, his back would not stop an automobile hit the slightest fault, formula that he is not run down.

Bulwer's Deafness.

If Byron was passessed of an ear given vanity Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton was quite his equal in that respect. There was a tradition in the family that his father, in the course of a rather life held spiritualistic meetings in the drawing room of his land and on the continent of Europe, was crushed from his chair by a mercury, unlifted twice, each time to a Russian body of a great Prince of various books. Home was particularly disliked by Charles Dickens, who appeared to him all the dark name of which he could think. Mr. Bigelow also remarked to Lord Lytton that Halevy had refin in the medium. "Oh, yes," Dickens replied, that you see Halevy is deaf and does not hear the table remarked; so Home would say, 'Do you know Prince Louis and Bulwer would say, 'Oh, yes, I heard them perfectly.'"—Bookman.

First British Mounted Police.

When the first mounted police of Roman legions from Britain, as Tacitus tells us, left one to do about a-thou pieces of the disaster of the Ninth Legion, and everywhere outside of walled towns men generally adopted the simple plan of "taking what they should take who have the power and keeping what they can." There fore, King Arthur gathered men of noble birth about the round table and made them knights to go forth, and to conquer territory or markets or win spoils, but to redress wrongs, to defend the weak, especially women and, in the spirit of the cross. They were "knights without fear and without reproach" who took King Arthur's oath.—Christian Herald.

Seating.

A husband who has certainly spent his evenings at the club was somewhat startled with remorse recently when he happened to spend in his wife's company.

"Do you know, my dear," he said affectionately, "I never get tired of looking at this mantelpiece of yours."

"Why, don't you have it framed and hang up in the office? she inquired, without raising her eyes from her book.—Lippincotts.

King Edward at Sibha.

Of King Edward Mr. Gorst in her "Letter Mediterranean" tells a pleasant story. He one time visited Mr. Carnegie at Skibo. Little Margaret Carnegie's mother had given her some time before a large print of the King, but had placed it in a conspicuous position on the wall of her day nursery, and when any one came to see her she made him or her bow to the portrait before she would talk. Mortified on this occasion took the king by the hand, led him into the nursery and introduced the lady to his own portrait. "Everybody does that who comes to see me," she said, "and you must do it too." The king bowed, after which she gravely introduced her two nurses to him.

Wit and Tears.

A witty old judge had before the bar of justice a woman who was good history over her misfortunes, the woman being about the courtroom, and her tears of no mean size caused the a great stream down her cheeks to the floor.

While she wept thus profusely Barrister Pleighan chanced to come in, who, seeing the witness and hearing her cries, anxiously asked of the clerk:

"What is the name of all the sins of hostess in the matter with the poor gurnel before the bar of justice?"

"Sir, I don't know," was the judge's reply. "Apparently she's waiting to be bailed out."—London Tit-Bits.

Karlsbad.

The question as to how to spell the name of a watering place in Bohemia was submitted by a New York woman to a resident of the spa. The answer did not decide the point, but it offended three who were interested some amusement. The place is among other a name which by you is Charles," says the writer. "No person will be deceive if Carl or Karl is written Kach ere is entire right. So your letter will be addressed to New York Carlsbad with Karlsbad address. Its business name is very, very, long and time saw how it is spelling." The evident desire on the part of the writer to be right is the most amusing part of the incident, however, by the printed letterhead, which read "Karlsbad" on the date line and contained in a corner also the legend, "Laughsh spoken."—New York Tribune.

Best Side of a Cemetery.

Probably few people know that there is a choice side to a cemetery. Thus in some parts of the world the eastern position, without regard to the situation, is always deemed the most desirable. This preference arises from the old tradition that our Lord will appear from the east. It is also believed that the dead in the eastern position will be the first to rise, then those in the southern, western and northern in order. In Hindoo lands it is a custom of laying felons and other bad characters on the north side of the church. The custom of laying the dead in a direction which is impossible in the Welsh denomination by the word "north." The wind of the dead men's feet."—London Express.

Reasonable Mistrust.

"Now let me try," she said, "to guess the gift you have in your pocket. I know that we are a little and bridge-mad."

"All right, dear," he replied. "I'm shall we deserve them?"

"Why a couple of magazines, and we will pretend to be busy reading them and avoid quibbling each other."

"That's fine, dear, excellent. I'll get them right away."

Twenty minutes later

"Lovey?"

"Yes, dearest?"

"You are holding your magazine upside down."

"Lovey!"

"Yes, dearest?"

"You are holding your magazine upside down."

"Lovey!"

"Yes, dearest? If you are going to be bin geometrical now how about I ever be able to tell which way it is to be turned for the proper position?"—Boston Eagle.

Oriental Gems.

All gems of the finest quality, irrespective of the part of the world from which they come, are generally spoken of as "Oriental," because the supply of precious stones comes only from the east for many centuries, and long mines were discovered in the west, it was at first assumed that the stones were inferior. "Occidental" is the term applied to inferior stones to this day.

On the other hand, "Oriental topaz," "Oriental amethyst," and "Oriental emerald" are well known as sapphires, and are given these names only on account of their color.

Fashion Hint.

Some women seem modified to their husbands as they are to fashion, how would they have longer and deeper.—New Orleans Picayune.

Millet's Difficulties.

Two of Millet's famous pictures, the "Sower" and the "Binders," were produced in a stuffy studio, inefficiently warmed by a tiny stove. In order to keep warm he wound work with his frock in his woolen shoes stuffed with straw, blouses, stockings in a heavy mouse-cloth with a hole in the center through which he put his head. In this dress Millet had simply enough to express with all his might one of the phases of man's surrounding constant with nature. But "political parties this, their conclusions. The Thiers party declared that these pictures protested against the misery of the laborer, while official critics said that the artist sought to set class against class. At the time Millet actually painted a signboard for a Parisian tradesman, that then, he passed it on well to the end it figured in an exhibition of the works in the Salon of Fine Arts.

Nickel in Soapmaking.

It will probably be news to the average shetlothist that the metal nickel is used in making his soap. And further, perhaps, he will be glad to learn that although the nickel, finely ground, is mixed with the other soap ingredients, the finished product contains none of it. This is no doubt due to the fact that the chemists call a catalyst that it, its presence causes certain desirable changes to occur, although it takes no part in the chemical reaction, infinitely slow and time too thin for satisfactory use, when mixed with finely divided nickel and subjected to the action of a current of hydrogen, become deodorized and harder and still more like the tallow, which it was used, so far, example, after the nickel, hydrogen treatment makes a satisfactory soap.—New York Post.

"Come Ye to the Woods!"

Julian Grande, who recently returned to England from Bilac land, has had some interesting things to say about Brazil. The forest of the district lies still in its rivers. Along and Plunger, but this does not hinder the traffic from relating then with the rivers or the streets, ending the water and the streets in summer. Water is brought from a distance and sold in the streets at about a farthing a quart, and to buy a cupful of water and give it to "one of those ill, the same is a typical act of unselfish charity." Fines Moldenes will buy water and then gather the thirsty children round them, ending almost the very words of Isaiah—"Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters."—Homiletic Review.

Force of Habit.

There is a Princeton an instructor in mathematics who was country bred a fact that is frequently betrayed by some homely saying of his.

One day an undergraduate had performed an unusually difficult and complicated process in arriving at the solution of a problem when the instructor said:

"This reminds me of a colt once owned by an old friend of mine in the country. This colt was cut out to pasture after having been broke to the harness and shafts. It was turned loose in the yard. The pasture lay across a small river, and in the middle of the day the colt would swim the stream to go up to the bars for a drink of water."—Harper's Magazine.

Oxford Terms.

A Rhodes scholar of Denver, speaking of Oxford terms:

"Oxford is a funny place. Magdalen is pronounced Maudlin. Horse-hence means three quarters of a term. 'General admission' day is the day, not when you enter, but when you leave. An 'ordinary degree' is one obtained by a special examination. An 'examiner' is not an inspector, but a student.

"Confused by these things, a new Rhodes scholar said:

"This—this—by Hugh! How queer it all is! And if I go to the Oxford dispensary and ask for a Gladstone to London will they give me a hansom by streamer to Marcellus?"—Chicago Tribune.

The Great Violin Makers.

Antonio Stradivari, the famous violin maker of Cremona, died 1737. He was the pupil of Nicolaus Amati and carried the Cremona type of violin to its highest perfection. The other Cremonese violin makers, Jerome and Antonio, made use of Stradivari if not with him. The Tyrolese makers, Jakob Stainer, 1621-83, and Matthias Klotz and his sons made violins that stand very high in the estimation of connoisseurs. Villaume of Paris is the most celebrated modern maker.

Not the Head.

The father had gone away and left his only son in charge of the shop.

"Are you fond of the firm?" asked the man with the sample case, who had just come in.

"No, sir," remarked the young man, with a smile, "I'm only the heir of the head."—Lippincott's.

MYSTERY OF THE DESERTED HOUSE

Strange Experience of a Man on Robbery Bent.

I've had every avenue of escape cut off. I've been chased like a wild beast. I've been shot at, but I never was against bad luck until that was by all odds.

I'd served a term for burglary, spent what money I had when I came out and was looking for a decent job of honest work. I'd tried that on getting out once before and found it impracticable. When an ex-convict knows that he's liable any moment to be spotted and discharged it takes the nerve out of him for work. I'd made up my mind there was nothing left for me to do but stick to my business, which was burglary. Well, as I was saying, I was looking for a house to get into and, walking on the outskirts of a city saw one that struck me as being very inviting. It was in the center of a six acre lot, with no neighbors near enough to make it unpleasant for the burglar and a wood in the rear affording a safe retreat if I made a careful survey of the premises. No one happened to be visible in or about the place, but there was plenty of evidence that it was occupied. Newly washed clothes were hanging on the lines, smoke was issuing from the chimneys, children's shoes and stockings were scattered about in the yard.

The night was windy and blustery. At about 10 o'clock I took position in the wood, shielded from the wind by a cottage shed, with a view of the premises by the lights what rooms were occupied. I was then ready to proceed to get into a vehicle and sat watching my quarry. The men wore comfortable and some blankets and robes that had been left in the yard no warm. The result was that I fell asleep.

When I awoke every light in the house was out, and the clock struck 1. I got out went to the house, took a chair and stood on it at a kitchen window, forced the "catch," raised the sash, entry, pulled myself up and crawled inside, striking a match, I lit my dark lantern and surveyed the room. Everything was in good order after the evening meal. A fire was burning in the range. I crept through a pantry to the dining room. Here, too, all was in order.

Passing through the parlors, I entered the hall and went upstairs, taking my shoes off and leaving them in the hall. I listened long for the sound of a sleeper breathing. That I was to make some began to affect my nerves. An empty house is a great deal for a burglar, but the advantage in this case was overcome by the unexpected energy. I was sure that I had left no clue, and found it unescaped. Thus, finding no reason to proceed, I saw a woman clothing that had been evidently taken off at bedtime lying on the chairs. The woman had vanished.

I went to another room and another with the same result. In some of them I found clothing that had been laid aside, but no one in the house. Some of the beds showed signs of having been occupied. I went on to every room and not a sign of a living being did I find. There was some plunder on the premises, but not very much. I did not think of taking it. My mind was fixed upon the lights I had seen in the house a few hours before and the absence of those whose clothes were in the rooms.

There is no similarity between days and nights for good impressions. One human being, even if a policeman, would have broken the spell. I feared a haunted house, but I feared more that something in my brain had worn wrong. Had the house been in the afternoon and evening been an hallucination or was I there yesterday something that was not? Coming to a window overlooking the rear yard, I flashed my lantern down into it. There were the clothes still hanging on the lines. I walked down through the yard, bringing my feet down heavily on the floor that I might hear a noise. The carpet was thick, and there was not a faint response—a response that added to my growing terror.

Suddenly the rays of my lantern struck a living figure. At once my instinct of preservation ordered me to cover my light. I did so and waited. There was no response. Believing I had been mistaken, I mustered courage to take the lantern from my face. There was the figure, but it was more perfectly red from a mirror.

I had had one desire—to get out and away. Descending to the main floor, I saw a piece of yellow paper on the floor. What prompted me to pick it up I don't know, but I did and read: "Mother dying. All come at once."

Here was a clue. The hour of sending and receiving the dispatch was written out and gave evidence that it had been delivered. Thus I was among the carriage shed. The family had doubtless hurried to a train, taking even the servants with them.

I could have taken away anything I could find, but I was so rattled that I had no desire to do so. I went away empty handed and the next day resolved to go at legitimate work, a resolution I have kept even to the present day.

Proofs of Love.

You say you love me, darling,
And you would prove it too
I know nothing in the world, dear,
You can you would not do!
A star I would pluck for you, dearest,
And presents great or less,
So that it be a real one,
I will be sincere yours.

Nay, bring me not bright flowers
To bloom about my home,
Nor do remove rubies
Ask me with you to roam.
Do thou but give me a smile
Nor smooth my curly locks
Ask in my lap you sitting
Lay one big concession boot.

Their Wishes Differed.

"I wish I was a star," the dude sighed, looking up from his poetic reading.

"I would rather you were a comet," quoth his sweetheart.

His heart beat tumultuously.

"And why?" he asked tendersly, at the same time taking her dimpled little hand in his own. "And why?"

"Because comets have tails."

"Oh," she said with a brooding earnestness that fell freezing upon his ears, "because then you would come around only once in fifteen years."

"And you would be a match, I'll warm out into the shimmering moonlight."—Chicago Daily News.

The Bird and the Worm.

The Early Bird was awakened by a worm for something on the dewy ground. When the worm he had been warm jumped out and, looking cautiously about.

"Good morning, Mr. Worm, old chap! Out looking for a morning snap?"

"Yes, I'm out for breakfast."—"You've got it."

"What's coming to the Early Bird?"

"Why, mine, I heard! Well, I should squirm."

Thus spake the worm and Early Worm
Cared not to be left out, Mr. Bird.
Said the Early Bird, "I'm sorry heard.
Or Worm, are big to you birds' plan
Of early rising and early bed?
So we've out early rising out
Of the bed of the worm, as about
Now, Birdie, you've heard what I said.
Worm! I'm going that to get!
Mother dying. All come at once."

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Secret.

What was it it wouldn't know?
What had happened or what had it heard
Down deep in its heart it worried or stirred
To set it off in a dance and song
As bubbly as froth it burned and bore
How it fluttered and how it foamed!
How it rippled as on it rounded!
How it chattered and laughed and played
As a miniature waterfalls it made!
How it whispered and sang and moaned!
As through the foliage it wound and wind!
Why, it was so happy it fairly whirled
Round and round in its delight and curled
Oh, if (would only tell to me
All it can hear and all it can see!
What did it mean and what did it say
Out in the woods that summer day?

It would not tell me. It hurried on Till all the sunny holes were gone
But cannot not where the hemlock grass
Caressed the crystal drops which pass.
Still and quiet it stole through the woods
Where the sunlight in moonlight changed
Its joyous manner and went to sleep
It hoarded its secret.—Youth's Companion.

The Question.

The children had been testing grandfather with questions all the long rainy afternoon. He had been very patient, but he had not read his newspaper.

They had asked where clouds came from and where they were going; where the sunbeams were when it rained and why no one had ever counted the sand particles on the shore but when they asked where yesterday had gone grandfather sighed.

"Don't bother him any more," Mary said.

Grandfather laughed. "Let me ask you a question," he said. "If you can't answer it you must not ask me any more today."

The children agreed to this plan and grandfather asked, "How can you make eight out of sixteen?"

The children retired to a corner and were all for some time. At last Dorothy piped back, "Can it be done on paper?" she asked.

"Yes," said grandfather, "and with one stroke of the pencil."

The children trotted away to the library, and no more was heard from them until tea time. Their faces showed that they had "given up."

After tea grandfather called them and drew the Roman numerals thereon. Then he drew a straight line through the center horizontally, cutting the X and each I at the center, making eight.

"Oh," said Ned, laughing, "grandpa knows everything! Guess why he has no many questions."—Youth's Companion.

The Magic Answer.

When you have a question, yet one to be the accomplice and show the others that it might.

The accomplice leaves the room, while the others decide on an article which the accomplice is to guess from your questions.

You have arranged with him that the right article is the one after you have mentioned one beginning with a vowel.

You can make this as mysterious as you like.

For instance the article agreed on by the company is the clock. When your accomplice comes back you ask him "Is it a mirror?" (Mirror begins with a consonant). "No."

"Is it a chair?" (Chair begins with a consonant). "No."

"Is it the carpet?" (Carpet begins with a consonant). "No."

"Is it the album?" (Album begins with a vowel). "No."

"Is it the clock?" "Yes."

Should any of the company catch on or should you want to vary the "magic," you decide with your accomplice beforehand that the "Yes" shall like table or chair, before giving the object agreed upon and to which the final answer is "Yes."

A Scientific "If."

If the earth were to revolve seven time times faster than it does before it the sunrise would lose their weight and remain stationary in the air without support.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Manicure File That Works Automatically.

A novel form of manicure file has been designed by a California man. A ring slipe over the finger to about the middle of the second joint and holds the device in place. Pivoted to this ring are they supports which hold a file, and the file is adjustably mounted so that it is in continual contact with the nail. To reduce a nail with this device then the user merely moves the file from side to side by means of a little handle and an accurate semi circle is made. The work is done automatically without the trouble of shaping the nail as must be done when using the regulation flat file.

To Stiffen Croquette Mixtures.

If the croquette mixture is not firm enough to handle and to mold easily add a tablespoonful of granulated gelatin in cold water and dissolve it in boiling water, using just as little water as possible. Stir this into the croquette mixture and set aside until the gelatin has had time to harden. The croquettes can then be made easily. The heat of the frying will melt the gelatin and the inside of the croquettes will be as soft and as creamy as ever. If the supply of cream is low don't risk ruining the croquettes by trying to fry them; put them into the oven to bake.

Remedy For Burns.

A mixture of tannic acid with the white of egg has been recommended for burns. It allays the pain more quickly and causes the wound to heal more rapidly than any other applied wet. The eggs are broken and emptied into a bowl, and the tannic acid crystals are slowly poured in while the eggs are beaten. Enough oil is added to make a thick, creamy paste which is applied to the burn with a feather. The applications are repeated often enough to prevent their becoming dry or sticky. It is best to abstain from any dressings, leaving the surface uncovered.

Kitchen Kinks

Do not add salt to sausage, cauliflower or Brussels sprouts, for it will darken them.

Carrots and beets should be cooked whole, then sliced.

To whiten scorched linen dampen with soapsuds and lay in the sun or boil in a gallon of milk into which has been mixed a pound of shaved whitesoap.

A little lard added to starch will keep it from sticking.

Empty fruit tins jars before placing in the refrigerator if you do not wish it to scent butter and milk.

Banana Pudding.

Lady fingers or stale cake, two large bananas sliced, half cupful seeded raisins two cupfuls of unsweetened cornstarch, one and one-half pints of milk. Line deep baking dish with cake. Lay sliced bananas and raisins in bottom. Make custard of eggs (yolks only), milk and cornstarch. Pour hot custard over bananas. Make meringue of egg whites and one tablespoon of pulverized sugar and bake a few minutes until well flavored and brown.

Mexican Pinoche.

This delicious candy is made by cooking one and one-half cupfuls brown sugar, one-half cupful granulated sugar, three-fourths cupful milk or cream (better milk if reaches the point where it will form a soft ball in cold water when tested. Remove from fire, add one cupful of nutmeats, one teaspoonful vanilla and stir till creamy; then turn on greased dishes and when cool cut in squares.

Northern Michigan

Editor Churchill of the Petoskey Daily News, wants to be postmaster of his home city. There are two other candidates.

A silo census for Western Michigan brings forth the information that approximately one thousand silos have been erected in Western Michigan since the first of January. All the returns from the census are not yet in but enough are to give a general idea as to what the final showing will be.

The silo factory owned by Frank Coleman of Boyne City, has done well for this county. Mr. Coleman started his factory about four years ago on North Lake street. The first two years only 10 silos were made. The next year was much better and this year so many orders have in that it will be impossible to fill them before January 1. About 20 orders will have to go unfilled. This year 110 orders have been satisfactorily filled.—Boyne City Journal.

Outside real estate men have been swarming over Western Michigan during the past few weeks, and some heavy investments in land have been made. When these shrewd dealers get control of large holdings of our cutover hardwood lands, which they are now doing, prices for this class of real estate will speedily go to a much higher notch. A decade from now there will be no cheap land that is worth owning.

Settlers in Michigan purchasing cut-over and wild lands for the purpose of establishing new homes are now exempt from taxation for a period of five years. This inducement having been incorporated in a recent act of the legislature which went into effect Aug. 15. The act prescribes a form of procedure whereby exemption from taxation is sought. In the northern part of the state, where the greatest actual development is taking place, the new law has a particular significance.

Western Michigan is coming to the front in the matter of fine farms equal to the west. A 7,000 acre farm has just been started in the northwestern part of Manistee county, called the Lake Side farm with a capital stock of $150,000 all paid in. Charles T. Manning, of Detroit, is general manager. He has moved from Detroit with his family to Copemish. Chas. Sonnenberg, of Copemish, is superintending the work on the Manistee county farm. He started with a crew of men and teams five weeks ago and now has about 200 acres cleared and nearly ready for fall plowing. Next spring buildings will be erected near the center of the 7,000 acres.

Suit was commenced Saturday in Emmet county circuit court by Mayor John J. Reyerat, against Dudley McDonald, a contractor, for $10,000 damages. The Petoskey mayor is represented by the Bunte bros. Marbury, Sherman & Handy, as attorney. The libel suit is the result of an attempt on the part of McDonald over a year ago to prove Reyerat insane. The insanity charge was withdrawn before the case was fairly started, but Reyerat alleges McDonald injured his medical practice. Reyerat was not then mayor, but in order to partially vindicate himself he was last spring and was elected to an office. He had twice previously held the office. He and his brother, Dr. George Reyerat are owners of Petoskey hospital. The libel case probably will be tried in October.

An Expensive Relic

Resting upon a deeply anchored concrete foundation, down at the city electric light plant, stands a pile of iron junk. To begin with, it is the legitimate off-spring of the diurnal certainty of the good that is said to never come "out of Nazareth."

It cost between $2,000 and $3,000, and in the five years that it has stood upon its pedestal it has never done an hour's duty. We are compelled to say that it is a monument to the usually sound principle of "patronize home industry."

There is a gentleman now in California who fathered this proposition, and, passing along through the incidental decade of "nonsensicals," it is evident that the city bought a gold brick. The aforesaid present resident of the golden State and the board of public works of that period of our municipal career may possibly be able to explain the relation of this archaeological specimen to the present tax-paying, home-loving taxpayers of the city of Charlevoix who have to read the Charlevoix Sentinel by electric light.

In addition to this monument to municipal idiocy, we have what they call an "auxiliary plant," with a battery of cells and a steam outfit for electric and water supply. Oft times we see smoke issuing from the old plant, which brings to the poor tax-payer the dual thought: what's the matter at Nazareth?

The people of Charlevoix, from the beginning, have never quite understood the true, intelligible interpretation of the electric power and light situation. Way back in the dim ages of the past there was an idea that "inspired" books of the scripture that were freamed upon by the hierarchy, and were exhumed from Holy Writ. We for it what the expunged book is called—ok Dr. Taggart.

There are a lot of dam complications down at Nazareth—complications that threaten trouble sometime in the street by-and-by, and even now the city council is seriously contemplating an emergency top to the Rock Pedestal of the plant, against the day when good fails to come out of Nazareth. Meanime, personally, we are in favor of not being hauled down Park Avenue to the city plant.

The whole thing sums up as follows:

A profound mystery as to what shall come out of Nazareth.

An expensive "auxiliary" plant down on the beach.

The probability of another at the Rock Pedestal Co.

A dam complication at Nazareth that is in the courts.

A pile of iron junk at the city plant, constituting an abortive attempt to meet the demand of a public that somebody has the contract to supply.

What are you going to do about it?

Concerning the Silo

It is evident that the silo it one of the most valuable assets that a farmer can possess. It not only supplies his stock with food that never becomes stale, but it means the foiled Jack Frost dead further and also eliminates the element of waste which is one of the greatest handicaps with which the farmer has to contend.

Farmers are coming to see this important point and are building silos in greater numbers than at any time in the history of the region. During the past four years the number has 2,000 new silos constructed in Western Michigan, which is a showing that this district may well feel proud of. The value of a silo is found in the fact that plenty of fodder can be secured for stock in conditions that are not well adapted to the growing of forage plants, and in the fruit belt a small acreage of forage crops can be made to go farther than under any other system that has yet been discovered.

Western Michigan is destined to become a great dairy and stock country, and no agencies will help to bring about this desirable condition as much as the building of silos upon every farm in the district. Methods in farming change the same as in any other business and the farmer who keeps in touch with the modern ideas is the one who will profit as the years go by.

A silo on every farm will mean that there will be a much greater profit in farming than there is at present through the prevention of waste and the systematizing of the business. The more silos there are the greater will be the prosperity, and when the farmer is prosperous all other lines of business and industry feel the effects of his condition.

Common Council

At the council meeting last Monday night the curb and gutter contract of Hayes street from Mason to Antrim was awarded to Bert Sharrow.

The contract for laying 1800 feet of 4 inch water main through Section 3 of the Summer Home Association for fire protection was let to Peter Benson.

A sewer was ordered by resolution on Newman street from intersection of Center street north and also along Park Avenue, along Park Avenue to alley back of Burgeon's store to river.

FOD TO CROP

Large Acreage and the Yield Runs From 150 to 300 Bushels an Acre

Wexford county farmers were never so optimistic as they are at the present time. Never in the history of the county, according to the oldest farmers, were there so many acres of potatoes raised in Wexford as the yield so heavy to the acre.

"We could make money this year at 10 cents a bushel," exactly one farmer who says he will have between 3,000 and 4,000 bushels of tubers this year. "And at $1 per bushel we will make more this year than in the last five years."

Farmers in Wexford county say their potatoes will average between 150 and 200 bushels to the acre. Some will have 250 and also there will have less than 150. Potatoes were bringing only 50 cents there two weeks ago, now dealers are having trouble getting what they desire to retail and are paying 75 cents per bushel. Farmers hope to get $1 per bushel.

Wexford is not the only county in northwestern Michigan which will have an unusual yield of tubers. Oceana county potato buyers and farmers report the heaviest yield in recent years with some farmers having 300 bushels to the acre. Missaukee county farmers too, are to prosper this year. George E. Wood of Lake City, prominent real estate dealer, says his farms are producing the best potatoes in Michigan and adds that this means the best in the United States.

Northern Michigan's great crop is due to just the proper amount of rain at just the proper time.

In the Pine Lake section the potato crop was never better in quality or yield. Buyers are numerous, the price averaging about the 50 cent mark. The price went to 60 cents a few days last week at some points, but the market took a slump Friday, and reached the 50 cent level.

The City Streets

While we are talking on this everlasting subject of good roads, our thoughts revert to the condition of the city streets, some of which will require attention next spring.

To begin with and most important of all is the Bridge street thoroughfare, some very bad spots. There is no pavement in the world that will last forever without repairs, even the best of it used up pavement we ever saw was asphalt in a Michigan town, where they thought for a time that they had a durably surfaced street. Our bitulithic can be easily repaired with the surface resiling process and properly prepared material.

Some of our macadam streets have had depressions due to the unwise habit of vehicles always passing the middle of the street. It is very easy to take the right hand side of the street, either way. By so doing the wear on the street is so divided that there will be few breaks in the surface.

It has been proven conclusively that the tarvia-macadam of Michigan Avenue is the best pavement of that class in the city, while the "chop-wash" with which Antrim street was baptized last year was a waste of good money. The Lee Howland concession Dixon Avenue has won golden opinions, the only criticism being that it is too noisy. But it looks as if it were there to stay.

All things considered Charlevoix may well be proud of its streets.

The Market

There has been a decided drop in the potato market the past week, and some of the buyers have been called off at the fifty cent figure. It is thought, however, that the market will settle back to fifty cent level, but a rise from that figure is problematical.

Apples of the fall varieties are coming in generously, and the price ranges from $1.40 to $1.60 per barrel. The stock averages good in quality.

(HATTIE HAMLIN)

The work in manual training began Monday morning with Miss Whiting in charge. The work comprises some of the common stitches in sewing.

The first work was done in the grades Wednesday, when a bird was found by some of the boys and brought to the normal class to determine the kind. Elsa Stigler and Velma LaGuire were chosen to bring the bird to the several rooms to tell the children about it. They identified it as the red eyed Vireo, a very valuable bird because it destroys so many insects.

The Agriculture books have come and the work has begun in them. The work before was topical.

Rhoda Cliff and Esther Walker spent Saturday and Sunday at their homes near East Jordan.

Hattie Hamlin began school Monday morning after a week's absence on account of illness.

Miss May Stewart, of East Jordan, visited the Normal Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Janie Mitchell, class of 1906, has gone to Kalamazoo.

Jane Stafford, class of 1910, has gone to Ypsilanti.

The steamer Beaver was windbound here Friday.

What Are You Going to Do Now?

Once upon a time Charlevoix had a board of Commerce.

Now it is but a memory.

For a time it had vitality enough to collect assessments on the business men of the town, but from the day of its birth we have never known it to accomplish anything but float a sky-wagon or an automobile race.

The ostensible purpose of its existence was to do something for the permanent betterment of local business conditions. If you seek evidence of its efficiency look about you.

For the love of Mike is the coming winter to pass without a squawk from the all-pleased agency of progress?

Will it hibernate with the bears and woodchucks? Has it contracted the sleeping sickness? Is it waiting, like Micawber, for something to turn up? Is it a great misnomer of a Mose, let it go after a chicken incubator, a recluse retreat or a dog hospital.

Anything, and yet the great throbbing, busy world may know that there is such a place on the map as Charlevoix.

An Ornament to the Street

The workmen will, within the next few days, complete the interior of the new Masonic building, on Bridge street and it will be one of the prettiest, most substantial and convenient structures in the city.

It is well understood that Dr. Armstrong will occupy the east suit of three rooms, and has been petitioned by Dr. Barney would have his dental parlors in the front suit but Dr. Barney has decided to remain in the newly arranged rooms in the Bartlemonew block and the law offices of R. L. Lewis will go to the Price building.

The ground floor and basement is arranged for the Fine Photographic studio, and it is one of the best arranged establishments of its kind in Northern Michigan. The rear portion of the ground floor, including the charming sun-porch, constitute splendid summer quarters for Mr. and Mrs. Priest, when their north side residence is occupied.

The main portion of the ground floor is devoted to the studio proper, and includes the waiting parlor, display room and operating room. The basement contains, besides the heating plant, storage rooms and the necessary dark rooms for the development of work.

A Pastor's Reception

Rev. Quinton Walker, the Methodist pastor, who has been returned to this charge for another year, was given a rousing reception Monday night at the church, which was an emphatic endorsement of the pastor's work the past year.

About 150 were present, and the church was decorated with an abundance of Autumn flowers and the occasion was one of great enjoyment by all present. Music was furnished by the Methodist choir.

Rev. and Mrs. Walker were presented with an elegant Wilton rug.

Historical Society.

The Charlevoix Historical Society will hold its first meeting of the year at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Buttars, Tuesday evening Oct. 7th. The city is nowing time is over and the reaping time has come, so, may the members of this society enjoy a very pleasant evening with the following program:

President's Greeting—Mr. A. F. Bridge.

"The World Since We Last Met"—Dr. J. H. Weatherby.

Intermission.

"Situations Up-To-Date"—Mr. H. A. Craig.

Vocal Solo—Mrs. Rachow.

The Lecture Course

Mr. DeVoe announces that the Citizens Lecture Course for the winter will open Oct. 17th.

Watch the papers for definite announcement.

A Woman Governor.

Queens have ruled many nations, but Pennsylvania is the only one of the United States that ever had a woman for governor. A passage unearthed from Aronson's "Governors of Pennsylvania" page 120, says:

"On the 20th of July, 1718, William Penn died, at the age of seventy-four. By his will his wife, Hannah, was made his sole executrix and answerable to the council of colonies, after executing this difficult task with rare tact and business capacity. She became says Aronson, in effect our governor, ruling as by her deputies or lieutenant governors during all the term of her children's minority."

Chloroform and Stains.

Paint, grease or other stains can be removed from painted materials or from materials the colors of which are not fast by the use of chemically pure chloroform. Take the garment into the open air and lay it upon a flat surface with a piece of clean white blotting paper or absorbent cloth under the spot. Then pour on a few drops of the chloroform and pass through the stain. Do not rub hard and be sure the chloroform is chemically pure. The spot will come out readily and without injury to fabric or color. This treatment has proved efficacious where gasoline, benzine, naphtha and other cleaners have entirely failed.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

AFTER BAD ANIMALS

A Petoskey Man Goes Hunting For Wolves in Northern Woods

John Gregg, well-known carpenter of Petoskey, says the Daily News, left Tuesday on what should prove an interesting and enjoyable trip to the north woods. Mr. Gregg took the afternoon train for Escanaba, upper peninsula, and from there he will journey out into the wild part of the country and build a shack.

He will enjoy the early fall shooting and remain for the deer hunting season as well. And something else he has in mind, something very few Petoskey men undertake, is trapping for timber wolves, and the smaller fur-bearing and bounty animals with which that section of the state abounds. He may remain in the north woods until next spring and enjoy the early spring trapping as well.

Timber wolves and very large ones, too, are to be found in considerable numbers in northern Michigan. In fact one of the largest timber wolves ever captured was trapped four weeks ago, just a little way from the camping ground Mr. Gregg has picked out for himself. This wolf was captured by an old trapper of that region and weighed one hundred and eighty pounds. The wolf was taken alive and was carried and carried the distance of two miles by the old trapper. It was then shipped to Escanaba where it was placed in the public pound.

The readers of the News may think this a large statement about a large timber wolf, but the statement is borne out by Patrick Gregg, a well-known Petoskey lumberman, who has been visiting in Petoskey for the past week and who returned Monday to Escanaba near which city he has a large lumber camp.

Death of Pioneer

Daniel Isaman, one of the earliest pioneers of Charlevoix county, died at his farm home in South Arm township last Saturday. Mr Isaman had gone to the woods after some to cut a pole. Not returning at the usual time in the evening search was made and he was found dead. The cause of his death was probably heart failure.

Deceased located in South Arm township in the middle 60's.

The Peoples of Italy.

There is a marked difference in stature and temperament between the people of north Italy and those of south Italy. The Longobards, or Lombards, who about 568 took possession of northern Italy and permanently established themselves in the fertile valley watered by the Po and its affluents, were of Teutonic stock, their original home having been the region on the left bank of the Elbe, round about Magdeburg and Lunebourg, Germany, while the Italians south of Lombardy are of the old Latin stock. This fact explains the physical and other differences between the people from the north and the people from the south of Italy.

How to Test Tea's Purity.

A remarkably simple method of testing the purity of tea for coloring matter is to use an ordinary table knife and a sheet of white paper upon which a small quantity of the tea to be tested is placed. The tea is then rolled in with the knife. When the leaves have been rolled around to a number the paper is set clean with a brush made of common bristles and its surface examined with the naked eye or a microscope. If the tea is artifically colored little spots of a mineral or vegetable substance will appear in the fiber of the paper. These stains can be distinguished from spots that they cannot possibly be confined with any other stain that may be in the paper.—New York Press.

The Joy of Life.

That generous glow of spirit, known among artists as the joy of life; that bubbling positation, most conspicuous in youth, but happily sometimes extending its benefaction much well into the years of years, which one of heaven's favors is more to be desired? So rare and precious is the joy of life that it is to be welcomed when it appears and enjoyed eagerly while it lasts, and no monstrous crime is to be allowed to destroy its tender fragrance.—From "Monocrities," by Willard Hillman.

His Lead.

Hawkins—How's Hempeck getting on since his marriage? He used to wear the pants and we could see that she wore them. Higgs—Oh, he's still leading. I understand she is behind—holding the rutes.—Louisville Ky Hills.

Fashion Hint.

The Family Cough Medicine.

In every home there should be a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, ready for immediate use when any member of the family catches a cold or cough. Prompt use will stop the spread of sickness. S. A. Reid, of Mason, Mich. writes: "My whole family depends upon Dr. King's New Discovery as the best cough and cold medicine in the world. I've also found it cured me of pneumonia." Thousands of other families have been equally benefited and depend entirely upon Dr Kings New Discovery to cure their coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles every day. Price 50c. and $1.00 at F. G. Hixon & Co.

Boyne City Journal—Miss Alice Hayden, a pioneer resident of this vicinity, passed away at 2 o'clock Saturday morning at the home of her brother, Sydney Hayden, at Hayden Point. Death was ascribed to tuberculosis, of which she had been the victim for several years. Miss Hayden was 57 years old and lived at Hayden Point near Advance for more than 30 years.

W. P. Darrell, one of the oldest residents of Boyne Falls and Charlevoix county, passed away at 12.45 Tuesday noon at his home in Boyne Falls following an illness of more than three years. Before his illness he was a merchant and prosperity holder in his home town and one of the best known citizens in this part of the state. His wife died about two years ago but he is survived by four sons, W. Alva and John of Boyne Falls; Ed. of Fostoria, O., and another.

Boyne City Journal: Howsd with the weight of more than four-score years and 10, Joseph Cunningham and wife of Pleasant Valley were brought into this county home at East Jordan Wednesday by W. A. Dezoll, of Boyne Falls. They do not know the exact ages of each. They have means to pay for their keep at the county home. They have no relatives to care for them. Mr. Cunningham is 95 years old. Her husband is four years her junior. Mrs. Cunningham is quite helpless.

Boyne City Journal—Fire which endangered the entire plant, burned down the boiler house of the Boyne City Chemical Co. at noon Saturday. Manager Cameron estimates the loss at $3,000 to $4,000 fully covered by insurance. The fire originated in the roof of the boiler house which was a wooden and concrete structure, two stories in height. It contained five boilers, each of 300 horse power capacity. Mr. Cameron thinks the boilers proper will not be injured, but all accessories were destroyed.

Record Eagle—One of the most interesting exhibits of the pomological display at the fair is a box of Wealthy apples from the farm of L. O. Vaught four miles west of Traverse City and is a fine sample of the most approved method of packing apples. This week fifty barrels of these apples were sold by the Western Michigan Development Bureau to the Battle Creek sanitarium. The apples are being packed by the bureau's expert B. W. McIntosh and the Sunny-ripe label placed on each. Mr. Vaught received $4.50 per barrel f. o. b. Traverse City.

East Jordan Enterprise—Road Commissioner Hammond makes a special report of the county road work out from Charlevoix. As we noted some weeks ago he has received the $500 state award for the first mile of his road, the second mile was inspected and approved a few days ago and another this week, and with good weather the third mile will be completed inside of two weeks. He is now asking that another section of a half mile or a mile more of road be surveyed, laid out and improved this fall, which he thinks he can complete and still have money left.

Record Eagle—That the Grand Traverse Region fair held this year has been the largest and best ever held in Northern Michigan is evidenced by the enthusiastic remarks and comments received. While the exact statistics have not yet been figured out a safe estimate seems to be made by the department far in advance of those made last year. Thursday's crowd was the biggest which has ever attended any fair held in the north of Grand Rapids and was the greatest gathering of the sort in Traverse City. The attendance at the grandstand this year were almost double those of any previous year.

East Jordan Enterprise—Mrs. Peter Ackert, grandmother of Florence Barnett teacher in our public schools, passed away at the home of her son Wm. McEain Monday morning of heart trouble, after a lingering illness. The deceased had lived in this vicinity for a number of years and during her life has made a large circle of friends and acquaintances. She was 77 years of age at the time of her death and is survived by three children, William Ackert of Owosso, Mrs. Henry Frank Arkett and Mrs. William McEain of this city. She was a member of the W. C. T. U. and Methodist church and died during life lived a devout christian life.

Boyne City Times—Mrs. Vine C. Crane committed suicide by hanging in her home, the Grand Mass street home, about o'clock this forenoon. It appears that for a number of years Mrs. Crane has been ill and her relatives have close watch on her actions. This morning she seemed independent and it is said she did toward the river with intent to take her life but her husband brought her home. Later she was seen on the streets down town, after which she returned home and informed her daughter that she would retire to her room for a nap and her relatives was at work in the yard and went into the house a little later and found her hanging in her room. MAX LILLIE KILLED

AVIATOR DIES AT GALESBURG, ILL., WITH WIFE AS SIDE AS THOUSANDS SEE.

"SAFETY," WAS HIS MOTTO

Airman, Fearing Plane Needed Overhauling, Made Ascent to Test Condition of Machine and Meets With Fatal Accident.

Galesburg, Ill., Sept. 17.—Max Lillie, Chicago aviator, who by his motto of "safety first" had sought for years to demonstrate the fallacy carrying public liability of the aeroplane, was killed on Monday by a fall of 400 feet. He was crushed by his engine.

Mrs. Lillie saw the accident from a box in the grand stand and was one of the first to reach her dying husband. She fainted as he expired. He lived three minutes after his fall.

Lillie, who was regarded as one of the most careful aviators in the business, met his death because of a defective machine. He knew certain parts of his Nieuport aeroplane were in need of repair and when killed was making an experimental flight to see if the machine could stand the strain of the exhibition he had contracted to make at the fair.

The stands were packed and the grounds filled when the fatal accident happened. Thousands saw him die. The aeroplane was still above the ground when it took the air. He rose to a height of 400 feet, his machine seeming to be in perfect order.

He circled the stands, made a sortie or two out of the air (exhibiting stability), and apparently convinced that his fortune was in his hands he then made a sudden nose-to-the-landing plane. The spot was exactly chosen for spectacular and evidently safe flying. Injury to some one he turned the plane's nose upward again and made a landing that was not safeled.

Upon about 200 feet shift he executed a sharp turn. The wing of the flying machine collapsed. The crowd hesitated for all instants in the air and shot to earth. The crackling of the framework and the thud of the prostrate aviator as it somersaulted to the ground were plainly heard in the stands 200 feet away.

"My God, he is dead!" He is dead!" Two words of the unfortunate flyer's wife broke the hush which fell over the assembly at the expense of the grand stand.

The aviator was carried, a broken mass, from the demolished aeroplane. His wife and Frank L. Ahern, Lillie's manager, were at the dying man's side as he passed away. Mrs. Lillie is now at Galesburg, Ill., and Ahern is in Chicago.

"Safety first" was the motto of Max Lillie, the Chicago aviator who was killed at Galesburg. More than two years ago he came to Chicago to fly at the "flying games." Lillie first came into prominence as an aviator in the tournament of the Aero Club of Illinois in September, 1911. Later at the spring meet in 1912 at Chevre field attracted attention by carrying passengers in his machine. He was estimated that 100 persons took with him.

MULHALL FLAYED AS TRAITOR

Emery, N. A. M. Counsel Calls Lobbyist a Self-Confessed Perjurer and Ingrate.

Washington, Sept. 16.—The "Mulhall days investigation of the house of representatives reached its climax on Monday in the bitter denunciation of Mulhall with which James A. Emery, attorney for the National Association of Manufacturers and the National Council of Industrial Defense, wound up the case against the former employe of these organizations whose "confessions" caused the inquiry.

"In the evidence which Mulhall has lifted it produced," declared Attorney Emery, "he assumes himself a traitor, an ingrate and a perjurer, assailing with impunity the hand of those by whom he professes gratitude equally with those who are the evidence of his malicious and long planned revenge.

"Throwing his employers, he deceived the press, chaired the public with wicked accusations and with $10,000 worth of green goods to that astute purchaser, the New York World.

"Mr. Flower's attorneys, at the close the case against Mulhall, although Attorney James Kirby Smith, now chairman of Representative John T. McDermott of Chicago, is to present a written brief better.

"The committee, headed by Chairman Fitts of Pennsylvania, has shown the yet determined any feature of the case, although I expect to bring in a report before October 1 if possible.

SULZER DEALS TOLD

BROKER TELLS STOCK TRADE MADE BY GOVERNOR.

Had No Trading With Wife—Testifies Before Managers Named by N. Y. Assembly.

New York, Sept. 15.—The transactions in Wall street made by Governor Sulzer from June 24, 1910, till they ceased—at least, as far as one firm of brokers was concerned—in July of that year were described under oath on Friday by Melville D. Fuller, who said he was Sulzer's broker, in a hearing held by the blue impeachment managers appointed by the assembly.

Mr. Fuller, who before the Frawley investigating committee refused to testify concerning certain matters, on Friday answered all questions. He testified that Sulzer had paid into the firm in person within a month and a day after the last election and that he (Fuller) had had no dealings with Mrs. Sulzer.

According to Fuller's testimony, Sulzer, while a representative, opened an account with his firm, Hirsch & Fuller, June 27, 1910. In September Sulzer borrowed $3,000 from the firm, for which he collateral 400 shares of "Big Four" railroad stock. In November of the same year Sulzer, acting for some American financier stock to the extent of $6,000 for the latter.

"Big Four declined from 50 to 30 within a year," Mr. Fuller testified. "Mr. Sulzer bought some more of the stock and added Southern Pacific to his holdings."

On November 12, 1912, a few days after the election, Sulzer walked into Fuller continued. Sulzer walked into the office of Harris & Fuller with ten $1,000 bills in his hand.

These he paid on his account, his indebtedness being to other transactions, leaving just $2,000 to $60,512. On December 3, Mr. Fuller said, Governor-elect Sulzer paid in person $6,000 more in cash on his account.

Under normal conditions the bridge stood about nine feet from the water, the tide rose eleven feet two hours before wrecking the bridge. The schooner seen in the distance, was left on the bridge when the water began to recede.

HONOR GAYNOR'S BODY

LIES IN STATE AT LIVERPOOL—REMAINS EN ROUTE HOME

New York's Former Mayor Dies at Sea—Succumbs on Deck of Steamer Baltic.

Liverpool, Sept. 15.—The body of William Gaynor lay in state Friday night in the foot of the grand staircase of the town hall of Liverpool.

It was an unprecedented honor that Liverpool paid the dead executive of the American metropolis, for never before had anyone lain in state in the historic edifice. Covered with the stars and stripes and with the little Union Jack draped over its foot, the casket rested on a catafalque brought here from Westminster Abbey, London, and on which has rested the bodies of many of England's most famous men. It was last used at the funeral of Field Marshal Lord Wolseley in St Paul's cathedral last March.

Six policemen, who were relieved at intervals, stood at attention around the casket all night and continued this duty until the body was removed from the town hall Saturday for the sad homeward voyage on the Cunard line steamer Lusitania, on which a special mortuary chapel has been prepared. Eight uniformed quartermasters will form the guard of honor during the voyage.

New York, Sept. 13.—News of the death of Mayor William J. Gaynor of New York, which occurred on the steamer Baltic on Wednesday was widely mentioned in the town of Rufus. The dispatch follows:

My father, Mayor Gaynor, died on the Baltic at seven minutes to one o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

"Death was due to heart trouble. He was sitting in a deck chair when the end came."

PRIEST ADMITS DEED

PASTOR CONFESSES TO NEW YORK POLICE THAT HE SLEW GIRL.

BODY CUT INTO NINE PIECES

Minister Asserts He Threw Remains into River—Had Marriage Ceremony Performed—Murder Committed While Victim Was Asleep.

New York, Sept. 16.—With the report Sunday of Rev. Hans Schmidt of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, charged with the murder of Anna Aumuller, a servant, the mystery surrounding the finding of the dismembered body of a girl in the Hudson river was solved. Schmidt, according to the police, has confessed. He attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat.

"I killed her because I loved her so much," he said. "She was so beautiful, so good. I could not let her live without me. I had made up my mind that she and I could live together. I was a priest and must remain with my church. I could not let her go away from me.

Sobbing, out this confession of his crime, the priest was locked up in a cell in the Tombs prison. Instead of collapsing, as might have been expected, he calmly went to sleep.

The solution of this, the most baffling mystery which for years was brought about by tracing the pillowslip in which the upper section of the dismembered torso had been wrapped.

At police headquarters Schmidt was indicted on a severe grilling by Inspector Faurot. The inspector, when this was over, said:

"Schmidt has admitted to us that he rented the flat and took the girl there. He said he had known the girl for more than two years and was infatuated with her. At midnight on August 31 he said, he killed her himself in the flat with his own key. He said she was asleep in bed, and he crept over to her side. He had a large butcher knife in his hand. He cut her throat while she was in the act of nursing. He believed he had killed her and carried her into the bathroom.

The autopsy had shown that the girl was dismembered while still alive, and the absence of blood in her veins and other proofs led the police to believe that the girl had cut her to pieces had been a deliberate act on the part of the disposing of the body there would be no trail to follow.

He said he went to a neighboring store and bought a quantity of brown wrapping paper and then wrapped up each part separately.

"The next day—September 1—Schmidt said he took part of the body out of the flat. He hoarded an Eighth Avenue car, rode down to Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, took a crosstown car to the Port Lee ferry. Then he boarded a Hudson river train at Fifty-ninth street and threw the bundle into the river. He did this on three times until he had disposed of the last vestige of the body."

The police searched the rooms of Father Schmidt in the parish house and found a marriage license issued to "Anna Aumuller and Hans Schmidt." The address given was a number in East One Hundred and Fifty-ninth street and the police declare that it is fictitious. The license was issued on February 26, 1913.

BOMB SENT GEN. OTIS

LOS ANGELES TIMES PUBLISHER GETS INFERNAL MACHINE THROUGH MAIL.

SAVED BY HIS JAP SERVANT

Police Officers Suspect Mexican Plot Because of Papers's Attitude Towards Previsional President.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 15.—For the second time within three years a bomb on Tuesday jeopardized the life of Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, owner of the Los Angeles Times, which was destroyed by dynamite in October, 1910.

That he escaped injury probably was due to the watchful eye of his Japanese servant, who received from the postman an infernal machine mailed in this city and called his employer's attention to it.

The first infernal machine directed at the life of General Otis was found at his residence a few hours after the newspaper plant had been destroyed through the efforts of the McNamara conspirators.

He lived although on his life was attributed by the general to agencies friendly to those whose conspiracy revealed by the destruction of his newspaper plant and the killing of employes, which he charged to be part of the police and postal authorities believe somebody friendly to Mexico prompted the theory that the Mexican question had a part in it, pointing after he had received a threatening letter against a ranch company in which General Otis is a heavily interested.

In lower California two years ago industrial workers of the World organized a revolt against the Mexican rule in an effort to establish a republic independent of Mexico. Editorially where General Otis was more pronounced.

A few weeks ago there was an outbreak caused according to report to the Mexicans and with the little Union Jack draped over its foot, the casket rested on a catafalque brought here from Westminster Abbey, London, and on which has rested the bodies of many of England's most famous men. It was last used at the funeral of Field Marshal Lord Wolseley in St Paul's cathedral last March.

Women Avoid Operations

When a woman suffering from some form of feminine disorder is told that an operation is necessary, it of course frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital operating table and the surgeon's knife strikes terror to her heart, and no wonder. It is quite true that some of these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but thousands of women have avoided the necessity of an operation by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This fact is attested by the grateful letters they write to us after their health has been restored.

These Two Women Prove Our Claim.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I was in bed with a terrible female trouble. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely walk across a room. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired morning that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pain, slept well, ate had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. Harry Gordon, Box 7, Cary, Me.

Charlotte, N. C.—"I was in bad health for two years, with pains in both sides and was very nervous. If I even lifted a chair it would cause a hemorrhage. I had a growth which the doctor said was a tumor and I was advised to have it taken out by an operation. I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am glad to say that I am now enjoying fine health and am the mother of a healthy baby girl. You can use this letter if you think it will do any good."—Mrs. Rosa Sims, 16 Woman St., Charlotte, N. C.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman submit to a surgical operation without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with womanly ailments can fairly blame us if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored womanly health to so many women.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Couldn't Change Her Looks.

"There, I think I have made myself plain, have I not?" she said as she finished her tirade.

"Decidedly so," he said as he leaned over the girl for more than two years and was infatuated with her. At midnight on August 31 he said, he killed her himself in the flat with his own key. He said she was asleep in bed, and he crept over to her side. He had a large butcher knife in his hand. He cut her throat while she was in the act of nursing. He believed he had killed her and carried her into the bathroom.

The autopsy had shown that the girl was dismembered while still alive, and the absence of blood in her veins and other proofs led the police to believe that the girl had cut her to pieces had been a deliberate act on the part of the disposing of the body there would be no trail to follow.

He said he went to a neighboring store and bought a quantity of brown wrapping paper and then wrapped up each part separately.

"The next day—September 1—Schmidt said he took part of the body out of the flat. He hoarded an Eighth Avenue car, rode down to Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, took a crosstown car to the Port Lee ferry. Then he boarded a Hudson river train at Fifty-ninth street and threw the bundle into the river. He did this on three times until he had disposed of the last vestige of the body."

The police searched the rooms of Father Schmidt in the parish house and found a marriage license issued to "Anna Aumuller and Hans Schmidt." The address given was a number in East One Hundred and Fifty-ninth street and the police declare that it is fictitious. The license was issued on February 26, 1913.

MENOMINEE MAY GET CONVENTION

MICHIGAN LIBRARIANS CLOSE MEETING IN MUSKEGON WITH ELECTION.

U. OF M. MAN NEW PRESIDENT

Theodore W. Koch is Chosen Head of the State Association at Final Session of Gathering.

Lansing.—The State Association of Librarians held its final business meeting in Muskegon and selected offices for the year. The convention closed with an address by Mrs. Gertrude Thorne-Thomsen of the Chicago board of education. The following officers were elected: President, Theodore W. Koch, University of Michigan librarian and member of executive committee of the American library association; vice-president, Mrs. F. B. Gilbreth, librarian of Calumet & Hecla library; secretary, Miss Anna A. Pollard, second assistant librarian, Ann Arbor; treasurer, Frank Rugg, treasurer, Miss Jessie Chase, assistant librarian, Detroit. The delegate to the American library association is Miss G. M. Hosie, librarian of the state normal college, Ypsilanti.

The "live" topic of the day was taken up along various lines. The topics included "Boys and Girls." In the discussions were as follows: "Some Good Books to Know on Music," Miss Hale Harrison; "Some normal college general library, Ypsilanti; "Some Lessons Gained in an Amateur Garden," Miss Laura E. Thompson, public library, Ann Arbor; "Some Lessons on the Rhine," Mrs. Archibald Hadden, pastor Muskegon. That Government Should Aid Workers Reading on Suffrage," Miss Rosalind Richards, Detroit; "Fiction Lover," Miss Emma Rowe, Education and Social Science Department, Detroit; "Percy Mackaye's Civic Theater," Miss M. L. Converse, Central State Normal, Mount Pleasant; "Best Books on Care of Babies," Mrs. Samuel H. Buck, Grand Rapids; "Some Best Books on Vocational Guidance Work," Miss Jean Clinnin, public school library, Battle Creek; "Some New Plays," Miss Agnes Savage, public library, Detroit, and a "Few Tools for the Story Teller," Miss Agnes H. Jewett, Adrian.

A feature of the meeting was the discussion of the Michigan Democratic Editor's Point of View" was the subject discussed by Arthur Brace of the Detroit News, Frederick Stace of the Grand Rapids Press, Wells John S Chatinger of the Jackson Citizen Patriot and Fred W. Fairbanks's Point of View" An article by Mary Talbot Sherman, by Mrs. Thomsen of the Chicago school of education, concluded the afternoon meeting.

The movement for a joint meeting of the Wisconsin library association and the delegates of that society meeting in Marinette, and the Michigan association convening in Menominee, was approved by delegates.

As a result it is practically settled that the next meeting of the state association will be held in Menominee, provided arrangements can be made with the Wisconsin organization to join in Marinette. The division across the river from the Michigan town. The final decision, however, rests with the executive board which will probably meet sometime in November.

112 Real Estate Firms Born.

Figures compiled by Secretary of State Martindale show that there has been a large year of real estate business in Michigan.

Since January 1 the records of the state department show that 112 real estate companies, representing a capital stock of $2,000,000, have filed articles of incorporation.

The total number of real estate companies have been organized, with a total capital stock of $2,000,000.

The total number of corporations organized for profit that have been admitted so far this year is 1,101. These companies represent an authorized capital stock of $336,000,000. Ninety foreign corporations have also been admitted to do business in Michigan.

The foreign companies represent a capitalization of $110,000,000. The records of the department show that 101 companies have increased their capital to the extent of $28,877,632.

Slate Company's capital added to the total tonnage a tonage known as prospective ore. Then divided the tonnage by average shipments for five years and the result is reported as the prospective life of the mine.

U. of M. to Have Health Service.

The university health service to be established by the faculty of Michigan as the opening of college this fall will put Michigan on a par with other universities on board the health service. Under the direction of Dr. C. B. Stouffer, for those students who need medical treatment, and Dr. Elsie Frait, formerly of Denver, Colo., who will care for the women students of the university.

Convention Ends in Detroit.

The convention of the Michigan Retail Hardware association came to a close at Detroit with the election of Leo Grauer of Ann Arbor as president. Edward Blocker of Detroit, secretary, William Kringler of Wayne, treasurer, Fred Murray of Charlotte; A. J. Feldman of Detroit, Joseph Bennett of Bay City, and H. J. Dettman of Mount Pleasant, vice-presidents. John Van Ess of Detroit, Fred Food of Flint, and O. D. Alton, Detroit, directors.

Paroochial Schools Get No Free Books.

Attorney General Fellows holds, in an opinion rendered to R. W. Cooper, clerk of the Lansing board of education, that the city has no legal authority to furnish free text books to the parochial schools of this city. "Parochial or denominational schools, says Fellows, "do not constitute a part of the primary school system of the state; their course of study is in no way influenced or prescribed by the law governing the public schools of the state; they are not entitled to participate in the benefits of the primary or public school fund of the state and are not subject to the general supervision of the department of public instruction or any of its branches or subdivisions, and therefore are not public schools within the meaning of the statute.

Ferris Makes Appointments.

Governor Ferris has made the first appointments under the law providing for probation officers in the various judicial circuits.

On the recommendation of Judge Clement Smith of the Fifth circuit, Ionia county, Ernest H. Hunter of Hastings was named as probation officer for Barry county and James H. Howard of Charlotte for Eaton county. Judge Victor P. Lindell of the twenty-third circuit recommended the following appointments, which were confirmed: Alfred Wilkinson of Port Huron of Mt. Pleasant, as chief probation officer of the circuit; Frank Murphy of Harrison, assistant probation officer for Clare county, and James Jones of Gladwin as assistant probation officer for Midland county.

Expert to Help Farm Building.

Miss Lucile Kellogg of Michigan has taken up a new line of work in farm construction.

The plans which she have slowly been maturing along this line came to a head, and it is stated that the agent of the department of agriculture of the Michigan Agricultural college has been appointed to take up the work in connection with the college department of farm mechanics.

Miss Kellogg will be to travel all over the state advising and helping farmers with the plans of farm construction and solving their mechanical troubles. This will be a new service to the individual farmers.

It has long been felt by the most progressive agricultural experts that the farmers of the state were working at a great loss when it came to rural construction or mechanical lines. Farm buildings are poorly planned, it is said, because the average farmer or rural carpenter has no education along these lines.

Dr. Rhea Mumford, state leader of the county improvement association, has now completed a complete survey of the state's resources in the line of all the available lines source in the state. It recently has been found that at least half the farm soils of the state are so acid that they fail to produce to their capacity, and need large applications of lime to correct this trouble.

This has caused such a demand for lime among the farmers all over the state that Dr. Mumford has deemed it his duty to make a survey of the information to the subject, together with the freight rates from all shipping points.

Cute Mine Valuation.

The state department of the state tax commission State Geologist H. C. Allen has just completed a survey of a greater part of the time since the first of the year appraising the iron mines.

Members of the commission to whom has been submitted the report of that it was the most complete ever made.

In 1911 the legislature appropriated $2,000 to employ an expert and had the work of appraising properties begun, but this appraisal was hurriedly made and is said to have been misleading in accuracy in many instances. At any rate the figures were never accepted by the commission.

Geologist Allen's report deals solely with the properties, and a "comparison of the 1911 appraisal with the present figures shows a decrease in the valuation of the iron mines of $2,500,000. Two years ago the iron mines were appraised at $7,587,000, while Allen has placed a valuation on them of $5,087,000.

The figures for iron, Dickinson and Gogebic counties have been published, but the assessment of the Marquette county mines is only now being made. The report of Allen will be some increase when the public review is held the first Monday in October.

In making his appraisal, which resulted in a decrease in valuations, the tax commission obtained from the mine owners a sworn statement showing the cost and receipts of each property for five years prior to January 1, 1913. The mines, has been figured from this information, the commission has all cases figured royalties as profits.

Slate Company's capital added to the total tonnage a tonage known as prospective ore. Then divided the tonnage by average shipments for five years and the result is reported as the prospective life of the mine.

Overcharge Hunters 28 Cents.

Contrary to an opinion handed out by Attorney General Fellows, the county clerk's office of Ingham county has been collecting extra 25 cents on every hunter's license. It is stated that the officials have misinterpreted the game laws of the state, and have been charging an extra fee for services the applicant. The law calls for a fee of one dollar when a resident of the state continues to hunt in another.

State Corporations.

Crouse & Parshall Dairy Products company, Livingston county, $1,000; Darling Milling company, Fremont, $10,000; Barclay Tire & Repair company, Detroit, $2,000, incorporated to supply tires—principal stockholders, F. C. Farr and E. B. Taylor; Lundie Boat building company, Ludington, $25,000; Lundie Boat building company, Ludington, $10,000, incorporated to manufacture automobile accessories—principal stockholders, H. C. Goodrich and E. O. Eck; Michigan Fire Proofing company, Detroit, $10,000.

THEY PUZZLE GREAT MINDS.

Simple Words Too Profound For Human Understanding.

Q—Can there be two kinds of infinities or infinite spaces?

A—The writer of this question must decide. You cannot have an infinite twenty-five trillion miles. Write a row of units 11111— to the sun and on each unit represent one mile; then the distance represented by a line of 25 twenty-five trillion miles long, and margins all human powers of imagination; for write a row of zeroes—twenty-five trillion miles long; then the number of miles represented would be twice as great. Then write a row of 00000— equally long, and the distance expressed would be nine times as great as that represented by the 1's.

But no human can think of the distance expressed by the 1's. Let the first row of figures extend twenty-five trillion or fifty or a thousand trillion miles to the west; then a row could be extended toward the west. Many millions of years would be required to write the long rows. Suppose that you write its inch ways during a thousand million years each. Then the distance in miles would be thinner than a spider's thread when compared to an infinite distance.

There are possibly fifty persons now living able to think one new thought. They are the mighty of the earth, and are all transcendent mathematicians. Not one of these even tries to begin to think of infinity or eternity. They all know better. Each, the superlative strive to think of the two words, as my questioner must answer his own question, for I cannot even hypothecate a gillnote, lasting a thousandth part of one second, of the meaning of one of the following list of words: Mind, space, time, duration, infinity, eternity, beginning, end, space and electrons—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

FOUR SOULS EACH.

Curious Beliefs of the Savages of West Africa

West African religion is particularly generous to the human beings, to each of whom it allots several souls, four being the usual number. Only one is immortal, however. The others, though troublesome enough during the owner's life, cease to be at the same time as the body. They are the shadow soul, the dream soul and the bush soul.

One soul seems more than many of us can manage, but the poor African has a bad time between the four of them. He never knows when some enemy may plunge a knife into his shadow, thus causing him to sicken and die, or when his bush soul, which takes the form of an animal, may rush into danger and get hurt, and, as for his dream soul, that is particularly troublesome, as it wanders from his body during sleep and runs the risk of being caught by which traps. When this happens its place is often taken by a nasty stranger soul, called a "alien," which seems to have no other object but to cause misfortune and sickness to the being who forms its temporary habitation.

Most of the tribes have the idea of an underworld after death, neither heaven nor hell, but much like the earthly world, only cleaner. Among the Tschwi tribes this idea is well defined. Their shades world has a name—srahmandaja—and they even know the way to the entrance, which is across the Volta river. This place has its markets, its town and its interests, but everything is felt in a more lifeless way.

If the Japanese should ever succeed in getting China's 400,000,000 inhabitants thoroughly aroused they would have their little hews a mighty fall.

AN OLD INDIAN LEGEND.

The Incidents That Led Up to the Naming of Poughkeepsie.

During the days when the Indians still held sway on the banks of the Hudson there was a fierce battle between the Delaware and the Pequot tribes. The former won, and among their captives was a handsome young Pequot brave. He was condemned to death if he would accept allegiance to the Delawares and be branded with their tribal mark—the turtle. He refused, and preparations were then made to kill him. In the ceremony were use the heart of dried ash a young Indian girl broke into the circle and begged for his life. She had at one time been a Pequot, but had been captured by the Delawares, and vowed to join their tribe. Her appeals were so touching that the warriors were debating the matter when the party was attacked by still another enemy, the Huron Indians. In the confusion the girl and her lover's bonds, but the two found themselves in the midst of a fierce battle and evidently became separated. The young warrior escaped, but the girl was captured by a Huron chief.

Determined to rescue her at any cost, the young lover disguised himself as a medicine man and entered the camp of the Hurons. By some potent, but unknown means he contrived to persuade the chief that the girl was kept prisoner, and late at night she managed to escape in the darkness. Their flight was soon discovered and pursuit began, but the young couple reached the river far enough in advance of their pursuers to launch a canoe and push off from shore. They were still followed, but the warrior was young and strong, and succeeded in getting his little craft safely into a cove at the junction of the great river and a little stream or creek. It happened that the Hudson at this point is narrow, where they lid, and have formed a friendly tribe.

Hopkins, that the river had been a "safe harbor" for the girl and her lover, and that ever after it was so designated in the Pequot tongue, the Indian name meant being "Apuhkeepsie." Today after having filtered through the Dutch and English tongues, it is known as Poughkeepsie.—Lodge Home Journal.

CURIOUS HERMIT CRABS.

They Keep Housemaids, and Also Use Sponges for Protection.

It has been said that crabs are as artful as "a barrow load of monkeys," and no one who has read Professor Edward Step's "Messmates: A Book of Strange Companionships in Nature," will deny that there is considerable truth in the remark. Amazing indeed are some of the revelations which Professor makes regarding crabs.

For instance, for instance, how the common hermit crab actually keeps a housemaid to clean out his house. When he first starts life the particular shell he selects is which he can live or some poor fish. He usually chooses a large whelk shell and introduces a large sea-anemone, belonging to what is known as the "mertle" family and which grows to a length of six or eight inches, to keep the interest of the shell clean. The crab feeds herself on sea creatures that wander carelessly into the shell and throws the indigestible parts of them about the floor. The anemone worm promptly consumes these remains and keeps the shell as clean as a new pin.

The artfulness of this crab, too, is strikingly illustrated by the ingenious manner in which he protects himself against the large fish which look upon him as an excellent article of food. Sometimes he induces a sponge to grow on his shell, sponge is a living creature give out a strong odor, which is distinctly unpleasant to fish, and even a dogfish will not attack a crab protected in this manner.

Explained.

There is on the south side of Chicago an amusement park, named, from the French words "free from care," Sans Souci park.

Two young men passed this park on a street car recently. One of them evidently was a stranger in the city and has related to a friend his notion.

Said the stranger: "What does Sans Souci mean?"

His friend readily replied, "It's from the Spanish and means 'I should worry'"—Bloomsbury.

A Gentle and Effective Laxative

A mild gentle and effective laxative is what people demand when suffering from constipation. Thousands swear by Dr. King's New Life Pills. TWISTING THE LANGUAGE.

English Has Received Some Severe Jolts in the Philippines.

Baby talk is a highly developed language compared to the jargon American homewreckers talk to their Filipino boss boy. It is usually conveyed by meaning is by accompanied by expressive gestures. At best, however, the performance of the command speaks well for native installes.

Spanish construction of English words is another twist that our pedagogues gave to the Philippines. "Nothing" is the island is the most common word expressed for "I haven't any." Instead of "no can do" means "I can't" and "no want" means "I don't want it." Not only between American and Filipino, but among Americans there arise, this twisted construction has largely supplanted the legitimate one.

With the soldiers anything that belonged peculiarly to the Philippines was described as "bamboo." Now all colonists it's the term. The "bamboo fleet" is the one assigned to Philippine waters, and the "bamboo government" is the Philippine civil government in distinction from the United States military.

Among other "soldierisms" if I may be permitted this contribution to the new language were certain pure Malay words. The lot is confined to groeling, and are there are dozens of Tagalog and Moro expressions in vogue among the Americans. For example, there are the Tagalog words "bagulo" meaning "storm," "cardaso" meaning a animal, "piaky" meaning "price," and "tao," meaning "man." Moro terms in common use are "amok," meaning "wild," "dato," meaning "chief," "krik," meaning "wavy-edged knife, and "sarong," meaning a garment.—Review of Reviews.

BOATS GROW ON TREES.

West Indian Boys Can Get All of Them They Want

When a West Indian boy wants a toy boat all he has to do is to visit a cocoanut tree. These trees bear great bunches of nuts among their drooping green leaves, and when the husk first sprouts out in the form of a big bud it is inclosed within a hard, tough, woody cover shaped like two or three feet long, eight or ten inches in diameter and tapering to a point at one end and to a slender stem at the other. In fact it looks very much like a boat wooden cigar.

As the buds and flowers develop the sheath splits open, and the flower bunch continues to grow out beyond it until the nuts begins to ripen. By this time the sheaths have become dry and hard and break off and drop to the ground of their own record.

It is the sheaths or bud coverings that the West Indian boys use for toy boats, and, while the dry and faded ones will answer, better boats are made from the more flexible and juicy green sheaths still clinging to the flower stem.

The sheaths as gathered from the tree is almost in the shape of a boat, and all that is necessary to transform it to a very seaworthy and fast sailing toy consists in a pin to keep the interest of the sheath clean. The crab feeds herself on sea creatures that wander carelessly into the shell and throws the indigestible parts of them about the floor. The anemone worm promptly consumes these remains and keeps the shell as clean as a new pin.

No Reason to Work.

A large, scantily clothed man went shuffling down the road whistling like a lark. His clothes were ragged, and his shoes were out at the toes and heels, and he appeared to be in the depths of poverty for all his misfit.

As on bounds a prosperous looking house a man stepped from the doorway and hailed him.

"Hey, Jim! I got a job for you. Do you want to make a quarter?"

"Yes," said the ragged one, "I done got a quarter."—Washington Star.

FRIENDSHIP.

Friendship is a vase which when it is flawed by heat or violence or accident may as well be broken at once. It never can be trusted after. The more graceful and ornamental it was the more clearly do we discern the hopelessness of restoring it to its former state. Coarse stones, if they are fractured, may be cemented again; precious stones, never.—Lender.

"Executioner to Her Majesty."

The office of executioner, a lucrative craft, the famous public executioner, who during his long term of office carried out the extreme penalty of the law on many notorious murderers, may be seen in Mme Tussaud's exhibition. Some time ago he had to be sent to Calcraft's shop. It is framed and has ridiculously painted upon it in large block letters the following self-laudatory inscription: "J. Calcraft, Boot and Shoemaker Executioner to her Majesty." Surmounting the frame is the royal coat of arms. John Calcraft, who was born in 1800 and died in 1879, was appointed from 1828 until 1871.—London Standard.

Loss of Musical Memory.

One of the most notable cases of sudden loss of musical memory related is that of Emile Prudent. One day in a concert while playing his own concerto with orchestra he lost all consciousness of the connection between the notes, and from that time he had music only as confused sounds. Yet then from his own playing not from that of the orchestra could he guess a distinct tune and found that he had completely lost the ability to read the notes. From this attack, however, he soon recovered. The greater symptoms disappeared the next day, but from that time he could play only from notes.

A Perpetual Error.

A printer's error in perpetuity! How interesting is a mistake "going," meaning "price," and "tao," meaning "man," terms in common use are "amok," meaning "wild," "dato," meaning "chief," "krik," meaning "wavy-edged knife, and "sarong," meaning a garment.—Review of Reviews.

Cool Your Skin

Hot weather brings skin troubles. Perspiration irritates. Shaving eczema is brought to intensity.

Rash, distressing pimples, ivy poison, bites, itches, prickly heat, are all common during the warm weather. Often, too, serious skin troubles begin this way.

The thing to do is to cool the skin and for this there is nothing so good as D. D. D. Prescription.

A 25 cent trial bottle will show you what it can do. We have made friends of more than one family by recommending this to D. D. Prescription. It is a wonderful thing to have in the house ready for use when you need it. We do not guarantee to cure a disease, but we do guarantee to give satisfaction.

Worms and Tunnels.

Britnel, the famous engineer, learnt to have obtained the idea for one method of tunneling from the worm. Starting from a point, a soft worm slightly thrusts its harness and a bulge of rings, and then drags its tail into any exposed timber. The bulge as it bores into the wood increases to a diameter of rings, and then the worm drags the needed inspiration. Brunel has been to work boring the tunnel forward as the boring proceeded. The tunnel was lined with a tube of iron as the tube of the tech. worm secretes. On the film all subsequent subsequent remedies have been made.

Nature's Sensitive.

Neither the stone nor heights of the maple, elm or oak taper except at the point where they fall. Whether it is the sun's force forms a branch and a branch sends off a smaller branch, but no two twigs ever grow in the same direction and the smallest stem ever grows in the most symmetrical where it carve with a portion of its substance to another of equal size, spaces or crises, and are alike in this respect and, if all the branches, branches, stems, twigs, and leaves were completely and united without loss of space they would form a cone or pyramid. The stem is elongated slumber as the trunk from which they spring. This is one of nature's imperative laws.

SYNOPSIS.

Eli Pennoyer, the Bonanza king, and his daughter Rose, visit Paris. There they meet Cornelius Ryan's ball at Mme. Fromboise's Demimonde. Their coming is a sensation. Dominick, Ryan's son, leaves his wife, and is ostracized by his father. Rose, who has fallen in love with Dominick, is a sympathetic listener to his story. Dominick's father, learning of his son's infatuation, sends for Rose and tells her the story of his son's marriage. Rose, in a passion of pity, promises to help Dominick. Eli Pennoyer, who has been in Paris, leaves suddenly for home, taking Rose with him. Dominick follows them to New York. Rose's father, who has been in Europe, returns home. Dominick's father, who has been in Europe, returns home. Dominick's father, who has been in Europe, returns home. Dominick

A Burning Question

A matter that interests Charlevoix as vitally as any other is that of our inadequate railroad facilities, with reference, especially, to the movement of freight.

There is not a business man in Charlevoix who is not handicapped by the execrable freight service and the shipment of fruit and potatoes is so seriously delayed that buyers are beginning to shun the town.

The Rock Product Co. have been compelled to cancel contracts because of inability to get cars or move its product. Last Tuesday the works were compelled to shut down for want of switch service. It is positively unsafe to ship live stock for fear of their dying on the road. It is indeed a burning question.

A Bilingual Parliament.

The Council for Canada is one of the few parliaments in the world where speeches in two languages are allowed. This is due to the large French population in Canada. Naturally this tends to secure able men as novel to one accustomed to British politics. For instance, when the Canadian house of commons is sitting in committee should a French Canadian begin to address the house in French the English chairman retires from his seat and allows a French chairman to take his place. In the same manner the official English reporters cease work and a staff of French shorthand writers begin.

man had found a wire pants stretcher and, hooking one end over a nail, put her head in the other end and kneaded down until strangulation ended her life. Medical attention was procured at once but to no avail, so the coroner was called, who, after taking the testimony of the husband and daughter, pronounced the cause of death as above stated without summoning a jury. Deceased was born in 1851 and was married to Mr. Crane when she was 20 years old, they come to Boyne City 33 years ago. There are two children, Fred and Hattie, wife of the husband, survive.

There is an epidemic of typhoid fever at the Traverse City State Hospital and the state health department has sent Dr. Stevenson of Grand Rapids to trace out the cause of the decline. He is at present conducting his investigations, but has not found out the source of the trouble. It has so far been ascertained that the water supply is pure and the food is all right, so search is being made in other directions. So far there have been seven cases in all reported, all of those affected having come down with the decease at the same time and no new cases are reported. The sudden ness of the outbreak surprised the hospital authorities and they are determined to find out where the disease originated.

Boyne City Times—People throughout the city were shocked this forenoon by the announcement that Ransom N. Wolever, aged 55 dropped dead at his home, 811 East Main street, early this morning. Particulars available are incomplete because of the natural excitement in the home as a result of the sudden bereavement, but it is known that Mr. Wolever, who had been employed in the cooperage plant for a number of years, got up this morning feeling better than usual, even, and sat about the kitchen joking with his wife as she was preparing the morning meal. He got up and started to enter another room and while in the doorway he was stricken and fell without a moaner, never regaining consciousness, hence it is supposed that he was dead as he fell.

Boyne City Journal: An order will probably soon be place by the Boyne City, Gaylord & Alpena railroad, for two gasoline-electric coaches. Plans and specifications for the new equipment have been prepared by the General Electric Co., of Schenectady, New York, and the picture of one of the coaches was shown in the Journal office by Superintendent L. H. White. The new gasoline-electric coaches will be all steel; the only piece of wood will be the name plate. Each car will be equipped with a 200 horse power gasoline engine and dynamo, which will generate electricity for the operation of the car. The coach will accommodate 100 passengers, having a compartment for smokers, toilets, and a 1-foot baggage room. Each car will have sufficient power to haul a trailer or a Pullman sleeper. The estimated cost of each car is from $25,000 to $30,000.

On Saturday night while crossing the G. R. & I. railroad near Westwood between Mancelona and Kalkaska an automobile containing Robert Eastman, Paul Stirling, Mrs. Matilda Benedict and Mrs. Harry Wilson was struck by the fast train south, with fatal results. Mr. Eastman who was well known in this region was superintendent of the Stearns Lumber Co. in their business at Kalkaska, aged 39, was so badly injured that he never regained consciousness and died a few hours later. Mrs. Benedict, aged 50, whose home was in Scottville, is believed to be fatally injured, while the other two, Mrs. Wilson of Custer township, and Paul Stirling, the latter the chauffeur, were very seriously injured. Mrs. Benedict was a sister of Mrs. Eastman and the party were returning from Mancelona where they had been to see a brother who was seriously ill. It was storming at the time and the auto had the top and side curtains up, and the noise of the approaching train which was not observed until the pilot of the locomotive struck them. The train was making better than fifty miles per hour and the machine was tossed over fifty feet in the air by the impact.

A law enacted at the last session of the legislature, which went into effect August 15, requires that all firms doing business in partnership must file articles of association within 90 days, stating the name of the firm, full names of partners, location of the concern and how long they are to continue in business under that name. The new act is of considerable importance since it affects every partnership business and possession in the state. Only concerns which have filed certificates under the "Assumed Name Law" passed in 1907, are exempted.

Work will begin this week in tearing down the old house at 309 Park Avenue to make room for a better one. The old house which is owned by the B. W. Miller estate, is an ancient land mark, it was built in 1871 by the late S. S. Lincomb, and was constructed entirely of pine lumber, hemlock not then being recognized as lumber. In the middle 70's it was bought and occupied for some years by L. D. Bartholomew, it being the first home of that pioneer in this city. After changing hands several times it was bought by the late B. W. Miller. Mrs. Miller will remove her State street house to the Park Avenue lot, improving and enlarging it to an attractive cottage for summer resort rental. The lot, which takes in the promontory overlooking the lake, is one of the best in the city for the purpose stated.

A Plant of All Work.

The fields as well as the broad roads of Ecuador are inclosed by adobe walls surrounded by the broad leaved American aloe. The aloe, sometimes called the century plant, is one of the most useful and important plants in the country. The Indians thatch their huts with its leaves. The leaves when tapped yield sap. They can also be used as soap and the spines as pins. The fiber is woven into sacks, and from it are made the coarse sandals worn by the common people. The tall flower stalks are used for beams and ladders. The flowers, boiled and soaked in vinegar, make an agreeable pickle.—National Geographic Magazine.

Herbert Spencer and the Puddles. On no one occasion was Herbert Spencer known to ride when going to a dinner yet so carefully did he guard himself against the chance of soiling his dress shoes that he habitually carried a bundle of old newspapers under his arm. These were used, as fast as the wing dropped, one by one, into each mud puddle he might encounter on crossing the street, till the time he reached his destination, when the papers were exhausted. Muddy shoes on the return walk did not matter to him in the least.

The Lecture Course

The Citizens' Lecture committee have arranged for the following lecture and entertainment course for this season:

International Opera Company, October 17; Orpheans, November 26; Cambridge Players, February 5; H. V. Adams, February 27; Roland A. Nichols, March 6.

The opening number, The International Operatic Company is not usually booked on the smaller courses, and only by a special arrangement were the committee able to get them. Every member of the company is a musician of note and three members have been associated with Grand Opera.

Only the most popular selections will be sung and all will be sung in English unless otherwise requested. Solos or other numbers will be sung in Swedish, Norwegian or German if desired. When preferred a full concert program will be given, or the program will be made up of operatic and concert numbers.

Every one enjoys a good male quartet. The Orpheans, giving the second number, is said to be one of the four first male quartets in the Lyceum World.

This splendid musical organization has had phenomenal success for seven seasons, with very few changes in the personnel of the organization. Never before has this personnel been so strong as for this season. They are versatile, artistic, and capable of giving a well balanced program. Some of the features of their program are vocal quartets, horn quartets, solos on their various instruments, as well as vocal solos, songs illustrated with cartoon pictures, and impersonations.

Since this organization has been in the Lyceum for nearly seven season, they have an extensive repertoire of vocal music, and are equally at home in the classic, humorous and comic selections. Their ensemble singing is almost perfect, their voices blending in perfect harmony.

The brass quartet is an instrumental feature of great merit and given to their program a variety of music not usually offered by very few musical attractions.

The cartoon work is another special feature of the program. They are unity to their entertainment, all parts being carefully woven together in an artistic manner.

The Committee, in presenting the Cambridge Players, bring to Charlevoix a new form of young people's entertainment. This is the only organization to which Mr. Kline may lay claim the use of his name as coach and director. The members of this company have banded themselves in a business organization in the form of a joint stock company, thus insuring stability and continued service. They change their programes yearly under Mr. Kline's direction and offer the public entertainments of purpose, variety and thoroughly artistic modeling, with an attention to detail that will be a revelation. All costumes are historically correct and procured without regard to expense. The scenes from famous plays are the most famous and vital; the humor clean and wholesome; the singing above reproach. In arranging their programs and preparing the production sketches for the company, Mr. Day has produced some of the best work of his long and successful career as author and coach.

The Wolverine Courier says of H. V. Adams: "The best thing to happen in our midst for many a year was the coming of Adams. His lecture was worth three times the admission charged." His most popular feature "Grapes of Gold" is very popular lecture on the power of suggestion, following the lines of the most recent scientific and physiological research. A twentieth century lecture.

Ralph Parlette, in Lyceum and Talent save, of Roland A. Nicholls: "Well, when you get Roland Nicholls you spent most of his life working for the sheer joy of his job and forgetting to cash in, perhaps you get a clue. That is the kind of a man that makes the world rubits eyes. That makes the man who sees only dollars say 'He's a fool!' That makes the man who sees the brink ahead say, 'He's an angel!'

Nichols went back to Worcester, Mass., and served a church four years, without salary. He kept the parsonage pot boiling, meanwhile selling real estate and fire insurance, while he gave away the life insurance each Sunday freight prepaid. And he built the new church and got it on its feet!

He served Hillman Street Christian Church at Youngstown, Ohio, eighteen months without salary, to help it out of the financial wilderness and over into the promised land. He lectured between Sundays, sold real estate and turpentine to get the sinews.

This is the man who decided that the platform is the place where he can hit his biggest licks, and here he is today."

Death of Robert Beutel

Word was received here Friday that Robert Beutel died at his home in Bay City the night before, the cause of his death being heart disease.

Mr. Beutel was well known here, having been engaged in the wholesale fish business in this city for several years. He was in the prime of life and was supposed to be in good health.

Mr. Eckinger, the Beutel representative here, could give us no information as to the future of the local branch, but he thinks the estate will continue operations.

MADE A hit

Y. M. C. A. Banquet a Success—Magnificent Tribute to a Magnificent Cause.

If anyone who was at the Masonic Temple last Thursday night went there with doubts at the wise focus of the Y. M. C. A. movement, or the approving attitude of Charlevoix county towards it, their doubts must have been dispelled. It was an endorsement that was very gratifying to secretary Ball, and doubly so because of the unqualified indorsement of his work.

A banquet of fifty covers was contemplated, and some doubt was expressed as to whether or not that number of tickets could be sold, at one dollar a plate. Long before sunset seventy tickets were sold, and then the order was enlarged to 65. The banquet was announced for seven o'clock, but nearly an hour before that people began to come, and when Mr. Buttars had said 120 seats a hait was called. There is no knowing to what limit the sale would have reached had not the dining room only" order gone forth.

The banquet was served in the splendid Masonic banqueting hall by the O. E. S., and the menu and service could not fail to please the most exacting. The "Star ladies," uniformly dressed in white, served the tables, which were tastefully arranged, in no small degree was the pronounced success of the event due to the untiring efforts of the ladies of the Eastern Star.

The toastmaster was Dev. Mr. Gleason, of Boyne City, who has deeply interested himself in the "boy section" of the work, and who introduced the Torch Lake and Beaver Island quartet, the next number, "What Boys are Worth to the County" was the topic given to Hon. A. Ballard, and the subject was fully and ably covered, dwelling particularly upon the relation of the Y. M. C. A. work to the right training of the young.

One of the most interesting features of the post prandial program was furnished by a group of Y. M. C. A. boys, Earl Young, Herbert Taggart, George Driggett and Floyd Aldrich gave forceful and interesting talks on camp experiences, testifying to the good work and influence of secretary Ball.

Mr. Ball, who has been at the head of the county organization for more than a year, made a very interesting and instructive address on the success of the local movement thus far, and Mr. A. L. Coates, relatively, handed Mr. and Mrs. Ball a bouquet of good propositions, in the way of commendation—a compliment which was endorsed by all present.

There was good music—The Wilkinson male quartet rendered numbers, and Miss Gertrude Rowe, well known baritone, singing with his usual splendid effort.

Taking it all-in-all the Y. M. C. A. banquet was one of the most successful social and semi-religious events in the history of this section, and in no uncertain way demonstrated the fact that philanthropic Christian influence is abroad in a field where such effort is essentially most fruitful.

ANOTHER FIGHT IN SIGHT

Local Option to Be Again Submitted On Board of Supervisors for Spring Election.

It is definitely understood that a sufficient number of name have been signed to petitions to make the submission of the local option question a certainty, and the former saloon keepers have personally posted the notices in the various townships.

The gauge of battle will be accepted by the friends of civic decency and will contest the issue to the bitter end. Organization has already begun. On Wednesday of last week an enthusiastic meeting was held in this city, which was attended by delegates from about all parts of the county, and an executive committee of seven was appointed to have charge of the campaign. The committee is as follows: W. J. Pearson, Boyne Falls; W. F. Porter, East Jordan; E. H. Clark, Eveline; R. W. Kane, Charlevoix; W. H. White and L. C. Smith, Boyne City.

A very significant but very natural fact in connection with the question is that former saloon keepers circulated the petitions and posted the notices. Interest is unnecessary.

We sincerely hope that the committee having the campaign in charge will avoid some of the mistakes made in the previous campaign.

Although the proposition is not yet technically before the people, the campaign may be said to have been opened at the meeting on Wednesday. But the public meeting at the Charlevoix Theatre Sunday afternoon was a "rehearsal." It was the first "dress shell to be thrown into the camp of the nets. J. F. Burke, chairman of the State Anti-Saloon League was there with the primer, and he was supported by Rev. Sam Small, the celebrated evangelist and lecturer. If ever a sledge-hammer was wielded in a righteous cause Rev. Sam did it Sunday, small has been through the mill and is, withall, an eloquent and earnest speaker. His arrangement of the wet syndicate was powerful and convincing.

ACCIDENTAL POISONING

Young Child Eats Strychnine Tablets With Fatal Result—Very Sad Bereavement

Little Anna, the three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bacot, of this city, died Friday evening from the effects of eating several strychnine tablets that she had evidently thought were candy. They were medicine being taken by an adult, in one tablet doses.

The child was in the care of her grandmother, the parents being out. Suddenly the child fell at the foot of the grandparent in convulsions. The old lady immediately carried the child across the street to a neighbor who had a telephone, and two physicians were summoned. Everything possible was done to save the child, but death ensued in two hours.

The funeral was from the Catholic church Sunday afternoon.

In a Wet County

Orgy!

Thats what they had in Gaylord during the Otsego county fair, says the Boyne Journal according to stories persistently circulated in Boyne City. Booze flowed as freely, literally, as water. Report has it that one man, elated at the victory of the Otsego Big Leaguers over Grayling's nine, lay down on the bar of one saloon and called for free beer for two hours.

"Drunks lay on the walks and in the gutters," said one man to The Journal. "The drinkers were not Gaylord people. They were visitors. If Boyne City people could have seen the sights I witnessed at Gaylord last week, there wouldn't be a 'wet' vote here next spring. It was absolutely disgusting."

At the council meeting Monday night provision was made for a joint driveway between the property of Mrs. H. W. Miller and the city property on Park Avenue.

The matter of adopting standard catch basins for the sewer system was referred to the proper committee and the board of public works.

DISEASES OF APPLE TREES

Demonstration at Boyne City Under Auspices Department Bureau

Diseases found on apple trees on South Lake Street just south of Frank Jensen's music store, says the Boyne City Journal, were examined Friday afternoon by E. H. Brown, expert horticulturist employed by the Western Michigan Development bureau. The Boyne City high school class in agriculture, with Henry Wheeler, instructor, in charge, and a number of local farmers attended the demonstration of pruning, disease hunting and spraying with deep interest. The practical lesson was thoroughly enjoyed by young and old.

Twigs of a young tree were found infected with scaly aphis. This is an insect which attacks roots as well as branches. It has a long beak and sucks the juice of the tree. Successful warfare against this pest can be waged only by strong stomach poison.

Mr. Brown recommended lime and sulphur spraying in February or March when the trees are dormant. He said the spray could be prepared by dissolving 15 pounds of lime and 15 pounds of sulphur in 50 gallons of water, boiling the mixture for one hour and applying hot. If this solution were applied when the foliage is out the leaves would be burned.

Samples of oyster shell scale were found in abundance. The scale is an insect approximately one-quarter of an inch long and possibly a thirty-second of an inch wide. Like the wooly aphis the scale drives its beak beneath the bark and lives on the juice of the tree. Treatment is alike for eradicating these insects.

In discussing and exemplifying pruning Prof. Brown recommended that the first scaffold limb be about 15 inches from the ground. He pointed out that it is desirable to save the head of the tree low so that harvesting fruit and spraying may be carried on with minimum effort. The second, third and fourth scaffold limbs, he said, should come at intervals of four to six inches and at different sides so that the tree may be well balanced. The necessity of observing the direction of prevailing winds in planting was emphasized. The tree should be located against the wind so that when it attains maturity it will have an upright position.

In pruning the demonstrator pointed out, one should use a sharp knife and cut close to the trunk or main branch. This precaution enables the tree to heal over the wound. A coat of tar or cement was recommended for old places which have not healed; also cutting around the live tissue with a sharp knife will start up growth. When trees have been in sod for some time he recommended that a bolt with large head and large washer be used in preference to wiring around the circumference of the trees.

"Early varieties of apples are most desirable for city and town folk to grow in their back yards," said Prof. Brown. "Late apples can be purchased in the open market. It is desirable that dwarf trees be grown where the space is limited. Get quince bodies and graft on them the kind of early apples you desire."

The first fungus disease considered was that which attacks the leaf and forms a scab on the apple. It is a plant but is so small that a microscope is necessary to make it visible. It is a parasite, causing the death of the leaf on which it lends. It attacks any wounded part and flourishes on the lower or shady side of a leaf or apple. As a result of its attack, apples are lop-sided and scabby. Leaves and rubbish which accumulate in an orchard should be burned.

Treatment for the scab consists of spraying with lime and sulphur solution. Prof. Brown recommended that the commercial preparation be used, one and a half gallons to 50 gallons of water. The time to spray is just before the blossoms open. The second spraying, he said, should be done just after the petals fall. A state law prohibits spraying while the trees are in bloom. The spray would kill the bees whose labor is necessary to pollinate the fruit. Bees are handicapped in their work and frequently fruit crops are cut short in this way. For the second spraying Prof. Brown recommended adding two pounds of arsenate of lead to the spraying solution.

A third spraying about August 15th was recommended for winter apples. This is necessary, he said, because there are two crops of codling worm.

Examples of black rot, or New York apple tree canker were found. The branches were covered with pustules resembling chickenpox. In early stages the pustules have an every resemblance of sports. Apples affected with this disease die and should be cut out and burned. Wood ashes, he said, are good for fertilizer. Black rot, Prof. Brown said, is one of the most serious diseases of apple trees found in Michigan.

Prof. Brown said the best time to prune is in the spring just before the buds burst.

Tent caterpillers should be cut out of the branches when they gather and the branch burned. Fire blight is a bacterial disease that works under the bark and is very dangerous. Early cutting of the affected portion and burn the wood.

Care should be taken in purchasing a sprayer," said Prof. Brown. "The cheap one will not do because one must be tired and the farmer must work fast. The orchard owner cannot afford to have trouble with his sprayer. He must have the sprayer make a bad job as the entire crop is at stake. The sprayer should be of brass or bronze, steel nozzles will corrode an iron sprayer, the copper being deposited on the iron and not on the fruit where it is needed. It should be equipped with an agitator to stir up the spraying mixture, which is made with the proper proportions of lime, four pounds of copper sulphate and 50 gallons of water.

"In spraying, try to have a fine spray deposited on the top and bottom of the trees. If too much spray is applied, it will form in drops and loose some of its effectiveness.

THE STAFF OF LIFE

What a Local Bakery is Doing to Feed the Multitude—The Electric Mixer and Big Oven.

Our scribe strolled into the McCann bakery one evening recently when the shop was getting ready for the next day's output of bread. The electric driven mixer was at work and Mr. McCann proceeded to show him how it was done.

The mixer uses two and one half barrels of flour to one mixing, and the new modern oven holds forty loves of bread. Very few people who enter the front door for their loaf have any idea of what is going on in the back room. During the past summer season from 1000 to 1600 loaves of bread were turned out daily, which consumed from eight to ten barrels of flour. This not counting the pastry and sweet goods that you see in the windows.

The present output is from six to seven hundred loaves of bread per day, with a proportionate amount of other edibles, and five barrels of flour are consumed every twenty-four hours.

FUND TO AID FARMER

MEAT PACKERS' ASSOCIATION VOTES $500,000 TO SHOW PROFITS IN BEEF.

TO LOWER COST OF LIVING

Convention in Chicago Asserts Government Helps in Increasing Meat Prices by Demanding Change of Laws Too Often.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Five hundred thousand dollars was voted on Monday by the American Meat Packers' association, in session here, to stimulate cattle raising. This step was taken as the result of the situation which the packers declare confronts the country—a meat famine by 1925—and to lower the high cost of living.

This was decided by the meat packers on Monday at their annual convention, on the motion of Gustav Bischoff, jr. of the Independent Packing company, St. Louis, president of the organization.

In making his motion for the creation of an educational fund Mr. Bischoff pointed out that the farmers are raising fewer cattle because they do not consider it profitable.

"What the farmers of the country need is education along the lines of how to operate their farms," said Mr. Bischoff. "They imagine that the only way they can make both ends meet is to raise an abundance of grains and feed no cattle.

"As a matter of fact, there is not a farmer in the land who could not raise a few more cattle to good advantage. What the farmers need is education. With this in mind, I move that a fund of $500,000 a year be voted for a period of five years, to be expended among the farmers in a campaign of education. Until the last few years cattle for beef, the price of meat, have not been lowered. As long as the supply is scant the price should be correspondingly high."

The motion to create the $500,000 educational fund was carried by unanimous vote, and President Bischoff will appoint a committee to devise ways and means for carrying on this work.

Another packer who has been prominent in the affairs of the meat trade was Charles F. Kimball of Spokane, Wash.

"If every farmer could be induced to raise one or two beef cattle, the high cost of meats would be almost solved," he said.

M. A. Traylor, vice-president of the National Stock Yards National bank, East St. Louis, Ill., recommended that banks be empowered to loan money on future cattle shipments, the same as they now do on grain crops.

James S. Agar, chairman of a special committee appointed at the last session of the association to confer with government officials as to the causes of the high price of meats, asserted that consumers could at a lower figure because the government demands frequent changing of labels.

Pearsons forecasts of a possible famine prevended the assembly. The more direct danger note was sounded on Sunday when James Craig, jr. chairman of the association's executive committee, read the annual report of that body to the convention.

TROOPS STOP RACE RIOTING

Polish Miners Beaten by Americans, Following Double Murder at Benton, Ill.

Benton, Ill., Sept. 24.—A race riot between American and Polish miners was begun in the streets of this town on Monday as a result of the double murder Sunday of Sewell Hopkins and Quincy Drummond, who were killed by a band of drunken miners while rebuffing from a Polish dance where they had furnished the music.

Company F, Fourth Infantry, Illinois National Guard, located at Benton, was ordered out by Governor Lowden upon recommendation of Mayor Estes of Benton and Sheriff Vaughn of Franklin county. Sept. 5 C. Smith is in command.

The disturbance assumed such proportions that Mayor Estes swore in 75 extra police and sent for the sheriff of Franklin county. The sheriff then mounted a horse in the center of the square and read the riot act to the Americans.

Twenty-five foreigners, who appeared on the square, were beaten severely and pursued to their homes in the Polish colony. Two other foreigners who were found on the streets met similar treatment.

Fifteen Polish miners were arrested and are being held pending an investigation into the double murder.

PLEA OF SULZER LOST

BOARD DENIES COLONEL'S ARGUMENT IN PRIVATE SESSION.

Only One Member Casts Vote in Favor of Clemency for Impeached N. Y. Executive.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Gov. William Sulzer must go to trial. This was decided by the high court of impeachment Monday night when, by a vote of 51 to 1, its members overruled the motion of the governor's counsel to dismiss the proceedings on the ground that he was unconstitutionally impeached by the assembly because that body was in extra session when the impeachment was brought.

Senator Gottfried H. Wende of Buffalo, Democrat and ardent supporter of the governor, cast the solitary "aye" vote. Seven members of the court were absent.

The vote was taken in a secret session of the court after an afternoon devoted to argument by opposing attorneys.

Following the conclusion of the second session of the high court of impeachment, called to determine the status of William Sulzer's right to continue as governor of New York, two important points to be established.

The first is that it is the purpose of the 48 senators and nine appeals judges sitting in judgment on the impeachment charges against Mr. Sulzer by the state assembly, to prevent action of the main issue involved in the proceeding and that all legal technicalities even when based upon the fundamental rights of the accused governor to seek vindication, shall be swept aside in order to arrive at his guilt or innocence.

The second development of Friday bore only collateral relation to the advantages of the high court. Not suspended governor himself provided it by recognizing Martin H. Glynn, the lieutenant governor, as the acting governor of the state.

The motion to create the $500,000 educational fund was carried by unanimous vote, and President Bischoff will appoint a committee to devise ways and means for carrying on this work.

Another packer who has been prominent in the affairs of the meat trade was Charles F. Kimball of Spokane, Wash.

"If every farmer could be induced to raise one or two beef cattle, the high cost of meats would be almost solved," he said.

NEW YORK PRIEST AND WOMAN HE SLEW

Hans B. Schmidt, assistant priest in St. Joseph's church, New York, confessed to the murder and dismemberment of Miss Ann Aumueller Schmidt. In his story to the police, told of how he murdered his victim while she slept, dismembered the body, packed the pieces in bundles and dropped them from the Port of New York ferry boat. Last February Schmidt obtained a license, performed his own marriage ceremony and set up housekeeping in the Bronx, where he murdered the woman September 2.

G. A. R. HEAD ELECTED

WASHINGTON GARDNER OF MICHIGAN COMMANDER FOR 1914.

Next Encampment at Detroit—Will Erect Peace Memorial at Chattanooga.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 23.—Washington Gardner of Michigan was elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic on Friday over the opposition of the house of lords of that organization.

Col. D. F. Adams of Nebraska was the candidate agre'd upon by a few leaders of the Grand Army at the last encampment, and the election of this year came after one of the hardest fights ever waged in a national encampment. Michigan won a double victory, securing not only the commander-in-chief, but the next encampment also, the designation voting to meet in 1914 at Detroit. Colonel Adams ran second in the race for commander, but after it was apparent that ex-Congressman Gardner was to be elected the full vote of the encampment was cast for him. Other officers elected were:

Senior vice-commander, Thomas M. Soward, Guthrie, Okla.; junior vice-commander, William L. Ross, Pittsfield, Me.; surgeon general, J. K. Wagner, Morristown, Pa.; chaplain general, Horace M. Carr, Paducah, Ky. General Gardner's first official act was to appoint Oscar A. James of Detroit adjutant general and Col. D. Scotts of Buffalo, N. Y., quartermaster general. The encampment adopted a resolution approving the erection of a peace memorial to the men of both armies to be erected near Chattanooga. It is similar to that which was adopted by the United Confederate Veterans here in May.

GAYNOR IS BURIED

BUSINESS IS HALTED IN NEW YORK DURING LATE MAYOR'S FUNERAL.

THOUSANDS FOLLOW CASKET

Services at Trinity Simple but Impressive—Remains Are Interred in Lot at Greenwood Cemetery Attended Only by the Family.

New York, Sept. 23.—The funeral cortege with the late Mayor William J. Gaynor's body passed down Broadway on Monday while thousands of persons lined the street with bared heads. The procession passed at Trinity church where Bishop H. Greer officiated at services that were simple but impressive. Hundreds of police guarded the line of march to keep the crowd in order.

All morning the body of the late mayor lay in state in the main corridor of the City Hall while a steady stream of visitors passed through. When time for the removal of the body to Trinity church came City Hall park was crowded.

All business practically was suspended for an hour while the services were in progress in the famous old church. Assisting Bishop Greer was Rev. E. Holton, pastor of the Episcopal church at St James, L. I., in which town Mayor Gaynor made his summer home. The Rev. Dr. Page of Culpepper, Va., also aided in the services.

The funeral procession was solemn and impressive. Eight extra patrol boxes were chosen, four from the police department and four from the fire department, to carry the casket. Bearers were chosen from the police department and four from the fire department, to carry the casket. They were followed by twelve honorary pallbearers:

William H. Taft, Mayor Adolph L. Kline, Supreme Court Justice Martin J. Keogh, Herman Ridder, Jacob Schiff, Robert Adamson, R. A. C. Smith, James Creelman, Joseph Pulitzer, Watson, Edward M. Grout, Police Commissioner Bingham, Wm. Wade and John D. Crimmons. Lieutenant William Kennell, who has acted as police guard of all mayors since Mayor Strong, walked before the casket.

Trinity church held about 200 people when the services began. All of the justices of the supreme court of Manhattan and Brooklyn, all the members of the board of aldermen, the heads of the various city departments and the members of the citizens' committee of 100 on funeral arrangements, were present.

After the ceremony the procession reformed and crossed Brooklyn bridge to the Borough hall, where the Brooklyn funeral was made in the family plot at Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, and was attended only by members of the family.

THAW IS INDICTED

SLAYER'S HOPE GIVEN BLOW BY SECRET ACTION OF NEW YORK STATE.

BRIBERY PROSECUTION NEAR

Extradition Decision to Be Announced by Governor Fuller on Monday—Hearing Adjourned Until Next Week.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 25.—Harry K. Thaw and his legal staff were pleasantly surprised on Tuesday when William Travers Jerome, deputy attorney general for New York state, appeared at the extradition hearing before Governor Fuller and announced that the Dutchess county grand jury had returned a second indictment against Thaw charging him with conspiracy in connection with his escape from Matteawan asylum.

In making the announcement Jerome said that he is endeavoring to secure an indictment against the man who concocted the plan for Thaw's escape, and for this reason had asked that the indictment against Thaw be kept secret as long as possible.

After hearing the arguments of counsel for both sides, Governor Fuller reserved judgment and announced that he would not make public his decision until next Monday at least.

In opening the argument Jerome said that the duty of Governor Fuller to grant the petition of New York for the extradition of Thaw was plain. He then made his announcement concerning the conspiracy indictment.

During the course of his argument against extradition former Governor Stone of Pennsylvania, chief counsel for Thaw, accused Jerome of deceit and trickery in the conduct of the case.

William M. Chase of Concord formerly judge of the supreme court, followed Mr. Stone in arguing for Thaw.

He declared bribery had also been committed. "Aman vastly more important than any yet mentioned" has been drawn into the net which New York has spread to catch the persons who helped Harry K. Thaw escape from Matteawan asylum, according to a sensational statement made by one of the counsel for Thaw, who appeared before Governor Fuller.

When he took the case under advisement the governor gave no hint as to what his decision will be.

COAL MINERS GO ON STRIKE

Thousands Quit Work in Colorado Coal Fields—Men Demand More Independence.

Trinidad, Colo., Sept. 25.—Hundreds of miners in Las Animas and Huerfano counties refused to enter the mines when the night shift quit work at 8 o'clock a. m. on Tuesday, the beginning of the strike called by the United Mine Workers of America. Several thousand miners in the southern coal fields of district 15, affiliated with the United Mine Workers of America, complied with the call for a strike, which has for its chief purpose the recognition of the union.

At the beginning of the strike the operators took a positive stand that there will be no compromise with the miners on the question of union recognition. The other demands of the miners—for their own check weighman, privileges to live where they please, trade where they please and employ each physician as they please—are not receiving much discussion either from operators or from miners.

SEEK SLAYER OF MERCHANT

Indiana Man Enticed to Room in Hotel and is Found With Bullet in Head.

Indianapolis, Sept. 25.—The body of Joseph Rohlansky, a merchant, was found in a room at a hotel which had been occupied by a young man who registered as W. E. Anderson, Louisville, Ky. A strong cord had been tied around the victim's throat, and he had been shot through the head.

Anderson, who is said to have represented himself as a Chicago man, called at Schlansky's store and asked him to go to his room, where he said he had some goods to show the merchant. Mrs. Rohlansky failed to return his family notified the police.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 25.—The murder in Indianapolis of Joseph Rohlansky is believed by the Louisville police to be one of a series of crimes alleged to have been committed recently in eastern and middle western cities by Joseph Kilm, alias Robert Duncan, son of a carpet manufacturer of Richmond, Va.

Vocations for Young Christians

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D.D. Dean of Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

TEXT—But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ.—Ephesians IV:7.

I am to speak to you on the subject of "Christian Vocations for Young People," which is my reason for using this text.

"Die" is the important word to begin with, which does not mean everybody, but only true Christian believers in the sense of redeemed and regenerated men and women. On such as these the Lord Jesus Christ bestows spiritual gifts according to His grace, as the rest of the verse says. These "gifts" are for the use and blessing of the whole church, and are conferred in several ways in the following verse as apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers.

Now, this, that while we all believe in education and especially in an educated ministry, yet all the colleges, and seminaries and bible institutes in the world can not make such apostle, prophet, evangelist, pastor or teacher. They have tried to make them and have turned out graduates that looked and acted like them, perhaps, but they were not the real thing, and the church has suffered by the imposition. A true apostle, prophet, evangelist, pastor or teacher is the gift of the Lord Head of Church in his body. He is a Spirit-taught and Spirit-endowed man, and what the church sees or hears such an one it recognizes his divine commission whether he has the imprimatur of a school or not.

What Ministers Are For.

Now, specifically, what are these gifts' bestowed upon the church for? The answer of the text verse is, "For the perfecting of the saints," which means that we believers, for every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ becomes a saint the moment he so believes. But when the saints are thus "perfected," enlightened, strengthened in the knowledge of the Lord, what are they to do? The answer is to engage in the "work of ministering for the edifying (building up) of the body of Christ," verse 12.

Here comes in the question of Christian vocations for young people who may not have the gift of apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors or teachers. There is a work of ministering for them to do nevertheless, when they are "perfected" for it. So those who have been truly set apart for that work.

What is the nature of this work? If the student capital of the Moody Bible Institute may be trusted it is whatever there is a wide variety in it. We have seen young men and women who have passed through the hands of the armored cruiser Brooklyn.

Cool in Face of Death.

One of the most amazing instances of sangfroid on the scaffold occurred when Lieutenant Commander Hall, who murdered a Miss Hell, paid the penalty of his crime in England. The man confessed his guilt on the scaffold and requested the hangman to place over the prisoner's eyes, and remarked, as the cap was adjusted, "Pull the lever." Hall was a popular man, and his execution was witnessed by a large number of people.

Pay City Gets Meeting.

Lansing.—The fifteenth annual convention of the Michigan League of Municipalities closed in Jackson. Bay City was selected as the next meeting place.

Bay City had no opposition. Mayor J. C. Roetter of Lansing, who has been vice-president for the last year, was elected president and Mayor Gustav Hilse of Bay City was chosen, vice-president. George H. Curtis, alderman of Jackson, was continued in the office of secretary.

Subjects discussed were: "The Administration Form of Government for Cities," by Mayor J. J. Johnson, Detroit; "Municipal Accounting," by L. G. Powers, chief statistician, bureau of census, department of commerce, Washington, D. C., and "The Battle Creek Plan of Commission Government," Mayor John W. Bailey, Battle Creek. One of the most important addresses was that of Mayor Johnson, who gave 14 reasons why a city should adopt the commission form of laws.

Commission government eliminates party politics.

"2. It abolishes ward lines.

"3. All citizens have a chance for office under the commission form. Commissioners are not dependent on party organizations for nomination and election.

"4. Commission government makes the commissioners responsible to the people, and not to a party or any organization. The people nominate and elect them. They must serve the people or get out.

"5. The new form of government provides a short ballot and simplifies elections.

"6. It offers greater safety as well as greater responsibility through the initiative, referendum and recall.

"7. It centralizes responsibility so that it can be fixed, or shifted, if need be, quickly and easily. Under the old system it is supposed to be certain things are always no dodging responsibility.

"8. Commission government provides a simple, economical, efficient and efficient mer.

"9. It gives the people control over all ordinances through the initiative and referendum. They can pass any ordinance they want and repeal any ordinance they don't want.

"10. Commission government makes for economy by direct and constant supervision of all municipal affairs. Commissioners are constantly on the job.

"11. There are frequent meetings of the governing body under commission control. Citizens do not have to wait two weeks for the council to attend to their grievances.

"12. The commission form expedites city business by the elimination of unnecessary office and red tape.

"13. It provides publicity for all municipal affairs.

"14. Commission government results in economy and efficiency in the business-like administration, economies and simplicity. The last year before the city was changed from a commission form to the commission form the tax rate was $17.21, and the last commission rate is $17.21, was $7.81. Both rates are exclusive of state and county taxes. Also the debt of Pontiac is greater than before, but the difference is not wholly due to the increase in valuation.

"15. Commission rule raises the city's credit to a high place. Bonding companies prefer the bonds of cities ruled by commissions to those ruled by councils.

"16. Commission government also reduces the deficit and overdraft system. Pontiac formerly had such deficits and overdrafts. Pontiac has not been in debt since adopting commission rule."

Hold Clinic in Detroit.

Nearly all of the 100 delegates attending the annual convention of the Michigan Society of Osteopathic Physicians were on the floor of the Tuller hotel, Detroit, where a clinic was held at dissection of the cadaver was discussed.

Eyes obtained from packing houses were used in the experiments. Each of the osteopathicians present, armed with scissors and forceps, had hacked a bull's eye to dissect. The work was under the direction of Dr. Frank Sherman, of Detroit.

Officers for the next year were elected as follows:

E. H. Arnold of Ann Arbor, president; Dr. Ernest Ashton, vice president; E. Elmer Mackeson, secretary and treasurer, and M. R. Pierce of Flint, assistant secretary. O. Young of Fort Huron as members of the executive committee. The officers also form part of the executive committee. Trustee Fred of Jackson was elected to the board of regents.

Mackinac Gets Meeting.

Mackinac Island will get the next encampment of the soldiers and sailors of northern Michigan. Officers elected are: President, Benjamin Lacore, Mackinac Island; vice-president, Jos. Jean, secretary, Alfred Bridges, Bradburn left his home about two o'clock in the morning, saying "I'm going away." She called a son to follow the train, but by the time the boy had dressed his father had disappeared. Mrs. Bradburn said her husband was partially demented.

Hastings.—Eighteen miles across country in ten hours was the record made by the auto parade each of their service of this city, who, while going from one part of Hastings to another, became bewildered and hiked southward to Prairieville. He was found by a farmer.

Standish.—A circuit court jury in Judge Smith's court in the matter of Miss Edith Barbito, a school teacher who was shot by a Detroit & Mackinac railroad engine in Turner, returned a verdict of $4,000 verdict, but the supreme court ordered a new trial.

Washington.—Gloomy predictions in western Michigan that the 1914 apple crop will be only one-fifth to one-half per cent. of a full output are beginning to prevail. In spite of the comparatively large supply of early peaches, there has been a pronounced scarcity of late peaches. Late Crawfords and similar desirable varieties are scarce.

Pontiac.—Jacob M. Lawsca, a well known merchant of Royal Oak, died as a result. It is believed he has an ulcer in his stomach, he was treated his stomach. He is survived by a widow and five children.

GETTING AROUND IT NEATLY

Peculiarly Subtle Way in Which Girl Softened the Force of Her Stern Rebuke.

Foolishly he asked her for a kiss; naturally she said "no;" bravely he took it, anyway; angrily she put him away; scornfully she told him what she thought of such action, and meekly he stood for the same old bluff.

"I am surprised and mad at you!" she said, and she looked every bit of it. "I don't think a gentleman would do such a thing; and now, if you are going to stay here this evening, I don't want you even to touch me, but let us sit here and talk like sensible people.

Thoroughly cowed, he agreed.

Seeing, however, that she had carried her little bluff too far and he was taking her seriously, she made use of a bright idea.

"Will you promise to be good now?" she asked.

"Yes."

"Well, let's shake on it."

Solemnly they shook hands.

"Now," she said, with a cooing and meaning little twinkle in her eye, "you have touched me already and broken your promise. So, being as you have gone that far, you might as well go ahead and break the rest of your agreement."—Judge.

PIMPLES ON FACE AND ARMS

411 Howard St., Dayton, Ohio.—"About a year ago my face, neck, arms and back were beginning to become afflicted with pimples and blackheads. My pimples would get very large and appear to come to a head. If I tried to open them the pain would be terrible, but nothing could be taken from them. They itched very badly; I suffered terribly from itching. After scratching, the pimples would swell and after the swelling was gone my face would become very red and remain so for some time. My clothing caused the itching to be worse. When it was warm it was utterly impossible to sleep.

"I used a cream and the more I used the worse they got. Shortly after, I read the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and determined to use them. The itching stopped almost immediately. I used them for three months and I am entirely cured now." (Signed) Miss Margaretta E. Jacobs, Jan. 12, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Common Enough History.

Mayor Gaynor of New York, as all the world knows from his letters, is a subtle critic, and at a recent luncheon at the Century club, discussing a friend who was well but badly dyspeptic, he said:

"This scribbler's whole biography could be put into two questions and two answers, thus:

"'How did he commence writing?'

"'With a sweet tooth.'

"'And how has he continued?'

"'With a bilious liver.'"

Veal's Too High.

"All our food except sugar has advanced two-thirds in price since 1896," said Thomas Greene, the Denver statistician. "The bureau of labor statistics has proved it. So it is.

"The men responsible for these advances are doing their best to cause us to serve us. They are begging our pardon. They are prodigal sons—can't we forgive them?

"Yes, I say we can.

"And I'd politely inform those fellows that the supply of fatted calves is not as large as the number of prodigal sons."

Cost in Face of Death.

Every one of the famous ships of 1898 is today officially dead, or broken, and all of them put together would not be as powerful as is the giant superdreadnought Texas, the battleship of the Florida, or the Utah, any one of which would be a match for any fleet of fought under Dewey and Sampson combined. If such a test should be made.

Just a year ago the then secretary of the navy, George von L. Meyer, publicly called attention to the fact that the navy department had on the full quota of battleships whose day in the first line had passed and the time for their retirement from active service had arrived. Yet, in spite of this, the United States was relying upon them for service in the second naval power. The other day the observation of the navy department was that the naval officer in New York, who took pencil and pad, and, going back fifteen and twenty years, wrote an accounting of the ships of the last ships now adorning the naval lists originally cost the United Government.

It was so ridiculously easy, the computation of that total value of famous ships that are now only a naval death of old age. The result was astounding, and when at last the man who had made the calculation and the result of that little mathematical feat of his he had proved that the value of their ships some of them still less than a dozen years old, amounted to the total of more than $100,000,000, or to be exact, $129,222,514.

Of this $130,000,000 the fact that was. It is interesting to look back and, to note that it includes the Gatsters, the name given Sampson's old flagship New York when her name was taken, that it could be given to the mighty superdreadnaught New York, now nearing completion in the navy yard in Brooklyn. Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn, the Olympia, from the bridge of which Dewey uttered the immortal words to Captain Gridley, "You may fire when ready, Gridley," the Iowa, that was "Old Evans" ship in 1898, the Indiana, and the Massachusetts, sister ships, which were the terrors and great hitters of the Oregon, which won the plaudits of an admiring world by her great run around Cape Horn, and which in her old age will probably be given the honor of being the first American war vessel to pass through the Panama canal in the Gaillard Cut.

Then, of course, there was the old Texas, the ship that was commanded by the beloved Captain Philip, the vessel from the deck of which he offered his prayer for the protection of God when Santiago's battle was ended and the Spanish ships had met their doom—the same ship from which Philip ordered his men not to cheer when the Viscaya, the Cristobal Colon, the Maria Theresa, the Vizcaya, the Almirante Oquendo, were burning and sinking down into the grave to which the deadly shots of Sampson's guns had consigned them. But the old Texas, which, like the New York, was renamed so that the name of the Lone Star state might adorn the list of the new New York's sister, has long since met her fate.

Battered and torn by the battle of the newer and more modern ships, so prove the marksmanship of the men of the Texas was demonstrated the hulk of that old ship—a sister of the Maine that went down in Havana harbor and which going down hastened the conflict with Spain—still half floats in Chesapeake bay, just enough of it to provide another marksmanship test for some mighty dreadnaught of the fleet under Admiral Badger.

Not the old Texas, so will go some of the other ships of the fleet that is obsolete. Already the Indiana is mentioned as the next marty ship for the Atlantic fleet, and after her the Massachusetts, and the Oregon, and perhaps will be a year or two the Kearsarge and the Kentucky, the Alabama, the Illinois, the Iowa, the Texas, the Brooklyn, the Olympia, from the bridge of which Dewey uttered the immortal words to Captain Gridley, "You may fire when ready, Gridley." The Iowa, that was "Old Evans" ship in 1898, the Indiana, and the Massachusetts, sister ships, which were the terrors and great hitters of the Oregon, which won the plaudits of an admiring world by her great run around Cape Horn, and which in her old age will probably be given the honor of being the first American war vessel to pass through the Panama canal in the Gaillard Cut.

OUR OBSOLETE FLEET THAT COST NEARLY $130,000,000

FIFTEEN years ago George Dewey stood on the bridge of his famous Olympia and won the battle of Manila bay. William T. Sampson, from the bridge of the armored cruiser New York directed the operations before Santiago, and the pennant of Winfield Scott Schley fluttered from the mast-head of the beautiful three-funneled armored cruiser Brooklyn. The world remembered the commanders of the squadrons of which these vessels were the flagships, while all America joined in one grand hurrah for a navy that was absolutely one of the best on the seven seas.

The American navy is still among the best, but the ships that were fought by Dewey and by Sampson and by Schley are no longer figured in the limelight battles of the world. The command of Rear Admiral Badger one of the most powerful fighting organizations the world ever saw.

Every one of the famous ships of 1898 is today officially dead, or broken, and all of them put together would not be as powerful as is the giant superdreadnaught Texas, the battleship of the Florida, or the Utah, any one of which would be a match for any fleet of ships that fought under Dewey and Sampson combined. If such a test should be made.

Just a year ago the then secretary of the navy, George von L. Meyer, publicly called attention to the fact that the navy department had on the full quota of battleships whose day in the first line had passed and the time for their retirement from active service had arrived. Yet, in spite of this, the United States was relying upon them for service in the second naval power. The other day the observation of the navy department was that the naval officer in New York, who took pencil and pad, going back fifteen and twenty years, wrote an accounting of the ships of the last ships now adorning the naval lists originally cost the United Government.

It was so ridiculously easy, the computation of that total value of famous ships that are now only a naval death of old age. The result was astounding, and when at last the man who had made the calculation and the result of that little mathematical feat of his he had proved that the value of their ships some of them still less than a dozen years old, amounted to the total of more than $100,000,000, or to be exact, $129,222,514.

Of this $130,000,000 the fact that was. It is interesting to look back and, to note that it includes the Gatsters, the name given Sampson's old flagship New York when her name was taken, that it could be given to the mighty superdreadnaught New York, now nearing completion in the navy yard in Brooklyn. ACROSS THE SAHARA FOR FUN

Retired General's Peculiar Pleasure Trip From Algiers to the Gulf of Guinea.

Last winter Gen. Dalloni, chief of the 19th French army corps, stationed in Algiers, and retired under the age limit law. But to show that he was not yet ready to quit work he planned a trip across the Sahara to Timbuctoo and on to the Gulf of Guinea.

His party included a young officer and two corporals with separates for the transportation of provisions and a small escort. The time spent between each halt was 10 days to fight his way through the desert.

The railway took them to Biskra and automobiles south to Ouargla.

On Christmas day they were at In Salah, in the desert, and gave the natives sow for the first time a Christmas tree; the children of the village enjoyed both the candies and the presents.

This party was not trying to make a record. Through the mountains passes over the Southern Sahara they went on foot, reaching the Niger at Sambo, about 1,000 miles in three months. At Timbuctoo old friends were met.

Down the Niger they glided by canoe to Gao.

At least, that was the plan. But the general fretted at the inactivity and went off on a hunting trip at every chance, joining the boats later.

It was not long before modern methods of transportation were reached, some of them not in the plan, such as the automobile and railroad to the Niger.

The whole journey took about five months; the only casualty was the death of one of the natives. Others were friendly, and there was nothing to mar the pleasure of a small party, including a general retired for

MICHIGAN FAIR BROUGHT TO CLOSE

GREATEST EXPOSITION IN THE HISTORY OF THE STATE ENDS.

PLAN EXHIBIT FOR TEN DAYS

Dickinson and Other Officials Favor Extension of Fairs Long Enough to Keep Down Attendance on Last Day.

Lansing.—With the close of what is declared to have been the greatest state fair in the history of Michigan, all indications point toward a big 52d fair next year, and although nothing definite has been announced, discussions on the question have been taken up and decision may be made soon.

General Manager Dickinson said several officials were in favor of a ten day fair. The fair next year will also be opened earlier than usual, according to present plans.

What undoubtedly would have been the biggest day of the fair was marred by a downpour of rain, and many who arrived on the grounds early left for shelter and did not return for shelter.

The majority of the concessions withstood the rain, but many of the exhibitions realizing that attendance would fall off, took down their banners and prepared to depart.

Everything that was expected, with the exception of the races, was put through in the regular way. Included the final aeroplane flights by Tony Jannus and the fireworks in the evening.

Jannus made two successful flights during the day and had perhaps left to leave for St. Louis.

H. S. Newton, superintendent of agriculture, said: "Whatever slam the fair may have accomplished it has not related to leave in the state of Michigan that applies for market between the hours of 7 and 9 o'clock, that they can now compete successfully with the growers from the west in the fancy markets. These western states have been able to make the grade because of the attractiveness of their displays.

Need of Special Session Not Seen.

Western Michigan members of the state legislature do not favor a special session at this time to consider a settlement of the coopers' strike.

Governor Ferris' stand in asking for advice from the members of the legislature and making it clear that he sees no reason why the legislature should have a special session is generally approved.

Kent county representatives, how ever, are disappointed.

Theddeus B. Tayler, Cedar Springs, representing the Third district in Kent, said: "I am opposed to a special session at this time as I can see no particular reason for it. If at a later time it should prove that tax law and blue sky legislation is necessary, it is my opinion it would be policy to call a special session and to deal with the arbitration question also."

George E. Hollway, Grand Rapids, representing the First district of Kent, said: "I would be opposed to the opportune time in which to put on the statute books an enactment having for its purpose the promotion of arbitration and mediation, as a necessary preliminary, at least to industrial disputes."

William J. Sproul, representative of the city of Grand Rapids, said: "I think the calling of a special session would be a good idea on both the operators and the strikers in the coopers' controversy. While little can be done to affect present conditions directly something could be done to prevent a recurrence of such conditions. It is conceded that the state must have a law to prevent sure blue sky laws, but we are told no such law can be adopted.

Following are replies received from closer representatives:

Hector E. Powers, senator from Ionia county: "There is no other subject which I would consider except the strike situation and I hardly believe that warrants a special session."

A. V. Young, representative from Montcalm county: "I cannot see the need of calling a special session of the legislature at this time."

John B. Santo, representative from Grand Traverse county: "I know of no reason why a special session of the legislature should be called. I believe a compulsory arbitration law would be unconstitutional."

Charles R. Foote, Alto, Third district of Kent: "I approve and expect a plan whereby legislation would tend to help in labor troubles I would favor a special session. But I cannot see how legislation could be put through in no short a time that would do any good."

State Has 16,000,000 Acres.

For the first time in the history of the state the total acreage of Michigan has been officially and authentically determined. Surveys which have been made in the state department of agriculture show that the state has 16,000,000 acres, or 24,976,772.62 acres.

This is exclusive of a military reserve on Mackinac island. The state of Michigan will now be able to refer instantly to the exact number of acres in any county and township.

State Baptists to Meet This Month.

The seventieth annual meeting of the Michigan Baptist association will be held in the city of Grand Rapids September 23.

Rev. C. A. Collett, a returned missionary from India; Rev. F. M. Lake, pastor of the Woodward Avenue church, church of Detroit; Miss Julia Lake of Detroit, Prof. L. F. Smith of Kalamazoo college, Margaret Ingress of Detroit and J. R. Snyder of Kalamazoo will have charge of the meeting.

1914 Meeting in Lansing.

The thirteenth annual state convention of the Hur-name is a successful close in Saginaw. Lansing was awarded the 1914 congress. The election of officers resulted as follows: Past chief, A. Frank Osbey, Battle Creek; chief, Mary R. Lockhood, Flint; lecturer, Mary Weaver, Battle Creek; teacher, Anna B. Gray, Saginaw; scribe, L. Gertrude Treasure, Lansing; keeper of records, Isabelle H. Hall, Saginaw; captain, Ida J. Hadden, Battle Creek; guide, Lillian D. Willsworth, Grand Rapids.

Michigan Industries Plan a Great Representation In Vast Gathering of the States and Nations

JUST inside the Golden Gate a vast army of workmen is rushing to completion the huge exhibit palaces of America's Panama canal celebration, the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco in 1915. Many of the most celebrated architects, sculptors and artists in the United States cooperated in the design of the marvelous exposition city upon the shores of San Francisco bay. As an inspiration they had before them the greatest engineering work in the history of the world, the Panama canal—and in the conception of the canal they saw the final result of the effort of centuries to secure a passageway between the seas.

As the Exposition avenues form the wonders that the architects dreamed shall become vivid and tangible. A city of palaces facing north upon San Francisco harbor is rising against the wealth of the hills that embrace the Exposition site upon the south, east and west. When completed in 1914, months before the opening of the Exposition, it will be found that the majority of the Exposition palaces are united into one enormous structure, with its outside walls as high as the average six story city block and with its golden towers and minarets rising to heights of 370, 290, 230 and 430 feet. Flight of the main exhibit buildings will form parts of a huge group surrounding the three principal courts. The architecture is based in conception a stupendous oriental bazaar, similar in form to the bazaars of the east, at Constantinople, Damascus or Cairo. The roofs of the buildings will be colored a reddish pink, like Spanish tile, and will be covered over the white buildings extending along the blue waters of the bay. Wonderful groups of statuary will tell the story of the Panama canal.

[illegible] Exposition will be [illegible] $50,000 in value. A jury of [illegible] will be under way by the time this article is published.

One of the unique phases of the Exposition will be the tremendous participation of the South American nations. Many of the republics will make displays never before seen outside their own boundaries.

The commonwealths of the United States will be represented upon a splendid scale. Thirty-five states have selected the sites of their state pavilions, and the appropriations made by state legislatures aggregate nearly $11,000,000.

The largest appropriation is that of New York state—$900,000.

It is planned that Michigan shall be splendidly represented among her sister commonwealths at the Exposition. The great commonwealth of Michigan has contributed its due proportion to the cost of the construction of the Panama canal, and it has its patriotic pride in the Panama canal celebration. Representatives of the great industries of Michigan and of important commercial and industrial organizations are now planning for a collective representation which will bring Michigan well up among her sister states. The Michigan societies of California, Oregon and Washington are planning to assist in welcoming Exposition visitors from all parts of the world on behalf of Michigan, and visitors from Michigan will find that former residents of the home state will rejoice in welcoming them. Every white-skin citizen of Michigan is urged by the Michigan Society of California to support actively the movement to give Michigan adequate representation at the Exposition. Do not lose a day in aligning yourself with the movement.

Five states in the Union have as much to offer the world as Michigan—have an abundance of resources that may so advantageously be established. The wonderful growth of agriculture, the great automobile, lumber and sugar industry, the vast opportunities for farming and for manufacturing are absolutely unsurpassed anywhere in the United States. Of special interest to Michigan manufacturers of automobiles will be the tremendous automobile exhibits at the Exposition. The principal manufacturers in motors and motor accessories will be exhibited by manufacturers of the United States and Europe.

A unique feature of the Exposition—and it is difficult to refer from among the thousands of brilliant features one as being more interesting than another—will be a continuous live stock show, the greatest the world has known. Fifty acres will be used for live stock pavilions and show grounds. The Exposition management has set aside $175,000 for premiums for live stock, while $225,000 is offered for harness races. Breeding associations of the United States have so far offered $15,000 in premiums. This is a total of $415,000.

The "Midway" at the Exposition (the name has not yet been chosen) will be spectacular. At a cost of $1,000,000 Santa Fe railway will present a series of panoramas showing the Grand Canyon of Arizona, famous artists being engaged upon the panoramas. In a working model of the Panama canal visitors will proceed through the locks as if actually going through the canal itself and witnesses will explain its operation. This concession, to cost $250,000, will have a capacity of handling 2,000 people through its locks every thirty minutes. Another concession will show the historic old market place of Nuremberg, Germany, and wonderful concessions from China and Japan will be shown. Altogether the cost of installing the concessions is estimated at $11,200,000.

A MARVELOUS SETTING FOR SCULPTURE AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION, SAN FRANCISCO, 1915.

The dominating architectural feature of the Exposition is the superb Tower of Jewels which will command the south entrance of the Court of the Sun and Stars. This tower, 430 feet in height, will have a base one acre in extent. The tower will rise upward in terraces, giving way at last to a group of figures supporting a globe typifying the world. The repeated figures of armored horsemen and of sailors of the ocean will be used in the tower, which, with its stationary, mural paintings and mosaics, will be indescribably beautiful. Messrs. Carrere and Hastings, architects in charge of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo in 1901, are the architects.

Northern Michigan

President Wilson has sent to the senate for confirmation the names of E. S. Noble for postmaster at Elk Rapids, and E. L. Rose for postmaster at Petoskey.

As the result of a fall sustained while conducting a stand at the Antrim county fair, Murrell Long, for 34 years an Emmet county resident, died lately at the Petoskey hospital. Among other relatives is a son Charles D. Long of Detroit. Mr. Long has been a cripple for 17 years.

Already the Northport Fruit Growers' Association has forwarded eleven load carefree crates. The association is now planning to load the winter fruit which will amount to nearly 3,000 bushels of apples. A large share of the apples already marketed have brought the growers better than $2.50.

Charles Miner, former proprietor of the Hotel Miner at Walloon Lake, and for a year and a half proprietor of a bazaar at Central Lake, passed through Petoskey Thursday morning enroute to Walloon Lake. Mr. Miner reports that he has sold his business at Central Lake, and within a few weeks he and Mrs. Miner will go to Los Angeles.

The village of Pellston recently showed its appreciation for the coming in of outside people by holding a reception and dinner for all those who have invested in real estate in that vicinity during the past season. In addition to the food there was a program of a fitting nature, including the opinions of all as to the value and possibilities of the land in this section of the state. A worthy example for other places in northern Michigan.

Central Lake has sold her $30,000 bond issue to a Chicago brokerage firm at par. The bonds bear five per cent interest. The bonds will mature $1,000 each year from 1918 to 1929 and $2,000 each year from 1930 to 1938 inclusive. The money raised from the sale of bonds will be used in the construction of good roads. It is planned to let the contracts this fall for building four miles of the state reward road.

Petoskey News: With the departure, Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hamill and children Petoskey loses one of her best known families. Mr. Hamill came to Petoskey about thirty years ago and this city has been his home continuously since that time. During his early residence here he was engaged in the real estate and insurance business but soon secured the inland Resort business and operated his boats there until a year ago. Mr. and Mrs. Hamill and son and daughters departed Wednesday afternoon for Grass Lake, a suburb of Jackson, Mich., where they will make their home during the fall and winter. Next spring they plan to take up their residence in Jackson.

Boyne City Journal: George Davis had a big hole torn in his right limb six or eight inches below the thigh, when a 45 caliber Winchester rifle was discharged directly at him by D. C. Leland, when the pair were hunting on the Pleasant Valley road Wednesday morning. The shooting was accidental. Drs. Marshall and Boyland treated Davis. They found that the bullet almost penetrated the leg, but nearly, in fact, that it was removed from the farther side. The bullet was "spent" and had flattened almost as large as a Canadian penny. It caused a compound fracture of the leg. The physicians hope to save the man's life and limb. However the injury is a most serious one. Mr. Davis is a man more than 50 years of age. He has lived here a long time and has many friends. Leland is a youth of about 17 years of age.

Cadillac News and Express: Albert Manistee and Rev. A. S. Doan made a find in this city a few days ago which proves conclusively to them and to many other Cadillac people that there was a race of men here 400 years ago. The gentlemen uncovered a mound and found therein bones of four human beings, all in the one grave. The mound was found north of the canal which joins Lake Cadillac and Mitchell and was upon a pine stump which George Dowie, the famous land looker and authority on everything pertaining to timber, says is over 400 years old. The tree was over two and a half feet in diameter with roots above the level of the surroundings and spread out well over the whole mound which was over three feet high land and about fifteen by twenty feet in ground dimensions. The men dug into the mound horizontally and came on the bones in a huddle, not more than four feet across the whole mass. There was no relics in the way of arrow heads, axes, or other implements of war or tribal use, found in the grave. The Cadillac men have been joined out in their explanation of the find by Shawanaka, an Ottawa Indian who lives near Star City, who was in Cadillac the last of the week. He declared that the fact that all the bones were in a heap in the one grave indicates a battle, that the men were undoubtedly of a tribe called the Tenascouais, a tribe that was wiped off the face of the earth many years ago by the Ottawas. The fact that the giant nine grew after the Indians were buried and that the tree was 400 years old, indicated to the Shawanaka's explanation is correct.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY MAN SUCCEEDS

How Leonard F. Knowles Went Into Real Estate and Won Out.

No doubt many people in Boyne City know that Leonard F. Knowles was interested in the development of conditions at Redford, a village near the city of Detroit, says the Boyne City Times, but it is doubtful if anyone here knows that it was through the efforts of that very man that the town was really put on the map. A recent issue of the Detroit Journal contained a page write-up of Redford and its advantages a part of which tells of our former townsman as follows:

A record of Redford's progress in real estate values cannot be written without mention of Leonard F. Knowles. One year ago real estate in Redford was laughable. Much of it was held by those who could not appreciate the coming advantages of the new road to Detroit and the many fine homes facing Grand River avenue and the call of the country side to the nerve racked city people. Along came this man of many resources, of keen insight. He bought the Hart Beer subdivision. He bought the remainder of the Wilmarth subdivision. He bought every vacant lot that was offered for sale and then he began to boost. He built houses. He laid long ribbons of cement walks. He graded streets. He dug wells. He advanced prices. With the assistance of his brothers, C. E. Ramsay, editor of the Redford Record, who he induced to move from Boyne City, and of Perry-Mortemere Company of Detroit, with the assistance of all those who he personally induced to take up the boosting of Redford, in six months he had sold completely out and at a profit.

Scarcely had the last of the above lots been sold when he bought the highest priced piece of acreage in Redford township and laid it out in lots carefully restricted.

Oak Grove subdivision is the finest in the village. It is growing fast and Mr. Knowles has again added another feather to his Redford cap.

The New Game Law

The hunting season is now open. Already sportsmen are renovating hunting clothes oiling guns and preparing camping outfits for a long sojourn in the woods.

Likewise the farmer is nailing up signs reading: "No Trespass" and so the old squabble between the farmer and the city hunter will continue.

But the farmer is now placed in a better position than formerly. The last legislature passed an act which gives him the much-sought method of holding the hunter at bay. The farmer, under this act, may establish a game refuge on his land by filing with the state game warden at Lansing a written application to come under the law.

Under the provisions of this law he can retain control of the hunting privileges on his land up to 640 acres in any one township. Upon receipt of the farmer's application to set aside certain lands as a game refuge, the State game warden will take immediate action to that end and thereafter it will be unlawful for anyone to hunt trap or shoot game within 150 feet of the boundaries of the farmer's game refuge.

Under the law the farmer may foster his own game, and squirrels chipmunks, wild duck and other species of game are privileged to covert right under the nose of the city man with a gun, with the full protection of the law thrown around them.

However, the farmer is not allowed to hunt at will in his own game refuge. He is restricted by the game laws just the same as if he were not the owner of a patch of woods, and likewise all the game therein.

GETTING AHEAD.

Our business in life is not to get ahead of other people, but to get ahead of ourselves. To break our own record, to outstrip our yesterdays by today, to lear our mais more beautifully than we ever dreamed we could, to whip the tempter and to become whipped him before, to give as we never have given, to do our work with more love and a finer finish than ever—this is the true idea to get ahead of others.—Mabie Devotional Babcock.

Origin of Authors' Rights.

The first issue of authors' rights goes back, it appears, to the year 1525. A playwright named Quinault met with a great success in his profession. Francis his first play, and he offered it to a strolling company of actors who were not willing to give more than fifty crowns on its purchase. Quinault then suggested that, instead of receiving a sum each time, he should be given a ninth part of the receipts taken during the run of the piece. This bargain was accepted and it proved to be the beginning of what was at first known as "the author's share," and subsequently "the author's rights."—London Standard.

Queer Five Examination Day.

The following are some answers found on the examination papers of pupils in a country school:

"The people who lived on the earth before it was inhabited were a very low order of creatures."

"Samuel Johnson was a well known English writer. He spoke seven heavy issues."

"Hours of Enchland not his death by starting to pray and having a fit and died from effects."

"A pedfect is one who earns his living by his feet."

"Monsoon is where a person or a company has everything its own way."

"Prunes is what a girl marries."—Lippincott's.

Living in New York.

Some people have queer ideas of what it means to live in New York.

"I couldn't possibly live elsewhere than in New York," declared one lady. "It is the only town!"

"It is a remarkable place," admitted her friend. "What sort of the city do you live in?"

"East Orange, N. J."—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Gentle Hint.

"Life at best is but a gloomy prison," said the pessimistic boarder.

"So much the worse for men who deliberately choose solitary confinement," remarked the girl who had her trap set.—Exchange.

Lawn Mower
—SHARPENING MACHINE—
John Kirby, the blacksmith adjoining Washburn's Machine shop, has a new outfit for grinding Lawn Mowers. Send your Mowers.

Ancient Coffins.

The coffins of the ancient Egyptians were made of wood and stone. The Romans used similar receptacles for their dead and Alexander the Great is said to have been buried in a coffin of solid gold. In parts of England glass coffins have been found. The Athenians before were buried in coffins made of cedar, owing to its aromatic and incorruptible qualities, while the first record of wooden coffins in Eng land dates back to the days of King Arthur. This last coffin was said to have been buried in the hollowed trunk of a gigantic oak tree.

Work.

Even the man who pulls rabbits out of a silk hat has to work for a living.—Wall Street Journal.

Say "We" Not "Me."

Is not that a great thought that we can escape the bondage of mere servitude by simply rising above our work, putting ourselves in it and doing our best? Do not say the "boss." Many are the benefits, great and small, rendered us by the venture succeed. Heartily co-operate to help him and begin to say "we," not always "he." "We" are going to grow the best corn this year in the north forty that was ever seen. "We" are fitting the best lot of calves for the international show next season. Compel the employer to take you at once into an invisible partnership by using that word "we" and putting your heart into the work.—Breeder's Gazette.

The Blessing Prayer.

The custom of finishing a dinner with a prayer goes so far back into the past it is not to be impossible to say when it actually began. According to Strabo the custom originated among the ancients, who, through a sense of fear of the danger that attended it, offered the act of sacrifice made a short prayer to the gods. The Romans offered a sacrificial cried out "Jupiter, help me." The custom is now minus the prayer, the early Jewish writers and others, and is found among many savage tribes.

She Knew the Count.

A society man was talking about an heiress who had married a count.

"Well, at any rate," said he, "the girl seemed convinced that the count had no minority motives.

"Don't you know, a friend said to her some months before the wedding, that you know that the count is simply marrying you for your money, so that he can pay his bills?"

"Nonsense!" she replied. "The count never thinks of paying his bills."—New York Tribune.

The Sheep.

In a Cleveland school one day this composition was handed in by a little German boy:

"The sheep are weak and foolish animals. They are very useful. We can eat everything on them except their bleat. The sheep learn their shepherd very easy, but otherways they are dumb animals.

"They eat hay, grass and carrot seed. And the captain of the sheep is called the bolle buck."—Woman's Home Companion.

The Last Word.

"Your wife tells the last word doesn't she?"

"I don't think so," answered Mr. Meekly. "Anyway, she's mighty instant about reaching it."—Washington Star.

Picking Mother's Gift.

"What are you studying about?" we asked our friend.

"I'll tell you," he admitted. "Our dear old mother's birthday comes to morrow, and we are trying to think what sort of a gift will please her best. Have you anything to suggest? She is seventy-five years of age."

"Why not give her a beautiful lie bel" we asked, with an access of good sense.

"We thought of that," answered the dear son, shaking his head and sighing. "I answered it myself, in fact. But the other members of the family thought that word letter give too much—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Botanical Name.

At a certain theological school where the food was scant there was an earnest man by the name of Wood. He was impulsive and was a tremendous eater, so that by generally got more than his share of what was on the table. One student pressed the learned dean for his opinion of Wood.

"I must confess," answered the dean, "that I am disposed to regard him as a noxious Weed. But it is not until the food scuds on a chicken that we have any sense of Wood he is. He is herbine."—New York Post.

"Our Style Betrays Us."

The class had emerged joyously from a long course in American literature—its bright, particular stars, its forms, its various styles, its masterpieces, and so forth.

With smiling confidence the class turned out the final examination papers and found this:

"What was Whittier's style?"

"Whittier was not what you would call a stylish man. He cared more for the books and for writing than for clothes."—Woman's Home Companion.

Yellowstone Park.

The Yellowstone National park contains 3,575 square miles, or 2,288,000 acres, and has an average altitude of 6,000 feet above the sea. All Old.

Discovery of a problem of Turkish bath in Ireland suggests again the thought that most of the things about which modern civilization boasts are ancient. An automatic machine was in use to supply sacrificial water in an ancient Greek temple. Queen Maria Theresa had an operator in her house at Luxembourg at least as early as 1775, and an electric bell was running in Paris in 1822. In 1867 Robert Hooke conveyed sounds to a distance by distended vibrations, in fact.

SYNOPSIS.

He wrote this to the Bonanza King and sent it by his waiting messenger. The girl felt relieved when she read the letter. He was confident now that Berry had not deceived him. She had told the truth, and seeing the town and her husband, he felt, proves he could not yet know but there seemed no doubt that she was going. They would ignore the subject before Rose, and, in the course of time, Dominick would break down the unflinching resistance she had threatened to make to his suit. She did not look buoyant and exhilarated. It looked as if things were at last going their way.

He sent a message to Mrs. Ryan, asking her to let him know as soon as possible what Dominick said, and waited in his office in a state of tension very foreign to his usual cool manner. It was four o'clock before word came from her in the form of a telephone message, demanding his presence at her house at the earliest possible moment. He responded to it at once, and in the sitting-room of the Ryan mansion heard from Dominick's own lips the story of his false and tragic marriage.

The old man listened, unwinking, speechless, immovable. It was the one thing he had never thought of, a solution of the situation that was as completely unexpected to him as death would have been. He said nothing to Dominick about the money he had given Berry, did not mention that he saw her. A sharp observer might have noticed that he looked a little blank, that the first shock of surprise over, there was a slight expression of wandering attention in his eye a suggestion of mental facilities inwardly focused on an unseen point, about his manner.

He walked home, deeply thinking, absorbed a little by the case with which Fate unties the knots that man's clumsy fingers work over in vain. And it was unlike. They were Fate—the fate and evil he loved—to realize his and their own dreams. It would need no years of wooing to melt Rose into easy resistance. Nobody had been sacrificed.

He felt a sense of gratitude toward Berry. Down in his heart he was conscious of a stirring of something that was kindly, almost affectionate (toward her. It did not require a great stretch of imagination to see himself and her as two knowing, world-battered rogues who had cost, based to let youth and innocence have their happiness. He could almost feel the partnership with her she had spoken of, a sort of bond of masonic understanding, a kindred attitude in matters of ethics. They had a mutually low estimate of human nature, a bold, cool, unsentimental acceptance of things that never faltered. In fact, he was sorry he had not given Berry the whole fifty thousand dollars.

"She could have got it out of me," he said to himself, smiling quietly. "If she'd stuck out for it I'd have given it to her, and she might just as well have had it."

That evening for the first time in months three years Dominick had dined with his mother in the great dining-room of the Ryan mansion. Rose was out with Jack Duffy, so Mrs. Ryan had her boy all to herself. He greeted and answered and admired on him as he sat opposite her in the radiance of the candles that lit on his beloved, familiar face.

After dinner they went into the sitting-room, Dominick with the cheerful—berry furniture where the family always retired when important matters were about. Here, side by side, they sat facing the firelight with the sorrow of the late Cornelius Ryan looking benignly down on them. They talked of the future. The subject of the young man's marriage had been thoroughly gone over in the dining-room. Later on his mother would excuse from him further discussion till she would be as conversant with that miserable chapter of his life as he of she had been for years.

To-night they were both in the quiescent state that follows turmoil and strife. They sat close together, starring into space, now and then dropping into a few disconnected sentences that indicate a fused understanding intimacy. The young man's body was limp in his chair, his mind lulled in the restorative lethargy, the suspension of activities, that follows a struggle. His thoughts abroad absolutely from the past, and did not seek to penetrate the future. He felt—Berry felt—he had fought and evil had been defeated. The Bonanza Cannon also will not keep silent.

CHAPTER XXII.

The Storm Center Moves.

As soon as Berry had left his office Bill Jackson wrote a note to Mrs. Ryan, telling her of the interview he had just had with her daughter-in-law. He did not mention the check, simply stating Berry's decision to accept their proposal and leave her husband. The matter was of no intimate interest to Bill, in a torpor of relief himself, he sent the note by one of his own clerks, who had instructions to wait for an answer, as the job of man did not know what Mrs. Ryan might already have heard from Dominick.

It there its recipient had taken a state of agitated, quivering excitation. Mrs. Ryan had heard nothing from her son, and her hope of the separation had sunk to its lowest ebb. Not so president Cannon, who called up Dominick at the bank, asking him if it was true that his wife had left him, and beseeching him simply to tell her "yes" or "no." The young man, hampered by the publicity of his surroundings and his promise to Berry, answered her with the utmost brevity, feeling her that there had been a change in his domestic life, but that he could not enter into details now. He begged her to ask him no further questions, as he would be at home at three o'clock that afternoon, when he would explain the whole matter to her.

on both her children that she had long desired—Cornelia's would be a dowdy but well-bred day and Dominick's—"you Dominick and had been enough. She would go down to-morrow morning and see her lawyer about it.

At the same hour, in the house of the other rich man, the Bonanza King, having given the servants from the room with violent words that did not indicate bad humor so much as high spirits, told his daughter the story. He told it shorty, hardly more than the main facts, and when it was concluded, forbore to make comments or, in fact, to look at her. It was a great deliverance, but he was not quite sure that his darling would experience the frank, unadulterated joy that had possessed both himself and Mrs. Ryan without restraining comment. He did not know what to say to Rose. There were mysterious complications in her character that made him decide to confine his statement to a recital of facts, eliminating those candid expressions of feeling which he could permit himself when talking to Mrs. Ryan or Berry.

As soon as he had told it all he rose from his chair as if ending the

ASQUITH'S OLD HOME

Humble Birthplace of the Powerful British Premier.

Morley in Yorkshire, England, Now an Important Manufacturing and Mining Town of 30,000—Croft House Located There.

London.—In a small self-contained house, in a little town of 5,000 inhabitants was born in September, 1852, the man who now leads the government controlling the biggest and richest empire this world has ever known.

Yet this little town, Morley, in Yorkshire, England, has grown to be an important manufacturing and mining town of 30,000 inhabitants. The birthplace of Rt. Hon. Mr. Asquith, Orth House, is still in a good state of preservation, standing now as it has for nearly a century at least in its own grounds. Unassuming, and not at all pretentious, not remarkable for anything, but not homeliness and comfort, the house [illegible] Mr. Asquith's birthplace [illegible] ment to the man born in it, who has arrived at great position.

Yorkshiremen are not given to be little the success of their fellows, nor indeed to envy them any thing that might add to the glory of the county. In order that the world may know that it owed Mr. Asquith to Yorkshire—he left there at seven years of age—it was found that Mr. Asquith that his county was proud of him, a great celebration in his honor was had there recently.

On this occasion the prime minister was unable to be present, but enough of the brough, an honor which he deeply appreciated.

Mr. Asquith's career forgotten the little town in the West Riding. Once, when he was traveling in a speech to the peace rejoicing that followed the close of the Crimean war, he indulged in an interesting reminiscence.

Mr. Asquith's Birthplace at Morley.

"I remember well," he said, "carrying a small flag bearing a pacific inscription amongst the Sunday school children of the town."

This shows that Mr. Asquith's memory of Morley must be very tenacious, for he could have been only four years old at the time.

He was then a member of the Sunday school of Salem Congregation al chapel, now St Mary's Congregational church, once a Roman Catholic church.

The town is an important center of the woolen industry, and the woolen trader is by which Morley thrives, and the crisher of the clogs of girl yellowness. Mr. Asquith's first steep streets morning and evening, strap-footed collins, always laughing and joking, as if they did not follow the most perilous of occupations, so in and fro between their homes and the pits, and pale-faced weavers, who work at the looms, where they [illegible] each one had stepped out of the pages of "Blue Jackets."

There is said to be no one in Morley now who remembers Mr. Asquith as a boy, and he is very positive.

DE MAUPASSANT AS CANNIBAL

Famous French Novelist Said to Have Had Human Flesh on His Table.

Paris.—Guy de Maupassant as a cannibal is the subject of a remarkable reminiscence just published for the first time by a well-known medical man, Maurice Pillet, in the scientific Review. Pillet recounts that one day the great writer was coming out of his club when a carman suddenly fell from the top of a tall dray at his feet. De Maupassant picked him up and took him to a hospital, but the man died on the way. Asking to see the house surgeon, who was a friend of his, De Maupassant begged him, as soon as the autopsy was over, to let him have a piece of the dead man's flesh. The next day the doctor sent a small quantity of the unusual meat to De Maupassant, who at once went it down to his kitchen, with instructions to "fry it for breakfast." After finishing the grim dish De Maupassant decided that a human being had never no attractions for the European gourmet, as the human meat was very insipid and tasted like overdone veal.

Another "Det and Dash" Romance.

Hartford, Conn.—Another "det and dash" romance has reached a happy culmination. Miss Georgiana Southworth, a telegraph operator employed in the Postal telegraph office here, married Edward A. Conroy of New York office over the wire some years ago. Miss Southworth has never met Morse messages to each other. A short time ago they had a formal, face-to-face meeting and their marriage followed.

Diamond Ring in Clam Shell.

Patchogue, N. Y.—Walking along the Water Island beach, near here, Augustus Hayes, a local barber, picked up a clam and opened it. He found a ring set with three large diamonds wedged inside the shell.

CHRISTIAN ESKIMO LOSES ALL

Refused to Go Through Rites of His People and is Promptly Disowned.

New York.—The whole life of the primitive Eskimo is governed by precedent. Although outwardly the freest and most irresponsible being in the world, he is in reality the slave of public opinion and of the numberless customs and superstitions of his ancestors. The ways of his fathers are the ways of his sons, and the laws of the old men and witch-doctors, who measure on ancient precedent like the Pharisees of old, is the standard by which he lives.

For an Eskimo to break one of these numerous rules is to render himself a social outcast. Although treated with kindness, he is no longer reckoned as a member of his tribe. I was my member such a case on the Hudson, a half-breed Eskimo of the Danish, embraced Christianity, being converted on a trip to Nome by one of the first missionaries. Being a very conscientious man, he soon recognized the incompatibility of remaining his old faith and conforming to the worship of his people. The spirit of the Boston Commonwealth was in him. He refused to go through the usual rites of his people and prayed to the god of the white stranger at home. As a result he was forbidden his place in the village known as the meeting place, where every man has his recognized station, carefully graded according to merit. His son was not allowed to dance with the young men or witness any of the ceremonies or witch-doctoring reserved for the men; his daughter could not take part in the annual dance of the women, nor was anyone allowed to speak to them except their kin in marriage. They all may be Eskimos strangers and left the old man's house desolate, but he stuck to his faith to the last. In my have seen the Eskimo in his glory, as I ever met. Always cheerful, always ready to help, living ideally the life that was in him, he was the only Eskimo I ever saw who was brave enough to withstand the witch-doctor.

2 VEGETABLES ON ONE VINE

Old Virginia Man Grows Potatoes and Tomatoes From the Same Plant.

Martinsburg, W. Va.—George Bishop, a sexagenarian years old, a horticulturist of Shady Grove, has duplicated a feat he accomplished when he was a boy of fourteen, considerably before the time of Luther Burbank, the "plant wizard."

Bishop has been successful in grafting a potato stalk on a tomato vine and having the plant reproduce itself, and has demonstrated that it can grow over before has been accomplished.

When fourteen years old, Bishop, by natural instinct and some knowledge of grafting them together and having the plant produce both tomatoes and potatoes. He, however, was never able to perfect his method. For fifty eight years he has toiled patiently in an effort to create a new plant that would produce tomatoes on the top above ground and potatoes on the roots below the soil.

But the old horticulturist at last has achieved success. On his big farm in Shady Grove can be seen several of the hybrid tomato-potato plants.

Bishop said there is no question as to the success of his experiments. He said that he has so far perfected his system of grafting the two plants as to make it certain both vegetables will ultimately will be raised on one plant.

MILLION TRAVEL LABOR DAY

Great Influx and Exodus in New York Include 100,000 Vacationists on Way Home.

New York.—It is estimated that the Labor Day holiday crowd of city dwellers have exceeded 1,500,000 persons, including 150,000 vacationists on their way home, and 400,000 bound to the south, west and New England. Yet despite the unprecedented crowd the sum of travel probably was the large for a single day in the history of the metropolis.

At one of the big railroad terminals it was reported that Saturday had three days 191 extra trains had been run, carrying 18,000 passengers. Big gangs headed in great piles at the railroad terminals today bore evidence of the exodus of the city folk.

WAR REMINISCENCES

HARD BATTLE AT DOLUSTEE

Brief History of Struggles at Marianna and Dolustee in Which Many Negroes Participated.

In response to a request the editor of the National Tribune gives the following brief history of the battles at Marianna and Dolustee:

Not being able to make any progress in the overdrious season of 1863, General Gillmore decided to make an expedition into Florida, and on January 13, 1864, General Seymour embarked on 20 steamers and eight transports at Port Royal, and the St John's river Jacksonville was easily occupied, with only a few shots fired, and February 6 our troops moved out along the railroad to our outposts at Baldwin, 26 miles and 36 miles distant. Col. Guy V. Henry, in command of the cavalry, made a successful dash into Pinnegan's camp, capturing four guns, a large amount of equipage and commissary stores. At daldwin he captured another gun, and then we fell back

Michigan has more apple trees than California, Washington and Oregon combined. Our apples are every bit as luscious, and when our growers spray, prune, grade and pack the fruit with the same skill that the far western states attend to theirs, Michigan apples will prove an immeasurable source of profit and comfort to the commonwealth.

Secretary McAdoo has reprimanded Captain John G. Berry, commanding the revenue cutter Tuscarora, and suspended him from duty on three-quarters pay for three months. Captain Berry was court-martialed recently on charges of neglect of duty and violation of regulations in connection with the grounding of the Tuscarora at Vital Point, Mich., on June 30.

General Superintendent W. C. Hurst, of the Pere Marquette, has announced that the road has recently purchased four new Mikado type of locomotives. These are on the way to the system now from the shops in Schenectady, N. Y. The engines cost about $35,000 each and are over ten per cent bigger than the largest type used on the system at present. The engines are eight drivers with trailer and pony truck and weigh 204,400 pounds. They loom up large beside the consolidated type which has heretofore been the "mogul" of the road.

Eat More Apples

The domestic science teachers of Western Michigan are being supplied with copies of Housekeeper's Apple book which contains "197 delicious health giving apple receipts, each tested by an expert in domestic economy." The books are distributed for the purpose of re-establishing King Apple upon his throne in the American kitchen.

A few years since the per capita consumption of the apple was larger than it is to-day. The advertising that was done during recent years in behalf of the orange, the pineapple and the other sub-tropical fruits has caused these to replace, to a certain extent, the best of all fruit, the apple. Now, however, the value of the apple is to be preached throughout the land and everybody who has occasion to cook, or eat, is to be told about this fruit.

Caribou Horns.

Not one out of every ten female caribou has horns. When they do have them, they are much smaller than those of the bull. The horns of the female have, however, in general many more branches than those of the bull, and they are much more regularly and finely formed. The cows carry their horns much longer than the bulls. They have been seen with their horns in the month of April. The old bulls shed their horns from the 20th to the last of November. They hardly ever carry them after the month of November. The young bucks shed their horns the 1st of December until the middle of February. The younger the animal the longer he retains his horns.

The Sun From a Balloon.

At the height of two miles the sun shines with a fierce intensity unknown below, where the dust and the denser air scatters the rays, which, thus diffused, lose their intensity while illuminating every nook and corner of our houses. At heights exceeding five miles this diffused light is mostly gone, and the sun shines a glowing ball, sharply outlined in a sky of which the blue is so dark as to approach blackness. At the outer limits of the atmosphere the sun would appear a brilliant star of massive size among other stars, and if one stepped from its burning rays into shadow he would enter Egyptian darkness.

Cardamoms.

The flavoring spices known as cardamoms are not so well known in this country as they deserve to be. In Ceylon, Consul Baker noticed that nearly ten planter devotes a portion of the cultivation of cardamoms as a side issue. In India the well to do classes make large use of them in flavoring curries, cakes and confectionery.

FIRE PREVENTION.

State Fire Warden Conducting A State-Wide Campaign of Education.

Thursday, Oct. 9, was Fire Prevention day in Michigan, and in many of the cities of the state the occasion was appropriately observed State Fire Marshal John Winship urged the people of Michigan to be alert on this day the work of prevention for them by investigating the condition of chimneys, stovepipes, electric wires and otherwise eliminating such fire hazards as come under their control.

"During the month of September loss in Michigan amounted to more than $5,000,000, according to Winship, which he says is a cost to each citizen of $12 per capita. He says that statistics have proven that 50 per cent of the fires are preventable.

"During the month of September amount 250 fire losses have been reported to the state fire marshal's department as having taken place in Michigan, during that month and more than a hundred of these could have been prevented," said Winship.

"It seems to me that in this age when so much is spoken and think so much about the conservation of our natural resources that the gospel of fire prevention should also be popular.

"There is danger lurking in every building in need repair, every defective chimney, every defective flue in one which it belonges, and the entire community in which that house is located. Every pile of inflammable rubbish only awaits the touch of a match or spark to become a living conflagration, perhaps fatal to life. Every badly protected and badly arranged stove pipe or oil can is at the slightest provocation to spring into life and sweep over the town of business blocks and this department urges that, before winter sets in our people give a little heed to the matter of prevention against fire which will save thousands of dollars to the people of the state."

DUTIES OF NEWSPAPERS

An Editor Should Have Opinions on Public Questions and Fearlessly Express Them.

Charles H. Betts, the retiring president of the Western New York Newspaper Publishers' association, in his annual address made some pertinent remarks on the duties of the editor. He said:

"The editor should study public question, and after due consideration, when he has arrived at a conclusion that he believes to be right, he should fearlessly express it, without fear or favor and without regard to consequences.

"He will make enemies, but it is his duty to make enemies. He will make strong enemies he usually also makes strong friends. He will be balanced thing by making strong friends. It is such men who accomplish results.

"If he does anything worth while he must hit some one. He must hit some sham or fraud. He must oppose some interest.

"But when a man has succeeded—ridiculed his position and his arguments have finally won the approval of the thoughtful and intelligent, his enemies frequently become his friends.

An Interesting Social Event

A very pleasant social function was pulled off at the Elston Hotel Sunday afternoon when Miss Kenning gave a dinner party in honor of Miss Anna Mae Winnie Weaver.

There were hand-painted place cards and an abundance of flowers, and the menu was fully up to the Elston standard. It was a happy and a merry party when our reporter broke in. Following is a list of those present: Miss Kenning, Winnie Weaver, Josie See, Mary Finucan, Irene Finucan, Ruth Emery, Lillian Emery, Maud Black, Mildred Johnson, Zita O'Neill, Mildred Pepping, Mrs. Henry Waller.

The only dark spot on the function was when our reporter got mixed up with the bunch in a photograph surreptitiously taken by one of the party.

Finucan—Weaver

Cards are out announcing the marriage on the 14th, in this city of Mr. Geo. Finucan to Miss Winnie Weaver, both of Charlevoix.

The contracting parties are among our most popular young people, and they have the good wishes of a large circle of friends.

The ceremony was performed at five o'clock in the morning, at St. Mary's Catholic church, and Mr. and Mrs. Finucan left immediately thereafter for Petoskey for breakfast. They will take a wedding trip to Detroit and other southern Michigan points.

Annual School Officers Meeting

The Annual School Officers' Meeting for Charlevoix county will be held in the Normal Room in the High School Building in the City of Charlevoix on Wednesday, October 22, beginning at 9.30 a. m.

Mr. O. N. Otwell, Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction will have charge of the meeting. Mr. Otwell is a pleasing instructor and is thoroughly versed in matters pertaining to rural school work. He will discuss school matters in general and will give special attention to the latest school laws.

School directors are entitled to compensation and traveling expenses, and it is their duty to attend this meeting. All officers are urged to attend as they will be well repaid for the time and trouble taken.

FIRST AUTO ACCIDENT

Rev. Quinton Walker's Car Runs Over Man On Antrim Street—Misunderstanding of Intentions

Through a mutual misunderstanding of intentions, Arthur Woodcock, Freeman on the steamer Beaver, and living at 411 Antrim street, had his left leg broken at 5:45 Friday evening, by being run over by Rev. Quenton Walker's car driven by himself.

Mr. Walker was returning from the country on Antrim street at a speed of five miles per hour. He was on the right hand side of the street and about to turn north at Burdick's store corner, when Mr. Woodcock, on a bicycle, approached on the north side of the street. Mr. Walker slowed down to let him pass, Woodcock at the same time stopping. Upon this Mr. Walker again started up, Woodcock starting at the same time. The car struck him, knocking him down, the car passing over his left leg.

One reporter interviewed both parties and both tell the same story. Mr. Wooden attaches no blame to Mr. Baker. To quote his own words: "It was an accident and nobody is to blame."

It is amazing what reports will get abroad if one a mistake is made up in an affair of this kind. If we had taken as facts the reports about Saturday morning, we would have expected to hear of the preacher's arrest and imprisonment, and a peremptory demand made for his resignation as pastor.

In an affair of this kind a minister should be judge by the same standard as other men, "nothing extenuate, and naught set down in malice." There is a certain element in this, as in every town, who are loaded for priests or preachers. We have had very much experience with preachers. Some have been wise and honest, some foolish and dishonest; some crazy; but all human men, when the trial balance is struck we take our chances on the proposition that the world is better with than without them.

Our Progress Steadily Onward

The permanent resident of Charlevoix is very apt to lose sight of what is really going on under his nose in the way of expansion and improvement.

Charlevoix does not think that it never had a boom." A boom and a reaction are always tied together in the cord long or short. The growth of the town has been steady and substantial. Its improvements have been of a stable order. As to its business activities, it may be said that were the "bumps" to be leveled and the business of the town spread out over the twelve months of the year, Charlevoix would be classed as a lively burg. And in looking into the future we can see a steady increase of the increment that has made Charlevoix fairly prosperous. There are those who sneer at a "three month town," forgetting that in reality it is a nine month industry, or better.

Our progress the past year substantiates these deductions. Building has exceeded that of any previous year; waste places have been made habitable; much has been expended to make homes more comfortable and attractive; sewer and water mains have been extended; and modern sanitary utilities are being used more extensively, under the impulse of the general forward movement; our public utilities are ample; the magnificent results which adorn our street have grown to forest dimension, and our streets are the envy of every less progressive town in the region.

Our schools are rated high in the State educational system; our public library is our pride, our church organizations are prosperous, and our harbor facilities are equal to any in the straits region, and our facilities for lake travel are unexcelled. Our banks are financially sound, and every year finds the farmers of the section more prosperous.

There are no signs of retrogression or decay; but rather, abundant indications that the growth and up-to-date development of Charlevoix will continue.

Put This in Your Hat

There will not be quite as much election red tape to be gone through with next year, by the voters, as they have had for two years past, but there still is sufficient left for all practical purposes. The enrollment features are cut out entirely, but the dates to be remembered by interested parties are:

March 15—Last day for filing petitions for city office.

March 21—City primary registration.

March 23—City primary election. (If no more than two candidate's petitions are filed for any city office, there need be no city primary registration or election.)

April 4—Registration day.

April 6—Election day.

August 25—General Fall Primaries.

Within 10 days from primaries, the county candidates elect chairman and secretary of county committees.

Within 15 days from primary are held the county conventions.

Within 40 days from primary must be held the State conventions.

October 24—Fall registration day.

November 3—Fall election.

DEATH OF CAPTAIN PLUM

Accident On Tuscarora

The Passing of Veteran Soldier and Sailor—An Upright and Popular Citizen

Captain Henry C. Plum died Sunday night at his home in this city, aged 70 years. Capt. Plum had for some time been suffering with serious bladder trouble, and, as a last and desperate resort submitted to a surgical operation which, on ordeal that he was unable to survive.

Deceased was a veteran of the civil war, having enlisted in 1861 in the twelfth Michigan infantry, later serving one year in a Michigan cavalry regiment.

He was a sailor by profession, and has had master's paper for many years. He became identified with Charlevoix marine interests twenty-five years ago, when he brought the tug J. W. Parmelee here for the Consable Fish Co., of Petoskey. He was for many years master of boats on Grand Traverse Bay.

The Lou A. Cummings and Crescent having been two of his commands, and he sailed out of this port in several local craft. He was always considered a safe and reliable, and enjoyed an excellent reputation wherever he was known. He was a man of high character and most exemplary habits.

Besides a wife, he leaves four children—Mrs. Ethel Sanders, of Traverse City, Mrs. Ora Biggie, of Beaver Island; Mrs. Fred Marsh, Charlevoix, and Charles Plum, of Cleveland.

WHILE YOU ARE TALKING

About Good Roads You Should Hark Back to the Pioneer Days When Geo. H. Van Pelt Was Shouting His Head Off

Away back, years and years ago, before the good roads spasm got hold of the country, there were people in this section who were fond of calling Geo. Van Pelt a crank, because he was always and eternally pounding for good roads. It was "the voice crying in the wilderness," but, as the preaching of St. John bore fruit in after years, so has that of George Van Pelt.

If George Van Pelt was a crank, then the prophecies that they are the cranks who move the world is correct, for it was the continuous pounding of such men as Van Pelt and Earl that caused people to think and then figure the thing out.

It was a simple proposition, and that money spent for good roads is well spent. Probably no man in this section did more in the beginning to bring it into the general movement and awaken the people to the vital importance of the cause, than George Van Pelt. For twenty years George Van Pelt and the good roads movement have been synonymous terms, and, in the beginning, he was ridiculed by the people of this town and

WILL EXPLAIN TAX

TREASURY DEPARTMENT TO GIVE INFORMATION OF THE NEW INCOME LAW.

HULL EXPLAINS OPERATION

Representative Who Drew Measure Holds These Features Should Be Own Business Can Execute Return Very Quickly.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The new income tax will begin to make its appearance in offices and the treasury department is preparing to answer them.

One of the first steps taken to get general information before the public was to distribute income tax blanks through post offices, internal revenue offices and other federal agencies.

Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee, who drew the income tax provision of the tariff bill, made public on Monday a detailed explanation of the tax plan as it will touch the individual citizen.

The new regulations soon to be promulgated will make clear to every taxpayer the requirements of the law and its application to income derived from the various kinds of business, said Mr. Hull. "Any person who keeps familiar with his business affairs during the year should have no difficulty in executing his tax return.

"The normal tax is divided into two phases, the 'normal' tax of one per cent on the net income exceeding $3,000 and the additional tax beginning with an extra one per cent, above $20,000 and graduated to six per cent above $500,000. Wherever the income tax is paid at the source, by a corporation for its employes or in similar cases, only the one per cent normal tax is so paid. The individual has to pay any additional tax himself. The normal tax of one per cent during the tax to be withheld at the source does not take effect until November 1, 1913.

"For the first year the citizen will make return to the local internal revenue collector before March 1, 1914, as to his earnings from March 1, 1913, to the end of this year. The collector will notify him June 1 how much he owes, and the tax must be paid by June 30. After next year the tax will apply on the full calendar year.

"If the income of a person is under $3,000 or if the income tax has been withheld for payment at the source, or if the same is to be paid elsewhere in the United States, affidavit may be made to such fact and thereupon no return will be required.

"The tax covers all income of citizens of the United States whether living here or abroad; those of foreigners living in the United States and the net income derived from property owned or business carried on in the United States by persons living abroad.

"The net income included all profits from every kind of business, income for personal services; income from trade, profit, salaries, business or commerce, from sales or dealings in personal property or real estate; from interest, rent, dividends from securities for all business carried on for gain.

"Bequests will not be considered income, nor will gifts made to a beneficiary or returned to the interest person as a 'gift up' or 'mortgage' will be taxable. Interest in such property will be included as income.

"The amount that may be deducted from a gross income includes the cost of carrying on business, actual losses, depreciation allowances and the expense for bad debts incurred. Losses or losses cannot be deducted but one money spent for permanent improvements to property.

"The conditions and the law having the handling of interest, rents, salaries or other portions of the income of any citizen are compelled to deduct the tax for the individual and pay it to the treasury. The individual then will receive a receipt showing he has paid the tax."

SULZER GAINS TRICE

RULING OF JUDGE FAVORS NEW YORK EXECUTIVE.

Charges That Governor Bartered With Three Legislators on Bills Is Knocked Out.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Governor Sulzer won a flight victory over his accusers Monday at his impeachment trial.

Presiding Judge Cullen of the high court barred the introduction of evidence intended to prove that the governor had made a corrupt political bargain with Assemblyman Patrick F. Greene county. He held also that the testimony brought forward to show that Sulzer had made similar bargains with Assemblyman Kessel of Oswego and Assemblyman Frank of Saratoga was incomplete.

The legislature had to do in each case with blackwater and bridge improvements provided for in bills to which the assemblymen desired the governor's signature. In the Patrick case, however, no charge was included in the articles of impeachment, and on this ground Judge Cullen threw out the allegation.

With the introduction of evidence of three more manufacturers, individuals not reported in Sulzer's sworn statement of campaign receipts, and some evidence concerning the governor's alleged Wall street speculation the managers of the case drew near the end of their case. Two more witnesses will be heard, and then the prosecution will rest.

The testimony of Frederick L. Colwell, the governor's alleged "dummy" in Wall street transactions, is in a sensation, according to counsel for Sulzer, who said he intends to certify for the defense under stipulation that he be not arrested for refusing to obey the subpoena of the Sulzer committee. Counsel for the managers have not decided whether to agree to this stipulation.

If a subpoena can be served on him, J. D. Gray of the stock exchange firm of Fuller & Gray will be a witness. His partner, Arthur L. Fuller, testified during the day on Monday that Gray had paid "a purchased 300 shares of "Big Four" stock, for which $17,000 cash was paid.

The assembly managers introduced into the evidence a bank account of Hugh J. Reilly, a railroad builder for the Cuban government, who recently announced he had loaned Governor Sulzer $26,000. Reilly had relations with Sulzer when the latter was chairman of the ways and means committee in congress.

Governor Sulzer tried to persuade contributors to his campaign fund not to testify against him, according to evidence adduced at his impeachment trial Friday.

GEORGIA CONGRESSMAN DEAD

Representative Roddenbery, Who Served in Congress Three Sessions, Dies After One Week's Illness.

Thomasville, Ga., Sept. 27.—United States Representative Henry D. Roddenbery, who had been ill at his home here since last Friday, died on Thursday. Nervous breakdown had prompted him to leave Washington a week ago, but his condition was not believed a short rest would restore him to health, and on until Sunday did his condition become serious.

Representative Roddenbery was born on a farm in Decatur county, Georgia, January 12, 1859. He was graduated from mercer university at Macon, Ga., in 1891, and in 1894 was admitted to the bar.

Congressman Roddenbery was elected to congress from the second georgia district in the sixty-first congress, February, 1910, and was reelected to the sixty-second and sixty-third congresses. Mrs. Roddenbery and five children survive.

FINISHING TOUCHES ON THE GATUN LOCKS AT PANAMA

This is a splendid view of the upper Gatun locks, taken from the center wall and looking north along upper Gatun locks, showing the almost completed condition of the locks of the Panama canal. They will be been on either side to the foreground, being held back by the gates. In the left background is the Gatun lighthouse. The unsightly tracks on the center structure will soon be removed, having been placed there only temporarily during the construction of the center wall.

WORK ON PANAMA CANAL NEAR END

Waters of Gatun Lake Turned Into the Culebra Cut.

BIG DIKE IS TO BE REMOVED

This Will Mark the Practical Completion of the Big Waterway After Nine Years of Labor by an Army of Men.

Colon, Panama, Oct. 1.—The Panama canal stands today virtually complete.

The preliminary steps toward the destruction of the Gatubun dike, which until the present time, has held the waters of Gatun lake out of the Culebra cut, were taken today when the waters in four great 24-inch pipes which pierce the dike were opened and the waters of the lake began flowing into the Culebra cut. Within a few days, it is expected, enough water will have flowed into the cut to form a cushion and prevent the damage that would be done if the dike were blown up and the waters allowed to rush into the empty cut.

The final destruction of the big dike is scheduled for October 10, when charges of dynamite placed in holes already drilled in the dike will be exploded. The explosion of these charges will not completely destroy the dike, but will weaken it and leave on the dirt so that the force of the waters from Gatun lake will carry it away. Steam shovels will remove the remnants of the dike, leaving an open channel from ocean to ocean.

Canal Really Complete Now.

Although the canal will not be officially declared completed for some time, and the formal opening of the waterway to the commerce of the world more than a year distant, the canal engineers look upon the destruction of the Gaubou dike as marking the real completion of the canal. The big engineering feats have all been accomplished, the excavation work practically has been completed, and the great locks have been completed. The work that remains to be done is largely detail, and as but a trifle gay as compared with that which has been done. More dirt is to be removed from the channel, but this will be done with suction dredges floating upon the waters of the canal. There still remain some finishing touches to be placed upon the locks, but this work will take comparatively little time and offer no engineering difficulties such as have been encountered in the past.

The fact that the canal stands practically complete more than a year before the time originally set as the date for its completion is one of the remarkable features of the work. When Count de Lesseps, the great French engineer, abandoned his efforts to build the Panama canal after eight years of labor, he had scarcely made a beginning upon the gigantic task. In also years, the American engineers, starting almost at the same point as do Lesseps, for the latter's work was of little value to the Americans, have virtually completed the undertaking. When the work was started the world scoffed at the idea that it would be completed within the time set. Yet but half are now left to the American army engineers who have more than kept their work, despite unforeseen difficulties that have beset them at every hand.

Goethals to Make Final Test.

The first vessel to pass through the canal probably will be a boat of the isthmian canal commission. Col. George W. Goethals, chairman of the commission and chief engineer of the canal, and his principal assistants, will make the first voyage through the canal in a boat specially fitted for the occasion. The boat will be towed through the canal by mules. Within another month it is expected the waters in Gatun lake will have risen high enough to bring the waters in the entire canal up to the deep water level required for the passage of the largest ships.

It is said that as long ago as the early part of August, assurances were given Washington officials that if the government should take over the entire Atlantic battleship fleet could be put through the canal into Pacific waters within 60 days from that date. The work has been hurried with that end in view, it is said, as no emergency has existed, but this assurance is an indication of the belief of the engineers that their work is now practically finished.

Culebra Cut Caused Trouble.

The excavation of the Culebra cut, into which the water has just been turned, has been one of the engineering feats connected with the building of the canal, and has caused the engineers more trouble than any other portion of the big "ditch." To Col. D. D. Gaillard, the engineer of the canal division, is given the credit for carrying this portion of the work through to a successful termination.

The disastrous slides in the cut were encouraging to the engineers, nullifying in a few hours the work of months, and at times it seemed as if the Culebra cut would be a veritable grave for the hopes of the canal builders. The failure of the French has been attributed to a large extent to the fact that the workmen could not survive in the fever and pest-ridden country.

The building of the great locks which raise a vessel to a height of 87 feet, and lower it to sea level at the other end, lower it the same distance, nullifying in a few hours the work of months, and at times it seemed as if the Culebra cut would be a veritable grave for the hopes of the canal builders. The failure of the French has been attributed to a large extent to the fact that the workmen could not survive in the fever and pest-ridden country.

The building of the great locks which raise a vessel to a height of 87 feet, and lower it to sea level at the other end, lower it the same distance at the other end, has been in many ways the greatest of the canal assistants, Colonel Hodges and Lieutenant Colonel Sibert, who directed work in installing the immense locks and mechanism and supervised the part of the operating machinery of the canal, and his ability to overcome all obstacles and to complete the work in all him a genius. The building, polishing and construction of the gates constitute one of the delicate problems of lock construction, and the proper handling of this problem has been Colonel Hodges's contribution to the success of the canal.

Lieutenant Colonel Sibert has had charge of the building of the great dam and locks at Gatun, in addition to undertaking the task as long as the civic service in the Philippines, and he is regarded by many as a Napoleon as well as an engineer.

Feasible Dream of Centuries.

Through the work of these men all of them members of Uncle Sam's civic canal service, and the creation of this lake, together with the construction of the locks, has completed another great engineering feat in the construction of the canal. Gatun lake is a feasible body of water covering about 164 square miles of surface and was created by the building of the immense Gatun dam and the impounding of the wild waters of Chagres river. Beneath the waters of Gatun lake lies what a few months ago was the valley of the Chagres, dotted with native cabins and plantations. The channel of the canal passes through this lake for a distance of 23 miles with a width varying from 500 to 1,000 feet.

At the northern end of the lake the canal emerges in the reality an artificial ridge more than a mile and a half long. Figure alone give an adequate idea of the magnitude of this dam. Nearly half a mile wide at its base, about 400 feet wide at the water surface, and 100 feet wide at the top, the dike which many engineers predicted would never withstand the rush of the Chagres waters, is admitted now to be so strong that nothing short of an earthquake such as has never been known in the Central American region can harm it. The dam, together with the lake and the Culebra cut, so gigantic are the proportions of each, dwarf the huge engineering works of the canal that in themselves have challenged the admiration of the world.

World Gives Goethals Credit.

To Col. George Goethals, chairman of the isthmian canal commission, chief engineer of the commission and governor of the canal zone, the world gives the credit for the successful completion of the Panama canal. Col. Goethals could not have accomplished his task without the assistance of such men as Col. W. C. Hodges, Lieut. Col. David Du B. Gaillard and Lieut. Col. William L. Sibert, army engineers, who have had charge of various phases of the work, but Col. Goethals is recognized as the real builder of the canal.

Under Colonel Goethals the greatest part of the $375,000,000 which the canal will have cost when it is completed has been spent. It has been by far the costliest engineering project in the world. Nearly three-fifths of a billion dollars has been spent in digging a 40-mile "ditch." This means that the Panama canal has cost the United States $10,000,000 a mile.

Over $15,000,000 of the total amount spent has been used to make the canal zone habitable and sanitary. It has been suggested that this is an enormous amount of money to spend in cleaning up a place in which few people will reside permanently, but the engineers say that the sanitation of the canal zone was the chief factor in making the canal a reality. The failure of the French has been attributed to a large extent to the fact that the workmen could not survive in the fever and pest-ridden country.

AMERICANS IN PERIL

RIOTING IS FEARED AT PIEDRAS NEGRAS MEX. AS FEDERALS NEAR TOWN.

RUSH U. S. TROOPS TO SCENE

Attempt to Molest Foreign Property or Destroy Bridge Will Be Forcibly Opposed—Many Americans Property in Mad Rush.

Piedras Negras, Mex., Oct. 2.—Torreon has gripped this city, the provincial capital of Coahuila, in the revolutionaries, with the victorious northern march of the federals and the withdrawal of rebels from the surrounding devastated country.

On the 1st the instruction of United States Consul Blocker, 72 American residents of Piedras Negras joined the exodus and hundreds of persons crossed the international bridge into Eagle Pass on Tuesday, never carrying such of their possessions as they could hurriedly pack back by the gates.

Consul Blocker's warning to foreigners that the Piedras Negras himself grew was in anticipation of rioting should the federals attempt to destroy the bridge, or molest property belonging to Americans or other foreigners.

Reports from the front indicate the federals are closing in on the town of Sabinas, from which the constitutionalists, in charge of Colonel Emilio Madero, the brother of the revolutionary president, are retiring, according to refugees who have come across the line from Hermosillo, Sonora, Mexico.

The states whose representatives agreed to the secession plan are: Sonora, Durango, Coahuila, Sinaloa and Chihuahua. Only the rebel state government in Chihuahua joined in the movement.

Venustiano Carranza is to be president of the new confederacy, say the refugees, and Pancho Villa will be General Angeles, a former federal commissioner, as minister of war. Augustin Lanasaat, minister of hacienda, and Juan Sanchez Azcona, minister of foreign relations. Villa, it is said, will also be given a place in the cabinet.

Lower California is not included in the new government, said.

HOUSE O. K.'S TARIFF BILL

Conference Agreement is Indorsed After Long Debate by Strict Party Vote.

Washington, Oct. 2.—The Democratic tariff revision bill left the house Friday for the senate, the party leaders hoped would be its last journey to the senate. After many hours of debate the house adopted the house conference agreement on the bill, 254 to 85, almost a strict party vote, and by this action gave its indorsement to everything in the measure except the cotton futures tax.

At the end of a short but bitter fight, the house conferees, led by Representative Underwood, the Democratic tariff revision leader, carried through the Smith-Lever cotton futures tax amendment by a vote of 171 to 141.

Democrats and Republicans alike joined in the vigorous demand that the whole subject be carried over to the next session of congress. The cotton futures tax question now rests on the shoulders of the senate.

The house concurred in the Clark amendment put into the bill by the senate, but added the Smith-Lever-Underwood plan as another amendment.

Unless the senate will accept this change, which has the indorsement of the president, the whole cotton futures question will again have to be considered in the joint conference committee and again reported to both houses for their consideration.

The conference report will be called up in the senate on Chairman Simmons of the finance committee.

LAMB MADE ALL THE TROUBLE

By Comparison, the Lion Was Inoffensive and Mild—Butts Like a Battering Ram.

The tidings that a lamb is appearing on the stage in the production of "Joseph and His Brethren" has been added fuel and kid: Several correspondents have written to say that a lamb should also appear, the partaking side by side. But that has already been done, by Lord George Sanger, and thereby hangs a tale.

When the sale of the old showman's menagerie took place, the animals were put together and bought by Mr. Bostock, the famous Indian animal trainer, who thought the lamb had got pretty well used to the lions, to say least of it. A few days afterwards an acquaintance asked Mr. Gilmore how the lamb was getting on.

"I wish I had never seen them," said the showman gloomily.

"Why, is he savage?"

"Savage is not the word for it. He won't let anyone come near him."

"Indeed! I thought he looked such a mild little lamb."

"Lion! Lion be blowed! It's the lamb I mean. Butts like a battering-ram."—London Mail.

Building Ships on Mountains.

That building on a mountain top sounds peculiar, to say the least, but such is being done in Switzerland, says the American Machinist. Bolzer Bros have under construction at Wilterbar a 200-foot passenger boat for Lake Geneva. It will be fitted with Diesel engines of 400 horsepower. Sacher Weiss & Co. at Zurich, are building a 200-foot tugboat for the Hirsch on Southern France.

In both cases the vessels after erection at the work must be disassembled and shipped in a knocked-down condition to the place of launching, there to be reassembled.

The turbine-building firm of Escher Wyss & Co. at Zurich, Switzerland, has under way the largest Pelton water-wheel ever built. It is for a Brazilian concern, and is to be used in connection with the Rio Sao Paulo, a tributary of the Rio Tiete, in the state of Sao Paulo, Brazil. The wheel is to be 10 feet in diameter and will develop 10,000 horsepower. The head is 1,310 feet, and the wheel will revolve at the rate of 375 revolutions per minute. This turbine is installed in a cavern 1,000 feet long, 40 feet wide and 60 feet in depth. (3,280 feet).

His Advice Worked.

"And don't forget, to climb, boy," said the father to his son, who had been a pretty good boy, "climb as far as you can."

"I won't forget, dad," said the boy, obediently.

He didn't forget.

Three days later he climbed over the fence of some girls' school, dashed sophomoric and, climbing the grassed trees, he carved his initials within, yanked it from its fastenings, threw it within a dozen feet of some of his fellow students that a score of scholarships couldn't equal.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

DIDN'T KNOW

That Coffee Was Causing Her Trouble.

So common is the use of coffee as a beverage, many do not think it is the cause of many obscure ills which are often attributed to "old age."

The easiest way to find out for oneself is to quit the coffee for a while, at least, and note results. A Virginia lady found out in this way. Will also learned of a new beverage that is delicious as well as pleasant to drink. She writes:

"I was 40 years old and all my life, up to a year and a half ago, I had suffered from terrible headaches.

"Dyspepsia, severe headaches and heart weakness made me feel worse times as though I was about to die. After drinking a cup or two of hot coffee, my heart would go like a clock without a pendulum. A other time it would almost stop and I was so nervous I did not like to be alone.

"If I took a walk for exercise, as my doctor told me to do, my heart would go so fast and hard that I was afraid I'd fall as I was sinking, and this would frighten me so terribly. My limbs would swell, refuse to support me, and the pity of it all was, I did not know that coffee was causing the trouble.

"Reading in the papers that many persons were relieved of such ailments by leaving off coffee and taking to Postum, I got my husband to bring home a package of Postum and followed the directions and I liked the first cup. It was delicious and I was so nervous I had been using Postum short enough to see what a great difference it made in my nerves and heart action. We now use it all the time and we have so much to be thankful for. Our boy, who was nervous, is now a fine, healthy young man. My idea of the wide spread complaint of the high cost of living is that people are not temperate in supplying their three principal wants, namely: food, clothing and shelter. Some people cut down on food and clothing and spend an extravagant amount for shelter. Others indulge themselves in rich foods that are absolutely unnecessary. Still others like to live in fashionable quarters and neglect their food and clothing. There's a reason" for Postum.

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for copy of the little book "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled.

Instant Postum is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30 cups to a pound package.

Both are delicious.

Some Truth in Air Action That Present Generation Considers Too Many "Wants" as "Needs."

A woman who has been observing people and their ways, says that she is convinced that the excess of living today is the cause of much of our indigence. People want so much more than they formerly did, or at any rate, they want it so much more they often did without it, for experience teaches us that we can do without and have so hard to have without regard to expense. Some years ago, we used to say, "My idea of the wide spread complaint of the high cost of living is that people are not temperate in supplying their three principal wants, namely: food, clothing and shelter. Some people cut down on food and clothing and spend an extravagant amount for shelter. Others indulge themselves in rich foods that are absolutely unnecessary. Still others like to live in fashionable quarters and neglect their food and clothing. There's a reason" for Postum.

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for copy of the little book "The Road to Wellville."

Postum Powder is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30 cups to a pound package.

Both are delicious.

PART ONE

CHAPTER I.

On the Labrador.

Hectates by Mr. Jesse Smith.

Don't you write anything down yet 'cause I ain't ready.

If I wrote this yarn myself, I'd make it good and red from tip to tip, chaw up, teeth bare, fur crawling with emotions. It wouldn't be dull, no, or evidence.

But then it's to please you, and that's what I'm for.

So I proceed to stroke the fur smooth, lay the paws down soft, fold up the claws, and purr. A sort of tuthfulness stealeth over me. Goin' to be dull, too.

No, I'd gunne how to begin. If this yarn was a rope, I'd coil it down before I began to pay out. You lays the end, so, and finnish down, ring by ring, until the light's cutted, smooth, ready to flake off as it runs. I delayed a lyttling once to do just that, and it threw the painest mind. It all went off so wild.

When we kids were good, mother ole used to give us a piece of pudgeye stock; but when we're bad, seems we took after father. You see mother's folk was the quiet sort of norm sarts. They allowed there'd be room in Heaven for one hundred and forty-four thousand just because, mostly from Siwa, South, the land of the lotus-eating the neighbors, they'd get exclusive.

Anyway, mother's folk as a tribe, is millionaires in grace and pretty well filed in Nova Scotia. Then she's young cut, sweetly married among the grass like name's scrawled out of the holy Bible, with a strong hint to the Lord to scratch her entry from the Book of Life. She's married a sailor-man, before the mast, a Liveyere from the Labrador, a man without a dollar, suspected of being Episcopalian.

In them days the Labrador sailors laid out exactly to suit mother, she's used to luxury—coal in the lean-to, fatten in the cellar, cows in the barn, barter store round the corner, nuble church, school, and a jail right handy, so she can enjoy the ungodly getting of their just deserts. But in our time the Labrador was just Uncle Sam's country, all rocks, ice, and sea, to put the fear of God into the hearts of the ungodly. I don't reckon I was more'n ten or eleven years old, but you see, this Labrador is kind of serious with us, and makes even kids act responsible. Goin, so, and there's famine, freezing, blizzards, all sorts of reasons against laziness. It sort of edjucates.

Mother was worse than silent. There was something about her that scared me more than anything, outside, in the morning her eye kept following me as if to say, "Go find your father." Surely it was up to me, and if I wasn't big enough to drive the huskies or pack father's gun, I thought I could manage afoot to toke his four-pound axe. She beckoned me to her and kissed me—just once in ten years, and I was going through the door, out of reach, leat she should see me mighty near cryin.

It was all very well shewing off brave before mother, but when I got outside, any excuse would have been enough for going back. I wished I left the matches behind, but I hadn't. I wished the snow would be too soft, but it was hard as sand. I wished I was a coward, and the bush didn't look so wolfy, and what if I met up with the Skalkin devil? Oh, I was surely the scaredest lill boy, and dead sure I'd get lost. Then I went on because I was going, and there was father's trail blazed on past Dake-apple Cove. The way he plain as the streets, and the sun shining warm as toast over into the valley.

Then I saw a man's mitt, an old buckskin mitt sticking up out of the snow. Father had dropped his mitt, and without that his hand would be cold. When I found him, how glad he'd be to get it!

But when I tried to pick it up, it was heavy. Then it came away, and there was father's hand sticking up. It was dead.

Of course I know I'd ought to have run down through the snow, but I didn't. I ran for .ill I was worth. Then I got out of breath and come to a stop.

It wasn't for love of father. No, I had to forget that hand, and when I did I was sick. Still that was better than being scared to touch. It's not good to be afraid of dead things.

I dug, with a snow-shoe for a shovel. There was father, stiffened up, cold as good, and the long fringes I'd used to tickle in his beard, hard to touch his face. I just couldn't bear that, but turned my back and dug until I came to the big, strong, kind hand I used to be used for well and beaver. He must have stepped without seeing it under the snow, and it broke his leg. Then he'd tried to drag himself back home. It was wide, but he'd gone half a breath and cool off that I first seen the sun. Then he stopped, peaceful, dead.

First I thought he was one of our own brethren, but when he called his name I saw for sure he must be the wolf who lived on Two Mile Creek. He's got a wife and three fatherless boys. That's why he was killed. Stopping in the Skalkin devil! Oh, I was sure the scaredest lill boy, and dead sure I'd get lost. Then I went on because I was going, and there was father's trail blazed on past Dake-apple Cove. The way he plain as the streets, and the sun shining warm as toast over into the valley.

Architects' Dreams For Most Marvelous of Universal Expositions Coming True==Whole World Interested

As the United States has invited the world to an international festivity, an international program will be part of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. Sporting events of all kinds will be prominent. The track events and infantry of the United States and Europe will participate in all scalar contests, eminent demonstrations and competitive drills of all kinds. Carrier war will take place upon a bigger scale; battleships in the harbor and aeroplanes launched from hangars on the Exposition grounds will contend in mimic warfare. There are assured at the Exposition under scientific interesting aeroplane demonstrations. The principal aeroplane manufacturers of England, Germany, Russia, Italy and Switzerland will compete with and Education. Flanking this rectangular group on the east, but brought into general architectural harmony with it is Machinery Hall. Flanking it upon the west will be the superb Palace of Fine Arts, a building partly circular in form and embracing a great lagoon, in which the classic outlines will be reflected. The huge Palace of Horticulture, Festival Hall, the Service building and other minor structures will be set in the south garden. The Palace of Horticulture will be one of the most wonderful buildings ever erected. It will cover five acres and be constructed almost entirely of glass. Its huge glass dome will rise 150 feet. The department of horticulture at the Exposition has adopted a prize of $5,000 to the originator of the finest variety of rose. The merits of this rose night it will reflect the colors of the rainbow from hundreds of great lattices of searchlights. On the east side of the court will be the great triumphal Arch of the Rising Sun, and upon the west side will be seen the Arch of the Setting Sun. The arches will suggest the note of the Exposition—the meeting of the east and west at Panama. Their sculptural decorations will carry out this theme. Surmounting the Arch of the Rising Sun will be a colossal group of statuary, a great elephant in the central motif, with camel riders, Tibetan priests, Arab warriors, negro slaves, etc., the whole suggesting the spirit of the orient. The group will be forty feet in height. The heads upon the elephant will be 188 feet above the floors of the Court of the Rising Sun and Stars. The triumphal Arch tions of the United States. Prizes will be offered for devices adaptable to which lend to make aeroplanes safer and to bring it more and more into practical everyday use.

The Panama-Pacific International Exposition will be the first great American exposition of which it will be possible to get a view from an aeroplane. The more impressive visitors flying over the Exposition in dirigible balloons or in aeroplanes will see exactly set out below them the great exhibit palaces, brilliant with the color scheme of the Setting Sun will be crowned with a group expressing western civilization. Its main theme a prairie schooner, with Indians and Spanish, French, German and English explorers supporting the central figure.

Crossing beneath either of the two great arches one will come respectively into the great west court, the Court of the Four Seasons, designed by Hendrick Davies, designer of the wonderful Lincoln memorial to be built at Washington in honor of Abraham Lincoln, or to the great east court, the Court of Festivals, designed by Louis C. Mullgardt, architect of the Palace of Fine Arts at Chicago. In these courts will be seen monumental expressions of architecture and sculpture. The sculpture on exhibit scale will tell the story of the Panama canal and of the high ideals with which America pursued this greatest of the works designed by John Gheslin, the famous artist who thus describes the effect of the work in a description of the colossal group: "Ares, the god of war, is seen upon the shore of San Francisco Bay, with brilliant colors here and there, but nothing in soft, alluring tones, and you will have an idea of one of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition—well back, like a vision from the distance, as from the Sausalito heights across the Golden Gate."

The Exposition buildings will be divided into three large groups, and when completed the Exposition city will present a marvelous picture. Right of the palace in the central group will form parts of a great colonnade. Four of the buildings will face the bay and four face south upon a wonderful south garden. The four buildings facing upon the bay are the Palaces of Mines, Transportation, Agriculture and Food Products. The four facing south are the Palaces of Varied Industries, Manufactures, Liberal Arts

In pretty clear sailing for the most part the balance of the route from each end and it is stated that it will not be a very long job in the spring to connect up the track and complete the line from Boyne to Alpena, making one of the finest east and west roads in the state.

Traverse City Record-Eagle: "That intensive farming in western Michigan pays has been conclusively proved by James Hibbard who owns a large farm northwest of the city. Last spring he planted an acre of Osage maskmelons, the plants of which he started under glass in order to have them ripe in time for the fall market. During the ease up the plants secured a good grip with and on Sept. 1, he brought his load to town and sold them to the merchants. Since then he has marketed a load every day and after he had sold his last bushel on Saturday noon after having kept a careful record that he had made from from the crop from this acre of land and all has averaged more besides the market before the fall crop is harvested.

After 33 years of service with the W. L. McMillan Lumber Co. of Kalkaska, W. L. S. Manns, Jr., has retired from the field, hoping thereby to alleviate the burden of responsibility which the several enterprises in which he is interested have placed on his should-ers. W. L. S. Manns, Jr., is one of the best known men in northern Michigan. He came to Petoskey in 1882, when the place was but a small village, and has watched it grow to a prosperous city it is today. He has been identified with many of the business enterprises which aided in the upbuilding of the city, and a number of them, their growth to his energy and ability. During his term of service with the lumber company he has held consecutively the offices of bookkeeper, foreman, superintendent, president and treasurer, and secretary and general manager, having been in the chair of the last named position when he retired.

Under the head of "Golden Days," the Traverse City Record-Eagle says:

"While the bright warm days that are prevailing in the Grand Traverse region are turning the leaves in the forest and bringing out the tints that also exercising their alchemy upon the cream in the fields and giving to the farmer ample time for his harvest are turning the produce of the farm into gold also. This has been a good year for the farmers of this region, and if there are any who are not satisfied with the results of their labors they will have to blame themselves instead of nature for their state of mind. There has been ample rain during the spring, summer and fall for growing purposes and the best seasons for small crops have been all that could be desired. In this respect this region has been favored over the southern part of the state, where most of the summer was hot and devoid of rain at the time it was most needed for the corn and hay crops and as a result these will be a light yield this year, taken as a whole this has been a bumper year for the farmer in Grand Traverse and he has cause to be thankful that he has been spared the drouth and floods that have visited and devastated other sections of the country."

A former resident of Charlevoix writes The Boyne Journal as follows:

"Reading the article in The Journal Thursday night about the mound digging at Cadillac reminded me of more than 40 odd years ago when, two boys, we were excavating in the forest for a cellar for a man named Clark, in Charlevoix, dug into three mounds which they knew to be Indian graves. They knew they were the burial places of Indians because they found in them besides the bones of the skeletons, six strings of beads hammered out of copper. Two bodies lay with their heads one way while a third lay with his head in the opposite direction. At that time we had three Indians here who were said to be more than 100 years old. They said the graves had been made before their time and they told the diggers that by digging deep enough they could find relics and belongings of the dead warriors. Over the place where the graves were found, maple trees as large as any in this country were growing and the soil was a deep red color, due, the Indians said, to having been soaked in blood. The sand peeled off in large chunks, in one place they found 565 arrow heads and an ancient tomahawk which was shaped somewhat similar to an arrowhead. When drawn across a window pane, it cut the glass clear through. One of the men, Chief Sam, of Charlevoix, gave me a number of the relics which were dug. I still have one of the arrowheads but I have given away all the beads."

NEW TARIFF LAW WILL MAKE MANY RATE REDUCTIONS

Synopsis of Measure on Which Special Session of Congress Has Been Working.

MARKED CHANGES IN THE AVERAGE DUTIES

Democrats Confident That the Country Will Be Benefited by the Alterations, and That Business Will Remain Unaffected.—All Valorem Rate in the Bill is From 27 to 29 Per Cent, in Place of Dingley-Aldrich Bill They Are 40.12 Per Cent.

Washington.—The Democratic tariff revision bill, first on the program of reforms mapped out when President Wilson came into office, advanced to its last consideration stage when it was laid back to the house from the joint conference committee with the unanimous indorsement of the Democratic conferees.

The measure, of course, has both its friends and enemies. According to the administration, it carries out one of the party promises. Tariff reform, reduction in the high cost of living, conservation of business, in that duties have been taken off of many true made articles, and the income tax.

The measure, consequently, has a sound, practical ring to it. It is a tariff reform bill, and its effect must be widespread, both on business and industry, and also in connection with politics. Democratic leaders are confident that business will suffer no untoward effect; that consumers will be benefited.

Changes in the Rates.

The bill imposes an average ad valorem rate of from 27 to 29 per cent. The average for the present Aldrich law is 40.12 per cent. The average for the Wilson-Gorman act was 39.45 per cent.

Duties generally have been reduced on all of the articles that enter into the necessities of life, including the products of the farm as well as many declared luxuries.

Trust made products in many cases have been transferred to the free list or the duties at present imposed have been substantially reduced.

The income tax feature of the bill is expected to net some $83,000,000. It will call for a tax on net incomes of unmarried persons of $3,000 and upwards and on net incomes of married persons living together, where the wife or husband is dependent, of $4,500 and upwards.

Experts estimate indicate a surplus of $16,000,000 over all expenditures at the end of the present fiscal year.

A rate of 40 per cent is imposed on stockings and half hose valued at not more than 70 cents a dozen pairs. For stockings between 70 and $1.20 a dozen pairs a duty of 40 per cent was agreed upon.

The conferees eliminated the provision inserted by the senate denying entry into the American market of goods manufactured by children under 14 years of age.

The final agreement provided that any person employed to collect the income tax may be utilized by the secretary of the treasury in the general service of the internal revenue bureau.

Larger Customs Revenues.

The customs revenues will be larger for the current year, 1914," Senator Simmons said. "Because the taxes of the Payne-Aldrich law have been for the three quarter, and will continue to force on wool and woolen goods until January 1, and on sugar until March 1. When the next fiscal year begins, July 1, 1914, all the rates of the new law will be in operation

Washington.—According to estimates compiled by the treasury exports, 425,000 American citizens must keep such accurate account of their incomes this year that they will be able to report to the income tax collector next spring exactly how much they own the government under the new income tax law.

So far as the taxable American is concerned, the income tax law is now practically in force against him. While the tariff law in which the law is embodied will not be signed until next week, the first returns do not have to be made to the internal revenue collectors before March 1, 1914. But when the returns are made they will cover the income of citizens from March 1, 1913, to December 31, and the first payment of tax will be for money received during this period.

Every single person (citizen or foreign resident) whose income from all sources exceeds $3,000, and every married person with an income above $4,000, is expected to report. The law also compels to detail to the government agents the amount of tax.

To Produce $82,000,000.

The estimate compiled indicates that the income tax will produce $82,298,000 from the 425,000 persons taxed. To this will be added the $35,000,000 or more produced by the present corporation tax, which is continued as part of the law.

President Wilson, the federal judges of the Supreme court now holding office and employes "of a state or any political subdivision thereof," are the only persons specifically exempted from the tax by the new law. The members and judges of the courts were made exempt to secure any question as to the constitutionality of the law, and their successors in office will be compelled to pay the tax.

The general public is expected to give close attention to the law in the next few months as the first bite of the tax payment comes with the individual returns, and the failure to report his income is punishable by a fine.

It is admitted that when first returns are made many taxable persons probably will escape payments, but with each year the government's lists of persons with taxable incomes will be made more nearly complete.

Methods of Collecting Tax.

Two primary methods of collecting the tax are contained in the law. One is that the individual return made by the citizen; the other the returns by corporations and other employers who pay their employes taxes "at the source." Under the law as it will be signed by President Wilson, there will be every large company employing labor will be compelled to report any regular salaries it pays in excess of the $3,000 figures, and will pay the taxes on the employes and deduct the tax from their pay envelopes.

The "at the source" or "at source" will apply to salaries, rents, interests, royalties, partnership profits and some other sources of income, and persons receiving such incomes must be prepared to show that the money has paid its tax at its source.

In figuring up the net income for the taxpayer, the American business man, after deducting his entire losses sell, or $4,000, if married, will have the right to claim the following additional exemptions:

Necessary expense of carrying on business, not including personal living or family expenses.

Interest paid out of indebtedness.

National, state, county, school or municipal taxes paid within the year.

Trade losses, or storm or fire losses, not covered by insurance.

Worthless debts charged off during the year.

A reasonable allowance for the depreciation of property.

Dividends from companies whose incomes have already been taxed.

Interest from state, municipal or government bonds.

Must be Entire "Net Income."

It is a clear provision of the law however, that the taxable person must file a return to the internal revenue collector for his entire "net income," and exemptions claimed under the law can be subtracted from the total income for them to determine upon their net income subject to legality.

The amount of the income tax, as already stated, goes into effect

From $3,000 to $20,000, 1 per cent; from $20,000 to $50,000, 2 per cent; from $50,000 to $75,000, 3 per cent; from $75,000 to $100,000, 4 per cent; $100,000 to $250,000, 5 per cent; $250,000 to $500,000, 6 per cent; above $500,000, 7 per cent.

A single man with an income of $15,000, for example, would pay 1 per cent on $3,000 and 2 per cent on $12,000, a total tax of $270. If married, the first 1 per cent would apply to only $16,000 of the income.

Ready to Answer Questions.

The treasury department is preparing for a flood of questions about the new income tax, realizing that this feature of the tariff bill about to become law strikes more intimately at the tax paying of the masses than do the indirect taxes collected through the customs duties.

One of the first steps taken to get general information before the public will be to distribute income tax blanks through postoffices, internal revenue offices, and other federal agencies. However, the fact that he does not receive a blank or a request to pay the tax will not excuse a taxable person from the penalties of the law.

Internal revenue collectors in Tennessee, who drew the income tax prosecution of Colonel Harvey Ellis, become law, made public a detailed explanation of the law as it will touch the individual citizen.

The treasury regulations now in force provide that the income tax shall be paid with the collector of internal revenue in the district in which the person or corporation is located.

Corporations are allowed a deduction from the house rates in cities:

House Rates Changed.

Through a reclassification rates will be slightly reduced from those fixed by the house on fancy grades of cotton cloth.

The tariff on automobiles, fixed by the house at 45 per cent, and radically cut by the senate, was compromised by making a new classification of automobiles valued at less than $1,500, for which a rate of 30 per cent, was fixed.

The 5 per cent rebate in tariff made by the house bill on goods brought in American ships was retained with the added provision that it should not "be so construed as to abrogate or in any manner impair or affect the provisions of any treaty" the United States has.

That portion of the house bill requiring foreign manufacturers or exporters to submit their books to American customs agents was amended so that the exporter refused to allow such examination an additional duty of 5 per cent, ad valorem can be imposed on his exports.

Section 5 of the Cuban reciprocity treaty, which provides that Cuba should have a preferential rate of 25 per cent ad valorem and that the general tariff of the United States should not be reduced below the figures of the Dingley tariff law of 1897, is repealed.

SUGAR BEETS.

Farmers' Complaints Will Receive Attention by Inspectors.

Under the recently passed law placing the inspection and testing of sugar beets with the dairy and food department, the chemists of the agricultural college, dairy and food department and agricultural experiment station were made a commission to formulate rules and regulations for the uniform weighing, taring and testing of all sugar beets in Michigan.

The new law provides that any farmer who is furnishing sugar beets to a factory and is dissatisfied with the weighing and taring, or with the analysis of the sugar content, can file a complaint with the dairy and food commissioner at Lansing and this complaint will be promptly investigated by an inspector.

The dairy and food departments also expected to test all scales used in weighing sugar beets throughout the state, but owing to the late arrival of weights and scales ordered by the department, it was impossible. It is intended, however, to have the inspector of weights and measures test as many scales as possible.

The law further says that the factories and expenses of sugar beet inspectors shall be paid by the companies, and to provide a fund for this purpose every sugar beet factory is required to make a sworn statement of the number of tons of sugar beets utilized, and pay into the state treasury an annual tax of one-fourth of a cent a ton on all beets manufactured into sugar.

This section of Charlevoix county still raises sugar beets for the Holland St. Louis factories.

What Surprised Him.

In Timothy was a little cattle and pray clergyman. But at one evening service he gave a discourse on prayer. "I see a great many of you sleeping," said the good doctor mildly. "I do not wonder at this, for your work is hard, and many of you have come a long way. Therefore I am not surprised to see many of you sleeping some in the day, but what does surprise me a little is to see so many sleeping wide and with a comfortable sleep at both our morning and our afternoon service."

State of Michigan Puts Its Seal of Approval on Charlevoix Rock Product Company.

The officers of the Charlevoix Rock Product Co. are smiling all over their respective faces and all everything. Charlevoix loving citizens are smiling, too, for they seem to be happy and silent.

Last winter the legislature passed what is known as the "Blue Sky Law," having for its purpose an X-ray inspection of corporate bodies with a view of preventing the people being swindled by "wild cat" corporations in which wind is the chief element in consideration with the law. The Governor appointed a commission for the gratuitous examination of all domestic corporations of the state, meanwhile prohibiting the sale of all stock during the period of such investigation—thirty days. The commission dug into the affairs of every corporation against which there was a whisper of suspicion.

On Thursday last, general manager R. F. Kinan received a telegram that the "Blue Sky" commission had passed upon the stock of the Charlevoix Rock Product Co., and had not only approved but recommended it as safe and profitable investment. In the minds of those who were familiar with the affairs of the company and the enormous natural resources at its command there never was a shadow of doubt of the stability and earning power of the concern, but there are crushing—always and everywhere—the question of the state commission puts the Rock Product Co. on record as safe. Why should it not? The company is now loading 1,000 cars per day and the output is steadily increasing. They have four big kilns in operation and two more are in process of construction. The kilns are turning out 600 barrels per past few weeks, and the mill itself is fully equipped to turn out from 1 to 2 miles of traditional switching track has recently been put in. The outlook is promising.

RETAIL MERCHANTS' SHOW

The Exhibit of Saturday Was Good in Quality, But Short In Quantity.

The Retail Merchants' agricultural and pomological exhibit last Saturday was a good quality display, but it fell short of last year in its extent and variety.

There may be good reason for this falling off. Conditions differ somewhat from last year, and the farmers are busier. The corn and potato crops are greater this year than last, and the farmers have very little time for show.

The Family Cough Medicine.

In every home there should be a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery ready for immediate use when any member of the family contracts a cold or cough. Prompt use will stop the spread of sickness. S. A. Bird, of Mason, Mich., writes "My whole family depends upon Dr. King's New Discovery as the best cough and cold medicine in the world. Two 50c bottles cured me of pneumonia." Thousands of other families have been equally benefited and depend entirely upon Dr. Kings New Discovery to cure their coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles every does helps. Price 50c and 1.00 at F. G. Hines & Co.

REFORESTRATION

The Big Walter Cleveland Farm the Scene of Initial Work in Charlevoix County—Field Agent Here

Next to the great widespread movement for better highway status the important necessity for reforestration, in which the state is pushing, through a department employing expert supervision.

This laudable work is just now being inaugurated in Charlevoix county, by the Walters, who possess a large area of land just north of this city. Charlevoix township. What is known as the Walter farm proper has reached a state of improvement that warrants it in being classified as a "model farm." Splendid farm building have been erected and every modern convenience that money can buy has been installed. Thousands of fruit trees have reached the age of four years from replanting, and a yield of more than fifty barrels was gathered this fall.

But to the north of the cultivated area lies a broad expanse of land that has been cleaned up for reforestration, and a force of men are engaged in setting out 10,000 five year-old white pine trees. Mr. C. A. Tyler, field agent for the State Forestry Department, is here officially supervising the work.

The trees once planted, time and nature must do the rest.

Decades must chase each other into future generations before the sawmill will appear on the scene, but Walter undoubtedly has a thought for his great-great-grandchildren.

Death of W. C. Arnold

Willet C. Arnold died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Yemmans, in this city, Wednesday morning of this week, aged 82 years, after a long illness. Besides a wife he leaves five sons and three daughter: Charles of this city; Elmer, of Saginaw; Albert, of Gloucester, Mass.; Willet, of Detroit; James, of Oliver; Mrs. Walter Yemmans, of this city, and Mrs. Chauncy Howe and Miss Dora Arnold, of Hayes.

Deceased was a pioneer, having located in Hayes about thirty-five years ago. He was distinguished, wherever known, for his rectitude of character and strict integrity. Charlevoix county never had a more upright and useful citizen.

THE LOVELIGHT IN HIS EYES.

He Thought That Was What Made All His Troubles.

"You have read in novels how a great sorrow will transform a man's countenance, how a poet's face in the hour of inspiration can be spiritualized, or the homeliest my own features are of the commonplace type and nobody thinks of regarding them twice—yet I too, have had my experience, which has contributed to change my face.

"They occurred on the morning when I received a letter from Phyllis, which I had been expecting for a long time, and set out into the street to walk to the office.

"What a walk that was! The light in my eyes seemed to brighten the very air, the sun in my heart was echoed from a hundred interlocutors. Never have the winds of May spoken so wildly a February morning.

"Every man I met turned his head as if unable to take his eyes from my irradiated countenance. Every girl paused to ask the reason of my gladness in my happiness and smiled at me pitifully as if infected by the contagion. "The walk I thought on blank verses that Phyllis now is pledged to me, only by my truth, these fatterings lulled me also from beauty's eyes might make my heart unfaithful.

"It was only when I reached the office and looked in the glass that I discovered the large black smudge on the end of my nose."

COURAGE OF NAPOLEON.

The Way It Carried Him From Aspern-Essling to Wagram.

Professor J. Holland Rose in "The Personality of Napoleon" tells of Napoleon's courage. He says that his personality never stood forth so grandly as after a defeat. The most serious blow in the middle part of his career was that dealt him by the Archduke Charles at Aspern Essling, northeast of Vienna. The Austrians were nearly double him in strength. The bridges over the Danube had been broken down by his foes. His great marshal, Lannes, had been killed, and, in turn, he had suffered a terrible reverse. All his generals were for retreat, but he withstood them and Professor Rose ranks the next six weeks "among the most glorious of his military career." He received new troops, deceived his enemy by false movements and finally defeated him at Wagram.

But a decline came to such a prodigious man. He himself said at St. Helena that he had been spoiled by success. It was natural that the victor in fifty pitched battles and innumerable smaller engagements should come to believe himself omnipotent and invincible. It was this hardening of the mind that betrayed him into the Russian campaign, that caused him to refuse all compromise in 1813 and 1814 and that led him to defeat by his lieutenants, Wellington and Blucher, at Waterloo, just as Hannibal was finally beaten by his inferior, Scipio, at Zama.

Board in Second Week of Annual Session—Very Little Done Besides Routine Work

Committees have done about all the work over at the court house up to date, and, as usual, reports will be acted on the last of the week.

Supervisor Burnett, of Hayes, was elected chairman.

Between times the board did this go, however. They voted $500 for the Western Michigan Development Bureau and a like sum for the Agricultural Society. One thousand dollars was voted toward the repairs of the East Jordan bridge.

On Tuesday afternoon the board voted a two mill highway tax. In the matter of county roads a petition was before the board to adopt a new line of road to the west around Greensky Hill. It was referred to a committee, but it is doubtful any report is made on the proposition. It was decided, however to build the two miles of trunk road two miles north of the railroad, to Greensky Hill, and that commissioner Lorch continue his work toward an intersection to a point that will leave but two mile gap.

Just as we close these columns, Wednesday afternoon, the local option question is before the board. The drys are making a contest on the question of submission, on the grounds of illegality of procedure, in that ten days did not elapse between the posting of the petitions and the filing of the certificate with the county clerk.

Argument are being made today, by L. Lewis representing the wet side, and J. M. Harris and H. W. Kane the drys.

An Artistic Musical Event

In the series of entertainments provided for in this season the Charlevoix Lecture and Entertainment Course scored high in its opening number last Friday night.

The International Operatic Co. was the attraction, and the Charlevoix Theatre was packed. The organization is a positive novelty, being a quartet with a piano accompanist of equal merit.

We cannot recall ever having heard more perfect vocal blending or more artistic rendering of a musical program than that furnished us in the initial number of the course. The large audience simply could not get enough of it, and every number of the first part was encored.

The second part was a selection from the opera of "Martha" in costume, and it was a feast for the musical soul.

Only superlatives are adequate in speaking of this splendid organization. If the Citizen Lecture and Entertainment Course keep up the quality with which it starts out, we shall indeed be fortunate.

The General Wind-Up

He is dead now, give him the epitaph, plenty of them. He deserves them. He is dead, and of no further use; but give him a cracker-jack of a funeral. He has done his work, and plenty of it, and done it well.

Shut up all the stores when he is buried, and get out the brass band.

He had his faults, but he did the best he knew how. He stood by those whom he thought were his friends and made enemies thereby; but he "Meant Well."

He got no bouquets while he was living; give them upon his casket after the undertaker gets him. It is all the same.

COMMUNICATION.

(By J. H. Milford, County Commissioner of Schools.)

As one travels in the various communities of Charlevoix county from year to year he is impressed with the fact that as a rule the citizens of the county are of the progressive type.

New sales, new buildings, new machinery, young orchards and many other indications of wide-awake, progressive farming are to be seen on each successive visit to any particular community in the county.

It is a lamentable fact that in many of the seemingly most progressive portions of this great county land up of this county are no worse than in some counties of the west or other states of the union) our educational facilities do not keep pace with other things in the march of progress.

We can see in many communities that are studded with big, substantial horse and cattle barns, waves and well ventilated, supplied with silos, cement floors, litter carriers and many other modern conveniences, poultry houses that are the pride of their owners, but we cannot see the conveniences that are the pride of any community in which children live, if by no means in keeping with the general makeup of the community.

That same school house will be ventilated by the fact that it is forced to face a strong light which constantly annoys him, or seated that a number of children will be forced to sit all day with their backs winsing, so ventilated that the children will either be forced to sit in a draft or breathe the same air over and over, so heated that half of them will be roasting or otherwise be freezing.

Visit that same community in which you find the newest and most up-to-date toilet, the most modern conveniences, the latest modes of travel, and you will find a school house that is forced to use a text book that teaches the children that a map that gives Cuba and the Philippine islands as a part of the Spanish domain, a history that does not mention either Washington or Taft and a wooden blackboard that is shiny and can be seen at a distance from just certain angles of the room.

But why this grouch? In spite of conditions such as have been described our schools do give a big per cent of better work than they have ever done before.

In those same schoolhouses will be found teachers who have had special training for their work and who are training the young people of the county in many things which are new to the parents of the community.

What is there to the making of a paper chain or a paper toy or working the picture of some animal on a piece of cardboard?

It is true that the intrinsic value of the thing made may be small but the habits of industry that are being formed and the pride that is developed in being able to do something well will more than repay the time and trouble taken in the development of the line of work. Boys are also taught to employ their time in doing something that will be helpful to them in later in life. Many people are willing to pay for the use of this and many other lines of work and being convinced that the public schools but that is not supplying for scores of people said that Fulton's boat would not go but it did. It is to be hoped that we may get our schools under the control of boards who can see the necessity for modern improvements in the schools that they are in other lines of work.

Give your teacher tools to work with and demand results but look things over carefully before you expect the average rural teacher to do work that is on a par with the work of the up-to-date and well equipped city school.

This is my growth. My next will be a description of some of the good things and failures of the coming year.

HENRY SPENCER'S CONFESSION DISCREDITED—SAYS HE SLEW DANCER AND OTHERS.

MADE $7,000 THIS YEAR

Plans Arrested in Chicago as He Was Plotting With Lawyer—Fetised Mrs. Mildred Rexroat to Wayne, Ill., and Shot Her.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—The wildly sensational story told in Detroit last Sunday by Henry Spencer, the latest suspect held in connection with the murder of Mrs. Mildred Ann Rexroat, telling how he had committed murders of twenty members, tumbled Monday like a house of cards.

Dispatches poured into Chicago from the scenes of the alleged crimes stating in some cases that no such person had been a resident in or near the place where Spencer's complicity in them was irreducible. The best he proved upon his police seems to have to more foundation of fact than the wicked dream of an opium fiend, which Spencer confesses he is.

Harry Spencer, Mildred Allen-Rexroat's slayer—who also is the confessed murderer of no less than a score of other persons—was arrested on Sunday as he was calling on a woman friend at South Bend, Michigan, on the unannounced detail the slaying of the tanner bride.

The list of his victims as he recalls it follows:

Mrs. Rexroat.

Patrolman Pennell, Chicago.

Patrolman Jackson, Chicago.

Fannie Thompson, Chicago.

Woman whose body was found near Conway, Ind.

Broker whose body was found in Jackson park.

Woman found in Sanganmon street, Chicago.

Woman found in canal, Chicago.

Two girls at Delavan Lake, Wis.

Two girls at Fox Lake, Ill.

One girl at Belle Isle, Detroit.

One woman found back of stock yards, Chicago.

One girl at Port Montgomery, New York.

One man in alleyway in Van Buren street near Morgan, Chicago.

One man and one woman five years ago in rooming house, Chicago.

Spencer had $260 in his possession when caught and states that he has added about $7,000 from murders and robberies during the last year.

When asked how he killed his victims, replied:

"I could get them coming upstairs I found a hammer handy. I was alongside them I used a gun and sometimes if the girl was big and strong I would tie her up and choke her so as to have the least trouble. I cannot say how many persons I have killed."

Among his inner crimes Spencer admitted having murdered several women and a man to their beds over a Milwaukee avenue store rooms and setting fire to the house after shooting one of them. The firemen just succeeded in putting out the flames.

"I have been married four times and killed two of my wives. I got all their money without having to kill them."

Spencer said he was at Milwaukee when Jennie Dancer was murdered there. He said he was paid $100 by Mrs. Mildred Rexroat to Wayne, Ill., and shot Her.

GRIPPED BY A LION

Livingstone's Fearful Ordeal and His Narrow Escape.

A BATTLE WITH A MANEATER.

The Wounded and Maddened Monster, In a Paroxysm of Dying Rage, Caught the Explorer in His Jaws and Shook Him as a Terrier Would a Rat.

David Livingstone, the famous African explorer and missionary, once had a singular encounter with a wounded lion that almost put an end to the explorer's remarkable career before it had fairly begun. But the story must be unfamiliar to many persons who have never read Dr. Livingstone's books. The adventure occurred while he was living among the Bakatlas, not far from the present town of Mafeking. This account is from his own narrative.

The people of Matlotsa were troubled by lions, which leaped into the cattle pens by night and destroyed their sleek and fat animals. They even attacked the herds boldly by day light, and although several expeditions against the wild beasts were planned the people had not the courage to carry them through successfully.

It is well known that if one in a troop of lions is killed the others leave that part of the country. I therefore went out with the people to help them destroy one of the marauders. We found the animals on a small hill covered with trees. The men formed a round it in a circle and gradually closed up. Being below on the plain with a native schoolmaster named Mebalwe, I saw one of the lions sitting on a piece of rock. Mebalwe fired at him, and the ball hit the rock. The lion bit at the spot as a dog does at a stick or stone thrown at him, and then, leaping away, broke through the circle and escaped. The Bakatlas ought to have speared him in his attempt to get out, but they were afraid.

When the circle was reformed we saw two other lions in it, but dared not fire lest we should shoot some of the people. The beasts burst through the line, and as it was evident the men could not face their foes we turned back toward the village.

In going round the end of the hill I saw a lion sitting on a piece of rock, about thirty yards off, with a little bush in front of him. I took good aim at him through the bush and fired both barrels.

The men called out, "He is shot, he is shot!" Others cried, "Let us go to him."

I saw the lion's tail erect in anger and said, "Stop a little till I load again!" I was in the act of ramming down the balls when I heard a growl, and, looking half round, I saw the lion in the act of springing at me.

He struck me on the shoulder, and we both came to the ground together. Growling horribly, he shook me as a terrier dog does a rat. The sensation dized a stupor like that felt by a mouse in the jaws of the cat. It caused a sort of dreaminess in which there was no sense of pain nor fear of danger, although I was quite conscious of what was happening. This placidity is probably produced in all animals killed by the carnivora, and, if so, it is a merciful provision of the Creator for lessening the pain of death.

As he held me paw on the back, he had his head quite free to relieve myself of the weight and sore, sore pressure of his paw, when suddenly he turned his head from a distance of ten or fifteen yards. The gun missed fire in both barrels. The animal immediately left me to attack him and bit his thigh. Another man, whose life I had saved after he had been tossed by a buffalo, tried to spear the lion, upon which he turned from Mebalwe, and seized this fresh foe by the shoulder.

At that moment the bullet in the barrel received took effect, and he fell down dead. The whole was the work of a few minutes and must have been the paroxysm of dying rage. I wished to raise the alarm lest some of the Bakatlas on the following day made a huge bonfire over the carcass, which was deemed to be the largest ever seen.

Besides crushing the bone into splinters, eleven of his teeth lodged in my arm. The joint stiffened, but the bite of a lion resembles a gunshot wound. It is a contused wound, the great dent of stoughing and discharging, and even afterwards it gives pain in fitfulness of the part. I had on a leather jacket, which I believe spared me the virus from the teeth that pierced the flesh, for my two companions in the chase were both suffered from the venomous saliva, while I have escaped with only the inconvenience of a false joint in my limb.

Some Exercise.

"Dinks," said the medical man, "you motor, ride horseback and bicycle. You never walk. Your age will become attached from lack of exercise."

"My age never gives me any trouble. I kick the servants quite frequently."—Kansas City Journal.

Origin of "Whisky."

The word usk is an Anglicised form of the Celtic word usky, a Celtic word meaning water. It is contracted into the Irish word uisgea, from which the Saxon gets the word whisky.—Cardiff Western Mail.

Hank, Hank!

"Did she come to the door when you serenaded her with your mandolin?"

"No; the mean hussy came about and brought her out with an auto horn."—Washington Herald.

A Gentle and Effective Laxative

A mild gentle and effective laxative is what people demand when suffering from constipation. Thousands swear by Dr. King's New Life Pills. Mrs. Tallman, of San Antonio, Tex., writes: "They are beyond question the best pills my wife and I have ever taken. They never cause pain." Price 25c. Recommended by F. G. Hines & Co.

BABY MIDSHIPMEN.

In the Old Days When Children Were Sent to War.

Among other improvements in the art of war as attributed by the world in those latter days is the abolition of the practice of sending children to sea, as was the case when the midshipmen of the old "cock walks" of England often were boys of less than fourteen years.

The Marquis of Dufferin and Ava in telling about the siege of Bomarsund, in the Crimean war, which he witnessed from the frigate Pandipe, related this story of one of these little fellows.

What pleased me most during the whole business," he says, "was the gallant behavior of a little midshipman, a mere child, thirteen or fourteen years of age. About the time when the fire became pretty hot I happened to come across him, and, as he seemed to be as much out of a job as myself, I ventured my cap and took the liberty of observing that it was a fine day, to which he politely replied that it was.

"Encouraged by his urbanity, I ventured to ask him how long he had been at sea, to which he answered, 'I have only left my mamma six weeks, but I am going to cry on her majesty's quarterdeck,' a remark which I think is worth recording as many a one made by more illustrious heroes. Soon after this, however, a man was killed close to him, and the little fellow fainted and was taken below."

OUR USELESS BUFFALOES.

They Have Passed Away Because They Were Economically Unfit.

As a typical species of American animal the buffalo had his place in our history, but take him by and large he was a rather useless beast, with no adaptability for civilization. He served the purpose of the plains when men had a nomadic life there and existed on his flesh. But as soon as the prairie land, over which the buffalo roamed in countless thousands, became fit for settlement the buffalo was doomed to disappear.

Very little of him was fit to eat. He was with a bullet when there was another meat to be had, but a people accustomed to modern steaks and roasts would find him not overappetizing, even the meaty ones off. In a word the buffalo was economically unfit, and he went the way of the Indian.

Had he been converted he might now be affording opportunity for big game hunters to enjoy themselves in modern style. They are really the only persons who have suffered by his disappearance. To preserve the buffalo as a specimen in our zoos is proper. He is a curiosity and has a historical value. But entirely too many tears have been shed over his destruction. One steer was and still is worth a dozen bison.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Japanese "Movies."

Even the remotest towns in Japan have their moving picture shows, and in large cities they seem to be nearly as plentiful as on this side of the Pacific. In Yokohama there is a whole street of them, and, as the progress of each is endless and each picture is announced in huge symbols on a separate variegated banner flying from a tall bamboo pole, the aspect of Theater street is startlingly unique. The huge lurid banners with the sensational points of the programs above the entrances and at their sides have a certain quaintness about them, which is accentuated by the fact that they are all original, not mere stereotyped advertisements printed in war colors. The "peter" or wooden medals of the spectators are deposited on a rack before the entrance to a moving picture show for where other people take off their hats the Japanese leave their shoes.—Popular Mechanics.

Basketball.

Basketball was the invention of one man and was completed at a single sitting. In 1891, in the course of a lecture at the Young Men's Christian association in Plainfield, Mass., the lecturer spoke of the mental processes of invention and used a game, with its limitations and necessities, as an illustration. James Naismith, who was a member of the class, worked out basketball that same night as an ideal game to meet the case. It was presented the next day in the lecture room and put in practice with the aid of the members of the gymnasium. From there it spread to other branches of the Young Men's Christian association and subsequently to athletic clubs and the general public.—New York Press.

Tale of a Lost Will.

A lost will found in a ceiling at Chatsworth reminds us of the curious case of Lord Hailes' will. He was a Scotch judge, and when he died in 1792, no testamentary paper could be discovered, the heir at law was about to take possession of the estate on the extinction of his daughter and only child. She sent some of her servants to lock up the family mansion, which she had to give up, and from some window shutters there dropped out upon the floor from behind a panel the missing will, which secured her all the family estates and property. Why people take the trouble to hide things with property attested and then conceal them! Then they cause a postmortem joke!—London Spectator.

Tidy to the Last.

In "Glimpses of the Past" Miss Elizabeth Woodworth-Smith tells this story:

One stormy day a fishing smack was wrecked and fast sinking. When the skipper came on deck he found a mate busy swabbing.

"What's the use of that, Jack? Don't you see she's sinking?"

"Yes, master, I know it; but, for all that, I'd like the old gal to go down clean and tidy."

The Manifestation.

"Papa," said the young girl sweetly, "I feel it is my bonne that you are going to buy me a new hat."

"Ah, do you?" chuckled papa. "To which bonne do you feel it?"

"Well, I'm not sure, but I think it's in my waistbone."

A QUEER LAKE.

With Neither Inlet Nor Outlet It Has a Mysterious Tide.

There is a curious Swiss lake, Lake Marjelen, which at regular intervals completely disappears and does not begin to refill until the following winter or spring. On these occasions it empties itself so rapidly that the Rhone rises several meters in a few hours and overflows its banks.

But it is not necessary to go to Switzerland in order to find a freak lake. There is a pool in the center of Long Island, at the present end of the Motor park way, called Lake Ronkonkoma. It has neither inlet nor outlet and lies at the foot of the hills that form the backbone of Long Island. Round its shores are many pretty summer homes. The trees about it are much larger and more beautiful than elsewhere on Long Island. The waters of the lake are very clear and cold. In some places it seems bottomless.

The strange thing about Lake Ronkonkoma is that it has a tide, not a tide like the ocean that rises and falls every twelve hours, but one that takes seven years to rise and seven more to fall. The difference between high water and low water mark is between thirty and forty feet. Many scientific men have studied the curious phenomenon, but no one has found out what causes this mysterious tide. Neither long continued rains nor severe droughts affect the quantity of water in the lake.

The Indians used to hold the lake in great awe, and few dared to cross it in a canoe. There is a legend of one brave who, while fishing, was drowned in the lake. His body was found six months afterward nearly ten miles away in Long Island sound.—Youth's Companion.

HIS BACKING WAS GOOD.

And President Tyler Found a Place For Old Jack Dade.

President Tyler had a curious office seeking experience at the very beginning of his administration. Old Jack Dade, a character about Washington who had been the president's chum at college, went to the White House, and said he, "Jack, I want an office."

"You do?" said President Tyler. "What office on earth do you think you are fit for?"

"Why, one of those Nicaraguan! I hear so much about—no work and good pay," Dade promptly replied.

"Well, Jack," said Tyler deprecatingly, "you know that I am president now and must have some kind of warrant for making an appointment. Can you get anybody to indorse you? Could you bring me a letter of recommendation?"

"Oh, yes," said Dade. "I'm fixed for that," and he produced a letter of four pages written by Tyler himself to President Harrison, whom he had just succeeded, urging the claims of his dear friend and classmate, Colonel John W. Dade, for a good, fat office. "Cost your eye over that!" he exclaim ed in triumph.

Tyler read the letter attentively to the end, folded it carefully and said: "Jack, your backing is irresistible. Come up here tomorrow, and I'll have a place for you."

The next day Colonel John W. Dade was appointed keeper of the Federal prison of the District of Columbia.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

CHATTY WELSHMEN.

Meet Talkative, It is Said, of All the British Islanders.

In the Welshman the most garrulous man in the British isles? The result of an impartial test by a London newspaper has shown that for actual talkativeness the typical Welshman beats the lot; next in order come Irishmen, then Scots, and last of all the English men.

Unobtrusively made in a number of well known London restaurants, clubs and public places, the tests forcibly gave the same results. By means of a test watch the following table was compiled:

Welshmen—Very talkative, animated in manner and speech; an average rate of 200 words a minute.

Irishmen—Also very talkative, but less animated in manner; average rate of speech, 160 words.

Scotchmen—Far less talkative and deliberate in manner; spoke at an average rate of 120 words.

Englishmen—Almost silent, ranged the first in speak; deliberate and diffuse in manner, speaking 100 to 120 words a minute.

The comparative silence of the men in striking contrast to the chatter of the women folk was an unusual noticeable. A curious detail was that dark men were always the biggest talkers.

Labadists of Holland.

There is a sect in Holland known as the Labadists, among whose members the use of mirrors is strictly prohibited. Their founder, Jean de Labadie, a seventeenth century Calvinist minister, attracted many followers, but after his death they dwindled down, and now they are found only in a few remote villages of Friesland. Travel in Holland in 1901 found only 9 men in a colony of Labadists. "Internmarriage mainly among themselves," he writes, "they have quite a distinct type—a singularly beautiful one, with that delicate lips and a curious air of refinement. They are fisherman—very prosperous—and their homes, with their china and silver ornaments and paint on the backs of Orange and great Bibles with silver clasps and perfectly preternatural neatness are very interesting to see."—London Chronicle.

The Old School Slate.

Remember the old school slates bound in red flannel to prevent the noise of slate pencils that used to become unbearable until manufacturers found how to modify them? Slates selling school supplies used to carry great stocks of them, for I was a rare day in a room that did not see a slate or two broken, but where are they all now? Since the boards of health decided that they were insanitary and decreed against them the whole tribe has disappeared.—Columbia Dispatch.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with John Smith relaxing his labor on the farm in Labrador and of the death of his father Andrew, a sailor.

CHAPTER I.—Continued.

I dilemmaded which port—somewhere in the Ars Lawcotic where we hooked lumber for the Gulf of Mexico but the captain and me was away tha'bug. Mother was come from the Lab' under to find me, old grey mother. She put on her round face specialee to smile at the mate sft, and the second mate forward, the ordinary seaman pahfted in the same board, and Bill Bi ble look's ch chair scarring down the rigging, and the bosun's laughess which been tearing the old man's shirt-fronts. She just sat happy at the sight of the Pawnticket, and she nursy admired everything, from old Dinty Moe Pinter—the quartermaster cook, cabin and spilled slops overside. So the bo'sl had done all the lady, and came to gib' bo' was back in his gal by, like a rabbit to a barrow, while the marched up the gangway. "Can't ethis dirt," says mother, and even the bo'sl pinched a word also, loud the splash. For mother just secreted that large right through the galley, out at the other end, over the port cell and bounced him into the bum harbor, for the first and only bath had ever had. Then she took off her horn specs—the kind of bookskin gloves, and her bonnet, and set to washing a sailor when hadn't been washed since the days of President Lincoln. She hadn't time to listen to The wet nigger or the mate, and carry in man on board could get more than 'Oh, or 'ap out of mother. She crooked them a super too good to be eaten and spoon fed on the clothes to rights, got the lamp a-shining, and was to be shown round the ship.

The cap'n and me come tark along with the dinghy, makes fast, and climbs aboard. There's old crazy mother, with the hors specs, calm in her own element, just tidies a to ar right down to supper. Cap'n lives aft, and I belongs up forward, being ordinary seaman, and lean impertinent aboard than the old man's pig. Yet somehow mother knew, feedin' us both in the galley, and standing by while we fed. Never a word, but mother had a light for Cap'n. Smiths cigar, and there eye looking hungry at me for fear she'd be sent ashore.

"Well, ma'am," says the captain, "just your business." Cap'n, I'll soon get your baggage aboard."

Then I heard him on deck seeing mother's furniture into the boats, and all, and the nigger's turkey thrown out on the wharf.

Sort of strange to me remembering mother, quaint, bitter-hard, always in the right, with one to say. And there was little mother sobbing her heart out on the breast of my jersey. Just the same mother changed. Said she was fed up with the Labrador, coming away to see the world, most folks, and have a good time; but would I be ashamed of having her with me at sea?

Ashamed! All the ways down to Joe Beef's river to Rimouski you'll hear that year, today, of how the old ma's custom of wiening a berth in ter' fant was practised by a lady, aboard of the Pawnticket.

You've heard of ship's husbands, but we'd the first ship's mother. And the way she crept in was surely inaidi-cous. Good word that. She's got to be the queen, and the schooner's a sea palace, when we suddenly discovered a lively sinner on board.

Now we're sailing all shoes, hands on a fine wind, and Key West wide on the starboard bow, the same being in the second dog watch when I'm invited aft. There's the old man setting in the captain's palace, there's mother at the head of the table serving, and she sats me to sit in the mate's seat as if I was chief officer instead of master's dog.

"Sho," says she—quiet, little, soft chuckle. "Now, I'm ashamed, guy.

I was sort of sulky at having riddles put.

Then the old man gets red to the gills, giggling. He slaps himself on his fat knee and wriggles. Then he up and tows mother with a jerk nemack right on the lips.

"Can't guess?" says mother.

"I'm the old man," he stutter, "she's the old woman." Then he reached out his paw. "Put her there, son!" says he, "what's yer name, boy."

He'd a hand like a bear trap. "Smith!" I squealed. "Smith!"

"Flat!" says he. "Pith yourself a goblet of that rum there always wine, with some rasar. Drink, you cub, to Cap'tain and Mrs. Smith. Now off with ye, and pass the bottle forward."

Next day, or next week, or maybe the Monday following, the ship's got a headache, with the sky sitting down on the mainmast, the sea like oil, the sheets slapping the shadows on the deck, where the tar bells, and our feed is like overdoin toast.

The sky's like copper oiled with strict lightning. Then there's send in a hurry overhead, the horizon falling in, and a funnel-shaped cloud to the southard wrapping up the sky. There's no air, and I notiied the binnacle alight, to it must have been sigh down under that funnel cloud. Just as it struck, some one called out "All aboard!" and I heard the mate yell, "You mean all overboard!"

Couldn't see much at first, as I was busy getting mother out of the drowned cabin. When I'd passed a halyard round her and the stump of the mizzen, I'd just breathing time. The sea was flattened, white under black sky, and what was left of us was mostly bleeding and bruised.

Dad was just taking command again of what remained. No use shouting either, so he hung on and beckoned. The mate's crowd were bailing the holes in us, until we cut adrift. Then to the pumps, but that was sort of like trying to keep an eel in a bucket, w'ere warmer than waiting.

Being timber-laden, we couldn't sink which was convenient. But, as mother said, there wasn't any grub on the roof, and we couldn't go down-stairs. For instance, we wanted a drink of water.

Well, now, we been three days reduced to eating boiled oatmeal with beer stories, when a fishing vessel come alongside and salvage. Happens she one of them felucca-rigged dago wiers out of Invicta, Tuscan. His charges was quite moderate, too, for a breaker of water and some fancy grub—until we sense the bill.

I never knew till then that our old man was owner. Of course that's all right, only he'd run astern with his insurance. That's why he'd stay with the ship, so it's no good telling. As to mother, she come aboard the fe' lucky, ship's cat in her arms, and a sort of cold, dunk, gelatine-to-beyond smile—like one sort of smile, this bore up brave until she struck the numberone smell in the dago's cabin. "It's too much," she says, handing me the cat, "too much. I'm going back to drown myself."

But I was to stay with our sailors aboard the dago to fetch lyctera quick, and bring a tug. Dad treated me even to play the coward and quit time, I'd rather think back on the passage of four days to the port of Invicta.

How in Thin Ass I was fifteen, and considered manly. The mouth I got would be large for a dog, smile—sly and throughcarten. That sailors is straight to me. Speaks like a 'Bull wash girl. "Oh, mammy," she says, "look," and draws her hands apart so, just as if she was showing a long ribbon, "bigger than that, sir, sighs, "only nine cents a yard. Oh, mayi't I, mayi't I, mummy?"

And there was dad, with all that water of stars, washing across and across him.

STORIES OF CAMP AND WAR

FIRST SHOT AT GETTYSBURG

Honor for Opening Famous Battle Claimed by Capt. J. E. McCabe, 17th Pennsylvania Cavalry.

Capt. J. E. McCabe, 17th Pa. Cav., claims for his regiment the honor of firing the battle of Gettysburg. The fort marched into Gettysburg the 30 and halted in the field near the Seminary. About 4 o'clock General Thomas Down, commanding the second brigade, came to the colonel of the 17th Pa. and ordered him to send out his man on the different roads to find out Confederates who had passed through the town some days before, says the National Tribune. Co. A, of which Comrade McCabe was a member, was sent out on the Harrisburg Pike under command of Lieut. John S. Conley. It went several miles, when the men in the right rear of the column coming back. The company fired into the advance and there was a pitch-line fight out with Co. B on the pike. Nothing more happened until the Confederates came down Hill's men attacked Co. B, which sent back for help. The whole of Doubt's brigade was saddled up and rode over the ridge to form a line on the road, with the 17th Pa. on the right, and the regimental monument now stands, on the Emmitsburg road. The 5th N. Y. came next and then the 5th N. Y. They had been there for some time and were ordered to put fresh caps on their pistols and load their carbines. Soon they had their backs to the top of the hill and dismounted, with their horses back. They got behind a stone wall and fired over the top of the wall. They had been fighting several hours before Gen. Buford came up, with the First Corps and went in on the left. The line was held until the Eleventh Corps came up, also on foot, and went into position on the right. The regiment then came back into the town, with the cavalry fighting all through the town. There historians are all wrong about everybody, and veterans should not claim credit for what belongs to others. Capt. McCabe, in the last year of the war, was in charge of cavalry scouts, with Maj. H. H. Young of Sheridan's staff. He had under him 50 men, and 25 of them were killed, and of them were always in Lee's lines with our uniforms and always in supply train at Appomattox Court House and reported the same to Sheridan.

AWOKE AMID STACK OF GUNS

Philadelphia Soldier, Captured by Confederates, Has Most Pleasant Awakening Next Day.

The most surprised man at Appomattox was not Lee or Grant or Meade, Sheridan or Longstreet, but a Philadelphia soldier, who is now a widely known man in this city. Eddie John L. Kinney told about his at the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

When Lee's army fled from Richmond in April, 1865, it was hotly pursued by Grant's army. The fight and the chase to Appomattox was a fearful trial to both Federal and Confederate, and when finally the battle was overtaken and made to surrender both armies were utterly fatigued. The Philadelphia soldier was one of a small body of Union men captured on the morning of April 8. They were so completely tired out that when taken to Confederate headquarters they dozed or dropped to the ground to rest. Kinney was among the last among whom he awoke he found himself lying in a stack of guns. Some Confederate officer had evidently ordered the guns to be piled, and the men had fallen asleep where they had stood. Kinney was among the last among whom

FOOD SUPERSTITIONS.

Dyak Warriors Won't Eat Deer For Fear of Becoming Timid.

In rural Germany one still meets with a superstition that he who eats during a thunderstorm will be struck by lightning. Abstaining from food during an eclipse is common among savages; also a belief that in eating the flesh of an animal one absorbs that animal's characteristics. Thus silk-clad Dyak warriors never feds on food for men, but forbids women to eat it lest it make them too aggressive. In the Kongo women are forbidden to eat kinds of prey on the same principle, but are encouraged to eat foods which the male can no account ever touch. In the Caroline Islands these foods are a favorite dish with women, but men could not eat them because it one did and afterward climbed a cocoa tree he would surely fall to the ground and be killed.

Among the Dyaks warriors must not eat venison because it would make them timid as the deer. Jews and Greeks are forbidden to women of a Bantu tribe because an expecting woman would certainly fly into the brush and never return to her home. In many tribes animals is forbidden because the animals themselves forbid it, either as disagreeable to the eye or have ugly habits.—Exchange.

Pepys' Kiss.

For more than two centuries the body of Katherine of France, Henry VI's queen, interred in the building of Henry VII's chapel, with one of her side shows seen by every visitor to the abbey. Pepys, being received on Shrove Tuesday, 1669, he "had the upper part of her body in my hand and did take some dalliance, reflecting upon it that I did kiss a queen."

Amos S. Musselman, a year ago the standard bearer of the Republican party in Michigan, is not out of public life by any manner of means. His defeat of a year ago has not driven him from the field of usefulness in the state, nor has it discouraged him in the least. That he will in all likelihood become a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor next summer is likely.

Will Cooper met with quite a serious accident Monday forenoon. While painting on the B. W. He was taken to Fagan's rooms, adjoining Dr. Armstrong was in his office just above and gave him prompt attention.

Northern Michigan

Gradually, but surely the timber of Northern Michigan is slipping away. The Dunnic Lumber company of Dighton has but little standing timber left, the R. G. Peters company will be cleaned up in a short time Frank Harding's timber is all gone at Wolsell, and the town has been wiped off the map, and now the Blue Lake Lumber company at Blue Lake, just east from Muskegon, has cut its last log, and preparations are under way to make a complete clean up of its property.

Will Petoskey or Pellston be the home of the new normal about to be established in Emmet county? That is the question that is facing educational organizations, but the general belief here is that Petoskey will be favored. Two years ago the supervisors decided to give the county normal to Pellston, as Petoskey attorneys were not large enough to take care of it. It has since been learned that the supervisors did not have absolute power in the matter and the state superintendent of public instruction, who has considerable to say favors Petoskey. It is understood the local school board feel that it has provided for a county normal room in the new high school now in process of construction.

Frankfort Patriot: Good news is coming to Frankfort people and it bonches nowadays. The latest is positive information that the Northern Michigan Transportation Co. will during the coming winter erect a new warehouse and passenger station at this place. The old building has long outlived its usefulness, and the company some time ago saw that a new building would soon be a necessity, hence they made no effort to repair the old one.

Petoskey News: There was considerable excitement about the city Tuesday evening and Wednesday when it became known that the office of the United States Express Co. in the Cushman House block, was robbed of $414 in paper money and checks, express money orders, etc. The robbery took place at about 5 o'clock Tuesday evening.

Frankfort Patriot. Matters in connection with the rebuilding of the Royal Frontenac are coming nicely. Within the past week parties from Chicago, Toledo and other parts of the country have been here on business connected with this event, and we had hoped to have a complete account of matters to date ready for this issue of the Patriot. The hotel will be ready that much is assured, but there are some little details to be worked out yet. At a meeting of the prospective stockholders it was decided to allow Frankfort people a hand in the matter, not as a matter of donations, but to the extent of taking stock in the company. The Ann Arbor Ry. Co. will be one of the large stockholders in the company and associated with them will be Chicago, Toledo and probably Cleveland and Pittsburg parties.

Kenneth, the two-year-old son of Mr and Mrs. Wm. Anderson, of Conway, Lake county, died from scarlet fever at about 2 o'clock, from the effects of a dose of carbolic acid taken on Tuesday of last week. He was treated by Dr. Gibson Tuesday night, as soon as it was found out what had happened, and apparently recovered entirely recovered from the poison. Friday, however, he was taken with convulsions and died Sunday in spite of all that medical skill could do. That Cadillac and the surrounding country will in a few months be dotted with oil derricks, and that pipe lines will be running from Cadillac to Lake Michigan is the dream of several men in Cadillac, who constitute a part of a company which has just been organized there for the purpose of prospecting for and the refining of oil. The company is to be known as the Cadillac Oil and Gas Company. Incorporated with a capital capital $10,000 of which is subscribed.

BAD FOR PRONUNCIATION.

Silent Reading and Neglect of Conversation Are Harmful.

Perhaps the most potent of influences toward diverse pronunciation, especially differences in accent, is the fact that we seldom or never hear in conversation a vast number of words which nevertheless constitute an important and indispensable part of our vocabulary.

"By silent reading and neglect of conversation language itself," declares Richard Grant White, "is coming into disuse." The result of this practice is not only that we are always mentally neglecting pronunciations peculiar to ourselves, which we have no means of ascertaining to be unconscious or ridiculous, but also that the natural tendencies of our language, uncontrolled by the conservative forces which occasional use in conversation might exert, rapidly foster new pronunciations and produce a diversity of pronunciation even among the most careful speakers.

"All these influences obviously supplement each other in resisting any trend toward uniform pronunciation and facilitate the progress of the tendencies of speech peculiar to our English tongue.—Robert J. Menner in Atlantic Monthly.

A Fleet Street Story.

Henry Arthur Broome, in "The Log of a Rolling Stone," says that in 1871 I was engaged in wood engraving for Punch when one day, at the end of the week, short of money, he stood strong longingly at the cherries on a costermonger's barrow which stood abreast of the offices of the London Telegraph. His gaze arrested the attention of a gentleman whom he had often seen there before, though not at midday. This man kindly dealt out to me. The gentleman, averting his gaze from me a moment, purchased two penny bags of this fruit. Then, placing one of them in the pocket of his capacious dust coat he turned to me with the sweetest smile imaginable and without a word, offered the other one to me, which I gratefully accepted. He then passed on and went upstairs to the offices of the newspaper. That was my first introduction to the prince of journalism, George Augustus Sala.

HOME HAPPINESS.

The happiness of any home can be murdered by any two people in it, each determined daily to have his or her own way. Riches or poverty, position or obscurity, has nothing to do with it. Home happiness is built on unselfishness and sympathy and forbearance.

BANK AT BOYNE FALLS CLOSED WEDNESDAY

Walsh's private bank at Boyne Falls is closed.

"A run on the bank cleaned us out of currency Tuesday," said W. C. Walsh, proprietor. "We owe depositors in the neighborhood of ten thousand dollars.

"Depositors will not lose a penny," Mr. Walsh continued. "We have lots of good collateral to cover all loans but we simply can not turn it into cash immediately. It will take a few days to adjust matters and then everyone will get their money. It is unfortunate for me but I will be the loser not the depositors."

Mr. Walsh said he had paid out $20,000 to depositors in the run on his bank Friday, Saturday and Tuesday. He established his bank in Boyne Falls six years ago.—Evening Journal (Boyne City).

TURKEYS ARE PLENTIFUL.

Thanksgiving and Christmas turkeys will be more plentiful this year, produce jobber at Indianapolis said, produce jobbers said after an investigation. The state contains more turkeys now than there have been in the last three years.

A certain turkey prices will be lower than Thanksgiving turkey prices because only part of the crop will be matured by November.

Chickens will be higher, however, jobbers say. Also egg prices will continue to soar.

Another Clean-Up for Charlevoix

The Charlevoix high school foot ball team went to Cheboygan to assist in the Saturday and played the Cheboygan team, coming home victors in a score of 27 to 0.

The Charlevoix team has played five games this fall and won every game by big figures. If this does not mean Northern Michigan championship what does it mean?

It is uncertain about another game this fall.

The W. C. T. U. Convention

Large numbers of out-of-town ladies were here Tuesday attending the district convention W. C. T. U.

The sessions were held in the Congregational church, and the banquet in the dining hall at six o'clock was an enjoyable affair, about 150 being seated.

We regret that the hour of closing these columns prevents a more extended mention of the proceedings.

School Notes.

English III has commenced the study of the works of Poe, having completed the study of Irving's "Tales of a Traveller."

Mr. DeVoe, Miss Whiting, and Miss Himes have gone to Ann Arbor to attend the state teacher's association.

A Lord to His Power.

A curious historical incident is handed down from the time of James I. James, being in want of money, applied to the corporation for a loan. The corporation refused. The king threatened, "But, sire, you cannot compel us," said the lord mayor. "No," exclaimed James, "but I'll ruin you and the city forever. I'll remove my courts of law, my court itself and my parliaments to Winchester or to Oxford and make a desert of Westminster, and then mark what will become of you!" "May it please your majesty," replied the lord mayor, "you are at liberty to remove yourself and your courts to wherever you please; but, sire, there will always be one consolation in the metropolis of London—your majesty cannot take the Thames along with you."

True Kindergarten Spirit.

Master Harold was detained after his first day at a kindergarten school, says the Minneapolis Tribune.

"Well, Harold," said a friend of his mother who was calling, "how do you like school. I suppose you are the youngest there."

"Yes, sir," said Harold indignantly, drawing himself to his full height and throwing out his chest—"sir, not Nora of our class comes in perambulators."

LOST THROUGH ERROR

Wet Effort to Submit Local Option Failed by Error in Initial Procedure

There will be no vote on the local option question next spring.

The mountain labored and brought forth a mouse.

The board of supervisors adjourned without day on Saturday morning, and there will be no session until next October. It was discovered by some of the lawyers on the dry side last week that the wets had been too hasty in their preliminary work, and that the ten days between the posting of the petitions and the certificate to the county clerk, had not been allowed to elapse as the law provides.

An effort was made to correct the error by amendment, but an opinion of the Attorney General that the board could not amend the proceedings effectually blocked the campaign for open saloons in Charlevoix.

The issue then shifted to the question of a referendum. If influence sufficient to induce the board to adjourn to some future date could be exerted all might yet be well with the wets. But Friday afternoon the test of strength on that proposition was taken and the board stood 16 to 9 for an adjournment sine die.

And then the fake of the session occurred. Supervisor Chew, of Bay, moved that the matter of building a new court house be referred to a committee, to report in January. Supervisor Montelasie, of Boyne City, jumped to his feet and moved an amendment that the committee report at the session. The purpose of the motion was so palpably transparent that the amendment carried, neatly sanctioning the bubble.

And the upshot of it all is that because the wets did not employ a lawyer to steer them in the right course, the local option question will rest another year, when probably Charlevoix and Emmet, will vote on it again.

WHITEFISH EGGS

To Be Placed in Government Hatchery Estimated That Will Be Ninety Million Handled

Lansing, Oct. 23.—Deputy game warden D. R. Jones and James Hunter, of the game warden's department, began their annual work of taking milts of whitefish eggs from the Detroit river at points near Belle Isle and Grosse Island. Taking of the whitefish spawn from this river is one of the most important of the varied activities of the game and fish department.

Including government experts about forty men are employed in the task and the work will not be completed for nearly three weeks. The state department's gasoline tug, "Cleo" is used in many years.

The fish come up the river from Lake Erie to spawn at this season of the year and big seines are used in gathering the fish. The males are separated from the females as they are taken from the water, and are placed in crates and anchored in the river again. Then when the proper time arrives men who are experts in this line of work, take the eggs from the female fish while they are still alive, and then in some manner known to the government hatchery at Detroit. On being hatched out the fish are again placed in Detroit river, and this year mostly in the lumber trade to Green Bay ports, are the Cora A., J. S. Mead, Butcher Boy, Carrier, Quickstep, Geo. A. Marks and Resumption.

County Normal Notes.

(HATTIE HAMLIN)

Miss Himes received a letter from Isabelle Knight who is taking a primary course at Ypsilanti and is enjoying her work.

Hattie Hamlin assisted Miss Marvin last week, and Gladys Johnson is assisting this week. Edna Shigley and Velma LaCount have charge of the training room during Miss Whiting's absence.

On Monday of last week a class meeting was held and the following officers were chosen: President, Rhoda Cliff; Vice-president, Edna Shigley; secretary and treasurer, Marjorie Weaver. The class flowers, motto and colors were not chosen, but were left over for the next meeting.

Thursday morning a committee of the supervisors was sent to the normal room to inspect the work of the class. They were also served with refreshments. The class accepted the invitation given by the supervisors to attend one session of the board. After the meeting the class were given a basket of grapes and a box of hon-bons, which were enjoyed very much.

The School Officers' Meeting was held at the normal room of the high school on Wednesday of last week. It was conducted by G. N. Otwell assistant superintendent of public instruction. He explained the changes in the school laws, told the duties of school officers, and their obligation to the school. Questions were asked by different members present. throughout the entire meeting. Com. J. H. Milford also gave a short talk in the afternoon. Refreshments of pumpkin pie and coffee were served by the normal class, which seemed to be enjoyed by everyone, especially by those driving in from the country.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

County Buys Charlevoix Real Estate—County Officials Appointed—Tax Apportionment.

The most important of the transactions of the board of supervisors was after these columns were closed last week. The records shows the following in the last three days of the session:

It was voted to place a prism light on the east side of the entrance to South Arm, at the ferry.

The board adopted a resolution purchasing the two lots of Mrs. B. W. Miller, adjoining the court house lot, at $2,000.

Communication from Detroit house of correction that no contract could be made with the county, owing to crowded conditions of the prison.

The sum of $1,000 was appropriated and credited to the road machinery fund.

L. A. Butler, of Boyne City, was elected school examiner.

H. C. Cooper was elected to the board of poor superintendents.

Resolution adopted that county officers pay their own expenses to state conventions unless otherwise provided for by the board of supervisors.

Bills to the amount of $10,000 audited, including supervisors, per diem and mileage.

Tax apportionment exhibit as follows: State, $86,639.95; County, $45,087.59; Highway, $22,543.79.

FIERCE BATTLE IN COPPER ZONE

Fifty One Thousand Men and Women Participated—Women as Well as Men Injured.

Serious rioting broke out afresh in the Red Jacket district copper strike zone the 24th, when a thousand men and women engaged in a fierce battle in the streets following an attack upon a strikers' parade by mine guards and imported gunmen. There was no respect for sex, and women as well as men were beaten and bruised. Revolvers and knives flashed in the battle and before the state militiamen could restore order half a score of persons wounded and bleeding. Three mine guards were beaten over the head and badly hurt, one was stabbed in the back and another in the back. After a hard struggle the militia dispersed the mob and fourteen arrests were made, mostly strikers, including two women. Riding in it also reported at Allouez and Rumbleston. Six arrests were made at these points.

Going Some

In command of Captain Swanson, the schooner Cora A. recently made a run from Chicago to Marinette that has not been equaled by a lake sailing vessel in many years.

From Chicago piers to the Marinette piers her time was just 22 hours. She made the trip by way of Death Door passage, the distance of the route being exactly 275 miles for the entire run.

The Cora A. is owned by the Chicago Lumber company and is one of the best preserved of the few remaining lake schooners. She is 24 years old.

Of the hundreds of fine schooners that formerly traded out of Chicago and Milwaukee, scarcely a dozen are now in service. Among the large vessels of the sailing type yet in commission, mostly in the lumber trade to Green Bay ports, are the Cora A., J. S. Mead, Butcher Boy, Carrier, Quickstep, Geo. A. Marks and Resumption.

Thanksgiving Day

the president has designated Thursday Nov. 27th, as National Thanksgiving Day.

We all have our troubles, annoyances and sorrows. None of us have reason to curse God and die, as the proper Job was tempted to do.

But rather; all of us, of average rational intelligence, acknowledge the existence of an all-wise providence from whence has come to us blessings in abundance.

While we have sometimes wept in the wilderness of despair and sorrow, Manna has fallen to sustain and encourage, and the brightness and warmth of the benificence have drawn our hearts closer to our hearts and cast no shadows.

We of this fair north have reason to rejoice in the plethora of good that has come to us. No disaster has befallen us in live or goods; nature has been lavish in her gifts, and food from land and water has been ample.

Therefore, thanks to the Giver of all blessings.

Board of Education.

Office of the Board of Education October 31st, 1913.

Regular meeting of the Board called to order by Vice-President Kane.

Trustees present—Kane, Glassford and Hiller. Absent—Nordrum and Armstrong.

The following bills were presented and read.

	TEACHER FUND
3	Graf Nordrum, teachers' pay roll	$770 52
	Total	$1,080 31

Moved and supported that the bills as presented be allowed and the secretary be instructed to draw orders on the various funds for the amount of each respective bill. Motion carried.

Then minutes were read and approved and on motion the Board adjourned.

E. J. HILLER, Secretary.

Placed the Court.

London Law Times tells a story of the late Lord Ashbourne, who as lord chancellor of Ireland occasionally sitting in his stead to bring a case to an end before the rising of the court.

A junior who was not conscious of the presence sent up a note what appeared to be a short interlocutory appeal. Lord Ashbourne after a hesitance or two had been spoken intercepted, "Now, my dear, I'm afraid you have the king's bench on a point like this?"

"My lord," rejoined counsel, "there are six reasons why the order should be reversed."

"Then" said the president of the court, "suppose we commence with number one."

"No, my lord," said counsel; "I could not present to the court that which unfortunately succeeded to this court upon my bad points."

Lord Ashbourne confounded and once was unable to have his own way in the court of appeal.

Neglected Neighborhoods.

You can find in almost any town a "neglected neighborhood." The sanitary inspector can do with such a neighborhood is to keep on neglecting it.

But it is a good thing to study these cases as if they were about other places and people than ourselves and our homes. Is there a neglected neighborhood in your town or in your county? If there is, what are you going to do about it? Not "What have you been doing about it?" or "What ought you to do about it?" but "What are you going to do about it?"

If you can't get the committees interested do something yourself. Do not be afraid.

The thing is to get started. You see, as soon as you have started something the neighborhood is no longer neglected. And then it will be an easier matter to get some one to come in and help.—Christian Herald.

"I started to trace my ancestry back once," he replied, "but my wife made me stop when I got to shirt sleeves and overalls." Judge.

The Family Cough Medicine.

In every home there should be a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery ready for immediate use when any member of the family contracts a cold or cough. Prompt use will stop the spread of sickness. S. A. Hill, of Mason, Mich. writes "My whole family depends upon Dr. King's New Discovery as the best cough and cold medicine in the world. Two 50c bottles cured me of pneumonia." Thousands of other families have been equally benefited and depend entirely upon Dr. King's New Discovery to cure their coughs, colds, throat and lung trouble every day. Price 50c and 1.00 at F. G. Hines & Co.

TO GROW FOREST

Forest Commission is Conducting Experiment on Large Tract.

At Fuller Lake, 100 miles from Fife Lake, the state forestry commission has started a reforestation from which great things are anticipated, but which is wholly an experiment. The state owns there from 8,000 to 10,000 acres of cut-over lands, wherein the commission expects in the course of years will be a brand new forest.

There are in charge of the work two families and four other men who have as headquarters a large log house near the lake and an icehouse. Here and there over the large tract are four high towers, which will serve as lookouts, from which the entire tract can be watched for fires. The men who will act as rangers will patrol the tract practically continually. The tract contains many fine oak openings. The land will be carefully guarded and in addition, where there is an opportunity Norway pine seedlings will be set out and nourished.

Around the entire tract furrows have already been plowed and a ridge 15 feet across has been turned up to act as a fire-breaker.

Thus tract of land was denuded of its timber many years ago by the Fife Lake Land & Lumber Co., long since gone out of business.

GEO. VAN PELT TALKS BACK

Geo. H. Van Pelt, of Chicago and Charlevoix, to whom we recently referred in a way he resented as "crank," writes The SENTINEL as follows:

"I cannot help the pleasure I experience when reading your paper referring to me as the old "good-roads" crank. You it taken quickly to move the world, but the world I have moved is so small that it is lost in the dust of the worlds that the other fellows build up, and you seldom hear it spoken of. You ask the man who devises the ways, might say all the credit of nearly so, of the "good-roads" question as Van Pelt and Horatio Earl are concerned. By the way, I feel mighty proud to have my name connected with Mr. Earl's. He certainly was a cracker.

"He could come to our picnics, tell us all about good roads, what they meant, and people would pay some attention to him. They did not have much confidence in me, but have the satisfaction of knowing that all that I have said in those early days has come true, and it has cost the farmers in Charlevoix and Antrim counties a great many thousand dollars in the way of extra hauling for such a large part of the year.

"You, with your wide-awake ideas, have got ahead of me, and one of my good road ideas before the public, and to your belongs more credit than to me."

NO DISGRACE, THEY SAY.

The Petoskey News has this to say regarding a recent football game with Charlevoix:

"For the first time in four years Petoskey high school was forced to accept the defeat at the hands of a football Saturday with the Charlevoix high school team. Charlevoix was a great many thousand dollars in the way of extra hauling for such a large part of the year.

STEAMER AFIRE: 135 DIE AT SEA, 521 ARE RESCUED

LINER VOLTURNO BURNS FOLLOWING AN EXPLOSION.

FOUR LIFEBOATS ARE LOST

Tee Steamships Stand by All Night Unable to Land Lifeboats in Craft—Many Jump into the Sea and Are Drowned.

London, Oct. 18.—The Volturno of the Cunadian line, bursing and blazing in a raging mid-Atlantic storm, last Thursday sent a wireless call over the sea and drew to it six ships that raging in time to save 521 of its 656 passengers and crew.

The others, 135, were swallowed by the ocean when the lifting waves crushed one of the Volturno's lifeboats against the ship's side.

Hemmed in by Twenty Fires.

For more than twenty hours the ten rescuing ships that had wheeled in their courses when the "S. O. S." beckoned them in the storm cruised around the Volturno, unable to go to her aid because of the dangers of wind and wave.

It was not until Friday morning that they were able to transfer the Volturno's passengers, who were for the most part immigrants from eastern Europe bound for Halifax and New York.

And it was a matter of two or three hours at the least that meant the difference between life and death to the people on the burning ship, for the growing fire and who had about given up all hope.

Burns Amid Big Fleet.

On Thursday night, at 11 fell darkness on 656 passengers of the ten ships that had come up to deliver the Volturno's people, had one of the most remarkable experiences that ever fell to people that sail the sea.

Imagine a great ship burning in the center of a fleet inspired to help. The flames leaping from the Volturno illuminated the great waves that danced in the lower reaches. All around were steamships ablaze with light whose people heard the cries of their Volturno passengers and were powerless to give aid.

These ten ships were the Carmania of the Cunard line, the Grosser Kurfurst of the North German Lloyd, the Empshannock, the Kronland of the Red Star line, La Touraine of the French line, the Minneapolis of the Atlantic Transport line, the Czar, the Narragansett, the Ultonia and the Seydlitz.

Rescues on Friday Morning.

Early on Friday morning, the weather having moderated, these ships were able to lower small boats and take off the Volturno's passengers. Captain Barr of the Carmania, whose wireless message to the office of the Cunard line in Liverpool gave the first news of one of the greatest marine disasters in history, placed the number that had been rescued as follows:

Carmania	11
La Touraine	40
Minneapolis	102
Empshannock	102
Czar	102
Narragansett	102
Iononian	102
Kronland	102
Grosser Kurfuerst	102
Seydlitz	102

Wireless Brings Early Aid.

Had it not been for the great storm they would have had a comfortable and a desperate venture. It is likely that few if any of the Volturno's passengers would have been drowned. The wireless served again in time of need and the ships were able to come up in time to have picked up such small boats.

The Volturno was sufficiently equipped with life boats to carry all its betts but no seamanship or courage could overcome the fury of the storm.

Six boats were dropped into the sea shortly after an explosion forward had killed several of the crew and some of the immigrant passengers and had fired the forward part of the steamship. Only two of these boats were able to get away from the ship. The others were gripped by the waves and hammered to pieces against the plates. Their passengers drowned.

The officers report of the disaster which was received at the Cunard office in Liverpool, was timed on board the Carmania by Captain Barr at 6:30 o'clock. The report says that the Volturno was abandoned on account of fire on Friday, October 10, in latitude 34.22 west, and that all survivors were taken off.

After giving the number of passengers taken on board the ten rescuing steamships, Captain Barr's report added:

"An Incomplete list of those saved is on board the Carmania. I will forward it from Queenstown."

The Volturno was abandoned as a pelet in the ocean which is about 700 miles north of east of where the Titanic sank and 1,500 miles west from on April 14, 1912. The scene of Thursday's disaster was about 450 miles east of Newfoundland and well in the steamship track.

The Carmania's lifeboat, in charge of First Officer Gardiner, made a gallant but futile attempt to get along side the Volturno.

Captain Barr, on the Carmania in the meantime, got his wireless apparatus at work communicating with all the vessels within the radius of his instruments.

At four o'clock in the afternoon the Grosser Kurfuerst and the Seydlitz came in sight and these two were joined later in the afternoon by the Kronland, the Devonian, the Empshannock, the Minneapolis and La Touraine.

The gale abated slightly toward night and each of the rescue ships, as soon as it was possible for it to do so put out boats. The waves were still so high, however, that all the small craft were driven back.

Cries were heard during the night, but the searchlights could begin no one. They who cried out perished miserably with the ship, as billows as summer breaks, standing all around them.

Rescues Begin at Dawn.

The storm continued throughout the night, but toward dawn it began to decrease and the sea began to get smoother. Every minute of the night and the officers and crew of the ten rescuing ships had been on duty watching and waiting for a chance to lower boats. At daylight their opportunity came.

All of the waiting steamships had part in the rescue. There was the confusion of the Volturno was covered with lifeboats. The boats approached the stern, where in the hundreds of passengers and crew were gathered. And in turn took on load of lifeboats.

Some of the Volturno's people leaped into the water and were hauled into the lifeboats.

Survivor Tells of Disaster.

London, Oct. 14.—C. F. Hart, mechanical manager of the Daily Mail, who was a passenger on the Cunard ar Carmania, gave a description of the burning of the Volturno. The message is as follows: "The lifeboats took off in quick succession the passengers from the Volturno as they reached one by one down the lifelines.

"Daybreak saw two other additions to the rescue fleet, the Russian-American liner Czar and the last steamer Narragansett. The latter came at full speed and quickly took up a position in windward of the Volturno. In a few moments two large streams of oil were pouring over the side of the Volturno, and this materially calmed the waters and made it practicable at a distance in aiding the small boats to take off the passengers and crew. The Czar also maneuvered toward the stern of the burning vessel, but it was from the side of the ship that the survivors were being taken.

Passengers Are Taken Off.

"By nine o'clock Friday morning all of the passengers who remained were safely transferred to the rescuing ships, and the Volturno, which had been taken in tow, was left to burn. It was from this side of the ship that the survivors were being taken.

DEFEND MONEY BILL

ADMINISTRATION TAKES STAND AGAINST CRITICISM.

Wilson Tells Cabinet Convention Views Do not Represent the Public Sentiment.

Washington, Oct. 11.—New feelings of confidence in the currency reform bill were felt on Thursday following a concerted defense of the measure by democratic senators, who denounced the criticisms of the bill made by bankers at the Boston convention of the American bankers' association and against what was alleged to be an organized effort to hinder its consideration and passage.

A senate debate in which the bank ers' criticisms came in for shot and over from friends of the bill on the senate floor found its echo later in the day, when President Wilson made calls to callers his own view of the recent developments surrounding the bill.

The president let it be known that he did not think the views of the Boston bankers' convention, as they bore on the currency bill now before the senate, represented the general public sentiment of the country. In the president's view the attacks made on the bill by the Boston conference represented the activities of men whom he believed to be acting with sincerity, but who as individuals refused to yield their position of control of the country's financial system.

MILITANT FLEES FROM POLICE

Dressed From Hall as Suffragettes With Brushes and Chairs Severely Battle Officers.

London, Oct. 15.—After a fierce struggle the police arrested Miss Pankhurst and Miss Dora Neabin, in the east end of London, where she was making a speech. But when they got her outside the building, with the intention of carrying her to a cab and rushing her to Holloway jail, the militants attacked the police so savagely they had to let her go and she escaped.

Miss Pankhurst, who has an uncompleted term of imprisonment to serve, was not recognized until she had escaped the disguise which enabled her to elude the police and enter the building. She had been speaking only a few minutes when police in plain clothes, unknown, entered the hall and made a rush for the platform.

The audience arose and chairs began to fly, the invaders being the objective point. Some of the people in the galleries even dropped benches on their heads.

The police succeeded in dragging Miss Pankhurst down to the floor of the hall.

Concentrating the attack on the person who had the militant leader in their grasp, the women, with the assistance of several men, succeeded in tearing her from their grasp and she slipped away. Miss Zelie Emerson of Jackson, Mich., whose imprisonment caused such a furore several months ago, was one of those injured.

HUERTA FOE SLAIN

BODY OF SENATOR, MISSING SINCE ARREST, FOUND NEAR MEXICO CITY.

WILSON SENDS WARNING

United States Will Keep Strict Account of Fate of Deputies, is Official Message to Dictator of Southern Republic.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Telegrams from Charge O'Shaughnessy to the state department on Monday consolidated confirmation of the death of Senator Domingues, whose body was found in the woods of the suburbs of the Mexican capital Saturday.

He was arrested upon Huerta's order in December for delivering a fiery speech in the Mexican senate. He disappeared soon after his arrest.

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan regard the assassination of Senator Domingues as parallel with that of former President Madero. The news was received with grave dread the president and secretary of state. Both believe that senator Domingues was murdered because of his political stand and, while they have no proof, they feel that Huerta is at the bottom of the murder.

A telegram received at the state department states that no harm has befallen the hundred prisoners, two of whom still are in prison. The dispatch did not indicate a possibility by their being released of the peace envoys. Mr. O'Shaughnessy repeated his warning that the government faces a imminent danger of losing their lives because of the political feeling in the fact that they oppose the administration of President Huerta.

Immediately after the conference between Secretary Bryan and President Wilson, relative to the Senator Domingues's message it was announced at the White House that telegrams had been dispatched by both Secretary Lind at Vera Cruz and Charge O'Shaughnessy at Mexico City to the Mexican authorities to the Huerta government that the United States would look with displeasure upon any injury to the Mexican deputies now under arrest.

Germany's decision to detach a warship to Mexican waters attracted much attention in official circles. No intimation had been received here of Germany's intention and President Wilson was informed only by press dispatches of the action.

No mention of Germany was made on the incident, but it was apparent that the Washington government was not displeased. The sending of a German warship is in line with the policy of other European governments, which have had vessels cruising on the Mexican coast since the outbreak of civil commotions in Mexico.

Deputies Are Slain.

Mexico City, Oct. 15.—All members of the chamber of deputies arrested on Friday and locked up in the penitentiary for their revolutions of warning to him as the result of the disappearance of Senator Belisario Dominguez, senator for Chiapas.

The other deputies who signed the resolution were absent when a cordon of soldiers surrounded the house of legislative building and several hundred of their friends and relatives.

Disappearance on Thursday night of Dr. Belisario Dominguez, senator for Chiapas.

Five other deputies who signed the resolution were taken under a cordon of troops was thrown about the legislative building and several hundred soldiers invaded the chamber.

The arrests followed a demand by President Huerta that the chamber withdraw the resolution, which carried a threat that the deputies would abandon the capitol owing to an alleged lack of guarantees for their personal safety.

ATHLETICS WIN THE FLAG

Philadelphia Americans Are Now Champions of the Baseball World—Score is 3 to 1.

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 14.—The Athletics won the final game of the world's series by 3 to 1. The score of 3 to 1, after a heart-breaking struggle, gave the Athletics the real world's championship.

Flinn for the Philadelphia team did yeoman work while Mathewson played the game of his life, but could not win for his team, 3 to 1.

The Philadelphians thus become the champions of the world and incidentally get the largest share of the gate receipts from the five games played, which go to settle the contest, the Phillies winning four, the Giants one.

One of the biggest crowds that ever witnessed a baseball game jammed the park here to see the mighty Mathewson for the slipping Giants and Plank for the battering, determined Athletics, hitch up in a pitchers' contest in the fifth game of the world series.

WILLIE WELL PROVIDED FOR

Little Possibility of His Getting Hungry on the Way Home, but If He Does.

They were talking about improving an opportunity the other afternoon, when the secretary of the interior contributed to the conversation.

"Makes me think," he smilingly said, "of a youngster who lives in our town. One afternoon he was invited to a party where, of course, refreshments were beautifully served.

"'Won't you have something more, Willie?' asked the hostess, as he stood the close of the feast.

"'No, thank you,' replied Willie, with an expression of great satisfaction. 'I'm full.'

"'Well, then,' smiled the hostess, 'put some fruit and cake in your pockets to eat on the way home.'

"'No, thank you,' came the rather startling response of Willie. 'They're full, too.'"

PIMPLES ALL OVER FACE

1413 E. Genesseo Ave., Saginaw, Mich., writes: "Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me of a very bad disease of the face without leaving a scar. The pimples broke out all over my face, red and large. They festered and came to a head. They itched and burned and caused me to scratch them and make them fester. I had to wear a cloth warm. At night I was restless from itching. When the blisters would shave me my face would bleed terribly. Then scabs would form attempting to come off, and the scratched seed warts would cause much pain. They were on my face for about nine months and the trouble caused disfigurement while it lasted.

Hog Cholera Costs State $1,000,000.

Hog cholera, which in two weeks has been ravaging Michigan's pig population, has cost the state's farmers fully $1,000,000 since its inception, according to Prof. Ward Gittner of M A C. He made the estimate in response to a query from the Louisiana department of agriculture. The disease, Professor Gittner asserted, has killed off great numbers of hogs in at least half the counties in the state.

"The continued spread of the epidemic, Professor Gittner claims, is attributable to the failure by the farmers of the state to heed the lessons of vaccination. They hold back and forth from the healthy pens to the infected herds, he said, and so carry the disease from farm to farm. He advised that sick hogs be separated and the healthy ones vaccinated.

"Hog cholera is one copy that we save for a witness. Not all of its victims are so fortunate. It is for you to give to the eye of a babe," Professor Gittner quoted the bard with triumphant air and voice. "Hamlet Second is Nothing!"—Youth's Companion.

A FOOD DRINK Which Brings Daily Enjoyment.

"A lady doctor writes:

"Though busy hourly with my own affairs, I will not deny myself the pleasure of taking a few minutes to tell of my enjoyment daily obtained from my morning cup of Postum. It is a food beverage, not an instant like coffee.

"I began to use Postum 5 years ago, not continuing the use of ordinary coffee, which I nearly loved, made my nights long weary periods for the hours of and unfitting me for business during the day.

"On advice of a friend, I first tried Postum, making it as clear as the recipe suggested on the package. As I had always used cream with my coffee I missed my Postum so—it looked good, was clear and fragrant, and it was a pleasure to see the cream color it as it settled. Yet I wanted but coffee to look—like a new satisfie.

"Then I tasted it critically, for I had tried many 'substitutes' for coffee. I was pleased to see, instead, the rich Postum in taste and effect, and yet, being a constant user of all these years. I continually assure my friends that Postum is not coffee but when I am in place of coffee, and receive benefit from it, I have gained weight, can sleep and am not nervous.

400 MINERS KILLED

EXPLOSION IN CARDIFF, WALES, COLLIERY CAUSES DEATH AND DESTRUCTION.

LESS THAN 400 ARE RESCUED

Families of Miners Rush to Mouth of Pit, Frantic in Their Grief and Anxiety—Shaft a Raging Furnace of Fire.

Cardiff, Wales, Oct. 16.—More than 400 miners met death on Tuesday in the Universal colliery in the worst coal mine explosion in the history of Wales.

Official names furnished by the company said that there were 921 men in the mine and less than 400 of these had been rescued during the afternoon, while the interior of the pit was a raging furnace and the upper car practically abandoned for the entombed men.

Fire followed the explosion and many of the men who were carried out alive were so badly burned they will die.

From 700 to 900 men were at work in the pit when an explosion of coal dust with earthquake force rocked the surrounding country and shattered the interior of the shaft. All were imprisoned.

Fire which followed the blast was controlled but later burst out again. The mine was reported to be burning in the hour of the mining district.

Heroic measures carried out by men, after risuing their own lives by venturing into the fiery, poison-laden chambers of the mine.

When the blast occurred representatives of the Cambria Mutual Associated Colliery company, owners of the mine, were in the city and only a few men were in the pit.

So violent was the detonation that people miles and miles around was shaken as though by an earthquake and many people thought that the end had arrived that all the entombed men had been burned to death. The worst explosion leading to disaster the worst in the history of Wales.

Miners' wives, frantic, not long after the day shift had gone down into the pit, the blast occurred. Cardiff trembled from the shock, fire followed.

Soon the work of carrying out the survivors began. Many of them were unconscious. Some had their clothing blown off.

Families of the miners rushed to the mouth of the pit, frantic in their grief and anxiety and determined to sacrifice their own lives, if necessary, in an attempt to save their loved ones penned in the shaft.

Hundreds of other persons, led by curiosity or the desire to give aid, clustered about the pit mouth.

Fire followed the explosion.

Special trains and automobiles began arriving from surrounding towns, doctors and nurses, sped to the scene. A first-aid hospital and a temporary morgue were erected side by side not far from the shaft opening.

Rescuers from other pits extend that hundreds of constables were sent into the district to keep the crowd back. Lines were formed to keep the grandfathers relatives of the entombed penned up miners from danger. The voices of hundred of women and children, search of their husbands, mingled with the shouts of the men in the rescue work. Men who were placed on duty around the head of the mine. Lines were formed to assist the grandfathers relatives of the seven hundred penned up miners from danger. The voices of hundred of women and children lifted up in lamentation. Women

THE PIRATE'S LAST BATTLE

The Black Buccaneer, Victim of a Terrible Vengeance.

Nearly 200 years ago two British ships of war were anchored off the settlement of Jamestown, in the colony of Virginia. On board one of them Lieutenant Maynard was awaiting his wife, who was coming out to him from England, it being their intention to settle in the new country. A ship was seen making slow headway up the stream, and Maynard, thinking the vessel to be the Thistle, in which his wife had sailed from London, took a boat and was pulled down to meet her. A terrible shock awaited him. The vessel was not the Thistle, but the Europa, and she brought the news that the former vessel had been captured by Edward Thatch, a pirate, commonly called Blackbeard, and all on board had perished.

Thatch had for some time infested the coast, running his plunder into Hatteras, N. C., where he had gained the protection of the governor by dividing it with him. The governor of Virginia had been appealed to with a view to getting rid of the buccaneer and when this last outrage was perpetrated ready to act. He furnished two sloops, the war vessels furnished the crews, and Lieutenant Maynard was placed in command of an expedition to hunt down Blackbeard.

One day in November the sloops weighed anchor and sailed away down the river, followed by the prayers of the sturdy settlers of the town and their comrades on the warships. No one doubted that if Lieutenant Maynard fell in with the demon of the ocean he would either bring him back alive or dead or would never come back himself. And they were right. Maynard had been married but a short time before his ship had sailed from England to a girl he worshiped, and both, being of an enthusiastic spirit, had laid their plans to make a home in the new world. From the moment he heard of her death he knew no one emotion, and that was to be revenged upon her murderer.

Four days after the expedition sailed the pirates were sighted in an inlet near Bathtown. As it was nightfall Maynard anchored to wait for light by which to get at his enemy. When it came Thatch made an effort to escape, but in doing so ran aground. Maynard saw that he had his enemy at a disadvantage, since, being in a fixed position, he could neither maneuver nor get away. Maynard tried to get near the pirate, but drew too much water. Throwing out the ballast from the sloop in which he was he finally came within close range.

On the pirate's deck stood Thatch. His bushy black beard, from which he derived his name, was tied up with ribbons, the ends of which were thrown over his ears. On his head was a red cap with a pleated match on either side. Across his shoulders were slung three brace of pistols, in a belt were he hurled words of defiance, to which Maynard replied that he would soon board him, which was the only offensive method at his disposal, since he had no guns. The answer from the pirate was a broadside, which put one of the fine twenty of Maynard's crew and nine on his supporting ship.

Maynard, desiring to get at the demon, ran close up alongside his ship. Suddenly a shower of hand grenades fell on the sloop, and before the crew could recover from the blow Maynard heard and fourteen of his followers were on the Indian ship's deck.

Maynard and Thatch rushed together. Hand to hand they fought, now with sword, now with pistol. But since the one barrel weapon of that day was exhausted in a single shot and six of them were but equal to one revolver of the present. It was but a few minutes before nothing remained to them except their swords. Thatch fought for his life. Maynard defended his honor. Time and again he barely escaped death from his enemy's cutlass. His sword broke, and it seemed that he must fall before Blackbeard's still perfect steel. But he fought on with what remained of his blade, thrusting, cutting, hacking.

It was a terrible style, these two men, the one possessed by a demon of cruelty, the other a demon of revenge, struggling in a death grip.

At last the pirate, who had managed to get hold of a loaded pistol, staggered back with a mortal wound, while each leg it fell dead. The end had come, and it said come for the pirates. Every man of them jumped overboard and cried for quarter. They were taken in to be tried for a different reading.

Five or six days later the settlers of Jamestown and the crews of the warships saw sail down the river, recognized the sloops and waited anxiously the results of the expedition. When they came nearer on the end of the bowsprit of the foremost vessel was a head, the head of Thatch. Pirates, with its ghastly, sunken eyes, its livid lips, its black beard tied up in ribbons. Then they knew that the Maynard had succeeded in her mission.

So much for Blackbeard. What remained was for his crew. When the Beauforas had six men hung they congratulated a haughty looking old gentleman of a Spanish cross who came out from the hold in irons, rowed ashore and after a trial distinguished only for its severity, were swung off at the ends of bempen ropes.

A year ago all cities were to have markets to which the consumer might buy for less and the producer might sell for a little more than before. Where are they?

Ardolph L. Kline, New Mayor of New York City.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

Ardolph Louis Kline, who succeeded the late William J. Gaynor as mayor of New York, is an organization Republican. His term of office will expire Jan. 1, 1914.

For half a century New York has had only four Republican mayors.

He was for many years colonel of the Fourteenth regiment of Brooklyn, he enlisted in that regiment as a private and had risen by his natural ability and popularity to the lieutenancy of colonel before the war with Spain, in which he enlisted, went to the front with the regiment and was promoted to a lieutenant-colonelcy.

The new mayor has served several terms as alderman from Brooklyn and for a time was assistant appraiser of the port of New York by appointment of President Roosevelt. In 1911 he was again elected alderman from Brooklyn, and when the board reorganized in 1912 he was chosen vice chairman by the Fusion members. When the president of the board, John Murray Mitchel, resigned on June 1 the vice chairman automatically became president. As the charter of New York city provides that the president of the board of aldermen shall succeed to the mayoralty in the event of a vacancy, Colonel Kline became mayor of New York city.

New York city's chief executive is a native of New Jersey, fifty-five years old, and is of German descent on his father's side and Scotch-Irish on his mother's.

Noted Traveler and Writer.

Dr. William Bayard Hale, who was sent to Mexico by President Wilson to make a study of the situation in that country, has had an interesting career. He was born in Indiana in 1860 and is related to the distinguished Hale family of New England and the Bayards of Delaware, born to wealth, he was educated at Harvard and the Episcopal Theological seminary at Cambridge. Prior to taking up the study of theology he engaged in newspaper work. He was ordained as rector of the Auburndale (Mass.) Episcopal church in 1890 and five years later went to Atlanta, Ga. In 1900 he retired from the pulpit and became managing editor of the Commercial Appeal, Memphis and from 1905 to 1907 was managing editor of the Philadelphia Ledger. Since then he has been a writer and traveler.

Five years ago Dr. Hale was the central figure in an episode that kicked up a rumpus in the German reichstag. It resulted from an alleged "impressment" by the kaiser, in which the latter is reported to have said "Germans are likely to make for international peace.

Putting Trees to Bed.

An interesting method of protecting young trees from frost during the winter has been practiced for several years at the agricultural experiment station at Cheyenne, Colo. Early in November the earth is removed from a circle about four feet in diameter round each tree, and water is turned in to saturate the soil. When the ground has become frozen the tree is wedged back and forth to loosen the roots and then pushed over on its side. The branches are brought together and fastened with a cord, and earth removed will serve to put over them.

Thus the trees lie some until spring, when they are set back in place and dried and finally removed, and they are relaid and propped up.—Bailey Monthly Nun Nova.

Fans in the Eighteenth Century.

A letter in the London Spectator dated Nov. 11th, gives a most interesting description of an academy where fans could be dressed in the proper way and taught and initiated into the mysteries of "the amorous flirt, the modest flutter, the timorous flutter, the confused flutter, the merry flutter and the amorous flutter." In the circle formed by dancing assemblies in London, Bath and other places of fashionable resort fans were fitted into their hands by "intimes" of the ton. The fans of all the ladies resembled, more or less, a bat, whenever each gentleman had the privilege of selecting one lady, to whom it seemed belonging his allotted partner for the evening. Of course such a system caused a great study of fans on the part of the gentlemen. Boswell, Reeds and Pope found something to say about the fan, and Gay, enlarging on the delights of a lady's cousins, wrote a long poem in praise of the fan, attributing its invention to Venus.

From "The Bazaar of a Rolling Stone."

By Henry Arthur Jones, comes the following serious mode of bragging wind itself in. Brash by way of economizing ammunition.

"The expedient is to get hold of a very large pneumatic bag, and blowing out the meet and sends inside, to put into it little cupsdes in it and then place it on the barrel's head. Then wades through the sedge and flags into deeper water up to his neck, where the wild fowl are feeding, who gather that it is merely a remarkable human buoy floating on the surface. The hunter then soon gets into the midst of his quarry and, setting them by the legs, pulls them quietly under water, where he locks them under a belt fastened round his waist, and as their comrades rise presence the one unfortunate bird is drowned and sinks. Then, at last, the hunter gets a waistful in no time and returns well satisfied to the shore."

The ups and downs of the artist's calling are well illustrated by the fortunes and misfortunes of the late M. Rubinowsky, a Russian painter of the celebrated painting, "Nana," was exhibited all over the world and made a fortune for himself and his dealer. After personally receiving some $300,000 for his exhibition in the artistic sense, the vogue over, sold "Nana" for $21,000, and the dealer paid it at double the price. An American bought it and showed it all through the United States, Canada and South America and is reported to have made $1,000,000 by the enterprise. On the other hand, the artist lost all his money by unfortunate investments and was reduced almost to beggary.

Miss Carter had not been successful in bringing young Dodge to her feet and in consequence felt a little spite for toward him. One evening they were by the conservatory in the office library.

"Do you think," asked the young man, that man progress after death?"

"Well," responded the girl, "if they don't it would seem to me useless for some of them to die."

The Middleman's Profit.

The Nebraska Farmer relates in a recent issue recited the experience of a farmer who sold the seed rye to a village merchant for 50 cents a bushel. Another farmer wanted to buy some seed rye and went to the store and bought the identical rye that was sold for 80 cents by paying $1.50 per bushel for it. And the two farmers wise men and sacrificed the rye feed on the venue road and less than a mile and a half apart. The grange paper asks for a reason. There are two or three reasons why such a thing might have prevented such a condition. If there was a village paper in that neighborhood an advertisement of "Seed Rye For Sale" might have saved that buyer some money. Unfortunately let it be said that farmers do not make use of the advertising columns of their local papers as they should for their own goods. Or if there was a grange in that community then some kind of an advertising scheme could have made known to all members what some of the members have to sell and other want to buy. This could be done in spare grange or by a bulletin board.

REAL CO-OPERATION.

Method by Which California Orange Growers Market Their Fruit.

The grangers discuss the question of co-operation a good deal, and hardly they are not accomplishing as much as they should with the organization that they have. And yet there is not anything that some of them are accomplishing in good deal. As an illustration of an co-operation the California Fruit Growers Exchange stands preeminent. There is one central exchange, which is located at Los Angeles, with numerous district exchanges all over the country.

The cost of maintaining these exchanges, which means the total cost of running the business, is less than 2% per cent per box on gross sales and about 1-12 per cent per box on the returns f. o. b. California. This Calif. Fruit Growers Exchange is a nonprofit corporation and therefore does not pay dividends. Whatever is made in profits goes back direct to the producers. At the end of each year the central exchange levies an assessment against each shipper for a pro rata share of the expenses and the total of number of boxes of fruit shipped. The expense has never during the twenty years' existence of the association exceeded 3 per cent per box of the gross sales.

The transactions of the exchange amounted to about $17,000,000 a year. It handles for the fruit growers 50,000 carloads of citrus fruits annually. Its assets in 1912 amounted to $10,000,000. It has 130 agents and employees. Its telegraph bills amount to nearly $80,000 a year. Its advertising cost $200,000 in 1912. The co-operative plan is simplicity itself. First, there is the local association, usually made up of about 500 growers, owners of about 500 acres of fruit. This association owns its own packing house, where the fruit is assembled, graded and packed for market. Second, there is the district exchange, which is a federation of local associations conveniently located. There are sixteen of these district or exchanges.

They act as clearing houses for the local associations with the central exchange at Los Angeles. The third is the Los Angeles exchange, over which and over all the exchanges is Harold Powell, president, manager. Mr. Powell is a New York man, who was connected several years ago with the agricultural department at Washington and to whom we are indebted for the above facts.

The Middleman's Profit.

The Nebraska Farmer relates in a recent issue recited the experience of a farmer who sold the seed rye to a village merchant for 50 cents a bushel. Another farmer wanted to buy some seed rye and went to the store and bought the identical rye that was sold for 80 cents by paying $1.50 per bushel for it. And the two farmers wise men and sacrificed the rye feed on the venue road and less than a mile and a half apart. The grange paper asks for a reason. There are two or three reasons why such a thing might have prevented such a condition. If there was a village paper in that neighborhood an advertisement of "Seed Rye For Sale" might have saved that buyer some money. Unfortunately let it be said that farmers do not make use of the advertising columns of their local papers as they should for their own goods. Or if there was a grange in that community then some kind of an advertising scheme could have made known to all members what some of the members have to sell and other want to buy. This could be done in spare grange or by a bulletin board.

GRANGE REPRESENTATION.

Subject May Come Up Again at the Next Meeting of the National.

Will the question of proportional representation in the national grange come up again for discussion at the next meeting of the national body? Very likely. The fact is it is likely to form a subject of discussion here this fall some form of proportional representation is adopted. This is the second time it was presented last year and voted down.

Resolved, That every state master and wife (or husband) shall have each one vote on all questions. On roll call every state master and wife (or husband) shall have one vote and for each industry shall no members above the first hundred have one vote and no more.

There are two sides to this question. Some contend that it would be a good thing. Others contend that it would be a mistake. One side believes that the founders of the order were wise in their adopt a of state representation, giving each state an equal vote with every other and they cite the fact that that system has worked well for these forty-six years. The other side hol

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with Jesse Smith recalling the story of his mother, Mary Lavender and of the death of his father. Jesse becomes a sailor. His mother marries the master of the ship and both sons die in the wreck of the vessel. Jesse becomes a cowboy in Texas.

You wonder, I looks back on them rudimentary entertainments along with Bull Durham. I am now what is called the way in learning me to ride. "What you need, says he, "is confidence. Get to forget mere matters of hahnas corpus, and how your feet point, and whether you're looking pretty. Just trust your horse to pull through, so that you don't caught in the flower of youthful innocence, and hung on the nearest telegraph pole."

Once I held it a theatre, and seen a play. That's act one, with fifteen minutes hoping for act two. That's act after act till you just has to fill up the times between with injun war whoops, and cut-throat, when all the ladies and gents is shot or married. I just can't do it. So the sojiers says, "Let's go's have a drink," and the band goes off for a drink, and the lady with the prunes tells you to get to hell out of that.

It's all over. The millionaire Lord Bishop of Durham's only Bull's father-in-law, Bull's not exactly a cow-boy yet—but assists his mother, Mrs. Brooke, who is a lady of a high kind, won't be quite popular with his mother for having gorgeous ideas of spending the hundred dollars she's give him to pay off a little debt. I'd better not come to the ranch dis after leading mummie's boy astray from the paths of virtue.

There's the dust of Bill's horses way off along the road, and me sadly down by the wayside. A dog sets down in his skin, tail handy for wag-ging, all his possessions around him. I ain't even got no tail.

CHAPTER IV.

The Ordeal by Torture.

The Lubricator was good to me. He was a better, the stock range—with I'd four years punching cows, and I'm most sorry grateful.

The world in them days was peopled with only two species, puncher and nonpuncher, the last-born being mere tame. Moreover, we cow-boys belonged to two sects, with cattle, and others of no account. And in our outfit, this Jesse person was the only puncher, and on being beat, man, having a pair of solid mounted years was sent home from Pinface, our old foreman. I'd a rolled cantle, double-rig Cheyenne of carved leather, and silver horn—handy saddle that first prize for "rope and tie down" again all comers.

Gun, belt, quirt, bridle, hat, gloves, everything my whole kit was first-rate, and everything in it a trophy of tending, roper, or fighting. Besides my string of ponies—I'd them, my entire black coll I'd broke—though I even he was far from convinced. Add a good payday in my off hind pocket, and dye think I'd one up to them twelve apostles for uncles? Dye know what glory is? Wall, I suppose I mostly consists of being proud.

Time I speak of, our outfit had turned over three thousand head of longhorns to the Circle S and rode right into Abilene. That we was to take the train for our home ranch down south, and I hoped to get back in my flat pay Rockefeller. And yet I'd sooner before been on a railroad, I dreaded the boys would find out how scared I was of trains.

I lin in Abilene in a blush, and just aloud rooted while a guy selling gold watches reads my name graved on the saddle, and then pronounces me as Mister Smith. Old Pinface scared for his pay mortals, did kick this person rudely and severe, but all the same that Mister went to my head.

The smell of indoors made my stomach flop right over while we ranged up brave at the bar for a first drink. The raw rye felt like flames, though the preserved cherry afloat in it tasted familiar, like soap. At the same time the sight of a gambling layout made my pocket twitch, and I'd an inward conviction telling me this place isn't good for kids. It's the forecast sent me off with a message.

I pulled my half, and curved off with Tiger to take in the sights of the town. He shied heavy and I'd a curious think why he objected to sign-boards, awnings, lamp-posts, even to a harmless person lying drunk. Then a railroad engine snorted in our face, so I guess he's afraid of it. Then we passed a little side street. It's that that he bucks for all he's worth, because of a howling man with a stick had and a punctured soul, graying at-tendant of course this mistaken turned round to enjoy the bucking match—and sure reveals the face of my old friend, Bull Durham. We hadn't met for years, so as soon as Tiger was free, Bull owned to finding the lord, and being stony busted, ask if I was scared. I seen he'd got too bad, and shared my wad of money level with him. So we had cigars, a quart of chicken cream, an oyster stew, and he bought a bottle of patent medicine for his liver. We shared that, and went on, he walking by my stirrup in the revival meeting.

This revival was happening at a barn, so I rode in. Tiger, you seeded religious bad, and when people tried to turn him out, he kicked them. You should just have heard what the preacher told the Lord about me, and all the congregation groaned at my backsliding as fast as they could, being so young and fair, with silver harness, and the hotter prospects just as Pinface knowing when I was late for breakfast.

Then had a great big wooden cross upon the dais, and somehow, I dunno why, that made me feel uneasy. Then a girl in a white dress was singing "Hook of Ages—not you, most beautiful, her arms thrown round the cross, the sun-bright hair about her like a glory. The girl went to my head like liquor, and this one was surely good with her sun-bright hair, her cheeks flushed 'cause I stared, her silky lips rebuking when I threw of a line, her yellow-brown eyes—

Oh, bad I really washed behind my ears? Suppose I's not high-toned marks! Was my hands—I whipped out my gloves to inquire. That's what's the matter, sure. Got to make good before bein' introduced. Got to get a move on Tiger. I swung, spurred with one spring through the doors, yelled "Injun!" and stampeded, scattering gravel and panic through Abilene. I just went like one man for our cook wagon down by the railroad corrals.

Now, for all the shaving-glass could see, I was nice as' clean, but then that mirror has a wicked views, and I'm not taking risks, but stripped and scrubbed all over. The place was so darned public I blushed from neck to heels till I was dressed again, shining my hair and boots. Then I painted an extra special, cherryred, silk scarf out of the wrangler's kit.

Some of our boys made friendly faces as I passed on my way back, and Tiger and me was plumb scampered out of a little side street. It's that that he bucks for all he's worth, because of a howling man with a stick had and a punctured soul, graying attendant of course this mistaken turned round to enjoy the bucking match—and sure reveals the face of my old friend, Bull Durham. fired a few shots after me for luck. Tiger, you seeded bad, I pointed the revival meeting just as the bar came round, so perilent sinners making a pay day, came back to stay and pay because of Tiger. I gave Bill ten dollars to hand to the bar, and he passed it into his own pocket. He seemed annoyed, too, saying, "Waste not, want not. Then he explained how the freescoes only paid Mise Ed fifty dollars a day, whereas he was making hundreds.

Just then she passed, and I got introduced. "Say, Polly," says Bill, "here's sailor Jesse wants to get acquainted."

She stopped, sort of impatient for supper, and velvet-soft her voice, full of contempt.

"Another damned supplicant" she asked, and Bill was holding a light for her cigarette. "It saved" she added.

I couldn't speak. I wanted to tell her how I despised all the religious in a week. You wise gun twenty dollars." I saw the joke was on me.

I came to marriage pure as any bear, or wolf, or fox, expecting to find my mate the same as me, gutter-snipe, grifter of life, true to the earth, and fearless in doin' right.

Folks said I was young to marry at nineteen, but full nine years I'd earned my living tough my way, and done my share of making happiness. I'd been served with a month full wide enough for laughin', a face which made folks smile when I was sad, eyes to see fun, the heart to take it when if any offered, and when things hurt, I wasn't first to squeal. No, to long for the joke was on me I done my best to take it like a man.

I'd thought, I'd best explain that the Scandinavian tenderfoot was at our wedding breakfast, and gentle tactful hosts, riding hard with my night horse when Polly's little bonna glower lights across the prairie. I seen Bull and the preacher leave there toward midnight, wearin' sort of extraordinary into town. The lights went out. Then three I'd take some sleep, or times ride hard bringing her little bonna, till the cold came, till the dawn broke, till the sun came up.

It was half past breakfast when I seen Bull again, on his knees like pray-ter, and he throwing up loud prayers, which made me sick. "Rehearsin" terms in his 'cause Polly's struck, and I'm to be chief mourner."

"Is she alone? Has she gone of meetin' Miss Polly, when a guy comes betting into our conversation. He'd puffed his sleeve to his pants, and was all dressed saucy, standing straddle, aiming to impress. "Oh, what's my gun?" says Bill.

This person owned to being a gentleman, with a strong English accent. He'd "undreds of 'orses at 'ome in 'Ampsheerhill, but wanted to own an 'ack 'ere, don't cherknow.

Jake Bull lifts up his eyes to Heaven praying, "Oh, don't deliver us from temptation yet!" Whereas I crutched with this person about Bull being far gone in religious mania. I owned Bull right though, about my boots a-stand-ing side with 'orses and he seen for his-self the way I was riding my Sam 'orse something dreadful. Told me I'd caught to old my 'ed 'ish instead of stepping. It's in love, down 'eels, young fellar, so don't be 'ard on the poor 'orse." Jake Bull's prayers were only I was frightened, but out aways from town the ground was softer for falling, an' I gained courage. Happens Miss Polly's house was opposite. WAR REMINISCENCES

GREATEST BATTLE OF WORLD

Reception and Banquet Was Prelude at Gettysburg—Army Routed After Desperate Conflict.

I name Hanover before Gettysburg because it was here that I think the greatest battle in the world began on June 30, 1863. When the Fifth New Hampshire came into town we were greeted by the citizens of that patriotic town in a manner that was far different from the treatment accorded us on the other side of the Potomac. They gave us good food and sang songs of cheer as we marched along the road.

A reception was being given in the market place when there came a report as from the mouth of a cannon. Writes G. H. Thomas in the Chicago Record-Herald. At first we thought that it was but a part of the reception, but then the idea seemed less readily dispelled, when shells began to scream through the air and explode in the streets.

The curtain was rung down, the city, and another scene was on the drama. The sounding of bugles, the hurried command, the quick movements, the shoot of revolver and cutlass, the flash of the saber, the ominous enemy, the broken ranks of the rear guard pressing upon our rear and Polly laughing just to encourage him on. Then words got out, which made the boys uneasy. Jake Bull's long, the Tiger foreman, told the boy to shut up, while others moved out of earshot. I was sort of stupid, wanting the point explained, couldn't believe it possible the boy was on my side, although I'd rose by then, with gun slung, and the tenderfoot all excited, indignant, backing away, and the sweetest, slowest, most of all, while my bullet smashed in his shoulder. It sled him around as he dropped.

It was old Jake of the Bar T who spoke out then, and spoke straight.

"My boy," says he, "put up your gun. That's right. This here tender foot is bloodin' by spirits, aterfull Bull, see if Doc Stuart is sober." Bull looks up at me. "Only a tender foot," says Jake, "insults a cow-boy's wife—which is death from natural causes. Maybe he wasn't his hinger at Polly, "hain't long since you come among us. Tain't mowin's day since you told me and others present that you was unhappy for fun. You laughed at warnings, and this here Jesse would have shot the man who warned him. You are a lady, and this boy you married for fun, is goin' to see you treated as a lady. I seen he got rattled first shot, missing his tenderfoot's heart, which ain't up to average practice. It's time you began to see the point of the joke.

They took the tenderfoot away, and we were alone, me watching the pool of red blood turning brown, the sun-set drumming tunes on the table, her face turned white, staring out through the window at the moon host of the plains. I remember I took a bottle of champagne, filled a big goblet, and drank it off. It made me laugh to think about wine, so I filled another, I had another. "I see," says Polly, "I understand now." At that she began to scream.

I should have told you, the other our boys of me, Bill Durham got Ambiene, I pitched a little A tent on the prairie back of the saloons, and Polly came out and my ponies a grass, and spent the air clear of that stinking town.

But from the time I moved into the house, she was scarcely the drinker of my none—something uneasy—oh, I don't know how it was, lack of a big house smells, which gave me a sense of evil, so I could hardly bear to stay indoors.

Comin from town one night—she's gone, I'd a little wooden shadow cross the parlor blind. I fired missing, and the shadow fell, crumpled up.

Presently a boy in blue came up, and shot—I'd been a fool, deliberately wearing a fine pair of leather boots stopped and began quickly to take them off.

The Confederate realizing what he was up to stepped from his hiding place and accosted him.

"Hey you?" What are you doing there, you rascal? That man's still living. Take your hands off him this instant!"

The Union soldier rather sheepishly abandoned his undertaking and turned.

"A precious lot you've got to do with it, anyhow!" he muttered as he shouldered his gun.

"I've got this much to do with it, my friend. I've been waiting around here in the rain a couple of hours for my boots, and I'm not going to be cheated out of them."

It Drew All Right.

A new recruit was doing duty in one of the garrisons when he complained of a pain in his breast. The doctor gave him a plaster to put on the place, but he came back next day and he went to the laundress of the company and asked her if she had a chest. "No, but I got a bedstead."

"That will do," said he.

She put a plaster on her bandbox, and when the doctor the next day asked him if it drew, he said: "Yes: it drew her bonnet all out of shape."

Why Old Backs Ache

What a pity that so many persons suffer needless agony from backache, lame back, aching kidneys, poor sleep, nervousness, dizziness, gravel, dropsy or distressing urinary ills. Kidney weakness brings these disorders in youth or age and is a dangerous thing to neglect, for it leads to Dropsy, Gravel and uric acid poisoning. Doan's Kidney Pills have brought new strength to thousands of lame backs—have rid thousands of annoying urinary troubles.

Confederate Soldier Prevents Boy in Blue From Taking Fine Boots From Dying Comrade.

After the battle of Chancellorsville among the wounded lying cold at on the field was a young Confederate soldier. One of his comrades, realizing that the breath was fast leaving his body, leaned against the side of a tree and pillowed a crossed him from observation and waited for the end to come.

Presently a boy in blue came up and observed the young Confederate wearing a fine pair of leather boots stopped and began quickly to take them off.

LIGHT THAT PRODUCES COLD

Statement Sounds Incredible, but Experiment Will Speedily Demonstrate It to Be a Fact.

It seems incredible that a beam of light could be made to produce sound, but such a thing can be done. A ray of sunlight is thrown through a lens on a glass vessel containing lampblack, colored silk or worsted, or any like substance. A disk having slits or openings cut in it is made to revolve swiftly in the beam of light, so as to cut it up, thus causing alternate flashes of light and shadow. When one piece of the glass vessel is heavy enough

Bellaire with its municipal plant, electric light and waterworks is fast coming to the front rank of the cities of the state.

Traverse City churches have united in a great revival, which will last three weeks. The skating rink is being used.

The Antrim supervisors last week appropriated $500 in aid of the Western Michigan Development Bureau and to further its work.

Boyne City is planning for an old fashioned harvest festival, and the date set for the feast is Tuesday, Nov. 4. There will be a big exhibition of farm products, a big feast, music and dancing of the old time kind. A general good time for both old and young is what the merchants of that city are planning.

Since the opening of school this fall those having in charge the work of the County Young Men's Christian association have been sending every effort toward the organization of the Y. M. C. A. groups in the different sections of the county. To date 15 groups, enrolling 127 boys, have been organized, under competent leadership, and regular meetings are being held each week.

Petoskey News: "In an effort to close up the affairs of the Citizens' Mutual Fire insurance company, a meeting of the Emmet county policy holders was held Wednesday afternoon at the city hall. At this meeting it was decided to turn over the remaining accounts to Receiver Barber, who will collect them in his own way and without any expense to the Emmet county policy-holders who have paid up their assessments. A similar meeting was held Tuesday in Charlevoix and Thursday Mr. Barber is conducting the third meeting Cheboygan.

Grand Traverse County has employed, through the board of supervisors, an agricultural expert, who will devote his entire time to giving scientific instruction to the farmers of that county. He visits the farms in answer to requests and instructs the farmers in the scientific part of general farming and fruit raising, the instruction and demonstrations being given each farmer right on his own farm. An expert dairy has recently been engaged, hundred to twenty-four hundred dollars a year salary which is provided for by special action of the board of supervisors.

Boyne Journal: "Two automobiles have been ditched in the last two days coming out of Petoskey and may still be seen along the side of the road where the owners left them. The curious part about these accidents is that they were headed toward Charlevoix. For some reason or other it is seldom that an accident occurs where the car is heading for Petoskey. Approximately nine out of every ten accidents that have occurred over the road between Charlevoix and Petoskey have been where the cars have been carrying their land out of Petoskey. Evidently land cars hate to leave that place. There may be another solution to the riddle, though."

Auditor General Fuller has notified the state highway department that the state is now in a position to pay any more awards until next January, when state taxes will be paid in and the general fund of the state treasury will be reimbursed. So far this year $153,000 has been paid for state aided roads and $1,000 from the trunk line highway fund. The legislature appropriated $450,000 last session for the highway fund, to be used in paying state awards. Auditor Fuller has received replies from 12 state institutions in answer to his letters, suggesting that they do not draw on their funds any more than is absolutely necessary, and all the replies are favorable.

The Passing of a Type.

The hard contemporary fact is that the gloriously maned authors are becoming sadly rare, even rarer than long haired actors. The long haired musician is still with us, though one of the most exclusive masters of the saxophone has yielded something to the modern spirit by submitting proxy to the shears. Individual age has here a potent influence—age, or the getting through with thirty. What a wonderfully picturesque person Dickens was at twenty-five! And how matter of fact at forty! Browning suffered a similarly unfeeling and alienating effect. The same thing is true of many other figures in that period, and it is not easy to guess whether the classic fashion set in during their middle years or whether advancing age would have effected the same change in any case.—Atlantic Monthly.

The Swiss Navy.

Centurion before Germany was to be reclothed with as a sea power Switzerland possessed a fleet equipped for warfare. Eight hundred years ago, all the larger Swiss lakes, armed galleys were maintained by the rival cantons. Skilled shipwrights had to be imported from Genoa for the construction of these vessels, some of which carried crews of 200 men or more. The largest of these fleets was maintained on the lake of Geneva, where the inhabitants of Geneva were at war with Savoy. Since the neutrality of Switzerland has been guaranteed by the powers there has been no need for such vessels on the lakes. The Swiss, however, possess a motorette navy which carries a considerable amount of trade over the 342 miles of navigable waterways in the republic.

His Compliment.

A Frenchman, on being introduced to Sir Edwin Landseer, said: "I am most happy to make your acquaintance, for I am very fond of beasts."

He chooseth best who chooseth labor instead of rest.—Old Saying.

In the last weeks school board proceeding the type made us say that order drawn for "school board account." It should have read "school book account."

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Cobenaur, at the Fountain City House, Sunday night, a daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Cobenaur were summer sojourners, and remained here for the event.

Albert Holmes and wife, who have been stopping near Detroit for nearly five months, are back home again. Mr. Holmes has been at work on the construction of a school building.

A. T. Stewart, of the U. S. Fish Hatchery Station at Gorbitville, is here preparing the local hatchery for the annual hatch of lake trout eggs. He wants 50,000,000, but eggs are high this fall.

Gale Hines' who bought a drug store in California about a year ago, has sold out and will soon return to Charlevoix. His brother Carl, who was employed in the store, arrived here Saturday. Both say Michigan is good enough for them.

The Majestic Theatre has been supplied with a ceiling and other improvements that materially changes the interior appearance of the place for the better. The Majestic is getting up some very attractive moving pictures and classy vaudeville.

The steamer Illinois arrived here Friday, on her first run here this season, returning to Chicago Saturday. The Illinois will ply on the Missouri the remainder of the season. Both boats are doing a big freight business in potatoes and apples, and will have they can do all next month.

Attention is again called to the fact that rural carriers are not required to lift loose coins from rural mail boxes. Patrons should enclose coins in an envelope, wrap them securely in paper, or deposit them in a coin holding receptacle, and then the carriers are compelled to lift the coin and, when accompanied by mail for despatch, attach the required stamps.

Harbor master Sam Hamilton is "onto his job." He had the captain of the steamer Sidney O. Neff arrested for going through the upper channel at too many revolutions per minute, and the skipper was assessed $25 and cost. It was about that time some one was made an example of. Complaint was made the same day against the game warden boat, and a warrant is waiting for Capt. Sam.

Geo. W. Priest is settled in his elegant new studio, and is already doing a fine business. We make the assertion that there is no finer establishment of its kind in the state. The interior finish is distinctly artistic, and, as a result of long and active experience, every feature of an up-to-date photographic studio, embracing ornament and utility, has been provided. The structure itself is an ornament to the street and the city.

According to a Washington dispatch there have been numerous reductions in express rates which became effective recently upon an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The reductions range from about 16 to nearly 195 per cent in some instances, and will mean a saving of $25,000,000 annually to the people. The new rates are to be tried out for two years, and may then become permanent if the commission finds that they are not too great a handicap upon the express companies in their competition with the parcel post.

Henry Partridge, who is holding down a good job in Detroit, is here for a week visiting his mother.

The steamer S. S. Stephenson unloaded a cargo of coal for the Charlevoix coal and wood Co. the week.

R. C. Bennett and family left Friday for the their former home in Camargo, Ill., where they will spend the winter. They will return in the early spring.

Percy Crane has been elected president of the Junior Library Class at the University of Michigan. He is also assistant manager of the "varsity" baseball team.

Ladies of the M. E. church will hold a sale of new clothing, in the Wilbur building next to bridge commencing Saturday, Nov. 1st. Homemade sale will also be held at same time.

The open season for commercial fishing opens Saturday of this week, and the local fisherman will resume operations and continue as long the weather permits, which will be well into December.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Chaloupka, of Moline, Oregon, who have been here two months, left Sunday for their home. On Friday afternoon Mrs. See gave a reception and dinner in honor of her daughter, which was attended by a large number of old lady friends.

Any person who has doubts about Charlevoix being a good market town, and well patronized by the farmers, should have taken a few notes last Saturday. The weather was beautiful, and the street was crowed all day. About every store in the city was filled, all day and sales were heavy.

It is announced that G. B. Lonberg of Racine, Wis., for the saving, should have been appointed superintendent of the twelth life saving district, which comprises all stations on Lake Michigan. The headquarters for the district are at Grand Haven. Lonberg succeeds Chas. Morton, who died last summer.

A map showing the surface formations of the soil of the southern peninsula of Michigan is out. Michigan is one of the first states in the union to complete the big task of a complete soil survey and this map has been prepared at a very great expense. People contemplating the purchase of land in the different parts of the state would do well to give this map careful study.

The transformation of the Bartholomew block on the corner of Bridge street and Park avenue, is one of the star improvements of the season. The upper story, especially, is practically new, and it is one of the finest office floors in the city. Dr. W. D. Darney has the corner suit of three rooms, and there is no finer dental parlors in Northern Michigan. The improvements involve increased light and excellent heat and ventilation. There are two more suits on the floor yet unoccupied, but they will not be long vacant.

Thirty-nine years ago this week Thomas Quinlan, of the Thomas Quinlan & Sons, of this city, secured his first position in Petoskey. He had been located in Charlevoix for some time in the potato and produce commission business, and following the sale of his last thousand bushels of potatoes accepted a position as clerk in the store of Fox, Rose & Batters.—Petoskey News. The writer of this knew "Tom" Quinlan forty years ago when he was a clerk in F. J. Meech's store at Norwood. Mr. Meech brought him from Vermont. "He kind to ben the cow," is the injunction issued to city and country dwellers alike by the department of agriculture. The cow has been found, as the result of first-hand study by experts of the biological survey, to be a friend of the farmer and a benefactor to the corn crop. Therefore, though black by birth, the cow has been given a lily white certificate of emancipation. After a careful study of the habits and the examination of a large number of stomachs, it is declared, "the department experts have reached the conclusion that the cow consumes enough grass-hoppers, cutworms, white grubs and other injurious insects to make him highly valuable to farmers."

School Notes.

Jean Atwood visited high school Monday.

The class in English II are studying Dickens's "Tale of Two Cities."

Watie Irvine entered high school, Monday, as a Sophomore.

Supt. DeVoe returned home Friday, after attending the State Teachers's Institute at Ann Arbor.

Clifford Paulson and Albert Taylor, former football men, visited us last week.

High school pupils are all busy with monthly tests this week as it is the end of the second month of school. The Freshmen are especially busy.

The English Literature class has begun the study of the Elizabethan Age which has the great literary names of Shakespeare, Bacon and Spencer connected with it. This is the greatest period of English Literature and the class expects to derive both pleasure and profit from its study.

Classification of high school students: Freshmen—those who know not and know that they know not.

Sophomores—those who know not and know not that they know not.

Juniors—those who know and know that they know.

Seniors—those who know and know that they know.

Charlevoix was to play East Jordan last Saturday but Bob Hamilton, fearing remembering the defeat they received at the hands of Charlevoix a few weeks ago, was so sorry that they held a grudge against us for we don't return it. Why should we? We got a score of 56 to 0 from them. The game next Saturday is with Boyne high and we hope the score will be a great one in Charlevoix's favor. Efforts are being made to conduct an excursion to Boyne City and support the team. Everyone go and see the Champions of Northern Michigan win!

County Normal Notes.

(BRONA CLIFF)

Miss Hinman and Miss Whiting went to Ann Arbor to attend the State Teachers' Association last week.

Twelve members of the Normal class had a certain subject to teach last week because Miss Hines was away.

Miss Cole, Miss Hall and Miss Elliot had charge of the training room during the absence of Miss Whiting.

Miss Hazel Hamilton entertained the members of the normal class at her home on Clinton street Thursday evening. A light luncheon was served and an enjoyable time was the report from all.

Miss Esther Walker was the housekeeper and Miss Bertie Howe the ventilator last week.

Miss Marjorie Weaver and Miss Ethel Jacobs were editors last week.

Miss Gladys Johnson was assisting Miss Jarvis in the first grade last week. Miss Ethyl Jacobs is assisting her this week.

The normal class was invited to a party in the training room Friday afternoon. The children made jack-o-lanterns and refreshments were served.

The normal students attended the W. C. T. U. meeting at the Congregational church Wednesday afternoon and evening. Two temperance songs were given by the class, and in the evening a debate was given by four members of the class.

Willet C. Arnold

Willet C. Arnold was born in the town of Lawrence, Monroe co. N. Y. Aug. 5, 1832, died Oct. 22 1913.

When a mere child he moved with his to Lenawee co. Ontario where he lived until he grew to manhood. The family moving to Oakland co. Mich. in 1852.

In 1859 was married to Phebe Harris, of Wayne co. Mich. In March 1870—five children were born of this union, Charles, Elmer, Luella, Jessie, and Jasmon. In 1871 he was married to Candacy Glading of Eaton Co. who died March 1876, leaving three children, Willet Jr. Jay and Daisy.

In 1878 he moved with his family to Charlevoix where he has since resided. In 1879 he was united in marriage to Emma Hosier of this place, the union resulting in the birth of four children, Prudence, Albert, George, and Dora-May.

He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, ten children, and five brothers.

Petoskey News: "John Duveney is in Grand Rapids this week, having been called there to take part in the big Indian village feature that is the attraction at the Herpicide store. Six different tribes of Indians are represented at this gathering of the tribes and after their stay in the Furniture city they will go to Chicago and San Francisco, Calif., for exhibits. John Duveney, Sr., has just returned from the meeting in Grand Rapids and Friday morning shipped a large Indian drum and a quantity of buckskin to his son to use in the exhibit."

Saved His Foot

H. D. Rly, of Bantam, O., suffered from a horrible ulcer on his foot for four years. Doctor advised amputation, but he refused and reluctantly tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve as a last resort. He then wrote: "I used your salve and my foot was soon completely cured." Best remedy for burns, cuts, bruises and eczema. Get a box today. Only 25c. Recommended by F. G. Hines & Co.

GOOD WORK OF BUREAU

Alfalfa, Missionary and Educational Campaign, Good Roads and Special Meetings

Including the cash on hand January 1, the receipts of the Western Michigan Development bureau for the current calendar year to Oct. 1, are $10,861.11. The expenditures for the same period are $9,867.16. The more important items among expenditures are: Operating expenses, $5,974.61; publicity service, $668.86; exhibits, $1,901.11; illustrated lectures, $672.60.

As a record of achievement, one of which the bureau may well feel proud, the following is submitted:

Exhibits—Big exhibits were put on at Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Grand Rapids, Detroit, and smaller exhibits at Bay View, Boyne City, Alma, Traverse City, Howe, Frankfort, Thompsonville, Bear Lake, Manistee.

Missionary campaign—A two-week foreign campaign missionary trip was made into Illinois and Iowa. Twelve meetings were held, at which 6,500 copies of the illustrated magazine, "Western Michigan," were given away.

Alfalfa campaign—Alfalfa campaigns have been conducted in eight western Michigan counties and eighty-two alfalfa clubs formed.

Road meetings—The bureau helped materially in making the Western Michigan Pike association incorporated a week of success. In addition, road meetings have been held at Muskegon, Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor, Lake Ann, Traverse City, Bellaire, Central Lake, Ellsworth, Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Alanson, Petoskey, Boyne City, Lovering.

Orchard demonstrations—Orchard demonstrations have been conducted by trained men, under auspices of the bureau, at Harbor Springs, Boyne City, East Jordan, Ironton, Central Lake, Old Mission.

Educational campaigns—A campaign covering three days was conducted in Mecosta county in co-operation with the county school commissioner. Eight meetings were held and the illustrated lecture, "Western Michigan," given at several.

Special meetings—The officers and directors of the bureau have contributed liberally in the way of talks and addresses at development meetings held in all parts of the territory. Many of the talks have been illustrated by lantern slide views.

Publicity—Better than twenty-five thousand copies of the illustrated magazine have been distributed. Fifteen bulletins have been issued with an aggregate circulation exceeding twenty thousand. Fifty four news-letters have been issued and fifty one hundred columns of special reading matter supplied to the newspapers.

Correspondence—While no statistics have been kept regarding letters received and dispatched, it is certain that more than four thousand have been written and mailed, and almost as many received.

Photographs—Two hundred and forty-one photographs suitable for advertising western Michigan have been secured by the bureau photographers, and these views are now being used in a way to bring good returns.

TO WORK NEARER HOME

The Western Michigan Development Bureau Adopts New Plan of Operations

The executive committee of the Western Michigan Development Bureau at meeting held at the Pantlind hotel, Grand Rapids, last night decided in favor of an aggressive home missionary campaign for the coming winter in addition to a few exhibits of the products of the region in nearby states. The committee also decided to make a potato exhibit in Grand Rapids, November 18, on which day a meeting of potato growers of Western Michigan will be held for the purpose of organizing an association for mutual welfare.

The Bureau's home campaign will be along somewhat different lines than those of past years. Meetings explaining the purpose and work of the organization will be held throughout the rural sections, school houses, grange halls and gleaners halls being used. The experience of the past year has clearly proved that the people of the region must have a better comprehension of natural resources of this part of the state than they now have, if the work of development is to progress as it should.

An inventory of the funds available for the 1914 was made and it was found that there would approximate $18,000 which sum will permit of aggressive work.

Those in attendance at the executive committee meeting were: President H. Day, Glen Haven; Vice-President A. S. White, Grand Rapids; Treasurer B. R. Hendel, Manistee; Secretary John I. Gibson, Traverse City; Directors, D. R. Payton, Charlevoix; W. H. Umier, Traverse City; F. A. Mitchell, Manistee. The out-of-the-city men left for their several homes on the early trains today.

Marine Notes

The steamer Beaver was storm-bound at the Island Sunday and Monday.

The Lake Superior Fish Co., of Chicago, have their tug Arthur Dunn here for the remainder of the season.

Capt. G. C. Gelken has surrendered the wheel of the towing tug Taylor to Capt. Wm. Taylor, and now has the fishing tug F. F. Gelken, for booth.

The steamer Rising Sun, owned by the "House of David" community, of Benton Harbor, came in Sunday and loaded with vegetables, apples, hay and other supplies, for their High Island colony, which is operating a lumbering outfit there.

It seemed like old times Sunday when two old-time schooners were in the harbor at once—the Alice and the City of Sheboygan. The former was outward bound from Horton Bay with 16,000 bushels of potatoes, and the latter on her way to Boyne City for lumber. The Alice is still owned and commanded by that veteran sailor, Capt. Ole Hansen.

Vessel masters are loud in their praise of the arc-light on the water tower, which they say is a help to them on a dark night, but they protest against their being put out at midnight. They illuminate the harbor entrance perfectly. One dark night recently they went out just as one of the N. M. boats had squared away for the pier, very much to the captain's annoyance.

BOYNE CITY VESSEL LOST.

Tow Barge Scotia Sunk in Lake Erie —Was in Tow of Arizona.

While passing through Livingston channel Sunday night in tow of steamer Arizona, the barge Scotia, lumber laden, became unmanageable and crashed into the east bank of the cut and slowly sunk her bow. The Arizona started with her for Ashtabula, but she sank a mile and a half below Bob Lo light. The Scotia is a wooden vessel, 210 feet long, 903 gross tons, and was owned by the W. H. White Co.

Two Elegant Suites of Offices

You will have to hunt a long time and cover considerable territory before you find a floor of office rooms that surpass in beauty and convenience those of the new Priest building.

The front suite of three rooms is occupied by Attorney E. L. Lewis, and they are easily the finest law offices in the city. "Bobby," who, by the way, is climbing the legal stairs two steps at a time, has the room furnished to correspond with the interior finish, and he has a law library to correspond with his ambition.

The three rear rooms occupied by Dr. Armstrong are worthy of that distinguished practitioner. Thick, soft, artistic in interior finish, they harmonize with the general beauty of the structure.

CRYPTIC MASONRY

Charlevoix to Have a Council of That Advanced Rank—Petoskey Now Holds Charlevoix Members

Among Charlevoix Masons there are a number of Royal, Select and Super-Excellent Masons who are members of Petoskey Council. Now Charlevoix is to have a council, the Grand Council having granted the petition of our members.

The new Council will be instituted by the Grand Council on Monday night, Nov. 29th, and Petoskey Council will be present to confer the three degrees on a large class of candidates. It is proposed to make the occasion a conspicuous event in the history of Masonry in Charlevoix.

Cryptic Masonry takes rank between Royal Arch and Chevalric Masonry, or knights Templar. The degrees are among the most ancient of Ancient Craft Masonry.

A Business Change

The well known grocery store of L. S. See is closed, and a notice is posted on the door.

Don't gasp, dear reader; Lou is not vent and financially prosperous. The store is closed to investigate the shick, as the result of the sale of the business to Mr. Chas. Danto, of this city. It will be re-opened in a few days with Mr. Danto as proprietor and Henry Jacobs as chief clerk.

The business will be enlarged by the addition in the rear of a 40-foot cement block extension, and a first class meat market installed. Mr. Danto has had experience in the grocery and meat business.

This change does not mean that Mr. See is to retire from business or to move to other parts. He will continue in business, devoting all his time to the wood and coal business.

Lewis.—The store is open and doing business.

Venezuela Does Much Damage

The gun-laden steamer Venezuela stuck in the upper channel Tuesday night, and in her struggles to get through did much damage to the surrounding premises.

She entirely carried away the Bellaire dock, demolished the north end of the northermost boat house, and undermined 70 feet of the concrete foundation that constitutes the pier.

All the damage was to property of Charlevoix Summer Home Association, which will, without doubt libel the vessel for the damage.

Card of Thanks

We wish to extend our thanks and appreciation to the many friends who so kindly assisted us during our recent bereavement.

We are also thankful to the singers, floral offerings, and to Mr. Henry Jacobs and Chas. Howard.

From the family and his wife, W. C. Arnold.

GAME WARDEN GOES NORTH.

Says That He Fully Expects Thirty Thousand Deer Hunters in The Woods This Year.

State Game, Fish and Forestry Warden William H. Oates has left for the upper peninsula where he will take charge of the several deputy game wardens who are in the north woods to see to it that the laws are enforced.

"The season for hunting deer opens Nov. 15 and everyone until then who Kleh hunter is entitled, under the present laws, to kill two bucks and one doe. Nevertheless, I expect many more non-resident hunters than last year, when the laws prevented deer being shipped out.

"I fully expect 30,000 deer hunters to be in the woods when the season opens this year," said Oates. Another matter I am considering is to hire one or two game wardens to assist during the coming winter."

GI' COURSE: THEY BOILED.

Probably the most talked of question all over the county last Saturday was the Boyne City Times. Many of the men who had had supervisors of the county in regard to the advisability of the local option question to a vote of the people at the last spring election. It is only natural that many of the details of that vote would be bandied in politics be sure that they were turned down as they had, but it is perhaps true that not half of them realize the reason why. The turn down, they not stopping to look into the matter and learn the real cause for the action.

Members of the board have told The Times that they could not do more than they did, and that while after the matter had been referred to the attorney general of the state, who returned the statement that the action of the men who had the work in hand would not pass, he expressed the law's provisions had not been complied with, but even at that the action of the board seemed to feel that justice compelled them to listen to the prayer of the petitioners.

It is not known how yet what action the petitioners will take, but it has been talked they will appear before the board in the near future with all the requirements of the law met in order that there will be no question about the opportunity being given the people to vote their sentiments again, wet or dry.

Charlevoix County to be Represented at the Eleventh Annual State Boys' Conference at Saginaw Nov. 28—29

What promises to be a most inspiring night and noteworthy gathering will be the one thousand or more older boys of Michigan in Annual Conference November 28-29, Saginaw. This conference is conducted under the auspices of the state committee. Every year there has been a decided increasing number of boys at these gatherings from all parts of Michigan. Last year 750 were present and from 120 different towns and it is impossible to estimate the influence and power these gatherings have had on the manhood of the state.

The key word of the coming conference is co-operation, and this through the co-operation of the state committee, the city and county secretaries and other interested parties has it been possible to bring together many of these Christian boys. The purpose of the meet is to form a closer co-operation of all agencies touching the life of the boys—Home, Church, School, the extension of Hi-Kingdom among the boys by the boys.

The program this year is an exceptionally strong one. Several speakers of national reputation come in Mr. Albert E. Roberts, of New York who spoke here one year ago this month; Mr. C. C. Robinson, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Canada; secretary for employed boys; Mr. J. M. Artman, of Chicago, dean of Moody Week, Y. M. C. A. Institute and Training school; Captain Katchum, the All-American football star of Yale, and other leaders have been invited.

Free entertainment Friday night until Monday morning will be provided for all older boys from 15 to 20 years of age. Every boys' club, church club, Sunday school class, Y. M. C. A. group, high school class or club, Young People society or athletic team is allowed to send two boys who are 15 to 20 years old.

Already 25 older boys and camp adults will make the trip from Charlevoix county, going Friday noon and returning Monday.

Four counties, Charlevoix, Ionia, Ottawa and Gratiot, are to have a place on the program. Wilson Zimmerman, of Boyne City, has been chosen as the representative from Boyne City and will speak on "Co-operation Between the High School and Grammar School Boys."

Further information can be secured from the secretary of the county Y. M. C. A.

H. W. Grutsch has sold his one farm out near Deer Lake, on the Lake Lake peninsula, to a man from Winnipeg, Canada, who has come back to Michigan after an absence from the states for a number of years, but who will settle here for the remainder of his days.

SYNOPSIS.

This story opens with Jesse Smith relating the story of his adventures, early life in Lincoln and his death at the hands of Frank Trevor, the son of the ship owner, who takes him to Canada, where he is made a cowboy in Texas. He marries Polly, a girl of mysterious parentage, who dies in consequence of a crime committed by her father.

CHAPTER V.—Continued.

And I found wealth. Right there in Texas I found wealth. Not the money kind of wealth. I've had a few at times by way of samples, thinking it might convince me that I'd better be satisfied to stay in body and (sidesaddle) in Providence, with a good prospect of dwelling called poverty. They're the wave and wind-swept sons of manhood, and no man walks straight upright. Nature gave them, or throwed away, or left to pour out such gifts but they're not a good and lasting possession. Not like wealth.

I found peace, I found wealth, yes, and found something more than in the wilderness. Sweet as the cactus flower in bloom down Salt River is that big house ranch.

It was after I'd found the children of happy multitude. I'd gone to work down for the Lazy V outfit, breaking the Lightning colts. We was out a few weeks from home, taking the pick of ponies as far as the Mesa Abiaha, and one night camped in the very thickest of the Grand Canyon. The Navajo Indians was peaceful, the camp very quiet, and I'd had a fairly good mood, and night come sudden.

I'd just relieved a man to get his supper, and rode hard wide alert, wanted the camp smoke, saw the square of fire glow on the boys at rest, and heard their peaceful talk hushed in the big night. They seemed such pitiful critters full of fuss since dawn, so small and insects at the edge of nothing, while for miles beneath us that old old wolf, Colorado River was playing the Grand Canyon like a fiddle. But the river in the canyon seemed to more than tricks in a creek, hushed by the night, while overhead the mighty Lizard stars paused, swung, and drive, rode hard on the milky way. And that seemed so more than cowboys driving mere cattle. Would God turn His hand to see His star herds pass, or notice our earth like some little ball in the rear?

And what am I, then?

That was my great lesson, more gain to me than peace and wealth of mind, for I was humbled to the dust of earth, below that dust of stars. So a very humble thing, not worth praying for, I reckon, I would be humble of myself. I rode no more for wages, but sent out ponies from the Lightning herd, mounted my stud horse William, and the boys gathered to the fiesta, and then rode slowly north over the British possessions. So I come at last in this place, an old abandoned ranch. There's none so poor in dollars as to envy ragged Jesse, or rich enough to want to rob my home. They say there's hidden wealth, what the rim-hog goes to earthen jars in what I have

PART TWO

CHAPTER I.

Two Ships at Anchor.

Extra Shrewdite

My horse was hungry, and wanted to get back to the corral. I was hungry too, but dared not go. I had left my husband lying drunk on the kitchen floor, and I dared he woke up it would be worse than that.

For such was the dread on the edge of the bench lands, searching for the place, for the right place, some point where the road, which above twelve hundred feet into the river. There was still enough of sunlight to give me a risk of being alive, if I dared fetch back there of some food for him. But the edge was never sheer, and beyond after all, the place for the Soda Spring was best. There the trail from the ranch rose at a sharp turn, over the edge of the cliff and down to the river. Beyond there are three great pines on a benchland, and the cliff is sheer for at least five hundred feet. That should be far enough.

I let my horse have a drink at the spring, then we went slowly on over the sunbaked ground, for the sunset I would leave my horse at the pines. Sometimes I've seen a little lizard, park position dozed in the shade of the trees watching their tails to drive away the flies. A little, but a basking mare, unloaded, with a bandaged leg, stood in the sunlight. Behind the nearest tree a man was speaking. I recognized horse. "Now you, Jessie," he was saying to the injured beast, "you take yourself too seriously. You ain't goin' to Heaven! No! Then why park yo' leg? Why foolish? I had some silly idea that the man he discovered me, would know what business brought me to the headland. I held my breath.

"Lie also, delicious. Tears draw made me stifle. I did not wait to smile. The mare a very picture of misery, tried to bandage frightfully swollen leg, and hobbled into the shade. I did not want to laugh, for why was she called Jesse? she looked just like a human.

"The inquisitive mine," said the voice behind the tree, "has gawn sorry spoiler from business, or you'd have known that critters smells of snake. Then I scampered in.

"The mare, with her legs astraddle, snorted in terror.

"Sorry to it? Why didn't you say so sooner?"

I was turned her good eye on the man as though she had just discovered he's a human being. I looked at him, too, with the dog in his kitchen boxes made first grab at the canny man, and he's lost sense the dog. The man, always with his eye upon the mare, returned to the place, and sat on his bed as before. "Three lumps," he said, hold ing them one by one to be examined. "You're acting sort of cowpoisoned, Jones. No more sugar. And don't be a hog."

The mare was kissing his face.

"Back of all! Back water! That now, thank the lady behind me!

And I had imagined my presence still unknown.

"How on earth," I gasped, "did you know I was here?"

The man's eyes were still intent upon the wounded mare. "Well, Mrs. Trevor, he drawled.

"You know my name? You have has been turned the whole thing. You've never seen me in your life, at least I've never seen you!

"That's so," he answered thoughtfully. "I don't need tellin' the sound of that soft husband bosom from man. As to the squeak of a lady's pig, I'm certain, that ain't no other lady rider short of a hundred and eighty three and a half miles."

What manner of man could this be? My colt was drawing toward him all the time as though a magnet pulled.

He stood facing me, the bag still in his hand, and my colt asking pointed to for be-nes. Iron alloys me the mallet, and I hilt the tent. I'd ride to make good bush grass in the yellow place by dusk, and the second day brings me down to Brown's Ferry, three miles short of my home. From the ferry there's a good road in winter to Hundred Mile House, so I rode the remainder over there by sleigh. There my contract ends, because Tearful George takes over with his strong team down to the railroad. I'd have that contract, too, only I marry in a low-lived sort of a person, which can feed for a dollar a week, whereas when I get down to Mary I'm more expensive.

Your affectionate son, JESSIE.

Rain-storm coming.

P. S.—Yes, it's a good life, and I don't envy no man. Still it made me sort of thoughtful last time as I swung along with that Jerry more disagreeable at my wrist, little Mick snapping roll heels astern, and the sun just scorching down among the pines. Women is infrequent, and spite of all my experiences with the late Mrs. Smith, most fortunate deceased, life isn't all romance without a smile. It will do harm to any woman, mother, if I just come to my trail to survey the surrounding. Jesse.

Mrs. Judith Jones herself off for a wind-up and had her hand at the mare take notice that she can cook. Apart from that, she's humble as a beetle and wanted to catch the atmosphere of them days, so I sort of helped. Mighty fine days ain't exactly a body voice rings, the party had a mean eye, a free foot, a free hand, and a gust of irritating manner, but still I helped around to give him atmosphere, me and him.

"Who's Kyle?"

"Oh, he's just a silver-tip, what scenic people calls grizzly bear, I reckon. You just cast your eye what the friends stream fall below my cabin. Here see them aspens berry bushes have been heavily picked.

"Where the bushes are waving? Oh, Jones, there's a gigantic grizzly stand ing, as straight as a man.

"Yes, that's Kyle.

"Well, as I was tenin' you, Esh and me is helping this scientific person to get the atmosphere of them ancients.

"But the poor man would die of fright!

"Too busy running. When he reached Vancouver, he was surely a cripple, though, and no more use to scientific folk! Call Esh?

"I think not today," said I, hurriedly, "for indeed I should be getting home at once."

Without ever touching the wound he had given me the courage to live, had made my behavior of the moment seem that of a silly schoolgirl, but still I did not feel quite up to a social introduction. I said I was sure that Esh and I would have no interests in common.

"So you'll go home and face the music" said Jessie's wife off eyes.

"My husband," said I, "will be get ting quite anxious about me."

Without a word he brought my horse and saddled him.

Trip before last was the first time I seen this lady. Happens Jones reckoned she'd been appointed inspector of snakes, so I had to be called down spring, and Mrs. Trevor comes along to go shot of her husband's home business; she ain't had anything but her price hung to speak to for weeks, and she's as curious as a hen. Right the way.

Merely my mean's transparent by the way her voice struck through the bushes, my bones, if assets speak like her I'd die to hear. She told me nothin', not one word about the trouble think's killing, but the voice made me want to cry. If you'd merely heard that voice you would pity, you'd a had no need of that old snipper, mother.

"Guess I couldn't tear him away from the beef bones. I'd left Mick up the bottom of, or if I'd left Mick up to accept my dog. You see, bird bite Trevor all-right, whereas I has to dust myself, and my mess is sort of complete. Still by the time she stayed in camp, my talk may have done some comfort to that poor woman. She didn't know then that her mother was only goin' to last another week.

"Guess I'd have brushed it just a mere Jones after she drank her fill of water out of the bubbly spring, crowded with soda bubbles. She just drank and drinkin, bow down the trail, cheaning steps as the hiccups jolted her poor old ribs. The mare looked so blamed funny that at first I couldn't notice the Lorna strap the wood

Home Club for Domestics.

A home club for housemaids and cooks for the purpose of providing domestics a home and a place to congregate, as well as channels of culture and a special employment bureau, will be established by the Bridge Building club of Los Angeles. Much of the cultural work of the latter club will be introduced here and a special employment bureau will be operated by the clubwomen. Music and good books will be supplied and the girls will be expected to make the club a real home, not only living there, but bringing their friends there to entertain them.

ranch. He got fined for having no gun license, and no chance presented, and paying his politics, and Cap Taylor bought him over to keep the peace. I ain't popular now with Mr. Trevor, whereas he got off cheap. Now, if I'd been a cow-punch alone—

I hadn't thought of that. "Can they be famed?" I asked.

"Man can be genteled, and they needs a lasting meat. That was three grizzlies I sort of adopted a party by the name of Capen Adams, and camped and traveled with him most familiar. Then them four varmints pronounced on market street in Frisco. Not that I broke with this Adams is misleading his hors among mammoth so strong and distracted to their peace of mind. But still I reckon Capen Adams and me sort of takes after each other. I'd only attractive to animals."

The Church: Her Glory and Walk

By REV. WILLIAM EVANS, D. D.

Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—Ephesians (whole Epistle).

The great theme of the Epistle to the Ephesians is the Church—its heavenly calling certainly first. After the greeting and salutation the Epistle runs before us its two great divisions: the glorious calling of the Church, chapters 1-3; and the earthly life of the Church, chapters 4-6.

Under the first made division presented to us, the conception of the Church is the mind of God, as an invisible organism which only God can see; in the second main division, the Church as a visible organization, such as the world can see. The Epistle begins with up to the heights is the sum total of the message of God.

Under the conception of the Church we have presented to us—first—from the divine side, the Church as it was in the mind of God, just as the plans of a building are in the mind of the architect before a single stone is laid. Based on foundation, the human side. The conception of the Church as it should be in the mind of God, is set forth in the prayer. This division takes the form of a prayer of the Father for the Church, that believers may know what is the hope of their calling, what the riches of the glory of God's inheritance in his saints, and what the exceeding greatness of his power in those who believe, which power is illustrated in the resurrection and exaltation of Jesus Christ.

Having briefly considered the conception of the Church, let us now glance at the walk of the Church, or the conception, the account of which we find in chapter 4:1-6. Note here the description of the material out of which the Church is formed, and how this material is described (4:1-16). Christ is she, children of wrath, ruled by Satan, fulfilling the desires of the flesh, without Christ and hopeless, afar off without God and strangers to the covenants of promise. Note further, the means by which this construction takes place (2:5-18). Not in their natural state are the dead in trespasses and sins, but quickened together with Christ, raised together, and made to sit together in the heavenlies. Note the form of relationship love and uplifting service for each other. Here are set before us the relations of husband and wife, parents and children, masters and servants.

Fourth—The dynamic power for the realization of these ideals is described in 6:10-18. The Christian must put on the whole armor of God, which is here delineated, piece by piece. Thus armed, victory is certain.

The Epistle closes with a request for prayer by the apostle and with short salutations, 6:19-24.

LEFT YOUNG MOTHER GASPING

Mrs. O'Leary's Well-Meant Words of Compassion Contained a Meaning That Shocked.

There are still two opinions concerning a baby. Ask any young proud young mother. All the old nurses had never heard such a baby-bibe, had never imagined such a cherub as hers. Quite simply she believed it. And the baby's last was but it did not occur to her that red hair was anything but magnificent and was fully admirable. The little shining copper colored head seemed to her the sum of all that was radiant and lovely.

Two come for the baby's wash, Mrs. O'Leary, the washer-woman—a ravished, dejected soul—who spoke. Evidently there was for her no inexpressible glory shining amid the blue and white draperies of a bassinet. How hard the world was on some women! So thought the young mother and proudly drew back the cover from the baby's nest.

"Come and look at my little dandy," she said. "See, she has red hair."

A flash of some strong feeling—could it be compassion?—illumined the dejected features of Mrs. O'Leary. The proud young mother felt her hand gripped in a grasp of iron, and a warm Irish voice sounded in her ears.

"There, there," it said soothingly. "Don't you fret. Don't you fret. You can't never tell what they look like when they're small. Some of 'em grows up into real good looking girls. They do that!"

Children of Palestine at Play.

In Palestine, as always, children's games seem universal, because they are grown up. You may see a mite of five or six paying a visit of ceremony to a pasha or equally tender years, exchanging such compliments with him as "Rest, I pray you!" "Nay, he who sees you is rested," and finally backing out of his presence while he gathers up handfuls of dust and throws it on his head. Dolls are in vogue, with melon seeds to represent the bribe, is a popular game, and so is a raid of fierce men from the desert. The selling of Joseph and his subsequent interviews with his brethren are rendered with much dramatic action, and the affliction of the man of Uz, with new details, such as Job's friends sitting off his hair and sniffing it for bread. "Doina Iribe" is naturally the chief amusement of the Moslem girls, as it is the one great event of her later life.

Decrica National Sport.

Dr. Rogers, the Harvard physical culture expert, is said to regard attendance at baseball games as a harmful pastime, because it eliminates the nerve without furnishing a "motor outlet"—that is, stimulating anybodies body, and not referring to a joy ride. He says that the case is the same as that of the overstimulated physicoer. Apparently he thinks that there was less harm in the game of baseball as played in the halcyon days of old, when two and two and a half hours elapsed between the moment the umpire called "Play!" and the time the last man was out.

GOT HIS "THINK-TANK" GOING

Mexican Farmer Proved He Was Capable of Invention—Only Object Was to Save Labor.

That the Mexican farmer is not the slow-thinking, lazy person the average American imagine is illustrated by an ingeniously devised wall constructed by a farmer living near a little town just across the boundary line. The entire solution of the problem from home comes and they have very primitive ideas and customs. This well is about 40 feet deep and the owner has built a curious device for hauling water from it. If this contraption had been educated man he might have been an inventor.

A tree flourished near the well which had two branches growing out of the trunk. These branches separated into four branches higher up. The Mexican cut the branches to suit, so that they formed a perfect rest for a long well sweep. He fastened the sweep to a crossbar at a little town the two upper branches in the middle, using stout thongs for the purpose. Then he fastened a weight on one end of the sweep and a long rope to the other end. The bucket is fastened to the end of the long rope. He has to do is to lower the buckets into the well. The weight on the stone pulls it up again, brimming full.

Got the Wrong Dish.

Jones seldom gets home in time to eat with his family because a little town the press of his work keeps him at his office. Mrs. Jones is always quite late. Jones always puts his dinner in the oven, where he finds it when he arrives.

One night he reached home after his pastime, because it eliminates the nerve without furnishing a "motor outlet"—that is, stimulating anybodies body, and not referring to a joy ride. He says that the case is the same as that of the overstimulated physicoer. Apparently he thinks that there was less harm in the game of baseball as played in the halcyon days of old, when two and two and a half hours elapsed between the moment the umpire called "Play!" and the time the last man was out.

1,000 DELEGATES ATTEND MEETING

BAPTISTS OF MICHIGAN OPEN SESSIONS IN CITY OF PONTIAC.

WOMEN'S SOCIETIES ATTEND

Distinguished Leaders From All Parts of the United States Are on the Programme—Big Results Are Guides to Visitors.

Lansing.—The Michigan Baptists' Ministers' conference and the Michigan Baptist convention opened in Pontiac with over 1,000 delegates present.

Fifty Boy Scouts acted as guides to arriving guests. Distinguished Baptists from all over the United States are on the programme. Among them are: Dr. Guy C. Lansing of Philadelphia, Dr. C. H. Harlow of Chicago, Dr. F. I. Anderson of Chicago, president of the International S. S. Dr. J. H. Franklin of Boston, foreign secretary of the Baptist Missionary societies; Dr. Carlos M. Dinsmore, president of the Indiana Baptist convention; Dr. Ernest D. Burton, president of the educational board of the National Baptist convention; Dr. Harper, president U. S. Station of Kalamazoo college; Dr. J. W. Mauch, president of Hillsdale college; Miss Fannie Harris, state secretary of the Baptist Young People's union, Mt. Pleasant; G. L. Wittil of the American Baptist Publication society of Detroit, and Rev. J. C. Bossing of Bay City.

At the Central church, church the young women held a rally and luncheon, have than 150 came in special cars from Detroit, Flint, Saginaw, Bay City, Jackson, Ann Arbor, Lansing, Battle Creek, and gave five-minute addresses. A fifteen-minute address was given by Miss Julia Davis of Detroit.

Favors Lansing for Meeting.

After 1914 Lansing may be made the permanent meeting place of State Bar association. A movement has already been started to make the capital city the annual meeting place by the association's president, Watts S. Humphrey of Saginaw.

At the last meeting of the association held in this city the attendance was considerably larger than at previous gatherings of the association. It is believed that the state capital would draw many new members to the annual meetings of the association and result in an increase of membership. Many of the attorneys throughout the state have business with the various state departments and it is the idea of those favoring Lansing as the permanent annual gathering place to make it convenient for the lawyers to combine with business the state departments at the time of the meeting.

Another change that will be attempted in the association is to make it that all expenses for entertainment and meetings be borne by the association. Next year's meeting in Detroit is a location meets at Flint.

"After full consideration of the subject it is my opinion and I heartily recommend that the association make Lansing its permanent meeting place," says Watts S. Humphrey in circular letter to the members of the association. He also indorses the plan for the state association to bear the expense of its meetings instead of allowing the local bar associations to provide for such expense.

A Practical Wife.

"Wife, this is our wedding anniversary."

"So it is."

"As a matter of sentiment I shall bring home a bunch of flowers tonight."

"Never mind the sentiment, Henry. Bring home some limburger cheese."

Bulletin by Historical Society.

Comprehending in a practical brief, the inception, aims and administration of the Michigan Historical commission, the first of a series of bulletins relative to the state department of history and archives, is being issued by Dr. George Newman Fuller, secretary of the commission.

One-half of the booklet of 41 pages, which the bulletin comprises, is given over to a relation of the origin of the commission and its rules, organization and administration. Officers of the commission include Gov. Woodbridge N. Ferris, ex-officio, president; Clarence M. Burton, Detroit, vice-president; William L. Jenks, Port Huron, secretary; Doctor Fuller, curator; Mrs. M. B. Ferrey; and members of the commission, Mr. Rev. Monsignor O'Brien, Kalamazoo; Edwin O. Wood, Flint; Lawton T. Hemans, Lansing, and Prof. Claude H. VanTyne, Ann Arbor.

Headquarters of the commission are in the state capitol building, the second floor of which is devoted to committee rooms I. and the museum the same rooms which was assigned it when it was the property of the Michigan Pioneer and Historical society. The only available space for accumulating book and manuscript collections of the commission is the already overcrowded state library.

In this regard the bulletin says: "It is well known to Michigan that the state library has long done outgrown its present quarters, and the demand has long been discussed of securing ample fireproof accommodations for the invaluable collections in the capital. Now that the way has opened for the more worthy accommodation of the vast materials for the history of Michigan and the work of the commission has been empowered to gather, it is earnestly to be hoped that the widespread interest in larger library accommodations may continue and assume such definiteness that the legislature this object may be realized."

The collection of the Michigan historical commission is intended to contain every variety of material illustrative of the history of Michigan, of the life of its aboriginal peoples, and of its early settlers and present population. Of the state's legislative journals and documents, the course a complete collection will be made, supplemented by a full collection of the latest issues of the state.

In addition, files of newspapers and other periodicals reflecting the life, thoughts and activities of the people from all portions of the state; letters, diaries, memoranda, papers, old account books and other manuscripts left by settlers and public men of the territory and state; county histories; history of Michigan and other states, works of national scope that have a bearing upon Michigan, and an announcement based on census statistics of 1910, showing Michigan to be the second richest farming county in the United states.

Grand Rapids—About 500 delegates attended the opening session of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education here. The delegates delivered addresses in Grand Rapids churches. Prof. Frank Leavitt, of Chicago university spoke at Fountain Street Baptist church. "Vocational training, its any estimation," said Professor Leavitt, "is as fine a line of missionary work as could possibly be taken."

Cheboygan—The first cases of "employers' liability" are resulted in awards for applicants. Margaret McKervey, whose husband was drowned last spring while working as watchman for the Mackinac Bridge Coal and Dock company, was awarded $4,000. George Pelock, seriously injured while employed as workman in the Bois Blanc island mill of the Shefford Manufacturing company, was awarded $1,000.

Marquette.—By the closing of a deal for the site, pending for the last two years, the erection of an orphanage for the Catholic diocese of Sault Ste. Marie and Marquette is assured. The building will be erected near St. Mary's hospital, in this city, at a cost of $100,000. The site was donated by George J. Mans of Negaunee, and Joseph Pierce of Hancock. Bishop Frederick Eis is the treasurer of the building fund that is being raised to defray the cost of the building. It is planned to erect a fireproof structure, the architectural plans of the orphanage the children now in the Sacred Heart orphanage, numbering 100 in number, will be brought to Marquette.

Ludington.—Petitions are being circulated in Mason county asking the board of supervisors to submit a bonding proposition for the establishing of a county school of agricultural. The proposition is being pushed by Commissioner of Schools C. J. Hoskins, who believes that this county is logically located for such an institution. Commissioner Hoskins has worked out plans which call for a bond issue of $25,000. This amount will buy the land and erect the build ings. The school will be entitled, according to the law, to state aid of $4,000 a year.

Kalamazoo—Although he is one hundred and three years old, Joseph Lomas, a former Kalamazoo resident now living in Indianapolis, has run round a life member of the Michigan Soldiers' Home. He is also a member of the Kalamazoo lodge for life, and is believed to be the oldest living member of the Kalamazoo lodge, he is believed to be the oldest member of any Masonic order today in the world. Lomas is in good health. Every year on his birthday the Knights Templar of this city send him a bouquet of flowers consisting of many roses as he counts years.

Traverse City—Delbert McQuiggan, who died a victim of Mexico City, was instantly killed when his automobile plunged into a ravine at Kingsley, Thursday morning. He was on a hunting trip in the woods. When found his clothes were burning from the wadding of the discharge.

Calumet, Oct. 16—Notwithstanding arrests being made of strikers charged with the commission of the latter in the injunction against picketing and violence, the men continued picketing, as did women of the strikers. More arrests resulted, one being a woman arrested at Calumet.

WESTERN MICHIGAN APPLE EXHIBIT AT GRAND RAPIDS.

So far in the history of the Western Michigan Development Bureau 15 big exhibits of the agricultural products of Western Michigan have been made. The seventeenth exhibit was in connection with the West Michigan State Fair at Grand Rapids. The exhibit consisted of 200 boxes of show apples, a display of grains and grasses and 50 odd jars of fruits and seeds. The exhibit was made attractive by the use of a large mural painting representing the Western Michigan country and by a fence of birch poles. Five thousand copies of the illustrated magazine, "Western Michigan," were distributed to visitors to the exhibit.

RESTORE KING APPLE

WESTERN MICHIGAN IN CAMPAIGN TO INCREASE DEMAND.

Theory is That Greater Prosperity will be Brought to Michigan and Rest of Country by Reestablishing King Apple.

An extensive campaign is being carried out in western Michigan this year for the purpose of increasing the quality of apples used.

The campaign is based upon the idea of the democracy of the apple as opposed to the aristocracy of this fruit. That is, an effort is being made to increase the number of all apples used, rather than to try to create a demand for some specific brand. The entire campaign is based on the theory that a greater amount of prosperity will be brought to Michigan, and to the rest of the country by re-establishing King Apple upon its throne. This is advertising the apples from some special locality. The time was when the people of Michigan consumed many thousands of barrels of this fruit each year, and the consumption was estimated at one barrel per capita consumption today is not what it was twenty years ago and there is no reason why it should not be larger. A better grade of apples is grown today than was grown by our fathers and a larger number of ways of using the apples are now known. But the truth is, the orchard of $5,000 Hall Mr. Tweddle been able to harvest an entire acre, his return would have been better than $12,000, which is about as good profits as can be expected from farming even in Western Michigan. Tweddle is a farming his ginseng beds by two acres this fall.

FINDS GOOD PROFIT IN VETCH SEED.

James Hilbert of Elmwood township, Leelanau county, has earned extra money during the season of 1913 by the growing of Vetch seed. Last year he devoted a portion of his farm to the growing of vetch and discovered that the seed cost a goodly sum. As others were desiring to grow vetch he came to the conclusion that there would be money in supplying them with seed, so twenty acres of his farm were devoted to the crop and from the crop there being grown together the seed was planted the twentieth of August, 1912, and the crop cut about the first of August, 1913. After threshing, the vetch and rye were bundled together and the problem became one of separating the two seeds. This matter was solved by the building of a special machine with an endless belt on a slight incline. The seeds were allowed to fall on the moving belt and the vetch being much rolled to the bottom of the machine and the rye seeds being long and slightly flat on one side were carried up by the belt and dropped over the upper end of the machine. The first machine constructed by Mr. Hilbert was inadequate to the demand in supplying them with seed, so twenty acres of his farm were devoted to the crop at the same time and his machine, even when running night and day, was unable to meet the seed wanted. He was lucky enough to meet the requirements of his customers, so a second machine was built with a width of ten feet, and this when operated continuously cleaned up the crop and at a fair profit to Mr. Hilbert.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

John G. Anderson, New Golfing Star.

JOHN G. ANDERSON.

The recent contest for the national amateur and championship title at Garden City, N. Y., won by Jerome D. Travers of Upper Montclair, N. J., brought out a new aspirant for the world of golf. He is John G. Anderson of Massachusetts, who won his way through to the finals, where he was defeated by the three time champion.

Anderson's playing demonstrated that he is one of the greatest players the game has ever produced. He was college professor and has won the Massachusetts seven championship title twice.

A Foolish Athlete.

Tom Burrows, the Australian amateur and champion club swinger, collapsed at the Earl's court exhibition in London in an attempt to swing three and one-half pound clubs 100 hours consecutively. He succeeded in keeping the clubs in motion for ninety seven hours and thirty-five minutes and then dropped over.

Last April Burrows swung a pair of fifteen pound clubs in Indian clubs for more than 100 hours, but later became stiff and had to quit.

Out at Service.

A young housekeeper, if her cook is stupid, her sister, she, her mamma, more given to flirtation than to household duties, sighs for the model servants of the good old times. But did "the good old times" ever exist, historically, or do they only live in dreams and ballads?

Charles Dickens tells of the squalling stupidity of London kitchens. Sir Walter Scott mentions a peculiar plea, fearing that all his master's bees would desert the hive, pestered the operatives and suffered all the lamentable. Scott lived lists gruesome accounts of burglaries, highwaymen, riots and murderers among the convicts sent over from England before the Revolution. Daniel Defoe's pictures of extravagance, carelessness, rascality and all that is undesirable among servants in a classic. Jonathan Swift's "Directions to servants" seem to reveal a story story of negligence, of wasteful neat, or thrifiness the present generation has heard.—Living Church.

The Top Hat.

Although the beginning of the "civilizing or civilization," as it has been called, can be traced back to the Elizabethan era, it is only about seventy or eighty years ago that the top hat of the present day reached its final shape. Since then it has entered night in the dominions of the crown and the court of the latin, but there is one place, namely, assembly membership. The top hat seems to have had its beginning in the hats of pollaiuo in the Elizabethan period of cocking up one side of their broad brimmed, high crowned felt or beaver hats and securing them with a jewel. The Prince Rupert of cavalier fame takes cockade as above some of the best and fastening the top of the edge of the hat. The fashion came the cockade, too popular to grooms and footmen. The hat at of today was being by Prince Albert supplanted the more nearly extinct Gibus and by a gradual process of change, though considerably larger.—London Standard.

An Old Time Menace.

An amusing and debated account of a furious battle between a mosquito and apparently to good faith, ends with the following description of the battle: "It which may possibly have been a scar of a sea lion. "That monster is about twelve feet long and as broad as a fairway, without any scales, all his bones are like those of a man, but he has a proportionable size, a little mouth, a large and fat face, a white forehead, black hair and skin covered with a mossy beard, a sort of whiskers under the bows, he has like those of men, his between the fingers of his hands and feet like those of ducks. In a word he is a well shaped man. Which is certified to be true by Captain Oliver Marlin and John Martin, pilot, and by the whole crew, consisting of two and thirty men." Old settle from Hoxo to the "Memoirs of Trevoux." The monster was mentioned in the Gazette of Amsterdam the 12, 1725, where, it is said, it was seen in the ocean in August of the same year.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How to Read the Moon.

Few people can tell at a glance what the moon is doing, whether it is waxing or waning. Here is a whimsical rule to remember by. It is very simple to those who know Latin and is not difficult for those who do not. The first thing is to notice whether the moon is like a D or a C—that is, whether the first quarter looks like the letter D or like the letter C. If it looks like D, it is waxing, for D is the initial letter of the Latin word "dorso," meaning "back," and the back of the moon is waxing or waning. Here is a whimsical rule to remember by. GRANGE HISTORY.

A Glance Backward Recalls Forgotten Events.

The Order of Patrons of Husbandry, a Fraternal Organization, Shown by its Contributions For the Relief of Suffering Farmers in the Early Days of the Order—An Educational Venture in North Carolina.

In April, 1874, the Mississippi river overflowed its banks, carrying disaster and suffering to a large number of farmers in Louisiana and Arkansas, many of whom were Patrons of Husbandry. The executive committee of the national grange sent $1,000 of the grange funds to relieve the stricken farmers and later expended about $5,000 in purchasing flour and bacon, which were distributed to the suffering Patrons through the masters of the state granges. Nearly every grange later contributed to their needs, some giving as much as $5,000.

Added to this calamity to the farmers came the grasshopper plague, and again the national grange sent about $11,000 to the masters of state granges in Iowa, Minnesota, Dakota, Kansas and Nebraska to relieve the wants of Patrons. Later $2,000 was sent to Arkansas Patrons and $3,000 to the Kansas state grange to enable it to pay its dues to the national grange. During the following year other contributions were made, which brought these fraternal gifts up to $40,000 for the year including.

In 1876 the state grange of South Carolina received from the national grange treasury the sum of $1,000 to aid sufferers from a prolonged drought, and a special loan made to the Nebraska state grange amounting to $2,000 was made a donation on account of the continued distress in that state. The contributions of the ohio state grange along about this period amounted to nearly $3000.

These were the days when the national grange treasury was plethoric, and it was subjected to the result in increase in the number of granges. In January, 1874, 2,115 new granges were organized. In February, 2,220, in March, 2,624; in April, 1,687, and from that time on the decline was notable. On Jan. 1, 1875, there were 21,697 granges in the United States.

The grange has always given its best efforts to the advancement of educational interests. A notable institution occurs in the history of the order in the southern states, where the grange was at one time stronger in numbers than in any other part of the country. But in the southern states schools were very inadequate. The state grange of North Carolina recommended that the subordinate granges, interest themselves in establishing local schools, and it found practicable. It was advised that primary and even high schools be established in connection with county and subordinate granges. The national grange proceedings of 1882 state that grange schools were established in 1881 in Georgia, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama and Kentucky. The national grange appropriated $500 to aid the work. The grange fair, now so deservedly popular in some states, is no new idea. As early as 1867 a local granger in Michigan held a grange fair, and in 1875 a state grange fair were early very popular in New England, as they are now are. A grange crop reporting system was organized in 1874, and shortlived as the national grange was, the grange did not respond very actively. It was not continued after 1880, although the reports were sold to be of very considerable value.

The remaining growth of the Order in 1874 and 1875 was the states of Illinois and Iowa. These two states were the centers of the movement in its various activities, which were fought: railway legislation, grange stores, grange business agencies and co-operative schemes and put in much and all had their times of greatest success, and then came dire failure. Those states had stood the brunt of the battle and in the decade of the increase in grange membership in Illinois a greater interest was created in advanced agriculture.

New State Masters.

There will be a new state master at the next meeting of the national grange, which will convene in Manchester, N. H., next November. The fellowship will then be present for the election of a master to succeed Dan Dale, who succeeds S. H. Medick, A. E. Rowden from Kansas, who succeeds George Hoxie; Joseph A. Cochran from Rhode Island, who succeeds F. E. Merchant; Charles L. Hive from Minnesota, who succeeds Mrs. Sarah G. Balch; John C. Ketchum from Michigan, who succeeds N. P. Hull, and W. N. Gady from Vermont, who succeeds C. F. Smith.

Grange Day at the Dairy Show.

The national dairy show which is to be held in Chicago from Oct. 4 to 11 has set apart one day—Friday, Oct. 10—as "grange day." The management has arranged that it will make arrangements for hotel rates and tickets for delegations coming together for a visit to the show on that date.

Modern Scholars For Farmers.

Full original moving pictures can be delivered the subscription will for such a very interesting entertainment for a small fee the grange boys and greeting is requested in our Sunday school. Some time ago, among other slides were shown:

Longfellow's "Village Blacksmith" (at slides). "The Bridge" (first slides). "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," music by the prince from the slides. "The Independence Bell" (at slides). "Lucy Long" (at slides).

In all about fifty pictures were shown, with the Sunday school music and the prince from the grange had ever had presented. We pass the idea which is so novel and so full of promise, along with the suggestion that those grangers who have never had such a program try it.

The Grange Fair.

"The distinctively grange fair is coming to be a fixed institution in many states. The exhibits are confined to grange products and premiums are awarded. Indeed in some sections the grange fair is really more of an agricultural show than is the regular county fair. It is, of course, of no proper limitations, but it affords a medium of pleasant rivalry among grange members and incidentally is a means of advancing the agricultural interests of the community. Where there is a good grange agricultural show there is sure to be a live grange. The reverse is true, those that are doing most for the community in which they are located.

Blind Swimmers.

The man who is differentiate enough to lose his sight or to be both blind is says a medical authority, serenely handicapped on dry ground, but he can, if he is a swimmer, find his way easily enough in the water. Blind people generally have a keen sense of hearing, and they can steer themselves by the river by sound as well as an ordinary man by sight. If they are swimming toward a certain point a whistle from time to time will enable them to reach it with unerring accuracy. This fact has been proved by some interesting experiments. A man between blind and ordinary swimmers on a lake resulted in a victory for the former. Blindness seems to be no more than in raising their heads for the purpose of keeping their eyes on the winning post. This also prevents them from concentrating all their attention on the finish.

Rose For Restoring Hair.

Roses form the chief ingredient in what is probably the earliest recipe for the restoration of hair. According to Pliny, "wild rose leaves reduced into a powder and mixed with oil make the hair grow again in most marvelous fashion." Pliny also recommends "that if one is anxious to bring to trim the hairs of the eyebrows." Roses are prepared by boiling in several ways strong drinks, such as rum sells, which contained a very powerful mixture of sugar, spice and flavored with cinnamon. The favorite morning draft among Elizabethan noblemen was "rose sollo, to wash the nolligrubs out of a moody brain."—London Chronicle.

Remote Origin of Alcohol

No one knows when the alcohol was first made. It is commonly taught that it was first distilled by the Arabians about the tenth century, but there is little doubt that they obtained the secret from the grange boys who had long been practicing it. Paul Rickard in the Berliner Illustrirte Wochenschrift shows that a knowledge of "aqua ardens," or "burning water" may be traced as far back as the second century A. D. to a Christian father named Hippolytus, who possessed a recipe analogous to those handed about during the middle ages.

Mother's Tongue.

"Don't you realize the power of the mother tongue?" asked the young man who professed interest in literature. "Yes, and so does father" replied the young woman.—Buffalo Express.

Mostly All Talk.

"I don't feel quite well, doctor. Do you think I could go to a coffee party this afternoon?"

"Certainly, miss. Your tongue is all right."—Pittsburgh Gazette.

To Be Happy

You must have good health. You can't have good health if your liver is out doing its duty. You can't have good health if your bowels are constipated, your stomach sour and your system full of poisons that should be expelled daily. Nature's laxative and tonic is Dr. Herbine. It gives good appetite, sweet breath, clear head, strong nerves, good digestion, good health. Price 50 cents. Sold by B. A. Harrison, druggist.

Wagner Worship.

"There is no such worship of national genius in America as prevails abroad," said a recently returned tourist. "In Germany, for instance, at the super the scale of prices varies according to the composer. Wagner, of course, commanding the top notch of adulation. But the most peculiar feature of the musical adoration is that it affects the toilets as well. With the elaborate gowning of a New York audience in mind, I approached our laudatory as to the propriety of appearing at the opera in such a makeshift costume as my tourist wardrobe afforded. 'It depends entirely upon the compser you intend to hear, fraulein,' was her astonishing reply. 'For some your present attire would be perfectly proper, but if it is the great Wagner you are to hear'— She broke off, but an expressive shrug of the shoulders told plainly that words that it would be an affront to his shade to expect in anything but the most stunning and up to date evening gown."—New York Tribune.

When Thanks Were Given.

Many years ago a noted chief of the tribe of Ojibwa Indians while hunting wounded a deer and followed it for miles. The chase was long and very severe, and the Indian was in the last stages of exhaustion from fatigue and lack of food and water when he found himself on the top of a wonderful waterfall, at the foot of which nestled a beautiful lake crystal clear. From the surface of the live trout leaped and upon the shore by the deer he had hunted. Here were food, water, fish and fuel for cooking.

Halting his hand and facing the setting sun, the exhausted chief exclaimed, "Ish pone ing," which in the Chippewa tongue means "heaven" or "the place of light."

The story was remembered, and the name given by the Indian was adopted by the white settlers when the present city of Ishpeming, Mich., was formed.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Inexperienced.

In a boarding house for bachelors Amanda, a typical "mammy," looked after the guests' comfort in true southern style, so well that one of the men thought he would take her away with him in the summer to the capacity of housekeeper. Twaddl spring he was laid her in the hall one day and said:

"Mandy, do you like the country?"

"Mandy reckoned she did.

"Would you like to go away with me this summer and keep house for me?"

Mandy was sure she would.

"Suppose I get a bungalow. Do you think you could take care of it nicely by yourself?"

Mandy gasped and rolled her eyes—"Good, no, massa! Reckoun you'd better get somebody else; I don't know nothin' about takin' care of any animals."—Harper's Magazine.

Antiquity of Nagging.

No, if you are nagged you are not alone in your experience. Now are the nagged persons of this age the only nagged persons of any age. Nagging is an old custom. They tell us that Adam, Job, Socrates, Aesop, Leonhlas Marchlieff and many more distinguished historical personages were victims of nagging. This proves the antiquity but not the wisdom or the respectability of nagging. And if it is as old as it is claimed to be it is strange that it has survived. Why, we ask, does it survive? Why, we ask, does it survive? Why, we ask, does it survive?

MILITANT IS FREED

MRS. PANKHURST ADDRESSES CROWD AT BATTERY AFTER BEING RELEASED.

IS AT MRS. BELMONT'S HOME

Well Known Suffragette Asserts Biggest Blow Has Been Dealt at English Opposition—Not Guilty of "Moral Turpitude."

New York, Oct. 27.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffragette leader, landed on Manhattan Island on Monday from Ellis Island, where she had been detained by the immigration authorities. She had been ordered deported as an undesirable alien. She made a speech to a large crowd at the Battery.

Mrs. Pankhurst left Ellis Island Monday on a government tug and was landed at the Battery. She had been accompanied across the bay by 25 British suffragists, who had gone on the island earlier in the day to serenade her, and when she left the boat she found awaiting her a crowd of several hundred, mostly women, who cheered wildly for the illustrated woman.

What has happened today is one of the greatest slaps in the face that official Great Britain has ever had in its fight against the irresistible wave of sentiment for women suffrage," she told "Great Britain does not want me to tell the truth. Great Britain did not want me to come to the United States for that reason. But I am here to tell the whole truth about the suffrage workers in Great Britain.

"I have come here to tell every thing I know about suffrage. It is a great battle because it is for a great cause. We are being opposed bitterly in England.

"I believe our most bitter opponents are Premier Asquith and Home Secretary McKenna. McKenna is pig headed, narrow minded and ignorant. He and Asquith are doing all in their power to block suffrage, but their efforts remind me of Canute speaking to the sea.

Mrs. Pankhurst said she had been well treated at Ellis Island.

"I am glad the great mass of people in the United States appreciate the true meaning of the fight I am making," she went on. "I am glad they realize it is not a fight based on selfishness or self-seeking notoriety. The action in my case was prompt. I believe, because of the great wave of protest brought forward by my being held up. I was opening a door at any moment from Washington when Commissioner Uhl came to me and told me I was free to go any place I liked."

From the Battery Mrs. Pankhurst went to the home of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who dined with prominent suffrage leaders at the Aldine club at night and her first set speech will be delivered Friday night.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Federal commissioner of Immigration Antonio Caminetti on Monday revoked the order of the special board of inquiry deporting Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the famous British suffragette, and directed that she be allowed to enter the country.

Commissioner Caminetti decided that Mrs. Pankhurst should be admitted on her own recognizance on these grounds:

FIRST—Because of doubt on the question of moral turpitude.

SECOND—Because she can be prosecuted in the United States courts if she violates the law.

THIRD—Because she can be deported if she violates the law.

Caminetti's decision came at the close of a conference held between high officials to determine whether Mrs Pankhurst should be allowed to enter the United States or whether she be deported "as an undesirable alien.

DEMOCRAT WINS IN ILLINOIS

Charles C. Craig of Galesburg Elected to Supreme Court Over L. D. Puterbaugh by 3,000 Majority.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 22.—Returns from all of the ten counties in the Fifth supreme district on Monday showed the election of Charles C. Craig, Democrat, of Galesburg, to the supreme bench by a majority over Lewis D. Puterbaugh of 3,000.

Judge Puterbaugh carried Peoria county by 1,200 majority. It is said to be the first time in the history of Illinois judicial elections that a full Republican has been sent to the supreme bench. Today J. M. Niehaus, Democrat, was in the Tenth judicial district in the race for the supreme judgeship. Walter A. Clinch was victorious.

Import Rate Case Decided.

Washington, Oct. 23.—The interstate commerce commission ordered that for two years the railroad rates on imports west-bound from New York and Boston shall be the same. This ends the celebrated import rate case.

Mrs. Sulzer's Kin to Wed.

Belgrade, Servia, Oct. 22.—The Servian government notified the European powers that it had ordered its troops to withdraw immediately behind the Albanian frontier. This step complies with Austria's ultimatum.

Wilson Receives Prince of Monaco.

Washington, Oct 22.—The prince of Monaco called on Wilson and was received with the usual diplomatic formality. It was the first time that any representative of Monte Carlo has been at the White House.

FIVE DIE IN BLIZZARD

MIDDLE WEST IS SWEPT BY SNOWSTORM

Gale Wrecks Vessels on Great Lakes and Drives Ships Further From Cold Wave.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The first snowstorm of the season blew into Chicago Monday night on the wings of a 30-mile northwest wind. The snow did not last long, but it was of the blizzard variety for a short time. Wisconsin suffered severely from a gale that swept the state.

Dispatches from widely scattered Wisconsin cities brought the same news—that a frightful blizzard was raging. Railroad traffic is practically at a standstill; telegraph and telephone service is demoralized, and in consequence, many business houses are forced to suspend operation because of the snow.

Other points in the Mississippi valley where the sudden advent of winter was reported included Minnesota and Minneapolis, registering temperatures from ten to twelve degrees below freezing. It was the coldest October day for the Twin Cities since October 18, 1906, and a snowstorm almost of blizzard proportions, raged all afternoon and night.

The Wisconsin blizzard, however, easily outdoes all other records of bad weather. The snow belt at midnight was from Wood de Lac, 150 miles north of Chicago, across the state to the west and north to the Lake Superior line.

All shipping on Lake Superior has sought shelter, and hundreds were storm-bound in Chequamegon bay at Ashland when their gasoline launch was ripped by the heavy seas. Thousands of the Ashland blizzard are menaced. Two hunters are dead near Mellen, Wisconsin, and Tomahawk Sidlo of Milwaukee, five others are lost in the Chequamegon swamp. Two hunters are missing near Ironwood.

A dispatch from Algoma, Mich., states that the wooden steamer Norwalk went ashore early today on the rocks at False-Presque-Isle.

20 U. S. SOLDIERS ARE KILLED

Crack Members of Artillery Companies Lose Lives in Railroad Wreck

Meridian, Miss., Oct. 21.—Twenty United States soldiers were killed and one hurt when a special train on the Mobile & Ohio railroad plunged through a trestle near Hare, Miss., on Sunday.

The dead are:

Joseph Tebbe, Ernest Parquette, Clyde Teel, B. B. Bishop, C. C. Porter, Joseph Provence, W. H. Bimm, Gonder, Remsen, Hiroski, Acres, one body unidentified.

All were privates and members of Company Thirty-nine, coast artillery.

The Thirty-ninth and One Hundred and Seventeen companies of coast artillery stationed at Fort Morgan were taken to Mobile on the special Mobile & Ohio train, bound for Meridian, where the soldiers were to participate in a fight. On the train were 175 officers and men. The men were the crack members of their respective companies, having been chosen for their excellence in drill and other maneuvers

28 KILLED IN AIRSHIP

GERMAN ADMIRALTY BOARD IS AMONG THOSE SLAIN.

Three Others Die in Falls From Aeroplanes—Baron Only Survivor, Says to Be Slain.

Berlin, Oct. 20.—The crews of the Zeppelin war airships, the L-2, was destroyed in mistake by an explosion on Friday. All but one of the 28 military men were killed.

The 28 represented the entire personnel of the admiralty board which was conducting the final trial of the dirigible, looking to its acceptance by the German government as a new unit of the German aerial navy, the pilot and crew and invited guests.

Every person that went aloft in the ill-fated airship is dead.

Twenty-seven were killed almost instantly by the explosion of the gas in the balloonette or burned to death as the flaming wreck fell to the ground from a height of 500 feet.

One man, Lieutenant Baron von Bloem of the Queen Augusta Grenadier Guards, a guest of the admiralty board, was extricated alive from the twisted wreckage. His eyes were burned out and he suffered other terrible hurts. Despite his sufferers to all him and end his suffering, he was taken to a hospital, where he died at night.

The official report of the accident says the explosion was due to the ignition of gas in or above the forward gondola, but not within the body of the airship.

The navy was not the only sufferer of the day through aviation accidents. Three army officers were killed in aeroplane flights.

HUERTA SAYS HE WON'T QUIT

Mexican Chief Asserts "I Quit at Death or to Bear Gun to Exterminate the Rebels."

Mexico City, Oct. 21.—Provisional President Huerta has not resigned, but has he fled from the capital. When seen at the national palace today he said he had no intention of doing either.

"I will not resign," said General Huerta. "It will be to seek a resting place six feet in the soil. When I flee the capital it will be to shoulder a rifle and take my place in the ranks to fight the rebels."

This was the provisional president's answer to queries as to whether there was any foundation for the reports which have freely circulated in the capital and found their way to the United States.

SULZER IS NAMED

DEPOSED NEW YORK GOVERNOR ACCEPTS NOMINATION ON PROGRESSIVE TICKET.

TELLS OF TAMMANY PLOT

Former Executive Says Impeachment Trial Resulted From His Refusal to Obey Murphy and Accept Money.

New York, Oct. 21.—William Sulzer, impeached as governor of the state, was nominated for the assembly Monday night by the Progressives of the 34th assembly district. Mr. Sulzer in 1895 began his public career as a member of this branch of the state legislature.

Mr. Sulzer had agreed to accept the nomination. It was announced at the meeting where he was chosen as the candidate. Max Steindler, Progressive leader in the district, who placed the former governor's name in nomination, said Mr. Sulzer telephoned him by telephone from Albany, inquiring if he had been designated. Mr. Steindler replied in the affirmative. He said he asked Mr. Sulzer if he would accept, and Mr. Sulzer replied he would gladly do so.

That Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, offered money to William Sulzer, and that the impeachment of Sulzer resulted from his refusal to take orders from the chief of the Tammany clan was the charge made.

Sulzer said he experienced surprise when Murphy approached him and offered him money with which to pay his debts. In his indictment the impeached governor boldly charged that the Tammany chieftain subsequently sent agents to him. The offer of money he adds, was subsequently made in a more alluring form, but Sulzer declared that he had taken a few determined to shake off the shackles of Tammany and stymied every overture from that source.

William Sulzer came to be governor of the state of New York Friday. He was removed from office by the court of impeachment, by a vote of 43 to 12, two members not voting. Martin H. Glynn, lieutenant governor, was sworn in as his successor, the first in the history of the state to step into its high office in this manner. Robert F. Wagner, Democratic leader of the senate, became lieutenant governor. The verdict of the court was that Sulzer was guilty of falsification, perjury and an attempt to suppress evidence against him. Of 22 other charges he was acquitted, the court unanimously voting him not guilty of the four remaining articles of impeachment.

Laredo, Tex., Oct. 20.—The 175 American refugees from Torreon, whose whereabouts have been causing much uneasiness among their friends and relatives, have been rescued by federal soldiers.

BRAZIL GREETS T. R.

ROOSEVELT GIVEN MILITARY WELCOME ON HIS ARRIVAL AT RIO JANEIRO.

IS GUEST OF THE PRESIDENT

Republic's High Officials and Diplomats From All Lands Meet Former U. S. Chief Executive—Makes Address at Y. M. C. A.

Rio Janeiro, Oct. 23.—Theodore Roosevelt, who was given a mixed welcome on his arrival here on Tuesday, visited President Hermes Fonseca.

Edwin V. Morgan, United States ambassador to Brazil, with the staff of the embassy, went on board before the vessel docked with a reception committee including Senhor Barros Moreira, representing the ministry of foreign affairs, Lieutenant Colonel Aristides de Podernieiras, Brazilian attache at Washington; Don Jose Carlos Rodrigues, Admiral Antonio Coutinho, Gomes Ferreira and Antonio Olyntho de Magalhaes of the historical institute.

This party disembarked on the naval arsenal quay, where a company of soldiers formed, while bands played the Brazilian and American national anthems. Several committees presented bouquets of flowers to Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Margaret Roosevelt.

Marshal Hermes Fonseca, president of the republic, was unable to be present but he sent a special representative. All the cabinet ministers of brazil, the minister of Argentina, with the members of his legation; the presidents of the Brazilian senate and chamber of deputies, a representative parliamentary committee, the chief commissioner of police, the presidents of the various tribunals of the high court of justice, the members of the municipal council, headed by the mayor of Rio Janeiro. Many members of the diplomatic corps, high functionaries of the government and military and naval officers in full uniform were among the welcoming delegations.

A procession headed by Colonel Roosevelt and the representative of the president of Brazil, proceeded to a reception room in the naval arsenal, which was decorated with Brazilian flags and the Stars and Stripes intertwined. Here Colonel Roosevelt and the members of his party were introduced to the leading officials.

After the ceremony, Colonel Roosevelt was conducted to the Guanabara palace, where he will reside during his stay in Brazil here.

All the newspapers published articles welcoming Roosevelt.

Colonel Roosevelt paid his respects to the president of the republic in a lengthy visit. The meeting was most cordial. He then called on Dr. Lauro Muller, minister of foreign affairs, and together they inspected the port works and the avenues for which Brazil is noted.

In the morning he was the guest of the president at breakfast. Later he visited the military college and spoke before the Young Men's Christian association. In the evening he attended a performance at the Municipal theater.

SULZER QUITS N. Y. CAPITAL

Silently Leaves Albany to Begin Career Anew, With Declaration That He Has No Regret.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 23.—William Sulzer on Tuesday night departed from Albany in silence. Not a friend outside of his official family accompanied him to the railroad station. Not a cheer greeted him as, with his hat drawn over his eyes and his chin buried in his overcoat collar, he walked slowly down the platform and boarded his car—by coincidence the "Empire State."

"I have no regrets," were his last words. "If I had everything to do over again I would do as I have done. My fight has just begun."

News that Sulzer was on the train spread quickly, and a curious throng of passengers streamed back through the coaches to see him. He appeared not to notice them.

SIR ISAAC NEWTON'S HOME

Dr. Charles Burney Also Lived There—House Has Many Scientific and Literary Associations.

London.—Within the confines of this parish of Westminster it would be impossible to find another house with such scientific and literary associations as those which cluster around St. Martin's street, Leicester square. Here lived the illustrious Sir Isaac Newton; here Dr. Charles Burney. The house has fallen upon evil days. They want to pull it down and scatter its fine memories of things past and great. The building next it, Orange Street Congregation church—originally Leicester Fields chapel, erected for the Huguenots in 1688—comes also under the ban. Indeed, as we write, its last service is being held, and henceforth, till better times, mayhap, chance or the church body will conduct its ministrations in an apartment on the ground floor of Newton's old dwelling (part of the freehold), once in all probability the philosopher's dining room.

Towards the close of 1687 Newton occupied a house in Jermyn street, where he remained 15 years. After a short stay in Chelsea he removed, in September, 1710, to the house in St. Martin's street, Leicester Fields. It stands on the east side as you enter from Leicester square, and at the corner of Long's court. Newton, who had been elected president of the Royal Society in 1703, and knighted by Queen Anne in 1705, was, at the date of his tenancy, at the zenith of his fame. He had, in the combination with Sir Christopher Wren, acquired a new home for the Royal society in Crane court, Fleet street. Doubtless, in discussing his own abode, he was full of the claims upon his time imposed by the weekly meetings of the society. He would not have far to go from Leicester fields to Crane court.

In St. Martin's street Newton lived in a very handsome style, and kept his carriage, will, as establishment of three male and three female servants. He built a small observatory on the roof of his house, a distinctive feature which long ago fell a prey to time and circumstance. He dispensed splendid hospitality, we are told, though without ostentation or vanity, and the most eminent foreigners joined the company. His niece, Miss Barton, presided at the philosopher's table, charming his circle with her wit and understanding. Sir Isaac lived at the house in St. Martin's street till 1725, when he went into quarters at Kensington, dying on March 20, 1727. In that year his name was erased from the books of his former parish.

CHRISTEN HORSE IN WINE

Granddaughter of Dan Patch in Ceremony—Event Takes Place in a Saloon.

New Orleans.—There is nothing unusual about christening a boat with wine, but when they name a horse that way it is something to write about. The christening took place in the bar of the Little Gem saloon. The horse was Miss Louise, a three-year-old, granddaughter of the incomparable Dan Patch. She is owned by W. J. Breithoff of South Broad street. Mr. Breithoff's two-year-old son stood on a table in the bar and poured wine over the little mare's head.

"I christen thee Miss Louise," he said. So that is her name.

Miss Louise has a weakness for the grape and she caught a little of the wine as it trickled down past the white star in her forehead. The mare is a daughter of Ed Patch, out of Secret Queen, and the granddaughter of the world's most famous trotter.

"Nearly four years ago," said Breithoff, I bought Charcoal Queen for $22. She was in a wornout condition. I had just $24 in my pocket when I bought her, and kept the one dollar so that I wouldn't be completely broke. I raised her colt on the grass of my own back yard."

First Recall Election Against Woman.

PERFUMES FOR THE BATH

Home-Made Requisites Not Costly, and as Good as Can Be Purchased.

A beauty seeker has some interesting prescriptions for beauty baths which must be commended on account of the simplicity of them.

One of these consists of chopping up into bits a cake of pure olive oil soap until it is almost as fine as powder. As a matter of fact, she grinds hers in a meat chopper, reserved for this purpose purpose. Then to every ounce of soap she adds tablespoonful of borax and a quart of bran. This mixture is poured into a bag made of cheesecloth after a few drops of oil of violets had been added. This bag she uses as a wash cloth and she declares "My bath is the most luxurious imaginable, leaving the skin as soft and white as a baby's."

Of course there are bath perfumes aplenty to be had ready made, and these come in various forms—lakes, powders and crystals—and in different scents, such as apple blossoms, violets or geraniums. Violet is a general favorite, and this, too, can be made by oneself. Mix together a half-pound of carbonate of soda, the grates of lemons, and a half-grain of ambin violet. This makes a comparatively small quantity, so after a trial, to assure oneself of its success, it may be desirable to double the amount of ingredients—Exchange.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY.

The Rev. Edmund Heslop of Wilson, Pa., suffered from Dropsy for a year. His limbs and feet were swollen and puffed. He had heart flutterings. Was dizzy and exhausted at the least exertion. Heads and feet were cold and he had such a dragging sensation across the loins that it was difficult to move. After taking 4 boxes of Dodds Kidney Pills the swelling disappeared and he felt himself again. He says he has been benefited and blessed by the use of Dodds Kidney Pills. Several months later he wrote: I have not changed my faith in your remedy since the above statement was authorized. Correspond with Rev. E. Heslop about this wonderful remedy.

Ice Cavern is Filling Up.

Hungary's world renowned national wonder, the ice cavern of Dobsina, is threatened with serious danger. An official of the meteorologic institute of Budapest established, after a lengthy observation, that ice is forming in the cavern so fast and in such a measure that it will completely fill the cavern in one or two decades. In all probability the cavern will not be approachable in a few years. The temperature is steadily one degree below the freezing point in the cavern, causing the ever increasing precipitation and the water that trickles in turns to ice immediately, thickening the walls and arches.

RED, ROUGH HANDS MADE SOFT AND WHITE

For red, rough, chapped and bleeding hands, dry, fissured, itching, burning palms, and painful finger-ends, with sleep-less nights, a one-night Cuticura treatment works wonders. Directions: Soak the hands, on retiring, in hot water and Cuticura Soap. Dry, anoint with Cuticura Ointment, and wear soft bandages or old, loose gloves during the night. These pure, sweet and gentle emollients preserve the hands, prevent redness, roughness and chapping, and impart in a night's night that velvety softness and whiteness so much desired by women. For these whose occupations tend to injure the hands, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are wonderful.

He'd Called Seventeen.

Jim was a new porter in the hotel, and he was putting in his first night at his new and responsible position. It was five in the morning, and so Jim had done all he was told, and was getting on splendidly.

"Call 15 and 4," commanded the night clerk as he looked over his call sheet. Jim obeyed. After he had been gone for a considerable time the clerk went up to see if he had called the rooms designated.

"Well," sighed the new porter, whom he found on the third door, "I've got seventeen of 'em so far, but I haven't started on the other four yet."—National Food Magazine.

Completion of the "Water Bridge" at Panama

The Camera Reports an Important Event in Canal Construction for Our Readers

EXPLOSION THAT DESTROYED GAMBOA DIKE

Dynamiting Gamboa Dyke on Oct. 10 Completed the Water Connection Between the Oceans

FIRST BOAT THROUGH THE OPENING IN GAMBOA DIKE

The first boat to enter Culebra Cut from Gatun Lake after the Gamboa Dike was blown up was a native canoe manned by two Americans, who paddled their light craft through the new channel almost immediately after the explosion.

When President Wilson pressed a button in the White House 1,317 great charges of dynamite were exploded in the Panama Canal Zone and the Gamboa Dike was blown to pieces. The muffled roar of the explosion was echoed by the cheers of thousands of spectators and instantly the cables flashed to all parts of the world the news that the climax in the building of the wonderful canal had been reached and passed. No ceremonies attended the event, but the heart of every American host hath skin pride in the achievement of his countrymen.

"The explosion was a "clean" one, lifting out of the dike a section sixty feet wide. Through this gap rushed the waters of Gatun lake, which at the time were six feet above the level of the water which had been let into the cut through pipes to act as a cushion for the explosion.

RUSH OF WATERS INTO CULEBRA CUT

Like a mountain torrent the waters of Gatun Lake poured into Culebra Cut through the sixty-foot gap in Gamboa Dike made by the explosion of 1,000 pounds of dynamite. At Gold Hill the flood was partially dammed by the Cucaracha slide and within an hour and a half the cut was filled to lake level.

WATER POURING THROUGH GAMBOA DIKE

Shrieking whistles and cheering crowds greeted the first rush of water through the huge rent in the Gamboa Dike when that last obstruction in the Panama Canal was blown up with dynamite. Well in front of the throng of spectators stood Colonel Goethals, silent, but visibly gratified at the moment when marked the virtual completion of his mighty task.

MRS. MANGES ESCAPES OPERATION

How She Was Saved From Surgeon's Knife by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mogadore, Ohio.—"The first two years I was married I suffered so much from female trouble and bearing down pains that I could not stand on my feet long enough to do my work. The doctor said I would have to undergo an operation, but my husband wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound first. I took three bottles and it made me well and strong. I avoided a dreaded operation. I now have two fine healthy children and I daily thank Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my health." — Mrs. Lena Smith, 143 S. Hill St., Mogadore, Ohio.

Why will women take chances with an operation, even though it is only half-hearted extirpation, missing three-fourths of the job, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

Nearly 40 years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of hundreds of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

GOVERNOR FRIEND PREACHES TO "AWAKEN AND AROUSE LOVE FOR PURITY."

In his proclamation setting aside Nov. 9th, as "Purity Sunday," Gov. Fred M. Warner says:

"On Purity Sunday, let all of the clergymen of all the churches appeal to all of the people in behalf of that purity which Christ taught, emphasize the positive side of personal righteousness. Much that is printed in books and proclaimed from the platform to sex problems is true, yet positively pernicious. Knowledge in itself does not always make for virtue—it may make for vicious conduct. Therefore, awaken and arouse a love for purity. It is the contempt of righteousness that the youth of our land must have if they are to grow into the fullness of manhood and womanhood."

Boyne City Journal: "Boyne City assumes a greater industrial air with the building of a large cribb work for the D. C. G. & A. railroad company, work upon which was commenced this week. The pen is located at the cap of Mill Nc. 1 on Lake street and though this marks the erection of the first cribb work in this city it is said that others will be built in the near future. The first landing from the new pen will consist of three cribbs and will be used by Mr. Arnold of the Brigham farms, northeast of this city, and projects from time are made to ship several more carloads from this same farm and others in the vicinity. More attention is being given daily to the soil and stock raising about here and those interested in such an industry feel much encouraged over it."

The Deer Hunters

The following party of deer hunters will leave for the north this week:

Richard Lewis, Chas. Dow, Co Hamilton, George Stafford, Hube Ackert, J. H. Mulford, Bert Olney, Thos. Shepard and Jasper Ward.

Fred Coon, Willard Olney, Ernest Kibbe and Henry Nowland are also going north.

D. F. Meech went accompanied by E. R. Harris and Mr. Van Setver of Elsworth, and Geo. Sanford, of Bellaire.

A. L. Fitch and L. E. Benton have also "hit the trail."

Directors of the Western Michigan Development bureau, meeting at traverse City last night, decided to charge a potato show in Grand Rapids on Nov. 18, when the potato growers of the state will hold their annual meeting. Plans were laid for a home missionary campaign in the 20 counties served by the bureau in addition to making fruit and crop exhibits in nearby states. The home campaign will consist of meetings held in schoolhouses and in Granges and Gleaner halls. No large apple display will be made this year. The bureau will have about $15,000 to use for development work in 1914.

The village of Leland, Leelanau county, is all stirred up over the liquor question. For years it has been notorious that the boozeries of that county have had no regard for law, and the sinners have run in a high-handed and defiant manner. At last, with the changing public sentiment, the good citizens of that county have taken heart and a few months ago appointed a committee to investigate and report. Now the saloonists of Leeland are on their knees petitioning for mercy and leniency and promising to be good. Boyne City Times: "After there had been a few knocks about the town that Commissioner Lorch is build ing here in this city there was actually some question as to what the board of supervisors would do concerning the same. However, Mr. Lorch and his work were satisfactory and he is ordered to continue his work and the board of supervisors is a great pleasure to the great majority of the people residing in this section of the county."

Kalkaska Leader: "The petition asking for a resubmission of the local option question at the coming spring election was turned down by the board of supervisors, the signatures to again from several towns, they lacking the necessary statutory to the genuineness of signatures. This turns the question completely short of the number of voters necessary to under the law. This apparently leaves the county dry for another year at least unless another attempt can be made to break the prevailing drought, with little encouragement for the "wets" that the saloons would be voted back even were an election held."

Gaylord Advance: An amusing and interesting spectacle was seen on our streets Sunday in the shape of a covered wagon drawn by four Mexican burrows, with a couple of mongrel dogs tagging behind. The air of the conveyance with its unique motive power, at once suggester the west, and those who had conversation with the occupants of the vehicle gleaned the information that the two family hailed from El Paso, Texas, and were on their way to Alpha, on the east shore of Mullet Lake, Cheboygan county.

KANSAS HAS REASONS FOR REMAINING DRY

Asked why Kansas stays "dry," the following reasons are given in the following statistics from a pigeon hole, so to speak, and then in answer that question. "More than one-half of the county jails are empty. Sixty-five of the 105 counties of the state have no inmates in the state penal institutions. Many counties have not had a jury trial case in two years. Fifty-four counties have no insane. Fifty-four counties have no paupers. Twenty-nine counties have no a single inmate on their poor farms. Kansas is the richest state in the union. Its average wealth per capita is $1,700. Less than ten of 784 saloons were in the business. Bigger advertisements.

RAILROAD COMEDY

Methods of Operation In 1852 Seem Laughable Today.

QUAINT RIGHT OF WAY RULES.

On the Western and Atlantic When Trains Met Between Stations and a Dispute Arose the Conductors Decided Which Train Had to Back Down.

A most interesting exhibit of the early days of railroading in the country has been found by the Railroad Age Gazette. It is a schedule for passenger trains and rules for the conduct of engineemen and conductors on the Western and Atlantic, which was at the time and still is owned by the state of Georgia. The table is dated March 1, 1852, and was issued by William M. Wadley, superintendent, father of George D. Wadley, the letter for many years manager of the Central Railroad of Georgia.

The schedule shows a picture of an engine and cars at the top. Under it the numbers and names of the stations, the hours of arrival, the times for departure and the time taken to pass between stations as well as remarks about passing sidetracks. Freights are carefully tabulated.

In the rules for enginemen and conductors are many which seem quaint in this age of consummate railroading. Of course the road had only one track, and rule 1 for passenger conductors shows that there must have been some dispute when trains met as to which train had the right to keep on its way uninterrupted. This rule says:

"As a general rule, when trains meet between stations the train nearest the turnout will run back. Any dispute as to what train is to retire is to be determined at once by the conductors without interference on the part of the engineemen. This rule is required to be varied in favor of the heaviest loaded engine or worst grades if they meet near the center."

Rule 7 gives the conductor directions for reporting on the number of passengers who are carrying out the behest of ministers of the gospel who were to be charged half price when on business connected with their calling. The same rule indicated that the governor of the state and the superintendent of the road were the only individuals who had a right to give passes.

The conductor was ordered to inspect the running gear of his train at every station and to write down on a specified letter to leave Atlanta or Chattanooga (the terminals) at which out first sending to the postoffice after. H. Rule 17 says that a train stopping at any station at night must invariably be on the forward end so as to leave the main track clear, and that strict watch must be kept by all crews for a train stopped at night.

In the regulations for passenger engineemen there is one rather which seem almost humorous in this period of railroad management. For instance, the engineman was instructed that if the train killed any stock and frightened the cow or cows in such a position as to endanger the safety of the next train he was to see that the next train was warned that the track was cleared.

Passenger trains were not to exceed the speed of their schedule except when behind time, which case the speed might be increased three miles an hour generally. In passing turnouts the engineman was ordered to "ease the running train the speed had to be diminished to six miles an hour."

Rule 6 might be put in force today with good effect and to the delight of a much jolted traveling public. It reads:

"In connecting and in starting with his train the engineman will be expeedingly careful in the management of the throttle so that the cars may not be injured or the passengers shaken by the sudden violence of the start."

This paragraph is found at the end of the regulations for enginemen:

"The engineman will observe the rules, for running off at turnouts, for killing of stock by daylight and for all other irregularities the general superintendent will impose such fines as he deems just and called for by the nature of the offense."

The freight trains took two days to make the 137 miles between Atlanta and Chattanooga. The stops at the stations varied from ten to sixty minutes. One of the rules for freight conductors about keeping a certain distance from the trains ahead of him and behind him shows that there must have been a delightful uncertainty about the provisions for changing meeting points in case trains were delayed. It is evident that there was no telegraph communication along the line, although this was eight years after Morse had demonstrated that he could send messages over the wire from Washington to Baltimore. Several months before Charles Minot also had made use of the telegraph in ordering the operation of trains on the line.

Now, What Did He Give Her?

A parsonage old gentleman, pulling scorning out of his soup that should not have been included among the other ingredients, thus addressed his cook: "Josephine, I am much obliged for your thoughtfulness, but next time kindly give it to me in a locket."—London Tit Bits.

Half the Battle.

"If I were you" said the old bachelor to the benedict, "I'd either rule or know why."

"Well," was the reply, "as I already know why, I suppose that's half the battle."—Atlanta Constitution.

PURITY OF WATER SUPPLIES

For the Children's Safety Sanitary Engineer Advocates More Care In Testing for Bacilli.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 12.—Twelve years ago the appearance in no guarantee of water's purity and that people should rid themselves of the fallacy, Edward R. Rich, sanitary engineer of the state board of health, says that the rural schools and small cities and villages could easily should secure positive evidence of the purity of their supply of water by actual tests made with systematic regularity.

"One of the most important points to be looked after in the sanitation in schools is the pure water supply, says Mr. Rich. This is the only article of food furnished to the pupils by the educational institution and upon the matter will depend the danger to its users of infection by intestinal diseases, children, one which may be mentioned typhoid fever.

"Responsibility for a pure water supply rests heavily upon those in charge of rural schools and upon the boards of education in small towns having no public water supply delivered in pipes. In the case of large cities some municipal agency should be charged with the duty of maintaining the purity of the city water and the school board may generally rely on this for proper results. But in instances where the school has its own supply its safety into other depends upon the more or less intelligent care of members of the board and act upon positive evidence furnished by actual test of the particular water.

"It is difficult to eradicate from the minds of the laymen the idea that if a drinking water looks good, tastes good and smells good it must of necessity be good. How fortunate would humanity be if the germs of disease which, fast drinking water were large enough to be readily seen and shun, but unfortunately they are invisible to the naked eye and turbidity and color are no indications whatever of their presence. In fact it has often happened in the laboratory that two samples, one dirty and perhaps illsmelling and the other clear and sparkling, the first has proved by far the safer of the two."

WIDOW OF LOST CAPTAIN

Will See that Chicago Children Get Their Trees Memorial to Her Husband.

Many of the Christmas trees which will make Chicago children happy the coming year will be brought to that city about the middle of November from the woods of Northern Michigan through the efforts of a widow and her twin daughters. The husband and father of the family lost his life last winter when the Christmas tree ship Rouse Simmons, of which he was captain, went to the bottom of Lake Michigan during a storm.

Mrs. Herman Schoenneck, of Chicago, now is in the Michigan woods directing a force of men in the work of cutting the trees. Her twin daughters, Elsie and May, are looking over the Chicago shipping lists for a vessel in which to bring the trees to market.

"We are determined to keep up the work Father began and carried on for twenty years," said Elsie.

"Mother made several trips with father and knows just what to do in the woods, but it is not in shape alone that activities lay. Since father went down with the ship Rouse Simmons she has felt she had a work to carry on as a memorial and is determined that no Christmas ship shall bear his name.

Roosevelt in South America

Col. Roosevelt is being received in the South American republics with great honors by governmental and scientific society leaders. His progress is one continual ovation.

However we may judge Roosevelt's political acts or his personal sincerity, good Americans can not fail to appreciate a feeling of pride in seeing a representative American so honored abroad.

Col. Roosevelt is a distinguished American, who for seven years presided over the affairs of the greatest republic on earth. As president he achieved distinction among the rulers of the world. Unquestionably he may be classed with the presidents who have achieved greatness in its truest sense. Hence he is worthy of the friends with which our distant neighbors are crowding him. Americans feel that the Nation is being honored.

But mingled with this feeling of pride is a pang of regret that so great a man and so able a statesman should have prostituted his wonderful power, as a private citizen, to an unworthy ambition.

Charlevoix Boy's Engagement

A recent number of the Grand Rapids Herald contains the portrait of a very pretty young lady, Miss Ruth Caldwell Van Winkle, and announces her engagement to Mr. Lowell Julius Smith, and that the wedding will occur December first. The young chap is a Charlevoix boy and a graduate of the Charlevoix high school, Class of '06. The bride-to-mate of the Grand Rapids high school, Class of '11.

The young man is holding down a good job with J. & E. Tisch, the well known dealer in automobile accessories.

A Chapel on a Bridge.

At St. Ives, the little village of Huntingdonshire town in which Oliver Cromwell lived for several years, there is a chapel on the bridge spanning the river Ouse, and on this bridge is a quaint building which at one time did duty as a chapel. The structure has been in existence for something like 500 years and was, according to local historians, originally designed as a memorial chapel. The chapel is 30 feet long and 12 feet wide. The building which is supported by six arches, is considerably below the level of the water in the river.—London Tit-Bits.

Strength of Eggshells.

Most people are aware of the power of eggshells to resist external pressure on the ends, but not many would credit it the results of tests recently made which appear to be genuine. Thick ordinary hens eggs were submitted to pressure applied externally all over the surface of the shell, and the breaking pressures varied between 60 and 67 pounds per square inch. With the pressure applied internally to twelve eggs these gave way at pressures varying between thirty-two and sixty-five pounds per square inch. The pressure required to crush the eggs varied between forty and seventy-five pounds. The average thickness of the shells was thirteen-thousandths of an inch.

He Got His Tip.

An old fisherman used to bring him a splendid salmon the first of every month, and he always gave the fisher man a tip. One morning he was very busy, and when the old man brought the fish he thanked him hurriedly and, forgetting his tip, turned over the deck again. The old man hesitated a moment, then coughed to attract his attention. "Sir, would you be so kind as to put it in writing that we didn't give me no tip this time, or my wife 'll think I've spent and spent it on rum."

Storm of Big Proportions

The severest northwest gale of the year starting in Saturday evening and continued with varying force until Monday morning, accompanied by snow which piled up in drifts knee deep in places. During Sunday night the registered velocity was 50 miles per hour, diminishing Monday morning to 30, and continuing at that velocity during the day.

A big chunk of the leeward corner of the south pier was washed away, the sea being tremendous.

A large section of the metal roof of Hooker's garage was torn up. But the worst wreck was at the cottage of Miss Emma Bennett, on Michigan avenue, Sunday night. She was alone in the house when everything seemed to be going to smash. In the morning she discovered that the roof of the upper back veranda, 40 feet long, had been blown off and broken through into the house and knocking down the chimney flush with the roof. The rooms on that floor were open to the lake and bricks were scattered on the floor. The next day the veranda roof was blown back over its proper place but badly wrecked. It is unnecessary to state that Miss Bennett was badly frightened during the turmoil.

The steamer Illinois, during the gale, was sheltered at South Manitou, bound south; the Missouri, bound north, taking refuge at Ludington.

Telegraph and telephone service throughout a large section of the north was hasty demoralized.

Why Should It Be So

The Petoskey News is congratulating itself on the excellent service the D. M. P. M. north bound morning train and is frank enough to state that it will help out their Charlevoix patronage.

"And that causes us to rise and remark that we know of no reason why any loyally patriotic citizen of Charlevoix should go to Petoskey to trade. Some one remarks, 'We can get our goods cheaper.' We know better.

Charlevoix merchants pay taxes that go to improve streets maintain the schools and public utilities. They support the churches and contribute to every demand for the general public good.

How much does Petoskey chip in to help you out in these matters?

Charlevoix merchants deserve your trade, and for every logical reason, which are many, they should have it.

Change of Priests at St. James

Rev. James Malone, who has so very accentably officiated as priest of Holy Cross, Beaver Island, for several years, has been promoted to Big Rapids parish, and will leave for there this week. This will be very much regretted by the Beaver Island people, as the good Father has endeared himself to his parishioners.

His successor is Rev. Father Jewell, who comes from Big Rapids parish. Father Jewell is a convert from the Protestant Episcopal faith, having been ordained to the Catholic priesthood about two years ago. He was formerly rector of the Petoskey Episcopal church. He is a linguist, a musician of exceptional attainments, and will doubtless do good work.

The Beaver will take a resident physician to the Island. A friend of Father Jewell, Dr. Branch, goes to the Island with him. Dr. Branch is a Boy Scout, and will get your boy interested in Boy Scouting.

Stands a Rest.

An Indianapolis woman had a collection of boxes containing her husband's ashes. Since her husband died his widow has found great comfort in the urn and remained quite content with it. Recently she became more, as she expressed it, favorable, moment and presented to a second man. Thus, she said, there is a good, steady man and might to have a home of your own." Well, he said, he would be glad to do so. "Why don't you get a office?" he added, as she rattled the casket of ill-fated romantic. "Well, I did ask," he replied in an apologetic tone, "and she said I ought to be satisfied with an urn. I've got to have a rest."—Indianapolis News.

Bells of Aberdovey.

Aberdovey has been made famous by the "Bells of Aberdovey" and the sentiments one long poet to it to explain how that song ever came to be written. Aberdovey has no bells worth mentioning and still forty years ago it had not even a church. Some suggest that the old song was a metaphorical allusion to maidens' voices floating across the water. Another has invented a saint named Mabyn himself was carried in a boat bell in his hand and was wont to walk across the estuary at low tide. One day he was overwhelmed by a rush of water and drowned, but the bell still sounds over the sands at certain hours and seasons.—London Chronicle.

A Consumptive Cough

A cough that lasts for two months is usually a sign of the danger signals which warns of consumption. Dr. King's New Discovery stops the cough, loosens the congestion, heals and lets you sleep peacefully. The first dose checks the symptoms and gives prompt relief. W. A. F. Mertz, of Glen Ellyn, Iowa, writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery cured a stubborn cough after six weeks medicating failed to help." Try it, it will do the same for you. Best medicine for coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. Money back if it fails. Prices 50c. and $1.00. Recommended by F. G. Hines & Co.

GREAT FISHING

Unprecedented Catches Glut the Warehouses—Fish by the Ton Greatest Harvest Of Recent Years.

If you had visited the Booth Fisheries Co. warehouse in this city about ten days the past week you would have found manager Olof Nordrum with overalls on shoveling crushed ice, and the largest force of men at work that ever congregated in the same place.

The cause of all this was the enormous catches coming in from local fishermen and St. James. The oldest inhabitant can scarcely remember when, during a like period of time, so many fish were caught in the waters tributary to this port. The "lifts" have been phenomenal. The weights have gone down in the books by tons. The steamer Beaver has had hard work to keep the St. James docks clear, coming over loaded every trip. On Friday she brought seventeen tons. In one lift the tug Margaret McCann took into the harbor seven tons, the greatest lift she ever made. There have been several lifts of from two to three by the tugs, and the gasoline boats have come in with about all they could comfortably carry. The catch is chiefly lake trout, with a small proportion of whitefish and a few perch.

Fishermen attribute the large catch to the change in the close season period heretofore for years the first week in November having been inside of the close season; but this theory is disputed by the fact that spawn gathering has been prosecuted and the return of the fishermen with such catches on record. One thing is certain, it proves the benefit of artificial propagation.

The Booth receipts of fish since the first of the month, when the open season began are sixty five tons; the Beutel Estate have handled almost seventeen tons, and the Lake Superior Fish Co., which operates here with the tug Arthur, has about seven tons to its credit, making a total of eighty-nine tons that have come through the bridge during the period given.

Eighty-five percent of these fish have gone into the freezers, the Booth Co. having three carloads of frozen stock now stored. Every boat and team takes out big consignment to Chicago.

It is the greatest fish business ever done at this port for a like period.

Hark, From the Tomb a Browsful Sound.

The last issue of the Detroit Tribune Sunday Magazine has a page devoted to the "life and work" of "Judge" Willis Brown, of local historic renown, and, accompanying the page, is a halftone reproduction of the benevolent countenance of the "Judge." The page reads like ancient history brought down to date. Following a very laudatory example that stands like a Judge himself, occasion the following paragraph:

"It is not a matter of geographical viewpoint, then, this crying need of the Republic. Suppose we try for a less insular viewpoint from a man who has made a life study of the problem. If you ask Judge Willis Brown, formerly Judge of the Children's Court of Salt Lake City, now Judge of the Parental Court of Gary, Indiana, and now lord of Boys City, near Chicago, he will tell you, will get your answer with his earnestness and enthusiasm and resolve."

Considering the fact that Boy City went glimmering three years ago this piece of information is refreshing. We are a little rusty on details of this great philanthropic enterprise, in fact we have a financial interest in it that is not an unpleasant memory. The soul of the Judge was absorbed in the work, the "absorption" extending to miles beyond the limits of Boy City. Here is another extract from the magazine:

"That is what Judge Brown is doing with his boys at Boy City. A wonderful place, the boys it is, themselves, where the boys operate their own city government, their newspaper, their store, their bank, handle their own money.—A city in miniature. Recently the townsite of Walhalla, Michigan, has been accorded, and Boys City will soon go on the maps and postal guides."

Yes, all those beautiful things are financially written on the tablets of our memory; but, bringing cold facts down to date, we find, in visiting the territory so filled by the footsteps of this wonderful man, that where was once the bank, the printing office, the restaurant, the store, are the sunken cellar stages of Dick Hammet, Giles Warner, Lisle Sumner, Doc Swinton and other distinguished citizens. Where once was heard the dulcet tones of Brown's eloquence there reigns now not silent summer repose. The Judge continues:

"Teach morals. Morals, not intellect, form the basis of citizenship. Our schools strive for intellect as the all important thing, perhaps, health and a modicum of morals. Reverse the order, have a boy entirely on his own resources, demanding that he play the game square.

Yes, "play the game square." It is a lofty thing to teach the boys, because, when they get to be the leaders and teachers themselves they will play the game square.

At the council meeting Monday night it was ordered that a regulation catch basin be installed at the intersection of Dixon avenue and Nettleton streets.

INCOME TAX PLAN TOLD BY TREASURY

Details of New Law Explained in Statement.

TELLS WHO ARE EXEMPTED

Method of Collection at Source Explained for Those Who Are Liable —Deductions to Be Made by Debtors.

Washington, Oct. 27—On next Saturday the treasury department will begin the collection of the income tax at their source. Treasury officials made public its regulations governing the collection.

The tax applies to every citizen, whether residing at home or abroad, and to every alien resident in the United States.

Divisions Made in Rulings.

The regulations cover the following heads:

When the tax shall be withheld by the debtor.

When the tax shall be withheld to the still collecting agency.

Payment of registered interest by debtors.

Declaration of final agencies.

Coupons payable upon presentation.

Coupons whose interest coupons are not taxed at the source.

Licenses required for collection of income from foreign countries.

By whom the tax is withheld.

Penalties for false statements or misrepresentations.

Tax to Be Deducted at Source

Under the income tax law, enacted October 3, 1913, a tax of one per cent, designated in the law as the "normal tax" is to be deducted at the source, beginning November 1, 1913, from all income accruing and payable from that date.

(1) Every citizen of the United States, wherever resident or income earned, and ——

(2) Every person residing in the United States, though not a citizen thereof, which may be derived from interest on bonds and notes, or other deeds of trust, or other similar obligations, including coupons, trust agreements, and receiver's certificates of corporations, joint stock companies, associations and insurance companies although such interest does not amount to $3000, excluding only the interest upon the obligations of the United States or its possessions, or a state or any political subdivision thereof.

The term "debtor" is hereinbefore used shall be construed to cover all persons, firms and joint stock companies associations and insurance companies.

Tax Withheld by Debtor.

For the purpose of collecting this tax all coupons and registered interest originating or payable in the United States to a person within the debtor (or its paying agent in the United States), which shall deduct tax when such is to be withheld, and no other bank, trust company, banking firm or individual taking coupons for collection, or otherwise, shall attach to the interest so provided that all such coupons, or orders for registered interest, are accompanied by certificates of ownership signed by the owners of the bonds from which the coupons were detached.

These certificates shall be in form such as the treasury department shall prescribe and a separate certificate shall be made out by each owner of bonds for the coupons of interest coming to him from state issue of bonds or obligations of such debtor.

Withheld by Collecting Agency.

If, however, the coupons are not accompanied by certificates of ownership heretofore, the first bank, trust company, banking house, or individual or collecting agency receiving the coupons for collection, or otherwise, shall deduct and withhold the tax and shall attach to such coupons the own certificate of ownership showing the name and address of the owner of or the person presenting such coupons. If the owner is not known, with a description of the coupons, also setting forth the fact that the person presenting the tax upon them; whereupon the debtor shall not again withhold the tax on said coupons, but in lieu thereof shall deliver to the person presenting the certificate of such bank, trust company, etc., which is withholding such tax money.

Designating Paying Agent.

The debtor may appoint paying or fiscal agents for any purpose in matters pertaining to the collection of the tax, upon filing with the collector of internal revenue for its district a proper notice of the appointment of such agent or agents.

If the owners of the bonds are individuals who are citizens or residents of the United States, the certificates shall accompany the coupons, or with respect to the interest on registered bonds shall be filed with payer of said interest, and such certificate shall describe the bonds and show the amount of coupons attached, or the amount of interest due such owners on registered bonds and the full name and address of the owners and shall also state whether they claim, or do not then claim, exemption from taxation at the source provided for by paragraph C of section 2 of the federal income tax law ($3,000 and, under certain conditions $4,000) on so the income represented by such coupons or interest.

Not Taxed at Source.

If the owners of the bonds are corporations, joint stock companies, associations or insurance companies organized in the United States, no number has created or organized, or associations, associations, fraternities, etc., which are either taxable or exempt from taxation as provided in paragraph G, subdivision A, of the act, the debtor is not required to withhold or deduct the tax upon income derived from interest on such bonds, provided coupons or orders for interest from such bonds shall be accompanied by a certificate of the owners thereof, certifying to such ownership, which certificates shall be filed with the debtor when such coupons or interest orders are presented for payment.

Disposition of Certificates.

The debtor, or paying agents shall retain all certificates with the date of receipt and addresses of those for whom the tax has been withheld, showing amounts as required by law to the collector of internal revenue for their district, or before the 20th day of the month succeeding that in which said certificates were received by them.

The tax shall not be withheld on coupons, or registered interest, issued to and payable before March 1, 1913, although presented for payment at a later date.

All persons, firms or corporations undertaking for accumulation of profit (this includes building other by loans issued in foreign countries) or interest, or coupons, checks or bills of exchange for or in payment of interest, bonds issued in foreign countries, and upon foreign mortgages, or like obligations, and for any dividends on stock or interest upon obligations or insurance companies engaged in business in foreign countries, are required by law to obtain a license from the commissioner of internal revenue and to also bond in such amount and under such conditions as the commissioner of internal revenue may prescribe.

The licensed person, firm or corporation first receiving any such foreign income for collection or payment, shall withhold therefrom the normal tax of one per cent, and will be held responsible therefor.

The provisions for collection of the tax on foreign income set forth in this section of the regulations includes the income from all foreign bonds, even though the coupons may be, at the option of the holder, payable in the United States or elsewhere.

Failure to obtain license or to comply with regulations is punishable by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both. In the discretion of the court. Such license shall continue in force until revoked.

Application for such licenses should be made to the collectors of internal revenue.

False Statement Penalty.

If any person, for the purpose of obtaining any allowance or reduction by virtue of a claim for exemption, makes or causes to be made, either knowingly, makes a false statement or false or fraudulent representation he is liable under the act to severe penalties.

This tax will not be deducted from the income which may be derived from interest on bonds, mortgages, equipment trusts, receiver's certificates, or other similar obligations of which the bona fide owners are citizens or foreign countries residing in foreign countries, provided that when such interest coupons or in case of wholly registered bonds the orders for the payment of such interest shall be accompanied by duly certified certificates to the case of certificate and ownership of such owners of bonds and other securities.

Unless such proof of foreign residence is duly furnished the normal tax of one per cent will be deducted.

On or before February 1, 1914, certificates of ownership of any of the bonds from which were detached coupons, may be delivered to the debtor, and said debtor may thereupon return any sum withheld to which the owner of such bonds may be entitled under the law and regulations, upon the facts disclosed by such owner in matter stating. Any company certificates relating to bonds for which certificates of ownership shall not have been delivered to the debtor shall on or before March 1, 1914, be delivered to the collector of internal revenue.

W. H. OTTOMON
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.
Approved, October 25, 1913.
W. G. McADOO,
Secretary of the Treasury.

SEVEN FIREMEN SLAIN

MISSING IN BIG BLAZE AT MILWAUKEE.

Men Were Killed Under Falling Wall When Blast Wrecks Goodyear Company's Building.

Milwaukee, Oct. 28.—Seven firemen were killed, four others are missing and twenty-four were injured as the result of a $300,000 fire which broke in the four-story building of the Goodyear Rubber company in the center of the business district Sunday night. The men were killed under a falling wall when an explosion wrecked the building and smashed glass in surrounding residences within a radius of two blocks. A priest struggled through the debris and gave the buried men absolution.

Lieut. Charles Newton of the insurance patrol was extricated under a pile of bricks and timber for more than two hours, but was rescued. It was found he had only suffered minor injuries, though he was with the men when the wall fell. A timber had fallen in such a position that it prevented him from the remainder of the debris.

Seven bodies and twenty-four injured men were taken from the ruins.

ENGLAND U. S. ALLY

DECLARED TO HAVE PROFFERED AID TO UPHOLD WILSON'S POLICY IN MEXICO.

DIAZ CUTS HIS LAST TIE

Resigns as Brigadier General of Republic's Army and Refuses to Visit Capital as Guest of Huerta. Who Remains Dictator.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Statements from the British foreign office Monday that Great Britain will do nothing in the Mexican situation, unless it should be called on to act in the southern republic, without consultation with the United States, and an appeal from the French minister in Mexico for American protection for French citizens there, added strength to the intimation that the American government does a wait to the policy in the future.

City of Mexico, Oct. 28.—The Mexican elections held on Sunday have been an absolute farce. Hardly any votes have been cast and in some precincts there was not a single vote cast. General Huerta will remain in the presidential chair "ad interim."

No official announcement was made but it was estimated, judging from the results in the capital, where it was reported the vote would be up to the average, that less than 10,000 of the 40,000 voters in the city, cast their ballots.

MILITANT IS REBUKED

INDIANA WOMEN'S LEAGUE CANCELS LECTURE DATE.

Organization Refuses to Permit Erilah Suffragette to Take Up Cause.

Indianapolis, Oct. 29.—The lecture planned by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the noted British suffragist leader, will not be given in Indianapolis under the auspices of the Woman's Franchise League of Indiana, it was planned by that organization. The lecture has been revoked by the Indiana suffragists and is regarded as a direct slap at the method employed by Mrs. Pankhurst.

In speaking of the cancelling of the visit of Mrs. Pankhurst, Mrs. G. M. Henderson, secretary of the league, said:

"When we first made arrangements for Mrs. Pankhurst to come here it was for a stated sum of money. Shortly after wards stipulated that she be allowed to take up a collection. This we will not permit her to do."

Suffragists others declare that Mrs. Pankhurst depends on her adoptions to arouse people to such an extent that when she makes an appeal for money she collects far more than the amount she asks for giving her talk. They say that on one occasion Mrs. Pankhurst talked before a London audience and that the audience contributed reached more than $100,000. Women took off their jewelry and put it in the basket after they had given all their money.

The suffragists of Indiana are not in favor of giving such a wholesale contribution to the cause of the English suffragist.

RAILROAD MEN ASK RAISE

Engineers and Firemen of the West Demand an increase of $50,000,000.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—An increase of $50,000,000 in wages a year has been asked from ninety western railways by the brotherhoods representing 400,000 men.

In addition engineers and firemen ask that the railroads cease to recognize the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen as separate organizations, and form a single one for the union. Each of the Brotherhoods named through their chiefs, W. S. Carter for the engineers and W. G. Carter for the firemen, have given notice to quit their respective jobs if the present contracts November 19.

HITS AT FINANCIERS

PRESIDENT WILSON ARRAIGNS MONEY PRESSURE PUT ON U. S. POLICY IN MEXICO.

SAYS "MORALITY" IS OUR AIM

Nation's Chief Executive Asserts in Speech at Mobile, Ala., That Rights of Foreign Interests in This Hemisphere Must Cease.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 29.—President Wilson in a speech announced to the world on Monday that the governing motive of the U. S. in its relationship with countries of this hemisphere would be "morality, and not expediency."

"I want to take this occasion to say that the United States will never again seek another foot of territory on this continent by conquest, he declared. in a stirring address on Latin-American relations before the Southern Commercial congress.

Though Mr. Wilson did not mention Mexico as he outlined his speech a description of the degrading influence which Mexico encountered in the past, the internal affairs of some of the Latin-American countries.

With the Mexican situation uppermost in the president's mind at this time, his address was interpreted as an arrangement of those financial influences which it has been charged have secured in some cases recognition for the Huerta government.

"Come to Mexico I want to speak to our present and prospective relations with our neighbors to the south, the Latin-American states," said President Wilson in opening his address.

"The opening of the isthmus of Panama has put us on the world's highway, he said, "and the Latin-American states are now on one of the main lines will now be on the main line.

"You hear of concessions to foreign capital in Latin America," continued the president. "I do not understand that we granted to the United States, that when capital comes it comes as a loan, but is not privileged. The Latin-American states have had another lesson. I am speaking with them many other people in the world.

"We have said the United States is trying to deal with them in terms of equality and honor and that business department is now trying to deal with them in a new spirit. The development of Mexico is not enough the world was his dearest aim.

"Material wealth is a synonym for individual liberty, he declared. "I do not think that the questions of the day are concerned with material interests. We are more confident nowadays because it is convenient to do so."

KATHERINE ELKINS WEDDED

Late Senator's Daughter Married to "Billy" Hitt—Bridegroom Engaged to Duke of Abruzzi.

Elkins, W. Va., Oct. 29.—Miss Katherine Elkins was married on Monday morning at Washington, who had wooed her steadily and cheerfully for years, and who, "never lost his grip even when the king of Italy announced that she was to marry his cousin, the duke of Abruzzi." Miss Elkins, her royal business and possess the toy kingdom of Albania for a gift. Miss Elkins and other purpose that might suit her fancy.

"Billy" Hitt has worn a fixed smile during all these seven years, being sure that event the lovely Miss Kate Elkins did marry the duke—which she seemed about to do—she would be happy. And what "Billy" Hitt mostly wanted was that she should be happy. He had the friend-feel feeling for his royal rival.

Monday morning Miss Elkins and "Billy" Hitt called up their favorite friends and invited them to a breakfast and invited them all to "be sure and come for business."

And when the mystified guests were all assembled, even the mother of the bride, who was in charge of the breakfast, Mr. Herbert H. Herron, pastor of the Presbyterian church, rose up and in one of the music room and performed the ceremony with dispatch.

"I will," said "Billy" Hitt, and added in an undertone, "Of course I will, you wooden-head." And he looked at his watch. There were twenty-two minutes for luncheon, time for the waiting automobile, a whirl in the railroad station, and Mr. and Mrs. "Billy" Hitt stepped into their private car, the Graceland, and started for the east.

Miss Elkins' father died and left her a fortune, and one responsibility. Her fortune is in addition to a great money fortune.

JUST ADDING THE SEASONING

Why Bennie Reasoned He Had Just Come in Time to Save the Baby Brother.

Five-year-old Bennie, who, since the arrival of his baby brother three days ago, had been on tiptoe for a sight of him, was at last admitted to the chamber.

As he entered the dim room, he saw behind a screen the pink body lying on the lap of the white-capped nurse, who, having just given it a bath, was shaking powder over it from a perforated box.

At the sight a look of horror overspread the chubby face of Bennie. Toddling to his mother's bedside, he whispered in awed tones:

"Det up, mayver, quick! Nurse is goin' to eat little brayver; she's putin' the salt on him now!"—New York Evening Post.

Quite So.

"It's a pity we can't get rid of all bad-mannered people."

"True, but the boys we have always with us."

SESSIONS IN KALAMAZOO

New Officers Are Elected at Closing of Convention—Mrs. Elnora Chamberlin of Hartford is Elected.

Lansing.—Mrs. Elnora Chamberlin of Hartford was reelected president of the Michigan state federation of Women's clubs at closing of convention.

Besides Mrs. Chamberlin, Mrs. Burritt Hamilton of Ingalls Creek was reelected recording secretary, and Mrs. Mary C. Miller of Kalamazoo, treasurer. Mrs. Clara Waters Baldwin of Muskegon, newly composing secretary, was elected second vice-president.

The list of other officers elected follows: First vice-president, Mrs. R. H. Ashbaugh, Detroit, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Homer C. Blair, Albion, and treasurer, Mrs. Mary C. Miller, Kalamazoo.

A brilliant reception in the Masonic hall formed the closing social event of the convention, by officers of the state federation, the executive board, ex-presidents of the state body, officials of the local women's clubs and the individual women present were in the receiving line. A total of 42 delegates, officers and visitors are in attendance and a great majority of them attended the reception.

Muskegon was well represented at the gathering, the Muskegon county officials and representatives of the various women's societies in the city.

Michigan Man Named Secretary.

Michigan was given a compliment at Grand Rapids when the National Association of Secretaries of Commerce among the thousand or more prominent educators attending the annual convention here elected Jesse B. Davis secretary.

Jie is principal of the Central high school at Grand Rapids, and was formerly identified with the Detroit public schools.

The other officers elected are: President, Prof. Frank M. Leavitt, Chicago university; vice-president, Miss Alice Barrows, director of the moral education survey, New York; treasurer, Dr. Hiatt, secretary of the Public Education association, Philadelphia.

At an entertainment in the Fountain Street Baptist church, held under the auspices of the Association of Commerce, William C. Redfield, United States commerce secretary and labor, delivered an address before the delegates.

The National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education August its annual session with a discussion of the question, "What Laws for Vocational Education Should Michigan Adopt?"

Schools in Homes for Farmers.

Michigan farmers are to be given the opportunity of attending social and cultural college to go to school at home. Plans have been consummated looking to the establishment in each county where the farmers desire it of a county school of agriculture, with discussion of such topics as live stock, crops, soil, airyiny and housekeeping, led by college instructors.

To put the plan in operation $5 or more farmers in each county must agree to pay $1 each for the instruction, and a local organization must make all the arrangements and obtain a room suitable for holding the school sessions. Soil will be examined free by telephone and letter, and invited them all to "be sure and come for business."

Odd Fellows Initiate 500.

Grand lodge degrees were conferred on a class of nearly 500 at Kalamazoo by Grand Warden Miles F. Gray of the Odd Fellows' Grand Lodge of Michigan.

It was one of the largest classes ever initiated in the history of the grand lodge, and the impressive ceremony was witnessed by 1,000 delegates.

An amendment to the constitution was adopted providing that representatives to grand lodge should be paid three dollars a day instead of two dollars. Most of the day was spent in hearing reports of officers.

A banquet was held. Fred A. Bogers of Lansing, grand secretary of the lodge, was toastmaster.

Herbert A. Thompson of Williamston was elected grand master.

Other officers were elected as follows: Grand warden, Miles F. Gray; grand secretary, F. A. Rogers, Lansing; grand treasurer, Cutler, Jr., Ann Arbor; grand trustee, two years, H. L. McNeil, Paw Paw.

Poultry Show is Planned.

Thirty members of the Central Michigan Poultry and Pet Stock association, meeting in Lansing, made plans for a poultry show to be held at the armory from December 7 to January 3. Silver cup trophies were accepted by the association from the Olds Motor works, L. D. Whitney, the Reid Combs and Carter & Gibbs.

Secretary L. D. Maxon sent to Ionia to confer with officers of the associations from Pontiac and Flint relative to minimizing the expense of exhibitions and premiums this. More entries are anticipated for the coming show because of the previous prizes, and in addition to the poultry and pet stock formerly shown, there will be entered ten year a display of prize winning cats.

Praise State Marriage Laws.

Dr. V. C. Vaughan has just received a pamphlet containing publication of medicolegal questions, written by the eminent Dr. Hans Mayer of Halle, Germany. It is a book dealing with the marriage laws of every country on the globe, and has the following to say of Michigan:

On the sixteen books, Michigan has the best marriage laws of the entire world—but these laws are practically a dead letter."

Complain Against Railroads.

The Michigan farmers' association, of which Fred Woods, of Owosso, is president, has made formal complaint against three railroads operating in this state before the interstate commerce commission. The railroads are the Grand Trunk, the Michigan Central and the Ann Arbor, and the purpose of the association is to compel the roads to make transit arrangements which will be satisfactory to these shippers, and to many others.

The transit agreement formerly in effect provided that the miller, the lumberman, the bean jobber and certain other classes of manufacturers could receive a car of the raw material used in their plants, work it up and ship it out under the same billing and for one through freight rate to its ultimate destination. A time allowance of 60 or 90 days was given for working up the raw material. The shipper who bought beans in St. Pleasant could ship a carload to Owosso, clean and grade and then ship on to Boston or New York or some other final distributing point on a through freight rate. This rate was much cheaper than if the car had been billed from St. Pleasant to Owosso and then reshipped to Boston, requiring two separate billing.

For this accommodation by the railroads, two conditions were exacted: The through rate on the car or cars must cover the full rate from the first intermediate point to the final destination, and the beans must be changed in nature—the manufactured articles shipped on from the transit point. This rule was enforced exclusively from the raw material of the shipper. The ruling in freight charges was enormous.

The railroads, however, became suspicious and started a quiet investigation, and discovered, it is alleged, many violations of the transit agreement.

When the railroads had their case complete they went before the interstate commerce commission, and demanded that the commission hear for their protection. And the commission, after notifying the State Federation rule 76 into effect. In a short time the shippers will be notified of the action. The rule requires daily reports by each shipper to the road with which he does business, provided he declares to work under the transit agreement. He must report each carload of beans or wheat or iron or lumber received, and estimate the weight of shrinkage it would undergo before he shipped it out again. The shrinkage should be allowed for natural causes or because the car had been emptied and its contents sold and replaced.

The estimate of the shrinkage must be in line with the actual shrinkage. The daily reports must balance with the monthly report the railroad has the right to demand the shipper to make an all shipments made during the year. If, insist the shippers, they are not good gossers, or guessers, or mathematicians or bookkeepers, they lose out.

CHARLES GATES DIES

MINE MILLIONAIRE EXPIRES IN DEPOT WHILE WAITING FOR TRAIN AT CODY, WYO.

BIG GAME CHASE IS ENDED

"This is My Happy Hunting Ground, I will Return Next Year," He Cries, Just Before Heart Disease Ended Career.

Cody, Wyo., Oct. 30—Charles W. Gates, the New York multimillionaire, dropped dead in the Burlington depot, a mile from here, on Tuesday. Death was caused by heart disease.

Gates, with several companions, had just returned from a hunting trip and had gone to the depot to take a train for New York after thirty-three days of sport in the big game country. Other members of the party are A. Morror, U. Irving, Doctor Motherwell, Doctor Williamson and Mr. Healer.

The party has been at a rustle lodge on the road to Yellowstone park. At noon the men, with several guides, were taken across the Shoshone river to the railway station. Gates felt well and was pleasant frequently. Suddenly he was stricken by a convulsion. The physician and the party resorted to heroic measures to relieve him, but he died in ten minutes. The body was brought back to town and will be prepared for shipment east.

The Gates outfit was the largest which ever went into the big game district. Five saddle and pack horses were used to carry the camp equipment and party, and two guides and camp helpers were employed. Twenty-five days were spent in the mountains about Thoroughfare creek, and Gates and his companions killed 15 elk, 2 moose, 1 black bear and much other game.

Gates before his death had declared unfortunately of his enjoyment of the outing and said that he intended to return next year.

"This is the greatest big game country in the world," he said. "I shall beneforth it will be my happy hunting ground."

Always a spectacular figure as the petted son of a millionaire father, Charles W. Gates did not come into the heyday of his notoriety until after his father's death. Then he was the sensational heir to the millions made in barbed wire, tricky stock transactions and in other ways.

Then, then "Charlie" as his father had always referred to him, was comparatively a tame figure in the chronicles of America's gilded youth until a few years ago, when he blossomed out as the most spectacular spender in the United States. Special trains became his hobby.

Mr. Gates was married twice, his first matrimonial venture proving unhappy. He said it was because he married "beneath him." The first Mrs. Gates who was Miss Mary W. Martin of Cincinnati, died in 1907.

About the time that the decree was signed Mr. Gates engaged to Miss Edna Lewis, announced by the young woman's father, Frank Hopwood, who was a trust lawyer in Indianapolis. They were married late in September in Indianapolis.

The second marriage proved a happier one than the first.

15 KILLED IN FIGHT AT MINES

1,000 Troops to Enforce Martial Law at Trinidad, Colo.—Battle Rages Between Miners and Militia.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 30.—One thousand militiamen were rushed to Trinidad on Tuesday, after 15 men guarding had been killed in battle, when 1,300 miners trapped guards in a canyon and attacked their coal camps.

The battle was raging for more than an hour in a canyon between the Miners from Delagna, Hastings, Berwind and Tabasco camps and the guards. Word of the fight was sent to Governor Ammons.

Two children were wounded during the attack.

Governor Ammons has instructed General Chase, in command of the troops, to disarm every person in the district, clear all saloons, keep ginny guards on raise property and present martial law and party, and that a condition of martial law will obtain in the district.

"I had no other course to follow," said Governor Ammons, when he explained his action. "The situation there had got away from everybody. The miners have driven out the state troops now, and fairness will be shown to both sides."

Odd Fellows Initiate 500.

Grand lodge degrees were conferred on a class of nearly 500 at Kalamazoo by Grand Warden Miles F. Gray of the Odd Fellows' Grand Lodge of Michigan.

It was one of the largest classes ever initiated in the history of the grand lodge, and the impressive ceremony was witnessed by 1,000 delegates.

An amendment to the constitution was adopted providing that representatives to grand lodge should be paid three dollars a day instead of two dollars. Most of the day was spent in hearing reports of officers.

A banquet was held. Fred A. Bogers of Lansing, grand secretary of the lodge, was toastmaster.

Herbert A. Thompson of Williamston was elected grand master.

Other officers were elected as follows: Grand warden, Miles F. Gray; grand secretary, F. A. Rogers, Lansing; grand treasurer, Cutler, Jr., Ann Arbor; grand trustee, two years, H. L. McNeil, Paw Paw.

Northern Michigan

The steamer Boetis, belonging to the White Lumber Co., which sank in the Detroit River the first of the week, is being raised and the company expects to have her in commission and on her way to Muskegon by Saturday. Quite a large hole was rammed in the hull of the boat but the divers helping to float her think that it will be unnecessary to dock the boat before the close of the season. The boat is now lying in about 20 feet of water.

During the last week the lake front here presented a busy scene. Six boats were loaded with cargoes of lumber and iron ore both were unloaded. Close to 4,000,000 feet of lumber left this port by water for various points on the upper lakes. This, in addition to an average of two carloads of potatoes shipped out by rail daily and the apple crop being bought up as fast as offered, makes this city take on the appearance of a busy shipping center.—Traverse City Record.

Traverse City Record: D. M. Henderson and son, who have a farm in southwest Grant, are two farmers who have good faith in potatoes, as a paying crop for this section. They say any soil is good fertilized well and the crops they produce certainly prove it. They raised 2,500 bushels last year from 14 acres. Some went 350 bushels to the acre. Fourteen hundred bushels were sold at an average of the dollar mark. His crop were almost a third better this year than last, which he sold for 75 cents.

A surprising revelation of improver conditions under which the education of children in rural communities in Michigan is conducted was made today in a statement issued by O. H. Lather, auditor in the department of public instruction of Michigan. Lather pointed out that although Michigan is one of the richest states in the union, with superb natural resources and a population ranking high in intelligence and culture, its schools rank fourth among those of the country. A survey of the conditions in Michigan, Lather said, revealed the fact that a vast majority of the boys and girls are spending from four to six hours every school day in buildings which are a menace to their health.

Traverse City Record: "A peninsula farmer has thrown down the gauntlet to potato raisers and invites them to match their produce against the one he has up by him. Eugene Russell who resides near Greenwood Harbor is the man who believes that he has established a new state mark in tater production. Seven hundred and seventy-one bushels from two and one-third acres, that is the harvest which his potato crop yielded this year, and needless to say there are few, if any, competitors who have ever topped or even equaled this mark. The phenomenal crop was raised on old land which was cleared some 50 years ago by Captain McCluskey and which has been under cultivation continuous ever since. The yield is certainly an unusually large one and Mr. Russell is justified in making his survey, "Who can beat it?" and inviting that there will be no affirmative jokers."

One of the great American organizations for the development of the farm is circulating a pamphlet in which the following stirring passage appears: "Fathers and mothers of the farm, if you would interest the children in farm life and keep them with you, take them into a limited partnership. Why wait until you are dead before giving them a property interest in what you have?" Encourage the boy early to study farming, supply two or three good farm papers, have him send for bulletins which are furnished by the government. As a further stimulus give him an interest in the farm income—say 10 per cent, to begin with, and increase it as he shows interest and efficiency. If the above were followed there is no doubt that children would take a greater interest on the farm and it would not be so hard to keep them on it.

Petoskey News: "Seven Bay Shore residents appeared before Justice Krieger in Petoskey Monday evening and quietly parted out $12.50 each for having a hand in a little fun at Bay Shore on the evening of Oct. 14, when a number of men rapped a deer as it swam ashore from the bay. It appears that they caught the deer in the water and placed it in a nearby barn and that later one of their number killed it. The women who purposed to have been divided among the fellows and something extra in the way of delicious meal was enjoyed at their homes for a day or two. The captaining of the deer took place just before dark, and of course the facts soon became generally known and within an hour or two had reached the ears of the game warden department. A. N. Smith, deputy game and fish warden, who has charge of the district boat in the upper lake waters, happened to be in port at Bayne City that evening and of course was given quite a die. He came to Petoskey to his home southwest of Petoskey and soon had a list of the men who took part in the capture. So far the department has not unmasked the man who actually killed the deer and there are likely to be further developments in the case."

After a long, hard and continuous kicking on the part of the Petoskey business men, the Pere Marquette railway company has at last decided to resume the morning train service from Traverse City to Petoskey, thus giving Petoskey a train from the south due in Petoskey around eleven o'clock in the forenoon. Since this train was discontinued Petoskey business men have lost a large amount of trade from the residents of towns and cities as far south as Traverse City, and people from those places were unable to come to this city and return to their homes on the same day.

County Normal Notes.

Eighteen books matched Miss Jones last week. Miss Jones needs assistance, as the little people demand the attention of two.

Esther Walker and Marjorie Weaver were ventilator and house-keeper last week.

Primary methods consisted of first instructions in reading, and sense training games.

The work in psychology consisted last week, of the study of the ear.

The class prepared for a general review of grammar last week.

Miss Carrie Miller called on the normal last Wednesday.

Martha Stoll visited the normal Thursday morning.

A letter was received from Mary Dunlap, class of '10, who is teaching near Boyne Falls. She has fourteen pupils, and is enjoying her work.

Edna Srigley and Rhoda Cliff are editors this week.

The class did their first work in observation last week. The chart class in the training room was observed, and the observation reported in the following English lesson.

School Notes.

EDITORS:
BERNICE BUSH—DOROTHY ARMSTRONG.

A number of high school students attended the foot ball game at Boyne City Saturday and on account of the bad weather remained there over night. Some of the boys slept in the boiler room and in the cabin of the City of Boyne, others slept in the cruisers and a sleepless night was reported. Altho Boyne City worked hard, they were unable to score against us, the score being 0-0.

Martha Stoltz and Maud Shapton visited the high school Friday afternoon.

The students are deriving great benefit from our new magazine "The Literary Digest."

Earl Shapton was a high school visitor Thursday morning.

Many students were absent from school Monday on account of the storm.

Petoskey expects to play foot ball here Saturday and whether rain or snow everyone ought to go to the game and help the boys by rooting.

Helen and Wayte Irving entered the Sophmore class Tuesday.

SYNOPSIS.

This story opens with Jesse Smith relating his story of his early life in the Rockies and of the death of his father. Jesse is one of the men who drive the cattle of the ship and Billy are sent to the Rockies to herd sheep. Billy falls in love with Mrs. Trevor, but Jesse Polly a stranger of questionable morals, and the Trevors leave the ranch. Jesse and Billy become a rancher and herder for Trevor respectively. Jesse falls in love with Polly, a stranger, but Charlie Trevor, Polly's husband, is killed by a falling tree. Jesse becomes a rancher. And Polly, a stranger, and Trevor, a cattle rancher, are married. Jesse and Polly are married

HOUSEKEEPERS Must be Watchful

For great efforts are being made in this vicinity to sell baking powders of inferior class, made from alum acids and lime phosphates, both undesirable to those who require high-grade cream of tartar baking powder to make clean and healthful food.

The official Government tests have shown Royal Baking Powder to be a pure, healthful, grape cream of tartar baking powder, of highest strength, and care should be taken to prevent the substitution of any other brand in its place.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price per pound, and is cheaper and better at its price than any other baking powder in the world.

FOOD TABOOS IN ALASKA.

Queer Dietary Rules That Are Part of the Eskimo Religion.

To illustrate one of the phases of the native relation of the Eskimos, we may consider the question of food taboos. In the mountains of Alaska, on the upper Kuvuk and Noatak rivers, and in the headwaters of the Colville and Chandalar rivers, which supplied to the natives of the Kobuk and Selawik rivers, whole worlds as extensive as the entire country, are one of the Mosaic law.

A young girl, for instance, might eat only certain ribs, and when she was a little older she might not eat certain other ribs, but when she was full grown she would for a time have to abstain from eating the ribs which had been allowed to her up to then.

After a woman has had her new child she might not eat certain other ribs, after her second child still others, and only after having had five children might she eat all the ribs, but even then she must not eat the membrane on the inside of the ribs. If her child was sick she must not eat certain ribs, and if two of her children were sick she might not eat certain other ribs. If her brother's child was sick she might not eat certain parts, and if his sister's wife died there were still different prohibitions.

The taboos applied to the old as well as to the young, and there were taboos on the flesh of her relatives. They also depended upon what animals her relatives or herself had killed, and on whether the animals were male or female.—V. Stefansson in Harper's Magazine.

Old Viking Funerals.

A Viking ship was often of large proportions, and it was woken of as a place of honor in which to be buried. Having been used in the arts of war, it served quite another purpose in the rites of death. When a chief died his body was reverently placed in the stern of the ship, and a tent was made to the hold. The mass kindsmen, or friends, then laid the dead down on his bed and neighbor as the time drew nearer and placed by his side food and drink and other things needed on the journey he was to take. Then the ship was set afloat, and it was allowed to drift out to sea, and often crackling wadding will leave traces of these substances on the food, which, if eaten, cooked, will result seriously.

CAESAR AS AN EPILEPTIC.

Glimpses of the Famous Conqueror That Are Not Inclined.

Says Mark Antony, who had evidently seen the great Caesar in convulsions: "When the fit was on I marked how he did shake; 'tis true this god did shake." Again: "Ye gods, it doth amaze me a man of such a feeble temper should so get the start of the majestic world and bear the palm alone."

We would hardly recommend horse back riding to an epileptic, "but for sheer of perseverance," says the historian Oppius, "Caesar became an expert horseman, after dictating to two or three secretaries at once while in the saddle, and rode without using reins at all. We have had a somewhat similar experience in our own province, where the patient, unlike Caesar, gave up epilepsy while continuing as a horse trainer.

When Caesar came to unbridle rivers during his campaigns he swam across them, sometimes helped to inflated bladders, but mostly, as we know, having a scheme in the water, he cried out, you remember: "Help me, Cassius, or I perish!"

He explored personally and alone, conquered cities and provinces, and, as if in preparation by his one or two seventies—an amusing comment on the indefinites when at all possible.

He needed to be careful. If he had died in the Alexandrian war, his rival, pilot or Nero, and had to any extent published in their dreary compositions, would have covered his memory, perhaps the immortal Virgil, journey the Green at Pharsalia, and the contents of his nervous system in the way of countrymen would have been more numerous.

He paid the strictest attention to his fits, although he had so little of it, like the rest of the world. He invented the sedan, he invented the hospital fringe to grow long, and boldly combed it forward, and the Romans grew bald, well, in the vain hope of concealing his crustal nakedness, and to work out, tore their rickets the whole bald world title.—Dr. Matthew Woods in Neale's Monthly.

What's the Answer?

What cities is our source of traffic for the people and deserves useful little neighbor that he has proved him, while he seemed equal to the fray, who seems to do nothing but play the dandy and the brigand is sufficiently proud and a good fellow? If the total cutting and reported all night long and ended home in silver pools instead of in the moon patch, would they reverse their present order in our towns?—Atlantic.

The New York billboard commission has decided that the billboard is unsightly, dangerous, insanitary and a public nuisance. Aside from this it seems to be unobjectionable.

In Memoriam

At a meeting of Lombard Post No. 170 G. A. R. of Petoskey, Mich., October 14, 1913, the following resolution was unanimously adopted.

Death the grim victor and final conqueror has again invaded our ranks and removed from life's activities our most respected and worthy comrade, Henry Evans, who died, following a surgical operation at his home at Charlevoix, Mich., Oct. 12, 1913.

Comrade Plumer served two enlistments in the army beginning Oct. 12, 1861 and terminating Feb. 28, 1864. He was a member of Baxter Post, of Charlevoix, Mich., until its dissolution and now Lombard Post Jan. 14, 1913. He was Vice President of the Old Soldiers and Sailors Association of Charlevoix county for many years a captain of toamer on the lakes, and a highly respected citizen of the community in which he lived.

Resolved, That in our weak way we tender our heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved family.

To his widow may the knowledge that he here, of a life well spent, replete with memories of deeds well done, become as a solace and benediction.

Ladies and Crocks.

Ladies' cricket games were not uncommon in the eighteenth century and were apparently under Prince Rupert. In 1747 a game between the Middle of Charlton and the Middle of Kingston on the artillery ground, London, attracted "the greatest number of spectators ever seen at any public diversion." In fact, the finish of the game had to be postponed owing to the "overcrowding of the company" whereupon "some of the players were very much frightened." In 1776, one of the Miss Ladies, seven married played some women for a pum cake and a barrel of ale. The cake and ale went to those who lacked husbands.—London Chronicle.

Who Was the Skeptic?

A blind man of Washington was asked for the existence of a God. "I can tell that you can a finally left the color of a thing by feeling it is that so?" The blind man, who relished admitted that it was. "Then," pointed out the skeptic, "the sense of feeling is proved. Blind man, what is God? The question was put to those who lacked husbands.—London Chronicle.

Given

Many cases of poisoning have been known to be caused by using stale or unwashed cutlery, which was not thoroughly washed. All the glass and crockery should be occasionally polished briefly with garlic grass, slug slaut and other vegetables, and often cursed washing will leave traces of these substances on the food, which, if eaten, cooked, will result seriously.

A Queer Practice.

A queer practice which is going throughout all the tribes of America is the shaking of the skin. When the children are still young they cut an incision across the chest, down the upper arm and leg and cross-cross it back and forth. While one wound is still fresh the cut is opened and a mixture of sand is profited in, the skin being pulled as far as possible over it. The sand eventually gives completed around the mind, filling and forms ridges varying in breadth and size from the thickness of a man's little finger and a quarter from straight to straight.—London Standard.

Easily Explained.

An Englishman visiting this country noticed some street cars filled which had somewhat surprised him. Upon in New York.

Not a Bull at All.

An English paper prints this joke under the title "A Laughable Bull:" "An Irish driver said that his wife is a lady. 'I'm crying your husband till he died,' he guessed."

It sounds funny, but it isn't a bull. In Ireland to the Irish physician let us state that the adjective "crying" is the word "cure" was "to cure, to nurse." It is still used in that sense in many communities. "Walk this heth," says Mandeville, "I tried them all till some were healed and some did die."—London Plain Dealer.

State of Michigan, } ss.
County of Charlevoix, }

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix, in the City of Charlevoix, on Friday, the 7th day of November, A. D. 1913.

Present, Hon. Frank E. Spaulding, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Marion E. Johnson, Deceased. Jacob A. Johnson, administrator, having filed in said court his final administration account, and his petition for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

It is ordered, That the 24th day of November, A. D. 1913, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said Probate office, be assigned for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order for three successive weeks previous to said time of hearing, in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County.

SHERYL S. CORNELL, Judge of Probate.

Norwood Store Burned.

During the freeze gale Saturday night the Norwood store owned and operated by Allan Campbell, formerly manager of the Charlevoix telephone exchange, was destroyed by fire with all its contents. Partially insured.

ONE WAY TO VISIT

The Tarahumare of Mexico Has a Style All His Own.

NEVER STARTLES HIS HOST.

He Is Too Politely Deliberate For That and the Complaint Is Faithfully Returned—Ceremonies in the House Have a Rather Abrupt Ending.

For a land-locked the Tarahumare is a very polite personage. In his country, the equivalent of the English "please" and which he uses constantly, is a command. Instead of a hearty knock, he drives attention to his action by saying, "I am going." As he grows civilized, however, he loses the good manner.

The art of being polite is not beautiful the good gets fast, but there is no room for him in the house of a polite humane. A visitor never comes of ceremony, he will stand outside the family simply, time to get ready to receive him. When he approaches a friend's house, he will stop at a little to give sometimes as far as twenty or thirty yards off. If he is on more intimate terms with the family, he may come nearer, and make his presence known by coughing, then he sits down, selecting some little knoll from which he can see the house, and waits. Some one will come out and invite him of the occasion. Thereupon he rises and enters the house, where he has been long enough to have made himself at home.

In order not to embarrass his friends he does not even look at the house, but remains sitting there during intervening. His back or side turned toward the house, indicates that the host he is absent the visitor may then sit for a couple of hours; then he will rise and go slowly away again. But under no circumstances will he enter the house, unless formally invited. "Be calmer," he says, "onto the dogs enter houses excited."

Never will the woman of the house commit such a serious breach of etiquette as to go out and inform him of her husband's absence, to save the visitor the trouble of waiting, or was she, if alone at home, make any statements as to his whereabouts.

The Tarahumare never does anything without due deliberation, therefore he may for a quarter of an hour discuss with his wife the possible purpose of the visit before he goes out to see the man. They peer through the cracks of the door, and if the man happens to be eating or doing anything they may keep the visitor waiting for half an hour.

Finally the host slipping out the door, goes on which he has been sitting, throws it around himself, and, casting a rapid glance to the right and left as he goes through the door, goes to take the visitor by the hand, and invite him to enter. After some installation on the part of the visitor, which in more civilized society, opens with remarks about the weather and the prospects for rain.

When this subject is exhausted and the host is ready to enter the house, he may ask, what he is doing and he answers, he is going to eat. At the door may go back to the house and fetch some meat and pinole for the traveler. The object of the visit, not infrequently is an invitation to take part in some ceremony of feasting, and the men are sure to remain unfurbished they generally reach some understanding.

A friend of the family is, of course, finally invited to enter the house, and the customary salutation is "Ancagua" "Will down." In this connection it may be noted that the Tarahumares in conversation look sideways, or even turn their backs to each other, especially when speak to.

After a meeting such as this, it will generally return every vessel in which the food was given to him, and when he stays he hands back the dishes on which he was seated. Should occasion require the host will say: "It is getting late and you cannot return to your home tonight. Where are you going to sleep? There is a good room over yonder?"

With this he may indicate where the visitor may remain overnight. He will also tell him where to go and find wood for the fire, and he will bring him food, but not unless the weather is very inconsiderate will he invite an outsider to sleep in the house.—From Carl Lumholtz's "Unknown Mexico."

Caught the Guard.

One of the regular army officers tells a story of how the old stringent army regulations once went against General Scott. One wet afternoon that soldier was caught in the rain in Washington. He was in full uniform and was well known, so, so old being near he hurried an umbrella from a nearby hotel, an underseller approached him and calmly remarked:

"General, you will consider yourself under arrest for eight days for carrying an umbrella while in full uniform."

Functional Disease.

Organic disease is so called in where the structure of the organ has become so affected as to alter its character. If the liver indolent or the kidneys sluggish little is organic trouble. The doctors call it a functional disease when the functions of any organ are deranged—that is, do not work normally, when, for instance, the liver pours its secretions into the system too freely or the kidneys, through a cold, do not remove the impurities from the system.

MASONIC

Petoskey Royal and Select Masters Issue a Proclamation

As a Royal and Select Master, and a member of the Grand Council of that department of Ancient Craft Masonry, we have received the following proclamation from the said grand body:

"On the shore of Lake Michigan, near Beaver Island there is a fishing hamlet called Charlevoix. The fishermen, by their latent industry and skill, have provided the village with a beautiful shelter from the elements of the weather. The village, thus duly accepted by the chief architect of the State with all the ancient usages and customs and consequently our brethren are very happy. In the fullness of their hearts they have invited this Council to make joy complete by allowing them to establish in this new home a Council of Royal and Select Masters. At a regular assembly of this Council held on November 11, 1913, this request was granted. Now these same fishermen, realizing that they are not fit a position to start aright, have asked this Council to be present on the 20th of November, 1913, and assist them in the proper manner by conferring the degrees upon such of their number who have not journeyed thus far along the road to the same.

Therefore, it is hereby ordered that all members of Petoskey Council of Royal and Select Masters, who have the degrees of Egyptic Masonry whose attention is called to this notice, shall meet at Hotel Jordan of Charlevoix on Thursday, November 20, 1913, at the hour of three o'clock in the afternoon of that day and there give the Companions the information that they have so long sought, in a manner that is befitting the occasion.

"Hereof fail not but be on hand as you will.

"Hamlet!" "Near Beaver Island!" "Pickerel!"

All these are good, coming from that low-down, scurvy, illiterate, conceited bunch of Masons with whom the world has been associated for thirty years, and whom we have loved and still love, despite the force of woman.

We shall be there and foll the disastrous going of business from Petoskey "Hamlet of Charlevoix." Dodgers you! We shall help to heap coals of fire on your blasted worthless heads and send you home satisfied with "virtue" and perfection.

And then follows the explosion:

"Rumor has spread to the effect that several rebellious Companions have decided to revive the sacred tabernacle in search of what they may discover to destroy our ancient peace and quiet. It is therefore necessary that a King, a wise King be found who will gather together the mighty men of Gilead and unite them a capable battle unit. Occasion will demand.

"Therefore, it is ordered that the following, with others who will be assembled at the Temple in Charlevoix on the 20th day of November in the year 1913 for the purpose of selecting a King whose every act will restore confidence and who will be sorely tried to make his honors manifest for the place to which he aspires.

From this on there are registered the names of the aggregation of villains who propose to convert the Charlevoix Masonic Temple into a carnival of disorder and turbulence—a veritable bedlam of discontent and altogether disrupt-able disturbance.

Come on, you ancoodrels! Come on Hamlet!" "Near Beaver Island!" Avant!

Death of "Phil" Wachtel

After a month's intense suffering from tuberculosis of the throat which developed following a year's lingering illness, Philip D. Wachtel, aged 66 years passed away at the Michigan home of representatives, former holder of many local and county offices and conspicuous one of the Republican leaders of northern Michigan, died Friday night last, at his Traverse home.

In 1890, Philip D. Wachtel was elected representative from Emmet county to the Michigan house of representatives. He was again chosen in 1891, and during that term was speaker of the house, being the only Democrat to preside over that section of the legislature since the Civil war. At the end of his term as speaker, Mr. Wachtel was re-elected as a representative from Emmet county, but this time was in the minority, a Republican being chosen speaker.

Mr. Wachtel's private business pursuit for years has been the real estate and insurance business. He had engaged in it to a more or less extent since disposing of his banking interests, and when he retired from political life he took settled part in it, being at the time of his death the senior partner of the firm of Wachtel & Galster, one of the largest of its kind in northern Michigan.

Failure of health had been rapid during the last two years, but Mr. Wachtel refused to lay aside his work until he was no longer able to cover the short distance between his home and office.

No citizen of northern Michigan was better known or more highly respected than P. D. Wachtel. The publisher of this paper has passed his friendship for thirty years. He was every inch a gentleman.

FATAL GASOLINE ACCIDENT

Young Woman Starts Fire With Gasoline Can—Explosion Follows—Victim Dies in Petoskey Hospital

Another death is charged up against the murderous gasoline can. The most distressing accident that ever happened in Charlevoix was a gasoline explosion Saturday evening, by which Miss Winifred Vought, aged sixteen, lost her life.

The young woman was a niece of Al Vought, proprietor of the Central garage, and was housekeeper for her uncle in the rooms over the garage. At five o'clock she had built a fire in the kitchen range to prepare supper. The fire was not burning satisfactorily, and she took the proslineoleum and poured some of the contents upon the smouldering wood. Just there was fire enough in the stove to cause the disaster. The gasoline exploded, and in an instant she was enveloped in flames. She ran screaming down stairs into the garage.

There was below but one person—the man in charge—and before he could do anything to save the woman there was nothing left on her person but her corset, and her hair was burned off to the roots. Dr. Wilkinson and Montgomery were called, and by their advice she was taken on the evening train to Petoskey hospital, where she died late in after midnight.

The doctors there say she was burned internally, having inhaled the burning gas.

MAKES A CLAIM

Boyne's Tie With Charlevoix Saturday Strengthens Manistee's Chances

The Manistee high school, victors over Charlevoix last Saturday, says the Daily Ore News, has established the strongest claim to the championship championship of northern Michigan in football. The "dispeaters" can hardly figure out where Charlevoix could dispute Manistee's claim to the title if the two eleven failed to hook up in battle this fall.

Until last Saturday the Charlevoix team looked mighty good on paper. It had vanquished all the teams in the northern section of the state, with the exception of Manistee, and had scored a victory over Boyne, and Manistee's win from Cadillac gives Manistee the appearance of the class of the northern Michigan district.

The Charlevoix-Petoskey Football Game

The Petoskey high school football team, the only team in northern Michigan which so far this year has been able to score on Charlevoix, says the Petoskey News, gave that team a big score Saturday afternoon in the latter city by taking the first half of the game by a 6 to 0 score.

Charlevoix, which had not been defeated this year, did not intend to lose that honor by letting Petoskey win and gave a good account of herself in the game, scoring 23 points on three touchdowns, two goals from touchdowns and a goal from the field. Around 300 Petoskey fellows who witnessed the game Charlevoix lads copped off more than their share of luck, in that a Petoskey fumble was recovered by a Charlevoix man and the lad carried it for a touchdown when near Petoskey's goal.

Deer in Emmet County

More deer are being shot this season north of the straits than in the northern peninsula, according to reports of the old hunters, who are unable to account for the change in conditions, unless it is that the animals have sought safety in abandoning their usual haunts.

Manyhunters are operating in Emmet county, nearly 400 licenses having been issued there, the largest number in any one year. The early snow is thought to be partly responsible for the slaughter commencing so soon.

While the deer have been shot in large numbers the accidents are so numerous as to prove alarming and many residents of that county fear to traverse the country roads.

Sugar Beets

Mr. L. S. McLean, representing the Holland St. Louis Sugar Co. has been here several days arranging for the shipment of the 5 acres of sugar beets that were raised on farms tributary to this city.

Mr. McLean says that Charlevoix county beets are of a better grade than those from most points south, and says that while at all other points the price paid has been cut, Charlevoix alone remains the same—four ton. The farmers who raised beets express themselves as well satisfied with results.

Mr. McLean is confident that they will double the acreage next year. The beets are being loaded at the old sugar factory side-track.

ANOTHER WEEK OF BIG FISHING

Big Storm Broke In Upon the Big Fish Harvest—Loss of Nets Will Reach Big Figures

It is true that the large lifts of fish the past few weeks made large financial returns; but there is a corresponding risk, not only to property, but to life itself.

The round-up reveals a large loss of nets in the recent two days gale. Nearly every fisherman here and at Beaver Island suffered loss by having their nets ruined by the tremendous seas. The loss cuts a big chunk out of his profits.

Taking in the entire straits and Traverse Bay region it was the worst disaster that ever happened to the fishermen. Charlevoix fared well compared with other points. At Northport, St. James and other points some fishermen are about put out of business. The tug Margaret McLean lost a gang of nets now nets met at Fox Island. Frank Left, of St. James, lost a gang; Nelson & Jensen lost a gang of gill nets and a gang of pots; W. J. Gallagher lost a gang of gill nets and two pound nets, and James Martin lost a gang. The fishermen are out, when they can get out, grappling for their corks and leads. The effect on the late fall fishing is disastrous.

The heavy lifts have continued nearly up to this writing, the catches for the shoreman's fall fishery, which it has taken a large force of men to dispose of for the last few weeks, ceased Thursday, and the shipments were large. Friday evening, Beaver Island had about 70 tons on hand. The steamer Boyne brought over 18 tons Saturday. Some very good lifts are reported the tug Parmelee bringing in four tons.

There is very much criticism of the new close season law. It is contended that the close season should extend to Nov. 16th instead of to Nov. 1st. While the present law means big fishing now, it does not accomplish what was intended. While fish in big values were caught, there has been destroyed millions of undersize spawn that might have been "conserved" for future years. Such is the opinion of the representatives of the U. S. Fish Commission here, and conservative, fair minded fishermen concede it.

The Lecture Course

"There are only four first-class attractions in the Lecture course today and the Orpheus is one of them," says Elias Davis.

The Orpheans give the second number of the Citizens' Lecture and Entertainment Course at the Charlevoix Theater, Wednesday evening, Nov. 26th. The organization have been together nearly seven seasons, their voices blending in perfect harmony.

The program consists of vocal quartets, instrumental quartets, and solos, songs illustrated with curious instruments and impersonations. The cartoon work is a special feature of their program.

The program will begin promptly at 8 p. m.

Single admission 50c. Season tickets for balance of season $1.25. Reserved seat sale Monday, Nov. 24th. Numbers drawn during the day and seats drawn at 7:30 p. m.

No finer musical entertainment has ever been given in Charlevoix.

After More Worlds to Conquer

The Charlevoix high school football team has signed a contract to play the Soo team, at the Soo Saturday of this week.

As the Charlevoix team heads the championship of northern Michigan in the lower peninsula, as the Soo team has cleaned up on everything in that section.

Therefore it will be a battle of the giants.

VIVID DESCRIPTION

Big Steamer Illinois Beached and Tied to a Tree on South Manitou Island During Gale

Captain John A. Stufflebeam of the steamer Illinois, which was docked at Chicago more than three days overdue, reached Petoskey Monday, giving the following vivid description of a 72-hour battle with a raging sea, when Lake Michigan, in fury of three or four days spent, permitted the storm-battered and weather-bound craft to complete its long delayed journey and enter the mouth of the Chicago river.

The Illinois remained three days and nights at South Manitou Island. Forty-nine hours of this time it was a battle of the ship's engines against the tremendous wind. The engines won and when the force of the waves had been exhausted the ship was able to proceed.

Capt. Stufflebeam thus described the experience of his crew:

"We cast loose up to Mackinaw Island, stopping at all points along Lake Michigan. It was only a freight trip and the boat was carrying no passengers. We had rounded the head of the lake and were ready for our return trip to Chicago.

"We left Northport at 3 a. m. Saturday. The lake was rough but it didn't appear dangerous. After we had been out about two hours it began to look more ominous.

"The wind rose higher and the waves became more furious. We stood it well for an hour. Then it began to look the storm broke all about us. We had several stops to make along the Michigan shore and knew we never could get into port under the circumstances without running great danger. I should have tried the lake if we had been headed directly for Chicago.

"So we headed for the island of South Manitou Island. But when we reached there we found no docks at which to land—we wasn't possible to anchor safely.

"We drove into the land and forced the bow of the boat up on the beach. Then I kept the engines going slowly for 49 hours, with the bow of the boat against the beach. Then we were able to ride the water, which continued to come against us with great fury in that position so we were in no danger.

"After 49 hours battling the wind with the engines we were able to throw a line ashore and this we fastened to a large tree.

"Then I stopped the engines and we rested there, fastened to the tree, for 23 hours more.

"Fortunately we had no passengers aboard and the crew didn't suffer greatly from the experience. We had plenty to eat and plenty of fuel, so there really was no hardship."

To Repair South Pier

Mr. C. F. Lowe, of the U. S. Engineer's office, Grand Rapids, arrived here Friday, and has made a survey of the damage to the south pier of Charlevoix harbor, caused by the recent gale, preliminary to making at least temporary repairs to withstand the heavy winter storms.

On Saturday he went by automobile to Harbor Springs with city engineer Sloan to consult contractor Chas. Roe concerning the work. A diver was engaged to investigate the condition of the under-water superstructure, and the substructure will be carefully covering that portion that was damaged, and the portion filled with stone.

MITCHEL CHOSEN NEW YORK MAYOR

Fusionists Utterly Rout Forces of Tammany Hall.

M'CALL BEATEN BY 106,000

Cincinnati and Toledo Elect Republican Executives, But the Democrats Are Victorious in Most of the Other Large Cities.

New York, Nov. 6.—John Purroy Mitchel was elected mayor of New York Tuesday, and Tammany hall suffered the most crushing defeat it has known in many years.

The fusionists, holding electing their candidate for mayor by more than 106,000 plurality, also were generally victorious in the county and borough elections. The election was a decisive rebuke to the Democratic leadership in this city, and it seems to have assured, with national approval and encouragement, for the upbuilding of a new Democratic organization in New York city and state.

Aids a Freeman Rebellion.

James J. Martin, one of the most powerful leaders in the Tammany organization, declared that the defeat presaged the overthrow of Tammany. "It means Murphy's end," said Mr. Murphy must walk the plank.

The leader of Tammany hall refused to consider his realization of the result his future leadership depended largely on the outcome of the balloting Tuesday. His hope did not rest on his election. He said: "We know very well that he could not elect the head of the ticket, but he expected to pull through the borough and county tickets and in that way to "save his neck." Now, in the estimation of the Democratic leaders, the time has come for a reorganization.

To add to Murphy's plight, returns from upstate indicated that he could not be sent by Republicans in a majority of 30 over both Democrats and Progressives.

Mitchel to Fight Murphy.

When Mr. Mitchel arrived at fusion headquarters he received an ovation and was busy answering the congratulations bestowed upon him.

"What are you going to do about Murphy?" he was asked.

"By not recognizing either him or anyone connected with him," Mitchel replied. "I am going to do all I can to drive him out of business."

Edward K. McCall, Tammany candidate for mayor, took the news of his defeat calmly and sent a telegram of congratulation to Mr. Mitchel.

McAneny Also Leads Head.

George McAneny was elected president of the board of aldermen. With the prospect of becoming mayor should anything happen to take Mr. Mitchel away, he was by 50,000 plurality over Joseph A. Goulden, Tammany's candidate.

William A. Prendergast was elected comptroller over Herman A. Metz by about 25,000, due undoubtedly to the towns also elected a Progressive mayor by a plurality of 11 votes.

Other upstate Republican elections resulted in the victory of the following candidates for mayor:

Albany—Joseph G. Stevens (Rep.).
Buffalo—Louis P. Fuhrmann (Dem).
Utica—James Smith (Dem).
Troy—Cornelius F. Burns (Dem).
Poughkeepsie—Daniel W. Wilbur (Rep.).
Rochester—Hiram H. Edgerton (Rep.).
Auburn—Charles W. Hunter (Rep. and Prog.).
Amsterdam—James N. Gillins (Rep. and Prog.).
Ithaca—H. C. Miller (Dem.).
Watertown—Isaac S. Brown (Rep.).
Olean—Harry N. Huffman (Prog.).

Republican Wins in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Nov. 6.—One of the most exciting municipal elections in the history of Cincinnati resulted Tuesday in the election of Judge Frederick B. Spiegel Republican, over Mayor Henry T. Hunt, a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket by about 1,000.

The campaign was the hardest ever fought in this city for the control of the city.

During his administration Mayor Hunt incurred many enemies by his enforcement of laws relating to the saloon business, the social evil and gambling.

The reports from other cities show the election of George R. Bryan, the Democratic candidate for mayor of Toledo, and H. F. Hoffman, Progressive, mayor of Lorain.

CHAOS OVER NEW TAX

INCOME TAX CONFUSES WALL ST. BANKERS AND LAWYERS.

Adds Their Ignorance—Find Chief Difficulty is in Clause Providing for Collection "at the Source."

New York, Nov. 7.—That part of New York which is referred to vaguely as Wall street was in a state of confusion Friday. For once in its career Wall street did not know which way to turn. For one reason in the "income" clause effective that day and some of its ablest financial lawyers and corporation officials in the world confessed that they were completely at sea as to its meaning.

It is practically a foregone conclusion that payment of a large part of the income tax by corporate interests due in New York will be preferred pending a contest, if the ruling of the treasury department is adhered to.

Whatever the outcome, it is predicted that many suits will be instituted against the government to test the law. Some of the leading insurance companies, led by the New York Life, have questioned that feature of the law which imposes a tax on corporate holders of state or municipal bonds, of which they hold large amounts, while exempting the individual.

The chief source of trouble is that portion of the law which provides for the collection "at the source" of the tax on income derived from interest on bonds, mortgages and certain other obligations. Banks and corporations are required to withhold the tax in making payments of interest due to holders of securities.

The ruling in question has given rise to endless confusion. In cases in which bonds are not registered the names of their owners often are not known to the banks or fiscal agents to whom coupons are presented for payment. The identity of the owners must be established to determine whether the tax is to be deducted.

Gen. Felix Diaz, having resigned from the Mexican army and taken refuge from the vengeance of Huerta on board an American warship, has now fled to the United States. In this, his latest portrait, he is seen at the left, talking with one of his devoted followers.

POLITICS IN STRIKE

EDITOR CHARGES SHERIFF WANT ED BUSINESS MEN AS DEPUTIES TO AID PARTY.

HEADS OF COMPANY STONED

President Todd, J. J. Mahoney and Police Chief Hyland Stoned by a Mob in Indianapolis—Mounted Men Force Rescue Men.

Indianapolis, Nov. 5.—Numerous charges of politics and a suit for forfeiture of franchise entered into the street car strike situation Monday when Judge Thomas Carter, a chief foe, was and and perhaps fatally wounded while watching strike sympathizers attack the Louisiana car barns where strike-breakers were housed.

Candidates charged that the police were not trying to give the traction company protection. Sheriff Fortuson was accused of playing politics in seeking to make 300 deputies, all professional men Sheriff Fortuson strike service, thus keeping them out of activities at the polls.

The day closed without any effort being made to provide street car service.

The suit for assignment and forfeiture of the traction company's franchise and the appointment of a receiver was filed in the office of Judge Albert C. Pearson, a lawyer, acting as a taxpayer. It alleged that the company, through its failure to operate cars for the last three days, violated its franchise contract with the city. The summons in the suit was made returnable November 15.

Twelve arrests were made during the day.

Robert I. Todd, president of the traction company, John J. Mahoney, superintendent, and Martin Hyland, superintendent of police, were brained and forced to run for their lives from a station while mounted police forced back the crowds. Both Todd and Mahoney were cut and bruised while passing the statehouse building.

The mounted police charged to the statehouse lawn and made it possible for Todd and Mahoney to reach their offices.

Charges of politics entered after Sheriff Fortuson had issued summonses for 300 business and professional men for the purpose of keeping them deputies. Not more than 50 of the men answered the summonses.

After the sheriff had explained his purpose Leo K. Fesler, editor of the Marion County Mail and Leader, president of the Indiana Republican Editorial association, charged his with assembling the men together to keep active Republicans from working at the polls in the election. He asserted that of the 300 summonses not more than ten were of the sheriff's political complexion, Democrats.

"I do not think you were elected to police an election," said Mr. Fesler, addressing the sheriff. "This is simply a political movement. You have gone through the list of political workers and selected the men simply for the purpose of crippling your political opponents election day."

GIFT AROUSES INDIANIAN

Gray Tells House Plan to Give Miss Jessie Wilson a Wedding Present Is "In Bad Taste."

Washington, Nov. 6.—Representative Gray of Indiana created a commotion on Thursday by denouncing his colleagues in that body for presenting $5 a piece to a fund, the purpose of which is to purchase a wedding present for Miss Jessie Wilson. Gray declared members were getting "too fresh with the president's family" and suggested that money be turned over to charity.

"I think this movement is in bad taste, indelicate and an unwarranted assumption by members of the house," said Gray. "I do not think we should tender a trinket to the lady. Most of us are strangers to her, and it is bad form for us to intrude.

Many Hurt in Wreck.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Scores of people were seriously injured here when a Wabash interurban train crashed into a blasted street car at West Seventy-fifth street. The pilling of the cars tore bid the railroad tracks from the motorman.

Gets $2,500 in Frank Stamps.

New York, Nov. 5.—Five frank United States stamps of the issue of 1869, valued by their owner, Clarence E. Chapman, of New York, at $1,500, were stolen from the International Philatelic exhibition.

Jackson, Ky., Swept by Fire.

Jackson, Ky., Nov. 4.—The business section of Jackson, the scene of many feuds and outbreaks, was destroyed by fire. The loss is $150,000. Governor McCreary has been asked to call out the National Guard.

Cutting Last Canal Barrier.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The task of opening a way through Culebra cut, the remaining obstacle to navigation through the Panama canal, has been carried on as "rush work" since the blowing up of the Gamboa dike.

SULZER GOES TO ASSEMBLY

James F. Fielder, Backed by President Wilson, Wins New Jersey—Woman Put Illinois Towns on the "Dry" List.

Boston, Nov. 6.—In what can be no better described than a landslide David I. Walsh, Democrat, was elected governor of Massachusetts Tuesday. His plurality was 57,816. Boston gave him a plurality of 28,000, a record never beaten by a gubernatorial candidate.

Edward P. Barry, Democrat, was elected lieutenant governor by about 20,000, and the result is hardly less surprising than the election of Walsh. By the election of Augustus Gardner, Republican, to the second place, had been conceded up even the Lodge ersts.

The contest between Charles S. Bird, Progressive, and Congressman Augustus P. Gardner, Republican, which has developed nation-wide interest because it was the only really good fight these Progressives made and the bid guard anywhere in the country, went in favor of the followers of Roosevelt.

The joke of the campaign proves to have been Governor Foss, running as an independent.

Cotsalin D. Sale, a native of South Bridge, Republican, was chosen to succeed the late William S. Greene, Republican, in the general election in the third congressional district.

Republicans Win in New York.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Control of the New York legislature has been wrested from Tammany and the leader of William Barnes, Jr. Republican leader in the state, apparently will hold the whip hand in the general assembly.

Returns showed the election of 75 Republicans, 36 Democrats and 4 Progressives. Nine of the successful Democratic candidates and eight of the Republicans were indorsed by the Progressives.

Sulzer Is Elected.

One of the spectacular features of the state election was the triumph of former Governor Sulzer, who, running on the Progressive ticket in the sixth district, was sent back to Albany to sit in the assembly which impeached him.

Nine judges of the supreme court and six judges of the court of appeals were elected. In Erie county Herbert H. Lehman, Democrat, and Harry L. Taylor, Republican, were elected to the supreme court.

Republicans elected their two candidates for judges of the court of appeals.

The Republicans carried New York county by about 50,000, and in Kings by approximately 60,000 majority.

PLEASANT FOR MISS SMITH

Of Course Harvard Man May Not Have Meant Anything, But Then Again—

There is a man in this town who knows a good story with which to begin an after-dinner speech. He has saved it for two years, and has not had a chance to use it. He has not heard anybody else use it in that time. He offers it here in the hope that it may aid those martyrs—not least of whom the toastmaster demands that most difficult oratorical effort—the happy after dinner talk about something which one speaker has already discussed. Here it is, verbatim, for the benefit of those who may need it.

Mr. Lee is a grandson of Montgomery Blair, who was a member of Lincoln's cabinet. The only public office he has filled is that of state senator from Montgomery county.

Stuart Governor of Virginia.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 6.—The entire state Democratic ticket, headed by Henry Carter Stuart, for governor, was elected Tuesday without Republican opposition.

Stuart was nominated by the unanimous vote of the state convention. It was the second time he was chosen for governor.

The legislature is overwhelmingly Democratic.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 6.—With the aid of women's votes, which for the first time figured in local option elections in Illinois, the "drys" Tuesday was sweeping victories in downstate cities and villages.

Twelve towns which now make no liquor were carried by the "drys." In ten other places which already were "dry" the anti-saloon forces routed the "wets."

The "wets" won in only five towns, all of which had voted against local option in "wet" town the vote was a tie. The "wets" failed to annex any new territory.

Towns heretofore "wet" which were carried by the "drys" include the following:

Belleville, Pinckneyville, Depo, East Swardstown, Ullin, Grand Chain, Thebes, Metropolis, Jonesboro, Vienna, Dongola, Willisville, Battery Rock, Cave-in-Rock, Rosiclare.

Town heretofore "dry" in which the fous of saloons again were victorious were the following:

Jacksonville, Coulterville, Virginia, Richwood, Hardin, Hamburg, Carlyle, Sparta, Mount Carmel, Mount Moriah, Mounds, Mound City, Blackwell, Pittsburg, Pulaski, Pinckneyville, Pulaski, Pinckneyville, Dongola, Cairo, Mound City, Vienna, Jonesboro, Metropolis, Cairo, Carlyle, Sparta, Mount Carmel, Mount Moriah, Mounds, Mound City, Blackwell, Pittsburg

FOR NATIONAL GUARD COMPANY

A Movement For Organization is Started That Should Be Successful.

A movement is on foot, says the East Jordan Enterprise, to organize a company of militia at East Jordan. The proposal is not due to any fear of a war with Mexico, as President Wilson's ultimatum to Huerta to get out and stay out with his whole murdering crew, turns out to have been nothing but a political canard to influence Tuesday's elections. But one of the best safeguards of peace is to be prepared for war, and a well-drilled militia goes a long ways in preparedness. But aside from the public benefits there is a great personal benefit to members in the military training and social features, as well as being a telling factor to "keep our city on the map."

The honor of suggesting the move belongs to Capt. L. C. Madison, who in a recent visit to Lansing called on Col. Vandercook, adjutant general, and bringing up the matter of organization, was told there was room for a military company here, and if organized the state would supply arms and equipment.

If the organization is formed it needs 60 men between the ages of 18 and 45 who make up an independent militia company, that when they have acquired the proficiency can come into the Michigan National Guard.

A preliminary meeting was held on Tuesday evening at the Hose house to consider the proposition, and it was so well received that committees were appointed on membership with Harry Potter as chairman; ways and means with W. C. Spring, chairman; constitution and by-laws, with Henry L. Wanzer, chairman, and on equipment with I. C. Madison as chairman.

Another meeting was appointed for Tuesday evening next, Nov. 11, at 8 o'clock to take further action. In the meantime any and every person between 18 and 45 who wishes to unite in such an organization are requested to interview Harry Potter, chairman of the committee on membership.

Francis M. Potter Dead

Francis M. Potter, 77 years old, connected for years with the circulation department of the Grand Rapids Herald, and a veteran newspaper man of Michigan, died at his home in Grand Rapids Thursday following a stroke of apoplexy sustained about a month ago.

Mr. Potter was born at Sayzeuse, N. Y., and came to Michigan more than 60 years ago. He was founder of the Charlotte Tribune at Charlotte, Mich., and was also publisher for several years of the Echo at Vermontville, Mich. At that place he founded the Stewart Dwight Post, G. A. R., and was its first commander. He was a member of the Old Residents' association of Grand Rapids.

Mr. Potter was well known in Charlevoix, having been here many times in interests of the Herald.

Farewell Reception at St James

The people of Holy Cross parish, Bonver Island, who were very much attached to their pastor, Rev. James Malone, gave that clergyman a surprise reception the night before he left for his new work at Big Rapids, last week.

Father Malone was entirely ignorant of any proceedings when a carriage called at the rectory, and a trunkful of gifts of some sort or another, brought down to the hall and left for the public hall, where a large crowd had gathered to do him honor.

The musical and literary people, assisted by the high school pupils, had arranged a varied program, in addition to which he was given the sisters in the name of the school children, and a closing farewell address in the name of the people of the parish, by James Hagerty.

The new priest, Rev. Father Jewell, has arrived at the island.

Traverse City Record: R. W. McIntosh, one of the Western Michigan representatives of the Morse Bean Company, was in town last week. He says the Morse Company has contracted for the entire crop of beans in this section of Michigan, and will have a large force of men here to pick and hand pick the beans. The company will have a large factory here for the cleaning and packing of the beans, and will also have a branch office here. The company will pay the highest market price for the beans, and will also furnish the sacks free of charge to the farmers who raise the beans. The company will also furnish men to thresh the beans, and will also furnish men to pick the beans on the farms where the beans are raised. The company will also furnish men to cut the beans on the farms where the beans are raised. The company will also furnish men to haul the beans from the farms to the factory. The company will also furnish men to haul the beans from the factory to the railroad station. The company will also furnish men to load the beans into the cars. The company will also furnish men to unload the beans from the cars at the place where the beans are to be shipped. EYNOPSIS.

The story opens with Jesse Smith residing in the Yukon, which falls to the Labrador side of the Arctic, after the death of his father. His mother died when he was a baby. His father was killed by a grizzly. Jesse was lost in the wilds of Yukon. He meeting Ephraim Smith, a Quaker, who takes him home to Philadelphia. Ephraim's family consists of his wife, Martha, Phoebe, Ruth, Hannah, Rachel and Esther. Jesse is regarded by Esther, Hannah and Rachel as a "wild Indian." Ephraim's farm is in the Cheltenham district, Philadelphia, and Jesse is put to work on the farm. Ephraim's neighbor, John Tyler, offers Ephraim a job for his son, Ezra, at his farm, Ephraim refuses, Tyler, who is a great cattle speculator, vows revenge. Jesse falls in love with Phoebe. Ephraim's farm is in the path of a proposed trolley line. Tyler and other speculators have formed a company to buy the land condemned for the trolley line.

CHAPTER IV—Continued.

Were there no clouds, would we realize that the sky is blue? It is little misunderstandings that rise above our horizon, would we know and I have realized how much I love her when I read this in her pocket diary, what was written by "one night off, Tuesday, Hannah and Rachel and Esther, Phoebe and Ruth, Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday." Matilda and Pussy, if you please, are blankets, and the Hanna's are Hannah and Rachel.

What would you think if you found this in a book?

He says it means "Pattie's house with the chalkies, Jesse, exploding bomb dead finish."

And some of it is worse!

I dare not excuse my dear man of being narrow-minded. I have no doubt that he is quite satisfied to his intense antipathy to niggers, Irish and—Roman Catholics, he will not allow my Chinese servant on the ranch. But if I wished to uncork a choice vintage of stories, I alluded to his prejudice against the word "Israelite" applied to the pot boar.

"Now that's what you're dead wrong. He thinks a log of cedar upon our camp altar, making fresh incense to the wild gods. The half-breed's a university, fat as butter. Down in the low country, what feed is mean and irritating around the bars is poor, and called grinnies. I'd be embarrassed trying to explain the difference between the word "Israelite" and "niggers." Why, Ephraim, he would make in a Christian gentleman, if he hadn't a smattering of the religion of Mohammed would make in a Christian world." The unmuzzling of the bones of the renowned saint, if not be imagined, has stirred the Buddhists to but they won't get hurt. Though they lies uncouthly flung, when skunk-faced, I fed that bit to Eph, saving the foxes. Tell you, Kate, the landlord began to get so proud he wouldn't know me."

"Your great nephew, Jesse; they kill squirrels, too."

"That's a fact. If I shot the eagles, them squirls would get too joyful. Eagles ranks as a sort of religion to us folk, or they'd lowed hurt prairie chickens. The next proposition was cougars. Oh, I'm glad you killed them. At the old ranch I was so terrified I'd lie awake all night."

"The sort of scary. Many's the time, camped on your beach land, which I spent a good place for cougars, I'd set up half the night to listen. They sang love songs, big lows. They sang all kinds of music. Fancy you been scared!"

"Kill them? They're hard to see as ghosts, and every time you fire you don't get nearer. That ain't the reason though, for if the landlord wanted cat's meat, I'd like to see the man."

"The'd never dare to fight that critter, Jesse."

"I know. Eph ain't lost no cougars. He wouldn't lend strangers."

"But the real reason I fed no moralizations to Eph is mostly connected with sheep. Cougars does a right smart business in sheep, 'specially forty Brewsters. Sheep is meaner'n snakes, sheepmen is meaner'n sheep, and if you hear me disagree with the cougars' grip on the cougars, Sheepmen is dirty."

"I've spoke the unregenerate cowboy!"

"But, Jesse dear, are you sure that Eph won't expect me to be 'spared next time he's hunting?"

"Why, no. He was raised respectable, and there's a proper etiquette for bars in meeting a lady. It's sort of first dance—movements—grand chain, pass the clock-room, and what's my little home?"

Jesse's Note.

N. B.—Kate and me agrees that the next chapter has to be cut out, being dull. It's all about the barn-raising where we got home to the ranch. The neighbors put up a fine big cabin connecting the old one by a covered porch of cedar shakes. That's where the two spared lives, the water butt, the grindstone, which Kate says is exactly like my singing voice, like wine (he is a bad lot).

Of course our house-raising was a celebration, with a dance, campfire, ox-roast, fiddle, fiddle-bow and fiddle-sticks. I bet five dollars I was the only semaphore signaler in our district, and lost it to Iron Jim, who learned signaling five years ago during the Riel rebellion. Cap Taylor put up a signal system for our use of five by eight or big smokes by day.

I Tweeted Him by the Ear Into My Cabin.

Our house-raising was a celebration, two means help, and three means war.

After the celebration we settled for the winter, and I put all the ponies except Jones and the sleigh team down to the canyon pasture. Then the ranch sort of lonesome, but we're short of hay on account of the wedding-gifts. Were been

CHAPTER V.

The Illustrious Salvator.

Jesse's Letter.

Mother, I'm married. I thought I'd write you by the horse, but seems I've not roped what I throwed for, and what I've caught is trouble. I wish you weren't in Heaven, which feels kind of cold and distant when a fellow's lonesome. Nobody loves me, and the mosquitoes has mistook me for a greenhorn.

I can't smoke in the lady's home, and when it's forty below you outside, a pipe clogs with ice from your breath. Chewing is worse, because she cried. She don't cook my guns, saddles, and me, or any sort of litter where beasts belong under the table. Moo, she says, feeds sitting down, so they won't be mistook for animals, which stand up.

I just moved back into the old cabin with Mick,—he's wagging himself by the tail between my legs to say as this writing habit is a vice. If I'd only a bottle of whisky now I'd be good, but as it's chiefly mines on refreshments, he's got it put up with Kate.

Mrs. Trevor's husband was an opera singer which mislaid his vocal cords, so settled here to be on his romantic honeymoon, and spite his wife. He's seven feet, and mistook her for a bear: she broke her ankle stamping her foot at him, and he's been waiting me up considerable until he met with an accident. Then he wished married me, and I'm plumb disheart cued.

II.

I was cooking slapjacks, which gives quick satisfaction for the time invested, when Iron Dale rolled in on his way home. She's an highgrade slapjacks is such stuff as dreams are made of. With him quoting Scripture every that, I got suspicious about his coming around by this ranch, instead of hitting straight for Bayline. Or that he owns up to something darn curious and disturbing to my fun. That's a stranger at Hundred Mile House, claiming he's come from London, England, to find my wife.

On the stage sleigh from Ashcroft this person got from, which mostly happens to a tenderfoot, who'd rather freeze like a man than run behind like a dog. So of course he comes in handy for poor Doc McGee. He's a sort of puppy piano along, which grieves me to think our settlers must be putting out of date with such let out improvements, and other settlements liable to throw dirt in our face. Home it's called harpsecord, and this person plays it night and day, so that the ranch hands is quitting, and Cap Taylor charges him double money for board. I wonder if he's ever heard of the Hallelujah Chorus, which sounds like a cow-bell off the leader. There no harpsecord in Heaven, which feels kind of cold and distant when a fellow's lonesome. Nobody loves me, and the mosquitoes has mistook me for a greenhorn.

My wife has run away with him.

III.

I could pick stars like apples. Here's me with my pipe and dog in my home, and my dear wife content. The Dook of London has no more, except drifts. I hardly know what to begin, cept where I left off without mentioning how they run away. The illustrious Salvator have the nerve, so it was my lady who stole over to stable in the dead of night, and harnessed the team so silent I never woke. Sure cover off with her trunks. She has the spirit, my great thoroughbred lady, and it makes me feel real good to think of the way she followed her conscience along that unholy trail through the black pines.

My dear she put up for breakfast at O'Flynn's. The widow had broke her leg representing a cow, and sent off her son to the carpenter at Hundred and Fifty Mile House to get the damn respirator. Her kid was beside the stove, with cord-wood, order, and work all within reach. He was real awkward though that the stove had burned out, and the poor heifer's cross solid while she slept, so she was expecting to be scalded or frozen to her job home, when Kate arrived in time to save her from Heaven. The stern spinsterness to make fire and cook grub while this unselfish cavalierly stayed in the house and got warm. Naturally he didn't know enough to light a stove, until the widow threw things, and he got the cold off. Then he discovered how to wind the kindling before he struck a match, so he lit the fire first, then sliced over rosettes of from the fire-gallon can. When the fire lep up into the can, of course he had to let go, and when he ran the cabin all in flames, he ballooed off to the woods, leaving the Widow O'Flynn to burn comfy all by herself.

By the time Kate reached the cabin, the poor dear is all flames; but, having the fire as she made her way in, she put out and tied to through the window. The bed's burning quite brisk by then, so she swung that sick widow in the window and gone to sleep with the smoke, so that Kate climbed in by the woods leaving the Widow O'Flynn to burn comfy all by herself.

The Finding of Omar.

It was this love Mr Bernard Quaritch's father who brought Fitzgerald's "Omar," and finding that the thing didn't sell, he bought it on his penny. Years afterwards, a young man who is a fine national treasure of Roosevelt came across the book and thought it worth reading. Roosevelt read it and recommended it to Rooseveltians. What followed sounds like the fairy tale, but it is true. Mr. Bernard, "Roosevelt and I interested myself in Omar simply because of the by-the-way. I would not state exactly my extraordinary interest in Omar at that not exceptional price. Next day we thought, we might get some more for ourselves at the same price, but the man at Quaritch asked us, in terms of such humanously indignant remonstrance as to make us feel we ever had contemplated. We took a few and left him. In a week or two, I, the naturally timid, felt that my interest in Omar was sold at a gulper. I have never seen a copy offered for sale at more than my price, I kept my penny worth the million of the rare and beautiful edition."

Twelfth Century Football.

In the twelfth century football in England was a game of great vigor. The chronicle of that period tells how either dinner the city of Sudbury and the town of Kedbury, and how the scholars of each school and the apprentices of each trade sought each have their peculiar ball. They were specialists, too, in the game, exclusively operative. Fathers would cross to watch their sons and "honour as young men are honored. Hitherto real hard wrestling to be revived at the sight of a rare match.

In later years one recalls a famous ball game played in Hyde Park. Hot, thirsty, there was a barrier of a great ball by fifty Cornish gentlemen on one side and fifty on the other, the party played in red caps, the other in white, and hence the name of the game of the contest—Cromwell was a spectator and applauded the "great spirit of lusty Republican."

Airline Editions.

The introduction of the sloping bottom letters which are known in every body as Airline was made by Aldus Manutius of Venice in the latter part of the fifteenth century. He was the most famous printer of Italy and perhaps of the world. The Looks he printed, known as Aldine editions, are much sought after by collectors. His first venture in the new type was a Vergil published in 1501 at the price of about 2 shillings of our money. He also, in fact, was the pioneer of cheap literature.

The Aldine mark is a dolphin twined about an anchor with the motto "Aldus." If any reader, says Mr. J. A. Hill in the Imprint, finds a certain of old books with this mark in his attic or leather room, he is duly advised not to use them for lighting purposes. They would probably buy him a good annuity for the solace of his declining years.

A Consumptive Cough

A cough that bothers you continuously is one of the danger signals which warns of consumption. Dr. Kings' New Discovery stops the cough, loosens the chest, heals the lungs and lets you sleep peacefully. The first dose checks the symptoms and gives prompt relief. Mr. A. F. Mertz, of Glen Ellyn, Iowa, writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery cured a stubborn cough after six weeks' doctoring failed to help." Try it, as it will do the same for you. Best medicine for coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. Money back if it fails. Prices 50c. and $1.00. Recommended by F. G. Hinze & Co.

No Substitute in Dingley.

Mr. Lindle Dingley accidentally dropped into a Chicago restaurant and ordered a cup of coffee. The waiter brought him a cup of tea. Dingley called the waiter and said: "Look here, I ordered coffee." The waiter looked at the number of his order book and said: "Why, so you did. Sorry, we haven't any coffee. We haven't had any for a month. We don't keep it." Dingley was a scientific fellow, he was many times in the gallery of the nonsensical. He had been in Congress, he had been one, the Arizona Lizard and all that, so he quietly ate the substitute offered.

"What people do not realize," he said, "is how much coffee, tea, and cocoa are used that a career of crime is opened to the victim of a substitute. A man with brains enough to be a solicitor, forger, or bank president, and he lies lying with no choice in some honest business, is driven to crime by the mere fact that he looks and the man who writes ideas it looks better than to have to drink imitation coffee." A Way to Woo Sleep.

The following method is recommended by a lady who is a sound sleeper with success. On going to bed you assume a comfortable position in which every muscle is relaxed, but not the attitude—a position you feel you are to go to sleep, though something resembling it. Every move and, consequently, passing, is strictly precluded, especially the desire to turn without changing the position of the body. Then, the sole characteristics as so often in greater or less degree. The sodium—about large been shipped in incontinently sealed tin cans instead of in bulk, as heretofore. Origin of a Famous Hymn.

It seems to be a very solid fact that the poet Cowper, author of the hymn "God Moves in a Mysterious Way," attempted suicide not only once, but several times. In fact, the popular hymn referred to was written right after one of such attempts. The driver whom he had engaged to take him to the river in which he had purposed drowning himself, being complacent of his customer's intention, drove him around in the closed carriage and finally set him down at his own door. Stopping out, and finding the old familiar scenes, the poet, now repentant, rushed into the house and instantly composed the immortal hymn "God Moves in a Mysterious Way His Wonders to Perform."—New York American.

Dance Names.

The word "quadrille" is derived from the position of the dancers, the French word "quadrille" meaning a small square. "Country dance" does not mean a rustic dance, but is a corruption of the French term contredanse, which relates to the position of the couples—opposite to each other. London Globe.

WATER FED THE FLAMES.

Hopeless Fight Against a Peculiar Configuration at Sea.

When the Prelatier Hardy steamed out of Le Trouvet, France, she carried besides the mineral water in her hold a number of small wooden cases marked "menthe sodium."

The channel was rough. The vessel rolled and pitched violently. The captain saw that the ship was listing to port and, suspecting that the cargo was shifting, sent a boatswain below to investigate. As the boatswain entered the hold he saw that several cases of mineral water had broken and that the Water was swishing about in the hold. Then suddenly he saw one of the wooden cases marked "sodium" burst into flame.

Immediately he gave the alarm, and the crew assisted to take the stations. The captain directed the men to play the hose into the hold. At the first stream of water stench the burning case there were several explosions of packages after package within the case caught fire. By this time two other cases of sodium had broken open, and their contents as they came in contact with the water from the hose burst into flame.

The crew could not believe their eyes. The more water they poured on the fire the more intense grew the conflagration. Then suddenly two cases flew into the air, crashed against the overhead beams and spread out in showers of fire, the smaller pieces drop ping back only to bounce and dance about like balls of flame. In the half awakened hold

Panic-stricken, the crew dropped the hose lines and fled above decks. But the captain ordered the cargo thrown into the sea and his men went back into the hold. They succeeded in throwing several cases of sodium into the sea, each case hit the waves it rebounded into the air, a flaming ball.

"But," insisted the lawyer, "I was told he was not in the city at all the night of the murder, he was in a railroad camp."

The interpreter smiled blandly, "Oh, yes," he answered cheerfully, "the lawyer witnesses to prove that"—Saturday Evening Post.

A Prophetic Dream.

One of the most inexplicable forms of dream is the prophetic one. Instances of which abound. The late Lord Dufferin when in Paris dreamed he was asleep that he was in a hearse and route for the cemetery. A day or so later he was entering the lift at a hotel when he recognized the attendant as the driver of the hearse in his dream. The stopped lift and he left incontinently without him. As it neared the top something broke, and it crashed to the bottom again, killing every one in it.

Judge Mayne will hold court for Judge Barton at big Rapids next week.

E. C. Waller, of Chicago, was here over Sunday, the guest of his son, Henry Waller.

Secretary Gibson of the West Michigan Development Bureau was in the city Thursday.

Dr. G. W. Crouter and family will leave next week for Daytona, Fla., where they will spend the winter.

Now on the rink work: Orlowski & Son, M. A. Levinson & Co., J. L. Crane, A. E. Mason, C. Danto & Son, Lumsden.

According to advices received by the paper Saturday from revenue officials in Washington, D. C., the U. S. revenue cutter Tuscarora will make Harbor Springs her home port and base of operations during the remainder of the year.

J. J. Gaskin, warden of the Chicago Club and the golf links, went to Chicago Saturday for the purpose of inspecting for the last time the fence to be in form ulating several contemplated improvements on the Charlevoix course, which is already recognized as one of the best in the country.

The body of Miss Vought, who lost her life in a gasoline explosion in this city Saturday, was yet unburied, when Dan. Swarts received a telegram from Holland announcing the death of a lady relative there in the same manner. The cases overlaid. But in Holland parlor lurking in the deadly gasoline can?

Rev. W. S. Jacobs, manager Lyceum and pastor First Presbyterian church, Houston, Texas, says: "The Orpheus Musical Club gave a splendid program which delighted a thousand people at Houston, Texas, last night. After 20 years experience in lyceum work from ticket seller to manager I feel that I am entitled to an opinion, and I unhesitatingly pronounce The Orpheus a superior. Their 'Little Big Blue' is the finest male quartet number I ever heard."

Mr. A. T. Stewart, of the U. S. fish hatchery service, is still engaged in securing trout eggs for the hatchery. About 10,000,000 eggs have been secured, and at least that many more are wanted, and will probably be gathered if bad weather does not prevent. The spawn is being gathered by Charlevoix and St. James fishermen, W. J. Gallagher having charge of the work at the Island. The spawn is all being shipped to the Northville hatchery, where they will be stored until the first of March, when they will be returned here for hatching.

The gasoline ferry boat Minnie S., of this port, lies on the beach at seven mile point, north of Harbor Springs. She had been at work in the fruit carrying trade on Grand Traverse Bay, and, in company with the steamer Petosego, was being towed to this port by the steamer Fanny Rose, to lay up, on Sunday evening last. When off Fisherman's Island the Minnie S. broke loose from her consort. There was considerable sea running and she could not be picked up. In the brisk southerly wind she drifted into Little Traverse Bay and went ashore. At this writing we have not learned how badly she is damaged. The life saving crew went out with their power boat Sunday night to pick her up, but owing to the darkness she could not be located.

School Notes.

The mass meeting held at the high school building Friday evening was a very enthusiastic one, and the boys of the team gave a talk on the event of The Coming Day.

Glen Dolberg, Arthur Edwards, Homer Zipp, the Misses Georgia Todd and Marva Cooper were high school visitors the past week.

We are all glad to have Ruth Hammet with us again.

The football game played on the home grounds Saturday, between Petoskey and Charlevoix, proved a very interesting one. The game ended with the score 12 to 23 in favor of Charlevoix. Charlevoix is the only team in northern Michigan which have not been defeated this year.

Stoves and Ranges

We are offering several lines of stoves and ranges, and we consider them to be the best made. We know we are right about it from the words of praise for the good qualities from those who have bought from us during the past two years. While our prices are LOW they are not based on the cheap scrap-iron stove which may be offered to you. EVERY STOVE WE SELL IS GUARANTEED and we are here to back them up. Come in and let us show you the UNIVERSAL RANGE—they always please.

To show our appreciation of your patronage we shall give away absolutely free a fine high grade piano April 18th.

Cadillac Special: "Pearlkeep! Beulah and Thompsonville, would all like to be the county seat instead of Manistee," said Judge Fred S. Lamb, who presides over the circuit court of Benzie county, "because of the jealousy alive in these towns it is safe to say that Honor will continue to be the county seat for some time." The board of supervisors of Benzie county at their recent session refused to consider a proposition to remove the county seat of Benzie county from Honor. Had they attempted to move the supervisors from Honor, Beulah and Thompsonville would have combined against Frankfort; besides, Frankfort and Honor would have opposed Thompsonville and so on. It would have been impossible to budge the county seat out of Honor toward any of the other three towns. The supervisors also refused to consider any proposition for a county house while Honor sticks as county seat. The reason are that were Frankfort to be handed the prize, Benzie would soon have a county building of rocks and marble pillars. But Honor isn't worrying about a court house. The county officers are a fair proportion of the town's population and so long as it can be the county seat and the court house town, Honor is satisfied and happy.

County Normal Notes.

Last week the art exhibit was held in the normal assembly room. The grade children came to see the pictures morning and the afternoons were open for the public.

Bertie, Lila and Willard Howe were absent Thursday to attend the funeral of their cousin.

Willard Howe assisted Miss Jarvis the first of the week: Rhoda Cliff the latter part.

Tuesday and Wednesday mornings were spent showing and explaining the pictures to the grade children.

Tuesday evening the class attended the lecture given by Mr. P. Vandermeulen on the pictures.

Mrs. Rifenbery visited the normal room on Wednesday

Ethyl Jacobs and Edna Bigley are absent this week. Leslie Howe and Velma Lautner are housekeeper and ventilator for the week.

The Gilster hotel at Boyne Falls has closed and the building will be used as a postoffice, the proprietor having recently been appointed postmaster.

Bert Reinhart is in trouble at Hellams and continued in the county jail awaiting trial on a larceny charge. He was arrested at Charlevoix last Friday for Antrim county officers.

Carl Forest Johnson, well known operator at the G. R. & I. station at Clarion, died Saturday morning at Lockwood hospital from appendicitis. He was twenty-one years of age.

Alanson is a village of 600 population and a saloon was sold last week for about one day, and the next day man, women and children were on the job. When night came overtook the women they had completed about a mile of good road.

After a thorough investigation of the diphtheria scare in Boyne City, Supt. L. A. Dower of the public schools and city physician Blanchard have come to the conclusion that the disease is not the virulent type. The Boyne school scholars were all examined for evidence of the disease and none was found to be infected. One room in the Central school will be kept closed and it can be thoroughly fumigated.

Albert Horwood, a farmer living over toward Atwood, raised three acres of potatoes this year and dug from them 812½ bu.—at the rate of 324.40 per acre. Considering that towns are not a hard crop to raise, this gives very good returns.

The potato bug paid off the mortgage on many northern Michigan farms, and is still doing duty in this line. It is one of the great economic factors of this part of the state and deserves just as much attention as any other crop. But it is probably in enumerating the resources of the region and the direct causes of our prosperity always given the potato a place in the front row of the natural and profitable products of the region.

Lloyd Ballard, employed at the iron furnace at Boyne City, miraculously escaped instant death Tuesday night when he fell 60 feet from the top of the derrick into the ore pit of the Venezuela. His left leg was broken in two places and he sustained a number of bruises and cuts in the back and his head was very badly bruised. Besides these injuries he sustained a number of bad cuts in the scalp but it is thought he is free from internal injuries.

Traverse City resort region suffered a serious loss last week when the Neahtawanta hotel, situated 14 miles north of Traverse City, was destroyed by fire. The hotel was located in a pretty grove on the little bay on the east side of the peninsula and was the summer home of each year of about 300 people. The place was without fire protection, the hotel having been closed for the winter and the water turned off Sunday. The loss is placed at $70,000, with partial insurance.

Petoskey Special, 21st: An organized search by the power and citizens continues today for an unknown man who last night brutally attacked Miss Ruth Miller, following her return home on a late train after a visit to her home in Alanson. The girl is in a serious condition from shock and from injuries received at the hands of her assailant. Her eyeglasses were broken in the struggle and her nose and eyes severely cut. A posse searched for the man throughout the night without success.

Petoskey Special: Evidence brought out in the investigation conducted in the presence of Prosecutor Spencer, and Isaac Samuel Robinson, assistant state fire marshal to make the assertion that the fire which caught damage in the Don Ton manufacturing company's plant two weeks ago, was beyond a doubt of incendiary origin. "I am quite sure the investigation will lead to the arrest of two and possibly three prominent local men," declared Robinson. "The fire was started in nine places and would have destroyed the plant had it not been accidently discovered. Newspapers, varnish and shavings were used. We have flashlights of every plant." The motive has not yet been learned. The investigation will be continued tomorrow.

According to reports that have reached here the only flock of passenger pigeons on the North American continent has been located near Brutus, Emmet county, Mich. Richard O'Reilly, of Brutus, who was a resident of Emmet county years ago, when the passenger pigeon was a common bird in this state, says there is a flock of 25 or 30 on his farm. It has only been about a year ago that several of these rare birds were seen by two well-known residents of Petoskey, roosting in the trees on the Hinsley place, corner of Lockwood and Mitchell streets. At the time there was considerable comment regarding the matter. Naturalists have claimed that the passenger pigeon has become extinct in this country, although they were very plentiful about 35 or 40 years ago. If the birds are really passenger pigeons every effort will be made to protect them. The National Audubon society offered a price of several thousand dollars a few years ago for the discovery of a passenger pigeon in this country.

COUNCIL INSTITUTED

Great Meeting of Royal Select and Super-Excellent Masters—Thursday Afternoon and Night Devoted to Impressive Ceremonies

A freight carload of Petoskey high-up Masons, augmented by delegations from Boyne City, Boyne Falls, East Jordan and other haunts of sin, invaded Charlevoix Thursday and inflicted penance and punishment on twenty sinners, twenty—Royal Arch Masons who claimed they hadn't got enough. The candidates included seven degenerates from Petoskey and nine ditto reciding in the "tunnel near Beaver Island." Petoskey Council of Royal and Select Masters, clad in their gorgeous robes of scarlet, and purple, bedangled with genuine diamonds and sapphires, and all armed to repel attacks, conferred the Cryptic degrees, under the official sanctity of the governing officers of the Grand Council of Michigan—Lou D. Winslow, Grand Master Andrew A. Arthur M. McLeod, Grand Lecturer; and Charles A. Conover, Grand Recorder.

The degrees of Royal and Select Masters were conferred in the afternoon, at 4 o'clock, a banquet at the Charlevoix Star served an elaborate dinner in the banquet hall, following which, after the ladies had been forcibly ejected from the premises, the high degree of Super-Excellent Master was dispensed to the charter members number 52. Following are the officers, which were duly installed:

Thrice Illustrious Master—Mason Rose.
Deputy Master—E. A. Nourse.
Principal Conductor—Rodney L. Lewis.
Captain of the Guards—Otto Lee Hines.
Conductor of the Council—Frank M. Glassford.
Recorder—W. R. Barney.
Treasurer—F. G. Hines.
Steward—J. M. Arkert.
Sentinel—E. H. Wilkinson.

The northbound train which carried the Petoskey officials home, was two hours late. On this account breakfast was anticipated, and Mayor Nichols had appointed a detachment of special police, but all unlawful disturbances were confined within the walls of the Masonic Temple.

Thanksgiving

The American who is not thankful today lacks the instincts of Christian Americanism.

With bloody turbulence and revolution just across our northern border, and human distress prevailing as the result of uncivilized savagery. We dwell in a land of peace and plenty.

Distress with us is largely self-inflicted. Extravagance on the one hand and thriftlessness on the other cast shadows over the land of thrift, but of all the nations of the big world we have reason to be thankful for what we receive from day to day.

Who the fire blazes in the hearth and the board groans with abundance, give thanks.

Dr. Cook's Claim Gaining Strength

Dr. Cook and Admiral Peary are speaking from the same platform in a lecture tour through Michigan. At Jackson, and again at Benton Harbor last week, Cook's cause gained many strong followers at both places, and he was treated with courtesy and honor.

Cook is right, who he says that the truth of his statements has never been disproven. Three physicians presented him with a costly mementoe. Dr. Cook is at last to have a hearing by a senate committee as to the validity of his claim.

The editor of this paper has never doubted the sincerity and truthfulness of Dr. Cook, and he believes that the day is not far off when he will be recognized as the first discoverer of the north pole.

"The mills of the gods grind slow, but they grind exceedingly fine."

Peculiar Children.

The Chinaman is the oldest nation of four million years—that the Sumarian, then the Arabs, then the Indian, the only Indian that always defended the white man and never was conquered himself, then the Germans, then the Englishman—Teuton Peculiar. The best that for a good drinking man, and you've got to be quite sure "The Billow" very afraid of England, but afraid of the United States, not afraid of Argentina, but afraid of Panama. Moreover he lives in the south temperate zone almost on the same climate as the Patent Office statesmen and same and six months of winter in the north.—Peter McQueen in National Magazine.

A Common Center.

"It makes no difference how frequently clocks are arranged, their combined influence at their force center is Potsdam."

This is a fundamental fact of the entire sidereal structure. Millions upon millions of suns and worlds fly in all directions as lines in a swarm or spray in cosmic systems and as current of stars, act by means of universal gravitation precisely as though they were all condensed into a gigantic globe at their common center of gravity.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

TWO BOATS STRANDED

Booth's Gasoline Cruiser Arbutus and the St. James Barge Sachegan Piled Up on the Beach

The Booth gasoline boat Arbutus and the small coasting barge Schnogan lie on the beach north of this port total wrecks. The disaster occurred Saturday evening in the dense fog which prevailed.

The Booth gasoline boat Arbutus and the small coasting barge Schnogan lie on the beach north of this port total wrecks. The disaster occurred Saturday evening in the dense fog which prevailed.

The Booth gasoline boat Arbutus was bound hence from Grand Traverse Bay. Her whistle was heard off this port about five o'clock, but the wind being fresh on shore her master could not hear the fog bell.

The Arbutus was the best business boat of the Booth fishery parts. Amos Webster was in charge, with Roy Bigley as engineer. She was owned by the Booth Fisheries Co., and was used for picking up fish at bay and straits points. She was insured.

The Schnogan was built by Gus Miskes at St. James last winter, and her owners were unknown to Supervisor. She was about 65 feet long and her beam and engine was that when she was formerly in the Onekama. She was used as a coasting freight carrier. She lies on the beach, with her port bulwarks of wheel for the Angel Milling Co. from Cross Village.

Saturday afternoon both boats had well up, but were leaving very little. But the terrific northwest gale of Sunday morning found them in a position with the Mc-Phillis, of Central Lake, and who came with the best of recommendations, has been installed as fireman with the Mc-Phillis, of Central Lake, and who come

CANNOT BURY DEAD

SNOWDRIFTS BLOCK STREETS OF CLEVELAND AND CALL TRAF-FIC IS HALTED.

SITUATION IS CRITICAL

Famine Threatens City as Result of Terrific Storm—Many Ships on Great Lakes Go Down With Crews.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 12.—With fall and winter weather predicted City of Cleveland has hopes for a speedy resumption of the difficulties that have beset it since the worst snowstorm in its history which set one hundred inches, or an average of 24 inches of snow fell.

A resumption of the business world can only be arrival of food to relieve the scarcity the city now faces. Rail would probably be the first conditions.

As a result of the disturbed state of Lake Erie the drinking water has turned to the color of coffee and warm lines were issued to the health department to prevent a typhoid epidemic by boiling the water.

The total number of dead was increased to nine on Tuesday, when Hans Hoberman, aged fifty-eight, was found in his home with the roof of his house collapsed by weight of snow. Hoberman was William Gombert died by a snowslide.

The work of cleaning the city was aided by a period of snowless weather. Fifteen hundred workers were recruited in cleaning the tracks of the city street car line. In the meantime telegraph and telephone crews were cleared away a large part of the wreckage caused by the storm. Restoration of telephone poles and cedar posts was the most difficult work in restoring cities. The work of rehabilitation so far has revealed no serious casualties. Property loss was limited to a score of home fifty miles around Cleveland.

The hospitals are greatly hampered. Some have been crowded with lack of proper food and others have had to do with candle light, as electric lighting was cut off by the blizzard. Three hundred passengers are reported snowbound in the suburban cars at Gates Mills, near here. Relief parties are on the way to them, but are encountering huge drifts and are greatly delayed.

The schools were closed. Business men and factory owners estimated the loss in business to wholesale and retail companies at many millions of dollars. A great part of the citizens are unable to leave their homes, and few venture downtown.

The stores are responsible for wagon, and undertakers are unable to remove the bodies of persons who have died since the breaking of the storm. The bodies of seven persons who have died at City hospital since Sunday night have not yet been removed to morgues, several more are being held at the city's correction farm, and even private morgues are full, so that the bodies cannot be taken to the cemeteries.

Many bakeries closed because of lack of power, and unless coal trains can reach the city the supply of bread may soon become exhausted.

No improvement in the milk situation has been effected and an actual milk famine has been caused because the companies are unable to make deliveries of the milk on hand for to distribute any more stories in the surrounding territory.

An average of 24 inches of snow fell during the storm and snowdrifts have piled as high as five feet.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 12.—One train arrived here from Cleveland, after having been on the way a little more than thirty hours. It was stalled in a drift for 18 hours not far from Cleveland and the passengers suffered severely from cold and hunger. Later the trains are more nearly on the scheduled time.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Destruction of life and property by the wind and snow storm that swept the Great Lakes into fury and has ravaged the country bordering on the lakes began to be more fully revealed on Tuesday. More witnesses of the terrible stress of the elements presented themselves at many points on the American and Canadian shores of the lakes with the bodies cast ashore.

Horsey, frost-bitten crews fought for life with the waters for as long as 60 hours. Wrecks of lost vessels are washed upon the beaches at many points. Vessels of various sizes are believed to have gone to the bottom. Some have not been sighted since Saturday. What the toll of death has been cannot be conjectured. The ultimate made at Cleveland puts the total at 100.

Principly Gift From House.

Washington, Nov. 13.—A pendant of one canary diamond weighing 48 and one-half carats, surrounded by eighty-five smaller diamonds, will be the wedding gift of the house of representatives to Miss Jessie Wilson.

Two Divide Gates Estate.

New York, Nov. 13.—Frederick C. Gates, who died suddenly in Wyoming ten days ago, divided his fortune equally between his mother, Mrs. J. P. Gates, and his widow, Mrs. Florence H. Gates, it was learned here.

Three Killed by Boiler Blast.

Searcy, Ark., Nov. 13.—A 60-horse power boiler at a sawmill owned by Henry Rosenwald, two miles east of Rose, exploded and Will Hatfield and Ed Latimer were killed instantly and Will Davis died two hours later.

Robs U. S. Mail of $10,000.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—The mysterious robbery of a load of registered mail was solved and orders given for the arrest of A. F. Tardy, a mail collector. Tardy obtained papers and money worth fully $10,000.

Aged Preacher Is Attacked.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 12.—Angered because Nathan Johnson, an aged Baptist preacher, condemned liquor, three men tied him to a tree and forced large quantities of alcohol down his throat and escaped.

WOLVERINE NEWS BREVITIES

Harbor Springs.—Joseph Bradley of Saginaw, while visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Freemont Bradley, of this city, dropped dead.

Pontiac.—Lulungi Longjona, an Italian wanted here for attempted murder, has been arrested in Shenandoah, Pa., and will be brought here.

Saginaw.—Dr. W. H. Clark narrowly escaped serious injury when the boiler of his residence heating plant exploded.

Ironwood.—George Moody of Ironwood was killed while returning from Lansing. He was struck on the railroad track as a short cut home.

Calumet.—A blizzard prevented the usual Sunday parade of the striking copper miners of the Calumet district. Many speakers urged the strikers in the Keweenaw district to continue on strike.

St. Joseph.—The board of education here has inaugurated a system of medical school inspection, the "dispensary method" with modifications. A school physician, Dr. Elizabeth Gray, formerly of Kalamazoo, has been named. A series of health survey lectures will be given.

Ann Arbor.—The following officers have been elected by the University Chess and Checkers club: Chairman, Wilfred Conn; secretary, Lawrence Williams; Cross Beach, Cal., recording secretary, and checker secretary, Hampton Irvin. Alpena.—The prosecutor was filed yesterday ago.

Grand Rapids.—Roy Blackburn, the Chicago man accused of complicity in the triple murder, which occurred here September 18, in which F. M. Thompson, Edward Smith and Jack Townsend were killed, is unable to eat or sleep and Sheriff O'Donnell advises he be put in charge of a keeper.

Cheboygan.—The smallpox situation among the woodsmen at Sand Bay, Bois Blanc Island, is becoming more alarming. New cases are reported daily and a panic prevails among the people living at the west end of the island. The improvised pesthouse, a mile and half from Sand Bay, will be crowded with patients.

Lansing.—Section Foreman Hilburn of Holt, on the Michigan Central between this city and Mason, was seriously injured when a huge oak tile was shoved off a goodsla car and falling 15 feet struck him squarely across the back and shoulders. Two ribs were torn loose and his shoulder crushed. A doctor urged Hilburn to allow himself to be taken to Lansing but Hilburn declared that if he died he wanted to die in his own home. His recovery is doubtful.

Jackson.—Warden Stupson of Jackson prison broke his right leg when he stepped from a platform near the binder twine warehouse while showing some visitors through the penitentiary. The warden had just stepped into a freight car and was stepping back to the loading platform when the horse ahead of him fell between the platforms and the car. He was removed to his residence. Both bones of the leg were broken below the knee.

Lansing.—That $25,000 has been raised among the alumni and friends of Olivet college during the last twenty days in gifts of $300 and less was the information made public by President Lawrence Coulshee with the $100,000 which had been subscribed in amounts of $10,000 this makes a total of $125,000 which has been raised toward the $200,000 which is necessary to secure the bonus of $50,000 which a wealthy citizen of the state has promised.

Galesburg.—Rev. Joshua White, seventy-five years old, one of the best known pioneer Methodist ministers in Michigan, died at his home in this village after a lingering illness. For nearly half a century he served the church in Southwestern Michigan and established a large number of congregations. Rev. White leaves parents in Berlin, Cass, Branch, Ionia, Tuscola, Williamston, Lake Beach, Cal., recording secretary, and checker secretary, Hampton Irvin. Alpena.—The prosecutor was filed yesterday ago.

Petoskey.—Believing he has discovered a plot to wreck the factory and stock of the Petoskey Manufacturing company, makers of piano benches by fire, Chief Reed wired State Fire Marshal Wilson to come to Petoskey and conduct an investigation. The blaze was discovered by Arthur McCann. Chief Reed asserts that seven attempts had been made to start the fire, two in the basement and five in the stock room on the third floor of the newspapers and other things being used. The building, which is the property of Frank Forbes, vice-president of the company, was damaged to the extent of $500.

Cheboygan.—The mysterious death of Mr. and Mrs. Alexzio Murray of Mackinaw City up in the bridge through the tender and instantly killed by a boiler exploding. The boiler was standing in the yard a few feet from the door and the mother who heard the explosion ran out to find her child sink silently to the ground.

Petoskey.—Workmen were busy clearing up a freight wreck on the Pere Marquette, four miles south of Petoskey. A string of empty potato cars being loaded at the Petoskey Cooperative company's plant ran away and crashed into an engine. Cadillac.—With the mainsails covered with snow even in heavy woolen sections, it is estimated that the railroad jumped the rails at a switch. Edward Chapman, Aurora, an electrical engineer, was killed. Others were hurt.

HUERTA WON'T QUIT

NEW ELECTION TO COME ERE SUCCESSOR IS NAMED.

Warfare, Without Quarter, Is Raging at Monterey, Mexico, Between Federals and Rebels.

Mexico City, Nov. 11.—Foreign diplomats were sent a formal note Sunday by General Huerta, after calling attention to the efforts he had made to pacify the country and dwelling at length on his reasons for dissolving congress, making the direct statement that the newly elected congress will be convened within a few days and will pass upon the elections of president and vice-president.

General Huerta reminds the diplomats that prior to the elections he told them that neither he nor General Hian-ner would accept an election on the ground that his own election would be illegal, and he calls the attention of the diplomatic representatives to the conference which he had with the presidential candidates, except Pino Suarez, at which he obtained their promise to abide by the result of the elections.

BEILIS IS ACQUITTED

COSSACKS COMPELLED TO CHARGE RUSSIANS MAD WITH HATRED BY VERDICT.

SEEK TO TEAR HIM TO PIECES

Comment Calls Result Triumph for Jewish Race as Well as Verdict Ten to Innocent Man; Ends "Ritual Murder" Talk.

Kiev, Russia, Nov. 12.—Found not guilty by the jury that had heard the evidence in the trial of Mendel Beilis, the Jew accused by the government of "ritual murder," had to be escorted from the courthouse to his house by an escort of soldiers on Monday.

So angry was the crowd that jammed the little courtroom here, and has incessantly did the larger crowd outside become when news of the verdict penetrated the walls, that it seemed for a time that the Russians would tear the acquitted defendant to pieces.

Only by marching with fixed bayonets was the escort of soldiers able to force a passage to the Beilis cottage, which is scarcely a stone's throw from the courthouse. At night the entire district was patrolled by soldiers.

Once in the bosom of his family, the joy of the father in two years Beilis collapsed completely.

While his wife and children covered at the sounds of conflict that followed the dispersal of the crowd by the Cossacks, the man himself sank wearily upon a bed, his strength all gone, he exhausted.

The specific charges against Beilis were that he had killed Andrew Yushinsky, a Christian boy, for the purpose of using his blood in a special ritual demanded by his religion.

The verdict, for which the jury deliberated 12 hours, is considered an final and telling blow to the "ritual murder" charge, which for centuries past has been used as an excuse for persecuting and killing Jews.

"This is a victory for Beilis but a greater victory for the terrible gale Russia," declared M. Grousenburg, leading counsel for the accused man.

Beilis was defended by Mr. Zeitlin, strong laborer, who has withstood two years of most intense torture by the Russian police in their efforts to force him to confess to the "ritual murder," kept as he thanked the jurors and his lawyers.

Sheboygan, Wis., Nov. 8.—Mill Scott, their fistic victory was one of silence. They dared not express their joy.

ZELIE EMERSON IS DYING

American Girl Veiled in England by Policemen Guarding Suffrage Riot.

London, Nov. 12.—Miss Zelie Emerson, the American militant suffragette, daughter of Chicago, is believed to be dying from concussion of the brain, the result of a blow from a London policeman's club.

Miss Emerson led an assaiting band of women against a battalion of police at the Old Bow church on November 9, who were trying to arrest Sylvia Pankhurst. The charge was successful. Miss Pankhurst was taken by force from her captors and spirited away to a place of safety. Reinforcements of the police dispersed the throng of rescuers only with the greatest difficulty. And when the ground was cleared Miss Emerson was found unconscious.

M'COMBS IS MARRIED

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL COMMITTEE HEAD WEDS IN LONDON.

Many of British Nobility Present at His Marriage to Miss Dorothy Williams.

London, Nov. 10.—Miss Dorothy Williams, the beautiful daughter of Col. John R. Williams, U. S. A., was married to William F. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic national committee, Friday in the quaint little church Catholic chapel of St. Peter and St. Edward, tucked away in Buckingham palace road, within a stone's throw of the royal residence.

The wedding followed so closely upon the announcement that many of the friends who had been invited were unable to attend. Yet if the company that witnessed the ceremony was small in numbers, it was great in distinction.

Mr. McCombs said that the chief reason why the ceremony was performed in London was because both he and Miss Williams wished to avoid an ostentatious wedding in Washington. The few invitations sent out were not dispatched until two days ago.

Lord Derby, head of England's proudest family, was the first to arrive. He was quickly followed by the earl of Suffolk, the countess of Suffolk, who was Miss Margaret Hyde Parker, the earl and countess of Craven, Rt. Rev. Henry Chaplin, one of the few remaining types of British aristocracy.

Ambassador and Mrs. Page arrived early and were followed by Ambassador Herrick, who came over from Paris. Colonel and Mrs. Colin Campbell and Frederick Townsend Martin were among the others.

FEAR 40 DROWNED IN GALE

Port Huron Wreck Believed to Be Steamer Pickands, Whose Cargo Shifted.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 12.—The greatest lake tragedy of the present year doubtless has occurred in Lake Huron as a result of the terrible gale which prevailed all Sunday night. About eight miles north of here a large steel freighter has gone down and it is presumed that every member of its crew of possibly forty men has gone to the bottom.

Not a trace of the ship is to be seen. Marine men think the boat may be an ore carrier, which became uncontrollable in the terrible storm which raged on Lake Huron Sunday night.

It was sighted by Captain Plough, of the Port Huron life saving station. His lifeboats had been wrecked in attempts to reach the stricken craft, the ship to the Reid Wrecking company, which sent the tug Sarnia City to the scene. That craft is lacking in marking as a marker for other vessels.

The unidentified vessel is one of the modern types of steel freighter, about 400 feet long and lies in about sixty feet of water.

GALE CAUSES LOSS

FIFTY-MILE WIND SWEEPS EASTERN AND CENTRAL PART OF UNITED STATES.

TRAIN HITS TREE; 3 SLAIN

Chicago Suffers Damage of Thousands of Dollars—Lighthouse Forming—Boats Seek Shelter.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Low temperatures, piling up bitter sales of wind, swept down upon the Eastern and Central parts of the United States on Sunday, reaching as far south as Florida.

Behind the first onrush of the thirty and fifty-mile hours of wind lies a wake of property on land and water, including telegraph lines, docks and shipping, houses and parks.

Lake men declared it the most severe and dangerous sea they had seen running on Lake Michigan in many years.

Three of the train crew were killed when a westbound passing a work train on the Raquette Lake railroad ran into a tree which had blown across the track near Utica, N. Y.

Milwaukee's $20,000 municipal breakwater, a part of the extensive new harbor project, was washed away in the storm, and more than 1,000 feet of the breakwater at the Chicago company building the breakwater was damaged.

Detroit was practically without communication for hours. Telegraph complete wrecks of telegraph and south and electric lines were tied up by trees blown down by the storm.

All up and down Michigan the storm was felt. Ludington, Muskegon, Manistee, Hancock, Marquette, Ironwood and Lake Linden suffered as much as Chicago, while snow fell heavily. Lake traffic was closed. Boats tied up in Chicago harbor were ordered back into harbors for safety.

Upwards of a dozen men entered streets in Jackson, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo, Albion, Alpena, Grand Rapids and Bay City. Several persons were injured by broken glass in Detroit.

Through Ohio, Indiana, western Pennsylvania and southern Michigan snow and high winds that conspired as fierce blizzards made travel nearly impossible, delayed rail traffic and broke down miles of telegraph wires. Even in Georgia and Florida the thermometer was at the freezing point. West and northwest of Chicago there was less severe damage, in the Canadian Northwest, where a new storm and cold wave much more severe than the one engulfing the United States, was forming, ready to drop southward into the country at the end of the week.

More than $150,000 damage was done in Chicago to docks and lifeboats alone. Hundreds of thousands of people lined the lake shore and chattered in the cold air, watching the waves lash against the breakwater and the Lake Shore drive, made the outer driveway in Lincoln park unsafe, left the Chicago building in Jackson park and the Convent of La Rabida surrounded by water, and carried away over a 12-foot pier in Jackson park, from which the Columbian exposition, even the rock-ballasted Illinois Central tracks.

Lincoln park and near Fifteenth street, where millions of dollars' worth of work had been done, was formed, the huge waves washed inshore over the breakwater and piled up yards of soil away. William Nelleen, superintendent of Lincoln park, said the damage done near Fullerton avenue would set the work of park extension there back six years.

The schooner The Boy, with Capt. W. Robinson and crew of five men on board, struggled through the rolling waves from Marinette, Wisconsin, to Chicago harbor. Frantic a wreck the skipper hoisted out an anchor, which held and, fortunately, brought the deck load of lumber was washed overboard.

Fourteen feet of snow banked up in the Cumberland mountains and stopped trains for four hours. Wet, frigida east and west was in the grip of a blizzard with a foot of snow on the ground.

WORKS ALL DAY

And Studies at Night on Grape-Nuts Food.

Some of the world's great men have worked during the day and studied evenings to fit themselves for greater things. But it requires a good constitution behind it to do this.

A Ga. man was able to keep it up with ease after he had learned the sustaining power of Grape-Nuts, although he had failed in health before he changed his food supply. He says:

"Three years ago I had a severe attack of stomach trouble which left me unable to eat anything but bread and milk.

STATE MEETING ENDS IN JACKSON

MICHIGAN EQUAL SUFFRAGE ASSOCIATION ENDS ITS CONVENTION.

NEW OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Mrs. O. H. Clark of Kalamazoo Is Chosen President of Body for Coming Year—Favor Teachers Pensions.

Lansing.—The Michigan Equal Suffrage association closed its state convention in Jackson. Retiring officers for school teachers were indorsed.

Mrs. O. H. Clark of Kalamazoo was elected president for the coming year.

The convention declared that it believed the efficiency of the teaching force of Michigan would be increased by the establishment of a state system of retirement salaries and pledged its support to secure enactment of such a system.

The convention also indorsed the movement to provide a retirement salary fund for all public school teachers.

The meeting also indorsed the movement to provide a reformatory for women criminals of the state.

The convention, by resolution, a copy of which will be sent to all congressmen from this state, urged the congressmen to extend every aid in securing the adoption of the constitutional amendment giving the vote to women in this country. The resolution was brought before the convention because of the favorable consideration which the suffrage movement is said to receive at the hands of the congressmen from Michigan.

Mrs. Clara B. Arthur of Detroit, retiring president, gave a short address in which she said the suffrage movement is developing in Michigan a people who say that as an organization it cares for nothing but suffrage.

"The suffragists will, after they secure the ballot, go to their homes and be satisfied for ever and aye," she declared. "The suffragists are foremost in philanthropic movements in every state."

The convention ended with scarcely a quorum present. A short love feast preceded adjournment and the newly elected officers were presented to the delegates.

Mrs. Clark, the new president, urged the cooperation of the suffragists of the state in the work before them this year. A vote of appreciation was extended to the retiring president.

Other officers elected were: First vice-president, Mrs. Hinsdale Bissell, Grand Rapids; second vice-president, Mrs. Jessie Ullian Harry, Greenville; third vice-president, Mrs. H. B. Ferrance, Lansing; recording secretary, Dr. R. Grace Benedict, Jackson; treasurer, Mrs. William F. Blake, Grand Rapids; auditors, Mrs. William F. Blake, Grand Rapids, and Mrs. Frederick Holt, of Detroit, member of executive board N. A. W. S. A., Mrs. Clara B. Arthur, Detroit.

Increase in State Tax Rate.

The state tax rate of 1.000 mills on assessed valuation this year will be $3.75, as compared to $2.25 in 1912. The total valuation the state last this year will be $8,589,320,18 on an assessed valuation of $2,246,000,000. Last year the state tax was $5,452,309.18, or $7,371,000 less than it will be this year. Auditor general Fuller is authority for these figures.

It will cost the state of Michigan 36 cents on every $1,000 assessed valuation for the maintenance of penal institutions for the year, or $918,145.80. The counties and municipalities will cost $986,989, or 31 cents on every $1,000 valuation; education, $1,118,000, or 35 cents on every $1,000, $2,597,262.33; hospitals for insane, 78 cents, amounting to $1,994,666.19; state department, armories, etc., 11 cents, amounting to $281,776.66; state department, 36, amounting to $920,000; legislature, 5, amounting to $150,000; state boards and state land office department, labor departmentalone, 77 cents, amounting to $277,318.36; general state purposes not covered by appropriations from legislature, 44 cents, amounting to $1,039,185.

The increase in the rate this year is largely because state institutions were deprived of the entire amounts appropriated by the legislature of 1911, through Governor Osborn's plan to cut down the appropriations. As a result the legislature of 1913 had to take care of the deficiencies.

Michigan Postoffice Changes.

According to word from Washington, D. C., daily changes in Michigan fourth-class postmasters: Eastmanville, Montcalm county, Hermann W. Smith, G. O. Cook, resigned. Michigan postmasters continue under order of May, 1913, at Lansing, Chippewa county, Delia Laramie; payment, Chippewa county, Angus McCoy.

Although more than 18,000 cases have been handled by the industrial accident board since September 1, 1912, only 266 arbitration cases have been before the board.

12,000,000 Bushels of Wheat.

The monthly crop report issued by Secretary of State Martindale shows a total of 12,131,49[illegible] bushels of wheat raised in Michigan this year. Other crops were as follows: Corn, 6,515,000; oats, 44,384,119; barley, 2,642,631; rye, 3,175,183; buckwheat, 852,000; potatoes, 32,849,000; beans, 4,932,631; peas, 1,194,443; clover seed, 234,888; apples, 19,354,039; peaches, 2,404,318; pears, 740,576; plums, 335,463; cherries, 953,616; strawberries, 400,469; raspberries and blackberries, 516,841.

Seven hundred and fifty-seven thousand five hundred and eleven tons of sugar beets were raised and 2,163,317 tons of hay and forage. The report says it is difficult to get definite figures on the amount of grapes raised, but it is estimated at 78,000,000 pounds, of which more than half were produced in Van Buren county.

Orr Praises Accident Fund.

The second annual meeting of the subscribers to the state accident fund was held in the senate chamber. Robert C. Orr, who has charge of the business end of the insurance in the Lansing office made his report to the advisory board. There are now 141 subscribers, or employers, who have elected to have the state administer their insurance for them, representing 16,641 employes with a pay roll of over $1,000,000.

The total annual premiums paid during the year ending September 30, amounted to $61,795, expenses of management, $4,702.75; total assets, $99,161.99; surplus, $1,213.47. The surplus at the end of the present month amounted to $20,000.

Report adopted on the meeting Manager Orr said that it

TEST YOUR BAROMETER.

Air or Moisture Is the Tube Will Render It Unreliable.

Don't expect a barometer to tell you the truth about the weather until you have tested it thoroughly. You can easily make a barometer by using air and water mixed with the mercury in the tube. You can be expected by boiling the mercury.

In order to test a barometer let a drop of water in the proper position then gently and with care incline it so that the mercury may strike against the glass tube. If there is no air with in you will hear a sharp metallic click but if the sound is dull and muffled it indicates the presence of both air and moisture. The presence of air alone is shown by minute bubbles.

If at any time the mercury seems to adhere to the tube, even in the slightest degree, and the correct indications seem a more flattened form it is safe to conclude that either moisture or air is present. In any of these cases the instrument should be put into expert hands for rectification.

There are several kinds of barometers in common use, some more or less reliable and some easily made more so by careful handling. In fact, any barometer must be treated with great respect in order to retain its usefulness.—Harper's Weekly.

The First False Teeth.

Until fifty years from a century ago human teeth were almost without false teeth, of which nowadays one firm alone claims to sell over 12,000,000 a year. The first successful maker was Dimmendale, a French surgeon dentist, who started practice in Paris in 1788 and, thanks to his skilful imitations of lacking features, made his way. After years of expert used his discovery the substitute from which artificial teeth are made and received the gold medal of the French Academy of Science. One of the earliest persons fitted with false teeth was the empress of Russia. Catherine Waterloo Pouit migrated to London and made her fortune. Napoleon and Wellington rewarded his with a yearly pension of 1,000 ducats for a set of false teeth.

POTATO GROWERS ASSOCIATION

Good Start Made—Vice Presidents Named Represent Many Localities

Attendance as well as interest in the meeting of potato growers, distributors and handlers, called to organize an association, exceeded all expectations and as a result, the Michigan Potato Growers' Association is assuming a place in the state in a rank with Wisconsin and other commonwealths noted for enterprise along organization lines.

Enthusiasm was not lacking at any time and the men interested in the organization are all high class, practical and alive to the needs of standardizing and grading the potatoes of Michigan. One of the results of the organization will be a campaign of education along lines which will bring larger results from the acreage, better quality and better prices. It is also intended to continue the Michigan potato through publicity means, at the best on the market and jealously guard the standard, giving particular attention to the elimination of culls.

J. H. Skinner, one of the most energetic workers in the organizing of the new association presided at the sessions yesterday. The election of officers resulted as follows: A. L. Hopkins, Bear Lake, president; John I. Gibson, secretary; A. E. Isman, Midland county, treasurer; G. H. Eggerton, Allegan, vice president.

Vice presidents for the different sections were named—E. W. Abbott, of Boyne City, representing Charlevoix county.

Grand Rapid was selected as the next place of meeting and the dates fixed the first Wednesday and Thursday in November. Following the adoption of a constitution and by-laws a membership of nearly 100 secured. Annual fees are $1 and life membership $20.

Mostly Bucks Killed

That the number of deer killed in the upper peninsula since the opening of the deer season has been exceptionally heavy, says a Marquette special, and that 65 per cent of the number have been bucks is the assertion of John Rough, deputy state game warden, who with Herman Lessner, of Escanaba, returned from a ten days' trip through the southern part of Marquette county and the northern part of Dickinson county. During the deer season of 1912 the bucks averaged only about 35 per cent of the total number killed. The decrease in the number of does killed is due, Mr. Rough claims, to the change in the open season to Nov. 15-30.

At the time of the year the bucks travel more than they do three or four weeks earlier. Some of the largest bucks that have ever been killed in the woods of the upper peninsula have been brought in this season, Mr. Rough attributes this largely to the change in the open season, which is doing much to preserve the does and fawns.

New Train Schedule

The Pere Marquette, upon the urgent solicitation of Petoskey merchants, who were losing Charlevoix trade has changed its train schedule to accommodate "conditions."

Trains Nos. 1 and 8 are discontinued north of Traverse City—(nos Nos. 11 and 12). No. 6 leaves Petoskey 7:35 a. m. instead of 8:00 a. m. as formerly, but leaves Traverse City and Grand Rapids same as formerly. No. 5 will arrive 6:06 p. m.

No. 11, the new train, leaves Traverse City 7:00 a. m. arriving at Petoskey 11:15, running to Elk Rapids north northbound. No. 12 (new) leaves Petoskey 1:45 p. m. arriving at Traverse City 4:45 p. m., connecting with No. 8.

This schedule took effect the 5th.

U. S. Government Catch of Whitefish For Spawn Swept Away

A Northville Special says: The recent hurricane played havoc with the Michigan fish hatchery of the United States government which has charge of the Northville station.

The fishing grounds near Saginaw have also depended on for the major part of the westefish eggs. When the blow struck there the men in charge had eight tons of whitefish in crate pens, holding them until they should be ripe for spawn extraction. The crates were all destroyed and the fish lost.

The fish were expected to have produced 100,000,000 eggs. The government will now have to depend on the catch in the Detroit river for its whitefish eggs this season, and Supt. Thayer thinks that not more than 15,000,000 eggs can be secured.

Employes of the station who are north on the great lakes after lake trout eggs have been having bad luck because of the heavy winds which have prevailed. So far only about 30,000,000 eggs have been secured and not more than 15,000,000 more are expected.

The whitefish egg are hatched at the Detroit branch of the Northville bureau of fisheries and all the trout species at the Northville station.

BUILD OF THE BABY.

Normal Weights and Measurements Up to Three Years of Age.

A baby should weigh at birth seven pounds, at three months eleven pounds, at five months fourteen pounds, at one year twenty one pounds, at two years twenty pounds, at three years twenty thirty pounds. The length of a baby at birth should be twenty and twenty inches, at three months twenty-two inches, at five months twenty-four inches, at two years thirty-two inches, at three years thirty-five inches.

Its chest measure at birth should be twelve and a half inches, at three months fourteen and a half inches, at five months sixteen inches, at one year eighteen inches, at two years nineteen inches and at three years twenty inches.

Some babies are built very small, others are large, if below these figures, there is no cause for worry. But if a child is above these figures it does not come up to these figures its development is carefully looked into, evidently it is not being properly nourished.

The growth of baby's body is very important. See that the teeth come in properly and that the legs grow straight and strong. The babies should be carefully watched and developed naturally.—Bird Fancier.

MAGIC OF A MAGNET.

Makes a Chain Rigid Enough For a Man to Climb In.

A Berlin correspondent of the Scientific American describes an interesting experiment that was made with the works of one of the large German manufacturing firms in the use of their lifting magnets.

A chain, fastened to the ground and carrying an iron ball at its free end, was raised to a vertical position by the agency of the great lifting mag. but suspended from a crane.

The attraction of the magnet was so strong that the chain remained in a perfectly vertical position. A grown up workman climbed up the chain without disturbing its rigidity in the least. It was necessary for him to hold the magnetic pull on the ball was greater than the gravitational pull on the chain.

This remarkable experiment showed the enormous power of attraction exerted by the lifting magnets that are used in iron and steel works to carry about iron material of every description. The magnets enable the operator to seize iron material at any point desired and convey it to any other point within the range of the crane. Incidentally the use of lifting magnets has greatly diminished the risk of accidents in the moving of heavy masses of iron.

A Vague Inference.

The difference between having a tooth drawn by a professional man and having it pulled out with a fish on the end of it is quite a vertical one.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SLIDES FOR LIFE.

Tibet's Perilous Bridges and the Way They Are Closed.

In Tibet they have not yet progressed far beyond the primitive. Probably those in remote districts of the Tibetans are at about the stage reached by Europeans at prehistoric age. At that time in Switzerland they used a long cable and swinging seats for the transport of heavy weights, even of cannon from one mountain to another a little lower down.

Now, in Tibet they do not try to build bridges across the Mekong river but where there are high cliffs a cable is stretched to the other side of the river, and for a trifling fee the persons who wishes to cross clings to a thick bark exterior and slides down, motion on the foot at the point where the river covers the perilous bridge.

If he wants to cross back he must go further up or down the river to a point where another cable is stretched from a high cliff to the other side, and again he performs the "slide for life."

This may not be a very comfortable way of crossing a river, but it is safer than swimming across, especially if there are rapids in the stream, and it is the favorite and cheap way of building bridges among the Tibetans.—New York World.

MAKING OF MAPS.

The First Attempt Was by Anaximander About 560 B. C.

Anaximander, a pupil of Thales, about 570 B. C., sketched the first map. It was in the form of a disk. Homer, a pupil of Anaximander, about 100 years after, with a wider range of knowledge, drew a new map, giving the world an oblong form, showing extension east and west rather than north and south.

The first application of astronomy to geography was made by Hipparchus, who made in 200 B. C. he having made the first observation of latitude. Hipparchus of Nicaea, 162 B. C., first determined latitude and longitude. Marinus of Tyre, about 150 B. C., was the first to make use of Hipparchus' findings in applying the countries of the world.

Claudius Ptolemy of Pelusium, Egypt, about 162 A. D., was to realize the first scientific map-maker. Nevertheless, he was in perplexities and mistakes, the method was correct. The Romans contributed nothing to mapmaking. No improvement was made in it from the time of Ptolemy until the 15th century, when a map appeared in Italy which was constructed with the aid of a compass.—Exchange.

LIVES BY HER WITS.

Only Its Sense of Humor Saved This Woman From Decapitation.

For some time, writes Chambers's in the Ginger News, one of my hens has been indulging itself in a practice that, but for the little joke involved would have ended in its decapitation.

It is one of a sort of sixteen one children, or seven, rather, for its egg producing mechanism is considerably out of order, its egg average being about one in the fortnight. Yet until recently that hen was as confident of her back as the rooster layer. That happened in the July.

Every morning when I made my appearance in the garden Nora (she has a name) would be found beside one of the eggs with all the force of its rapidly diminishing.

If any of its sisters laid claim to the egg Nora would be off like a flash, and, if she could get there first, would be found sitting on it when I came on the scene.

Nora, I may say, is a black, and I have learned from experience that she is a very determined hen, and, if she could get there first, would be found sitting on it when I came on the scene.

Not His Fault.

One of the women belonging to the Mothers' club in the settlement is now "in the doghouse." It appears that a little boy came home from the mission with a new piece of information. "Mother," said the little fellow, "I'm going to be a missionary when I grow up." "Why, what do you want to be a missionary for?" she asked. "Well, I guess I'd like to be one, anyway." Poor lady!—Sunstroke.

Sunstroke is caused by invisible rays from the sun and not by heat. The temperature to which stokers on Atlantic liners are exposed is far higher than the heat from the sun in the most tropical countries, yet the men are not affected in the same manner.

HE WAS A GOOD SOLDIER.

And His Loss Was Deplored by Paul I., the Mad Mad Czar.

In Waldemar's life of Paul I., the half mad son of Catherine the Great, occurs the following anecdote illustrative of the severities of the autocrat's mind. It seems that in a report on military affairs submitted to the Emperor Paul the most suitable lily of the Russian world for current or coming wars was found to be one major Lieutenant.

The emperor took it for a proper name, and moved by a caprice, he gave orders that Major Kil should be promoted to the rank of lieutenant. He saw an expression of astonishment and displeasure on the faces of the staff, who did not dare to express their error, or thought he promoted the incumbent of the day before to the rank of major, and dared not have to that effect. Consul, demanded the chief the officer should be present at a time at once. There was consternation everywhere. The officers were turned upside down in search of the insubordinate Kil.

A subaltern of the young or something, thus he was found in one of the regiments quartered on the line. He was sent for, and had gone long, but not in the end he had to be told that Kil had been carried off to Siberia by a stroke.

"That is a pity," observed the czar, "He was a good soldier."

Arthur is to be pronounced Arthur not Se'Tuur.

"Ur" is added for pronounced in an accentuated manner.

"Ur" stands for itself and is pronounced like "ur."

It signifies the lord, and the second part of the word is Ur, which means the lord of the lord.

Arthur or Arthur is a tetragrammon and means "Ur" = 1, 2, 3, 4 = 10. It means the lord of the lord, or the lord of the lord of the lord of

SYNOPSIS.

This story opens with Jesse Smith returning from the war to his home in Kentucky and finding it deserted. His mother had died in the poorhouse and his father had left the country in Texas. He matriculates in a Western university and is expelled for hazing a professor's son. His mother had died in Texas, his father having left the country. Disappointed, he and his sweetheart, Mary Lee, decide to elope. Jesse's father returns to Texas, and Jesse and Mary Lee are married. Disappointed in his father, Jesse leaves his home and goes to the ranch of his father's partner, Jim Bowie, where he meets Jim's daughter, Kate, and falls in love with her. Jesse's father returns and shoots Bowie, and Jesse and Kate are married immediately and live happily. Kate surprises Jesse by her knowledge of cattle, returns to the stage and runs away with Jesse's father, who has been robbed by his partner, Jesse's father is killed in a fight and returns home, where Jesse reunites his wife.

CHAPTER VI.

Robbery-Under-Arms.

Jesse's Narrative.

We have started a visitor's book. It opens with prose rantings of interviews with Forrest Dubois, the famous archaeologist, who came to assume the scientific direction of Snake Cave. Next are papers relating to a sermonette he wrote, brought by the Rev. Mr. Trevor against Judith. But the gem of our collection is a letter of lengthy signature from an eminent Russian cur, who spent a whole month at the ranch but winter. Nobody is more touchable, or more hungry for popularity than my dear man, but I think that special guests should be offered for his visitors. He has a mania now—I mean he loves my best, not my missus."

My labours here has told the story of an old admirer, once my fellow-student, who brought me a rosary ring for which I so strayed, told me the news, talked shop, and would make me a private dinner—my lifer's solitude. The trap was well baited. Lonely, and terrified by the dread majesty of winter, I stayed for the lights... for the crowds, for my home, for my people, for my art. And there are little things besides which mean so much to a woman.

Salvator turned out to be a cur, his affection despicable, and yet no woman born can ever be without some little tenderness for one who has once made her inside him. And I who sought to read a lesson to poor Jesse, learned one for myself! I am no longer free, but fettered, and proud of the chains. Love's chains, worth more to me than Gian Jose world.

One morning, it must have been the twenty-sixth, I think, we had a caller, deafened, I fear to entry in our visitor's book. Jesse had ridden off to see how his ponies thrive on the new grass, Mrs. O'Flynn was redding up after breakfast and finding myself in the way, I took my water-colors down to Apex Rock, to see if one sketch would mold winter, spring, summer, as viewed from the center of a wooded land.

Now our house being in full view from the apex, and sound travelling magically in this clear atmosphere, I heard voices. Mrs. O'Flynn had a visitor, and I was in such a jealous hurry to what's the gossip, that the sketch went over the cliff as I rose to rub. A rather handsome man in the splendid cow-boy dress, stood by a chestnut gelding, such a horse-fetorical that I made sure he must sport a coat of arms. Moreover in a glorious and commanding way, as Bonaparte under orders, he was kissing Mrs. O'Flynn, who blushed, bless her old heart!

Mrs. O'Flynn knows on her truthfulness as a quality too precious for everyday use, and I knew that I had been preserved that to her fifty-fourth year. It shows no sign of wear. Hence, my curiosity was keen. I was not surprised to find that her visitor was a total stranger.

Judge by signs—chivalry, refinement, everything Mrs. O'Flynn's great son, or a cowboy. His moral manners, exaggerated politeness, and imitation of our middle-class English speech stamped him as a boundar, but not of the British brand. Instead of Bessie's of excitement, he spoke New York with a twang of musichall.

Even to so lonely a place it is curious to remember that such a person should appear to me. Still it is common way the man had beauty, cut fed his fancy, and, moreover, with grace. So much the artist, in me saw and liked, but I think no woman could have seen those trait, eyes without being fascinated.

"Ah! Mrs. Smith, I believe!" He stood uncovered. "May I venture to ask if your husband is at home?"

"Thank you, madam. Fact is, we were very much surprised to see your chimney smoke. We thought this exquisite place was quite unoccupied. Indeed!"

"Who's who?"

"Oh, were the outfit riding for Orval Schmidt. We've come in search of the spring feed. We were informed that Poudre's place was unoccupied open to all. Am I mistaken in supposing that this is Poudre's place?"

"It is."

"Er—may I venture to ask if your husband holds squatter's rights, or has the homestead and preemption?"

"You may ask my husband."

"Thank you, madam. Our foreman interested me to say that if the place proved to be occupied, I was to ask terms for pasturage. We've only two hundred head."

"Mr. Smith will consider the matter."

"We're camped in a little cave at the south end of the bench, devoid comfortable."

Of course I know I'm a fool, and ought to be treated as such. But this man claimed to have camped at the South Cave without passing this house, which was impossible.

"Camped at South Cave!" said I, "in that event I need not detain you. Mr. Smith no doubt will call on you after dinner. Good morning, sir."

But this was not to his mind, and I gathered that my husband was not really wanted at the Bay V ranch. I was surprised that this visitor had rather deal with me than with my husband. It required more than a hint to secure his departure.

Jesse returned at noon. He received the story of our caller with the coolness of one displeased. "That visitor, Kate," he summed up, "would make a first-class stranger. Know nothing, do you, Jesse?"

Hearing from her kitchen Mrs. O'Flynn's sharp grunt of dissent, I closed the door.

"You've left the key hole open," said Jesse, rising from the table to close for a walk."

"Now, Kate dear," Jesse sat down beside me on the Apex Rock, "this moon you set your fret lesson in rhetoric. How would you like a visit to old Cap Taylor at Hundred Mile?"

My voice may have quivered just a little. "Danger?" I asked.

"I dunno as there's actual danger, but if I just knowed you was safe, I'd be free to act prompt."

"Tell me everything, Jesse."

"Up at the north end of the bench, there's maybe ten hundred head of strange cattle. One pedigree short, born half in worth all of twenty-five hundred dollars, and there's a Hereford sired I'd take off my hat to any day. Well, I'd make stand fires on the top of the cliff, Mr. Robber came to find out from my wife why for I hadn't called to leave my card at the South Cave. He's picturesque, says he, hair like a raven's wing, coat sleeveless, scarf indigo striped with orange, shirt black silk, woolly chaps out of a Wild West show, gold and silver fixings. Chevaux saddle, carbine of some foreign breed, or maybe a Krag, manners fit for a king, age thirty-four, bright six feet two inches, chest only thirty-eight, and such a sad smile—all of this will be useful to the police.

He tried all he knew to get out of being photographed, which I wish I had been there, for it must have been plumb comic, but we all submits when Kate goes after us. That realizes but that if he can't capture the camera and plate, we're apt to be burnt out by accident.

She led him on and made him talk. If his boss knew how much Kate has down in her note-book, this guy with the sad smile would get kicked all round the pasture. When I axed if the robber made love to her, my wife just laughed, and curved away, telling me not to be a fool; but the blush came around her hair neck.

I dunno. Perhaps it's my liver, so I'm taking the only medicine I have which it tastes like Hunnuet. Is it liver, or am I getting to dislike this person?

PLANTS IN LIFE.

Some Take Their Naps at Night, Others During the Day.

Clover shuts its leaves before rain and at night, intwining two of the three leaves face to face and folding the third over the top. The yellow lupine at night elevates its leaves, forming a vertical wall, intwining two of them and folding the third over them. The common sorrel and chickweed in daylight, but expands and exhales a vanilla-like odor at night. The trifolium is white and in bright sunshine every flower closes and hangs limply down.

As the sun sets this Endymion plant awakes expectant of the moon. The drooping calyxes raise themselves and slowly expand their flowers. It rids its cousins to demand its name, and the plant, which almost died by day is odorous anew. Its sister, the redwood trifolium, shows by day and is called clover, but this white one has long left the beaten ancestral path and has become vespertilio.

As it opens small flies appear and visit it. The calyx is of that reddish hue which they approve. The sun dew which attracts flies shows the calyx to be full of nectar. It is not a rarity, but few have seen its blossoms opened.—Scotsman.

Swordsmen of the Sea.

The swordsmen of the sea are the swordfish, spearfish, sailfish, sword fishes and the narwhal, with its spiral twisted strength tusk. Swordfish inhabit the warmer seas, while the narwhal is a creature of the Arctic. The tusk of the narwhal is found nearly to the point and is spirally grooved. It means tusk as a weapon of defense and to plunge through the ice to breathe, the narwhal being a cetacean. Sailfishes when a boat has been caught to the ice great damage has been inflicted by the lapidi tiffness or blundering of this great creature, that sometimes reaches a length of fifteen feet, with a risk of from six to ten feet in length. As a rule, however, the narwhal uses its tusk for the purpose of killing fish for food. In the castle of Rosenberg the kings of Denmark have long possessed a magnificent throne made of tusks of this cetacean. These tusks are harder and whiter than ivory.

Michigan Tradesman: One of the most effective ways for local merchants to oppose encroachments of the mail order houses is to advertise liberally in the paper. Too many merchants sleep on their ears while the catalog house comes in and takes a large portion of their trade. They demur at undertaking anything like a thorough system of advertising, contending that the drift to the mail order houses is bound to come; and yet make free complaint over the inroad of the mail order houses into their particular trade. The fact of the matter is, the trade belongs rightfully to them, and would come to them if they were progressive enough in inviting it with good, live advertising.

LEARNING A LANGUAGE.

It Is an Easier Task the Younger It Is Taken in Hand.

The time to learn a language is when you are young, the younger the better. We learn our own language in childhood. The other we grow the hardier it is because it means and merely learning by heart a great many words, but mostly training the palate and tongue to produce different sounds, but adopting a new attitude of mind.

Nothing definite has been discovered as to the localization of faculties in the brain, therefore nothing certain is known, but it has always seemed to me and to others whom I have consulted that when you learn a new language you are extending and developing a new piece of brain.

When you have mastered languages and change from one to another you seem definitely to change the piece of brain when actuates your tongue. You switch off one center and switch on to another.

You will always notice in yourself and others that there is a definite pause when the change of language is made. Now it becomes every year more difficult to awaken an unused part of the brain and bring it into active use, and to begin at twenty-three is late.—Atlantic.

FIRST POSTAL TRAIN.

It Was Tried in 1864 and Proved a Thorough Success.

The first trial of a postal car service, in which mail matter is assorted while in transit, was made in 1864 on the Chicago and Northwestern railway. This system, with a thousand savings and railway mail service was inaugurated that year on several of the important railway lines and was gradually extended all over the United States and adopted in other countries.

In 1874 the American railway mail service was officially organized as a permanent basis, with eight territorial divisions, each in charge of a superintendent, subordinate to a general chief at Washington.

This service was among the first to adopt a modern classified civil service, appointment of railway mail clerks having always been made for a probationary period, permanent employment being conditioned on satisfactory service and conduct and removal based on good cause only. The service has been gradually increased and new divisions organized and is now operated on practically every railway.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

JOHN COOK, City Treasurer.

Henry Acsinsger, one of the original pioneers—a Austrian Count—died at his home in Milton township last week at the age of 79. He came to the region from Switzerland 50 years ago and took up land on the shores of Torch Lake which he said reminded him of the lakes in his native land. He was a leading factor in the development of this section of the country and was well known throughout the northern part of the state. He leaves his wife and four daughters.

Officers of the Michigan Hardwood Manufacturing association, whose headquarters are in Cadillac, report that in spite of the conservative condition of trade due to the national depression, the hardwood lumber trade in Michigan is satisfactory condition. Local stocks of hardwood lumber in the hands of Michigan manufacturers, according to the recent report made the secretary, were but 18 per cent greater than a year ago, a time when stocks were considered unusually low and would not have been enough to supply a period of greater good business activity.

Indications are that Bay View, the resort one mile north of Petoskey, famous because of its summer chautauqua and its summer university, will have a new auditorium next summer, to cost $25,000. This building is to take the place of the old frame structure, which has weathered many seasons, and in which Schumann Heink, Helen Keller, William Jennings Bryan and other prominent persons have appeared. It is understood that nearly $20,000 is already raised by donation, and an effort is being made to secure $100 each from 15 prominent state men for funds with which to beautify the grounds.

FOR THE MULTITUDE

Mountains of Fish Shipped to the Retail Markets—Fish By the Cord Or By the Ton

If you had been lounging around the Booth warehouse the past thirty days you would find yourself wondering where all the fish came from. Since in the first of November that concern, at its Charlevoix warehouse, has received over its dock 700 tons of trout, to say nothing of probably 10 tons of other varieties of fish.

Probably half of these have been confiscated in the retail markets of Chicago, Grand Rapids and Detroit, the remainder into the freezers, and yesterday cords and cords of them stacked up in the big freezers from which they were being boxed up and shipped in refrigerator cars to Chicago and as far south as St. Louis.

Hard, freshly caught whitefish, of late years so rapidly reduced in numbers, are now a luxury, and the "jumbos," which are whitefish from five pounds up, almost take rank with ourmen and lobster in the city markets. "Chubs," a nonexempt fish, about the size of perch, and closely resembling a small whitefish, are caught and shipped in large quantities. They are consumed by the poorer classes in the cities. But the luscious whitefish are the aristocratic food, and the Booth Co. supply the dining car service of several railroads.

During 1913 the Booth Co. have handled 1,300 tons of fish here and at other northern Michigan points, half of that amount at their Charlevoix warehouse. During the big fishing of the past thirty days thirteen men have been employed in the warehouse, to say nothing of the five people in the office.

The banner year was 1908, when the Charlevoix branch had 2,000 tons of fish on its books.

This is some fish.

Who Gets the Prize.

Who gets the championship of northern Michigan on the football field? asks the Petoskey News. Traverse City says, "we're champions." And Manistee says, "no are we."

Charlevoix's annihilation at the hands of Sault Ste. Marie by the score of 0 to 0, and Traverse City's win over Cadillac puts the title of this section of the state high up in the air. However, just two teams have any right to put in any claims to the flag. These eleven are harbored at Manistee and Traverse City.

Manistee has beaten Traverse City and Traverse City has won from Manistee. The fact that Traverse won the last game between the two eleven makes it for the fact that Manistee won the first game by a much larger score than did Traverse the last battle.

The only way the championship can be definitely decided and the fans in both cities satisfied is for the two claimants to meet on a neutral field.

Solving The Market Problem

An American statesman has become famous because he said that the way to resume was to resume. Now a Western Michigan farmer believes that the way to solve the marketing problem is to market. This farmer is James Hilbert of Ludington county, who has so successed in disposing of three carloads of farm products at profitable figures.

Not being suited with the outlet for farm products in the consuming centers to the south of western Michigan, he turned his eyes in the north, and loaded three cars with onions, apples, squash and cider, and started for the Michigan Soo. There he was confronted by various rules and regulations which prevented him of disposing of his goods except by becoming a regular merchant. This he did by using his freight cars as his place of business and receiving orders from the people who wished what he had for sale. The cider went first, and at a good profit, and went with a rush that was surprising. Then the apples, onions and squash were disposed of. The deal was so satisfactory that he has rented a store building and is now gathering together vegetables and cider to fill other cars.

Mr. Hilbert has a reputation of being a resourceful man in the matter of growing crops, now by using his wits on the marketing end he can do much better from a financial stand-point than if he forwarded his products as is the usual custom to the large cities.

At the Soo he has formed an informal partnership with one of the officers of the local Grange and through this man has established what is almost a direct road from producer to consumer.

THE DEATH TOLL

Thirty Hunters Were Killed in the Deer Country of the North

The frightful casualty list of the northern woods during the deer season now closing bids fair to result in stringent laws governing the use of firearms in the forests. So far legislation has had little effect.

The terrible toll of the high power rifle, in measurement of human life, for the season, which closed Sunday night, is as follows:

Upper Michigan—Nine dead, twelve wounded.

Wisconsin—Twenty-one dead, twenty-three wounded.

Three more deaths were added Friday, when a lower Michigan man was killed in the upper peninsula by mistake for a deer, and when two Wisconsin hunters were killed by the carelessness of others. In most of the fatalities reported, deaths have been due to carelessness with firearms, but there has been a terrifying total of hunters shot by mistake for game.

In Michigan, in the eight years, thirty killed in the two states, ten have been hunters shot by mistake by other hunters.

The Apple to the Front

The future of western Michigan to some extent is tied up with the apple. Among the men, the sons of those who are urging the development of the region are being exerted to exploit the apple and that time to hurry the development which they long to see. The western Michigan country can grow apples which in many respects is superior to 99 per cent of the apples of the other parts of the world. This being true and it also being true that there are thousands of acres in western Michigan which are well suited for apple orchards, an extra effort is being made to get the apple to the front, because in so doing, greater prosperity will be obtained. In order that there may be a demand for the apple, there are being worked out to increase the popularity of the "King of Fruits" as an article of food.

Another Marine Veteran Gone

Last week the Charlevoix Lumber Co. sold the towing tug J. V. Taylor to H. A. Cooley, of Chicago, and on Sunday morning, in charge of Capt. Geo. Weaver, she left for that city, with her bridge (and local craft) blowing her a farewell salute.

In the days of the schooners, not so very long ago as the old timer reckons it, there were six towing tugs in this harbor. The departure of the Taylor takes the last one. Nothing now but the fish tugs.

This means not so much a deterioration of shipping as it does the displacement of the schooner for the steamhargue.

(COMMUNICATED)

Esther Walker assisted Miss Jarvis last week.

Mrs. Ben Brown was a visitor Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Hilmes spent her vacation at Mrs. Porter's farm.

The editors this week are Velma La Count and Hattie Hamlin.

Rhoda Cliff spent Thanksgiving at her home near East Jordan.

Gladys Johnson and Edna Srigley were housekeepers and ventilators.

Mr. Milford gave a very interesting talk Tuesday morning about his trip to the northern woods.

Velma La Count and Esther Walker spent Thanksgiving at their homes at Central Lake and East Jordan.

Miss Mary Borg visited the normal Wednesday afternoon. She is of the class 1910 and is teaching at Bay Shore.

The normal class gave a party to the training room children Wednesday afternoon. A short program was given by the two rooms. The blackboards had the appropriate pictures of the season on. Pumpkin pie and apples were served.

Through the kindness of Com. J. H. Milford the normal had a picnic and venison supper in Miss Hines rooms. The venison was given to the class for their 1913 Thanksgiving, the venison was killed on Nov. 13th and had 13 points on its horns. Mr. Milford expected to share the supper with us, but was unable to attend on account of business.

The fishing tug General arrived here Tuesday night to join the Lake Superior Fish Co. fleet—the Arthur and Fisherman, for late fall fishing.

Probable End of Calumet Strike

The end of the strike of 15,000 copper miners in Upper Michigan, who have been out since last July, was forecasted the last when the mine managers issued a joint statement offering to concede all but two of the demands made by the strikers. The concessions include an eight hour day and minimum wage of $3 for all underground employes. The companies refused to concede the abolition of the non men drilling machines and recognition of the Western Federation of miners, both were demanded by the strikers. Under the terms of the proposed agreement the companies will set aside one afternoon of each week for hearing of employes' grievances. Nonhomestakes will be closed union members. The agreement is effective Monday for all miners who will return to work. It was predicted here that while the federation leaders would not formally ratify the agreement, they would permit the men to return to the mines without serious objections.

Shots Missed

With only an offshore breeze blowing Sunday afternoon, the tug Palmetto released both the Schooner and the Arbutus from their moorings, they were stranded in the fog last week. They were towed to this port and formed to be seaworthy.

Very much sympathy was felt for Capt. Meisse, owner of the Schooner, among his numerous friends when the news of his boat ashore doubtless, as all he had insured in the boat, and yet he takes us to express his thanks to all who lent a hand to help him out of his trouble.

The Arbutus is ready for business again.

Ad Wolgast, the Lord Fighter,

has been declared fit to fight. The Canadian boy has had another examination of his damaged ribs and has been pronounced sound on the injured side. "I'll probably fight in Milwaukee on December 18 or 20," said Wolgast Friday. "My opponent will be left to Frankie Mulkey. He will probably select Charley White, Jimmy Duffy or Dundee." Ad says he will do his preliminary training at Cadillac and that he will begin work next week. He says he is feeling fine and that his weight of 134 is his exact clothes is a specially pleasing fact.

Man Who Assaulted Miss Ruth Miller Is Now In Emmet County Jail

Through the efforts of Robert Wott, night policeman, who is acting marshal during the absence of Marshal Crawford, says the Petoskey News, the man who assaulted Miss Ruth Miller last Saturday night, as she was going to her boarding place from the late G. R. & I. train, has been captured and is now in the Emmet county jail awaiting trial in the circuit court on a charge of attempted criminal assault. The man is Dan Inghirst, an Indian, who for some time has been employed in the County office in Charlevoix.

When he made the attack on Miss Miller Saturday night, the fellow lost his cap and with this as his only clue Policeman Wolff went to work to locate the man. He made the rounds of the Petoskey hotels and learned that a man had registered and paid for a room Saturday at the New Central, but had not returned to his room that evening. The man had registered from Charlevoix, so Wednesday morning Mr. Wolff accompanied by Sheriff Pargle went to this place. After making the rounds of the stores to learn if similar caps were on sale in that place and having located the hat, which was found to be stamped with that on the hotel register at the New Central, they confronted the fellow with the evidence. In his effort to clear himself the fellow soon got into another scrape and finally admitted that he committed the crime.

Sheriff Pargle placed him under arrest and he spent the night in the lockup in Petoskey and placed in jail. He will be arraigned before Justice Kreuger Saturday morning and he will be bound over to the circuit court for trial at the January term of court.

Inghirst was formerly from Harbor Springs, according to his own story, but has been employed at Charlevoix for some time. He had made a good record there and everyone seemed to speak highly of him. He says she blame for his crime to drink and says he had undoubtedly had a few drinks too many Saturday night.

TO ARREST HUERTA

REPORT THAT GEN. BLANQUET IS READY TO CAST DICTATOR INTO PRISON.

SEEKS CASTLE FOR SAFETY

President of Mexico Tells Staff and Friends That If Any Disaster Came He Would Be Only One to Suffer—U. S. Blockade Is Near.

Mexico City, Nov. 19.—A coup d' etat appears imminent. The expectation is that General Huerta, provisional president, will be arrested by order of General Blanquet, who will have the support of the army chiefs in this move toward restoring peace in Mexico.

Confidence is attached by the public to the fact that General Huerta has gone to the castle of Chapultepec. It is believed he has decided to move to insure his greater personal safety. He told his staff and personal friends that if any disaster came he would be the principal to suffer.

The report has been revived however, that Huerta intends to resign the presidency in favor of Mr. Carbajal Thursday. This was based on a declaration of Carbajal to members of the new chamber of deputies on Monday.

General Huerta proceeded with his efforts to organize the new congress notwithstanding the warning given him by John Lind that serious consequences would follow such a step. Therefore an early breaking of relations between the United States and Mexico was regarded as inevitable.

Whether the United States embassy will be withdrawn appeared to be a matter of which Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American chargé d'affaires, is uncertain.

Organization of congress was completed on Monday. Enough senators were gathered to form a quorum. Gamaliel Pradesa was chosen temporary chairman and a committee on credentials was appointed. A similar committee of the chamber of deputies began reviewing the deputies' credentials.

President Huerta talked at length to his staff and personal friends regarding the possibility of intervention by the United States. He intimated that he would be ready to resist such a step.

The opinion was expressed in various circles that a blockade of Mexican ports would inaugurate a blockade of Mexican ports.

The exodus of foreigners, especially Americans, continued all day. The trains to Vera Cruz were jammed. Many American citizens reached the capital from small towns in the interior. Many declared the situation had reached its most acute stage.

A number of business concerns whose headquarters are abroad received cabled instructions to send the women and children of their employes out of Mexico at once.

Admiral von Hintze, German minister, declared that he believed there was no reason for anxiety.

A plan to "protect" Huerta, he said, by which armed intervention will most surely be avoided.

The German minister, however, convened the German merchants and informed them that an American blockade of Mexican ports was coming in three days. He asked the names of the Mexican ships also an inventory of the goods they expected to send abroad in the immediate future, saying this was for the purpose of getting the goods through the blockade if possible.

Vera Cruz, Nov. 19.—Manuel Garza Aldape, who recently resigned as Huerta's minister of the interior, sailed from Vera Cruz on Monday on the steamship Morgan with his wife and children. Before the steamer left port Aldape told some of his followers that Minister Mohedo planned to poison Huerta. Aldape was recorded to the quay by troops from the City of Mexico and was virtually under arrest, secret police following him on the steamer. He said, however, he was probably going to "take up the duties of Mexican minister to France."

Austin Tex., Nov. 19.—Huerta's stake "knew" answer to the whole Mexican situation, Senator Lane showed Mexican ammunition smuggled affected last September, at Garrison Springs, were telegraphed to Governor Colquitt by Pat Mireles, under date of San Marcos, Tex. "There were 14 smugglers, 11 of whom are awaiting trial.

"If the Mexicans start any trouble I will protect our citizens and our trail for Washington to act," said the governor today. Colquitt's call was Adjutant General Hutchings.

30 PERISH ON SHIP

THE H. B. SMITH SINKS IN GALE ON SUPERIOR.

Many Bodies of Sailors and Wreckage From Vessels Are Found on the Shore.

Marquette, Mich., Nov. 16.—Thirty lives were lost and another great loss was added to the list caused by the fierce lake storm, when the Henry B. Smith, carrying 10,000 tons of ore, was lost off Keweenaw Point on Lake Superior.

The Hawgood Transportation company of Cleveland, owners of the ship, telegraphed Thursday for information concerning the Smith's whereabouts, stating that although five days overdue the ship had failed to reach the port.

The Henry B. Smith, with Capt. James Owen in command, loaded here and waited two days for the storm to abate.

The Smith failed to reach any port on Keweenaw shore, and marine men say it is highly improbable that it is floating on the Canadian coast. Wreckage of a large vessel was found late in the day. It is believed the Smith sank off Standard Rock, about thirty miles from Marquette. The Henry B. Smith was of steel, 545 feet long, 55-foot beam and 30-foot depth.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 16.—Each hour adds to the total of disasters which occurred on Lake Huron during last Sunday's storm and the end is not in sight. Bodies of sailors of five and perhaps six vessels were found on the shore of the lake. Wreckage from two other boats, still missing, was cast up by the waves, and it is now had been obtained of two vessels or their crews, totaling more than forty men.

Estimates of the number of lives lost in the storm, declared to have been the worst known on the lakes, range from 150 to 300.

Lodge in various morgues along the Canadian shore are bodies of sailors from the Hennepin Jones, Carrington, Regina, John A. McLean, Wexford and Charles H. Price. It is practically certain those vessels went down with all on board. There are also a number of bodies unidentified.

WILSON IS MENACED

PRESIDENT GETS MISSIVE SIGNED BY S. MAULTHROP—WARNS HIM OF "EXPOSURE."

WARRANT FOR THE WRITER

Writer of Missive Is Said to Have Pitched Letter Written to Henry M. Pindell by Senator J. Hamilton Lewis.

Washington, Nov. 19.—The nomination of Henry M. Pindell of Illinois as ambassador to Russia was not sent to the senate Monday and despite persistent rumors that his nomination has been indefinitely postponed, Secretary of State Bryan denied there had been any change in the plan of appointing the Peoria editor.

A member of the foreign relations committee is authority for the "understanding," as he puts it, that Russia has entered a protest to the appointment because of the official admission that Mr. Pindell was to be appointed under a presidential agreement that he would not be expected to serve a full term.

The alleged forged letter end of the embroglio developed another sensation President Wilson, as well as Senator Lewis of Illinois, the latter charged Senator Moulthrop, the stenographer discharged by Senator Lewis and suspected of having furnished the copy of the letter to the correspondent, with threatening wholesale political exposures through other letters unless the president called off the dogs of war from his threatened prosecution of the writer.

The letter received at the White House Monday was signed with the correspondence between the president and Senator Lewis which he would publish unless he was let alone. The letter to Senator Lewis referred to letters that had passed between the senator and Secretary Bryan and Governor McAdoo and to correspondence with Roger Sullivan and William C. O'Connell which would "ruin them all."

Senator Lewis said Moulthrop's letter would be put in the hands of postoffice inspectors the threats contained in them being in violation of the use of the postal laws. The letters were postmarked at different stations in New Jersey.

THREE DIE IN RACE RIOT

Deputy Sheriff and Two Negroes Shot to Death Near Biloxi, Miss.

Bassfield, Miss., Nov. 17.—Virgil Williams, deputy sheriff and city marshal of Bassfield, and two negroes are dead and more trouble is imminent as the result of a race riot near Fillmore.

The dead negroes are James Fuller and Samuel Tillman. The trouble took place at the logging camp of R. J. Allman, near here, where about three hundred men, mostly blacks, are employed.

Cleanup crazed Fuller is said to have sworn to kill his paramour. For protection she left the camp and sought refuge in the home of a white family.

Williams, in his capacity as deputy sheriff, went to the camp to arrest Fuller. Fuller is said to have shot Williams down and then ran into the camp and fired a few shots into the crowd of negroes.

Tillman, who was a cripple, was shot down in cold blood. Tillman was a cripple and was shot down in cold blood.

FIND SPENCER GUILTY

MURDER FIRST DEGREE RESULT TURNED AGAINST SLAYER.

Curses Jurors and Judge—Loses His Nerve Only Once at Insanity Pleas.

Wheaton, Ill., Nov. 17.—"We, the jury, find the defendant, Henry Spencer, guilty as charged and we fix the penalty at death," read the clerk.

That verdict was returned on Friday in the case of the state against Henry Spencer for the murder of Mildred Allison Rowrat, the young teacher, who Spencer killed near Wayne, and whose body he left on the railroad tracks in the hope that it would be mutilated so as to conceal the crime.

Spencer heard the verdict read to him in the courtroom and instantly he became a wilder animal than he had been at any stage since his arrest.

"They'll hang me!" he shouted. "My God, they got me!" Then he cursed the judge, the jury, his own lawyer and himself.

Spencer sank fainting into his chair. It was several minutes before he could be even partly revived. And then he began mumbling, a low, indistinct, almost pathetic monologue of incoherent threats.

"How does that jury know I wasn't insane? I was insane—I am crazy. They think I was just acting—well, they don't know. They don't know—they don't know—they just make a guess and they string me up—"

Spencer was the only person who did not lose his nerve at the verdict. Mrs. Sullivan, the mother of the victim, fainted and had to be carried out of the courtroom. Her husband, Dr. Sullivan, and her son, Dr. Sullivan, were pale and trembling when the verdict was read. Judge Carl Sullivan, private secretary to the president, who was subpoenaed in the secret service men in this vicinity Monday, was pale and trembling when the verdict was read.

Spencer's attorneys, who had been represented the prisoner through the trial, were not surprised at the verdict. Lawyer Sullivan, who had received a letter involving the president himself will be made public.

It is said similar letters were sent to Senator Lewis declaring if the senator persisted in the prosecution the writer of the letter would "do other things" which would be certain to follow.

KILLS WIFE'S FRIEND

PROMINENT MISSOURI PHYSICIAN KILLS CHICAGOAN IN KANSAS CITY.

MURDER FOLLOWS MEETING

Official of Medical Association Enticed Victim to Hotel to Shut Him to Death—Spouse Visiting Mother in Detroit.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 20.—Appealing to the unwritten law, Dr. W. S. Elam of St. Joseph, officer in the Missouri State Medical association and one of the faculty of the Central-Kansas Medical college, shot and instantly killed William Putman Cramer of 3900 Lake Park avenue, Chicago, at the Hotel Baltimore in this city on Tuesday.

Back of the shooting is the story of a secret romance and the relentless tracking of Cramer by an angry husband, who under the guise of a friendly call, took Cramer to a table out his alleged wrongs by death.

The Elams have been married five years and they have no children. Mrs. Elam is now in Detroit attending her mother, Mrs. J. N. West, who is seriously ill. She knew nothing of the shooting until a relative sent a telegram to her. Cramer was married and a traveling advertising solicitor for a manufacturer.

Cramer and Mrs. Elam had met by appointment once, but another woman was present. They dined at the Hotel Muehlebach and afterwards went to a theater. Cramer is said to have expressed confidence that he could fully explain this to the angry doctor and bring about harmony.

Cramer and the husband met in the reception room of the hotel. The meeting had been arranged through friends. Cramer's attorney and Detective Jack Glynn, who had been engaged by Dr. Elam to trace his wife and Cramer, were present. Then the Chinaman and the doctor adjourned to a room on the second floor of the hotel to "talk matters over."

The two men had been in the room 15 minutes when the shooting occurred. The doctor said:

"He grappled with me and I shot him by accident."

Afterwards he said:

"I knew Cramer was lying and I shot him."

SIDNEY MOULTHROP IS JAILED

Man Who Threatened President and Lawmaker With "Exposure" Placed in Cell at Washington.

Washington, Nov. 20.—Sidney Moulthrop, the stenographer accused by James Hamilton Lewis, of attempted blackmail of Illinois, fairified and published in the Washington Herald, the letter he sent to President Wilson, saying he would "do other things" if the president did not call off the dogs of war from his threatened prosecution of the writer.

The letter received at the White House Monday, with the letter he had correspondence between the president and Senator Lewis which he would publish unless he was let alone. The letter to Senator Lewis referred to letters that had passed between the senator and Secretary Bryan and Governor McAdoo and to correspondence with Roger Sullivan and William C. O'Connell which would "ruin them all."

New York Central Head Says He Has Earned a Rest—In Rail Service 50 Years.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—William C. Brown, president of the New York Central lines, resigned on Tuesday. His resignation was accepted at a meeting of the directors and was accepted to take effect January 1. No successor was not selected. It is generally believed, however, that Alfred H. Smith, who succeeded Brown as president of the Centralines in March last, will be elected president in the near future. President Brown has been contemplating his retirement for some time. He was appointed president in February, 1909. His desire to seek a well-earned rest after 50 years' service in railroading, the fact that his health was impaired and the contemplated return to Iowa, where he spent his early years, are given as the reason.

Can Send Fish by Parcels Post.

Washington, Nov. 20.—Postmaster General Burleson announced the postoffice department cannot prevent shipment of fish or game by parcels post in Illinois, although the laws of that state prohibit the shipment of game.

Northern Michigan

Boyne City will have a poultry show Dec. 10 to 13.

William Edgeworth, aged 91 years, died at the Antrim County Home at Hillsboro last week.

East Jordan Enterprise: At the meeting of the militia company Tuesday evening, Henry L. Winters was elected Captain; W. C. Spring 1st Lieutenant, and Walter Cook 2d Lieutenant. The minor offices we understand are uncontested.

Paul Rose, one of the foremost fruit growers in Michigan, and the man who taught many other fruit men in the state modern methods in regard to growing, packing and marketing fruit, died at his home near Frankfort, from apoplexy Sunday morning, Nov. 26.

Deep concern is felt here for the safety of Will Cartwright, of Petoskey, who went to Ossego Lake a month ago to hunt, and of whom nothing has been heard for three weeks, the time for his return having passed. He was with Ted Hamilton of Detroit, who is likewise missing.

John M. Terwilliger, of Traverse City, has left for Washington to take an examination for the appointment as deputy internal revenue inspector in this district. It is told on good authority that Mr. Terwilliger has been successful in allying to himself the influence of both factions in the Michigan democracy which virtually assures him the office, which has a term of four years.

News has reached Petoskey that Bay View is to have a handsome new $20,000 auditorium for next season. Subscriptions nearly that amount, it is reported, have been given the Bay View association, providing the association will raise $1,500 with which to beautify the surrounding grounds. Efforts are being made at present to secure the donation of $100 each from 15 prominent men of the state, including one or two in Petoskey.

Frankfort Special: Immediately after the close of navigation, the Northern Michigan Transportation Co., Chicago, will commence work on a new freight and passenger depot at this place. The growing volume of both passenger and freight business between here and Chicago is responsible for plans for the new depot. The Congregational Summer assembly attracts the increase in passenger business, and the large fruit acreage produces the increase in freight.

Harbor Springs Special, Nov. 25—Steamer Minnehaha of the Northern Michigan line made the record for the smallest load of freight ever brought to this city on one of the steamers of this line. She delivered one package on which the freight amounted to 17 cents and took out two packages, amounting to $1.70. The stokers ceased the fires at this port while making a 10 minutes stop and one of the officers of the boat figures his company lost just $55 by stopping here.

The high school team of the Soo, which handed the Charlevoix team a 72 to 0 defeat last Saturday, will meet the heavy and fast Detroit Central high school team for the high school championship of Michigan. This is the first time that the Soo team has ever had a chance at the state championship and it will battle strongly for the honors. Petoskey has had but one chance at the state championship, meeting Muskegon in Petoskey, but being defeated.

Rev. A. L. Ten Vanderveer, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Harbor Springs, has mysteriously disappeared, according to confidential information given Emmet county officials. He was seen at Wequetonsing, a short distance from the harbor, but failed to appear at the union services, where he was expected to deliver the sermon. There is considerable talk in the effect that he has acted strangely and that he probably wandered away in a fit of despondency. He is unmarried.

The worst epidemic of turkey and chicken stealing that ever visited Antrim county has been recorded by the passing of Thanksgiving. Conservative estimates place the number of stolen fowls at the 1,000 mark. It is the concensus of opinion in Antrim county today that a large number of Thanksgiving dinners were furnished at far less than 22 cents per pound. It is customary for Antrim county to suffer from the marauding nocturnal visitor, but the boldness of thieves appears to grow. In some cases flocks of 27 birds were stolen.

Traverse City Record-Herald: John I. Gibson, secretary of the Western Michigan Development bureau, left for Ludington, Ill., to arrange for exhibits at the Illinois State Horticultural society convention. He will also have a good display of western Michigan apples. The dates of this meeting are Dec. 16, 17 and 18. From there the exhibit will go to Champaign, Ill., for a week and if the apples will hold up they will be taken a week later to Springfield, Ill., for the third show. At all these places the illustrated lecture will be given that has created such a favorable impression in other localities.

East Jordan Enterprise: On Sunday last, when Philip Becker, son of Frank Becker, a farmer living northeast of the city went to water their horses, he did not dream what was in store for him. He took the team as usual to the spring on the Malpass place, which is in a grove. As they were under the trees a wildcat, lynx or some such animal jumped or fell from one of the trees and alighted, claws down, on the horse Philip was riding. Naturally the horse ran away, throwing off both boy and cat, the boy escaping with only severe bruises. The horse ran until he reached a water gully into which he fell. The gully was quite deep, but the horse regained his feet, got out and went a short distance further and fell dead, evidently hurt internally by the fall into the gully.

Alden Special: Herman B. Babcock, 64 years old, shot himself back of the right ear with a 38-calibre revolver, from the effects of which he will die, as the bullet entered his brain. Mr. Babcock rose this morning and when partly through breakfast left the table, and upon his continued absence his little daughter, Ruth, eight years old, went in search of him and found him prone on the toilet floor with the revolver beside him. Mr. Babcock came to Alden from Denver, Colo., 18 years ago and has been a barber shop in the village ever since. He was extremely popular with everyone in Alden. He married Mrs. John Leonard of Alden 12 years ago. He formerly lived at Hubbardston, Mich., and is well known throughout this section of the state, and especially in Traverse City. He was more or less addicted to the drug habit and it is believed that this is what caused him to be despondent.

Traverse City Record: The steamer Illinois which will dock here Monday, will probably be the last Northern Michigan boat to make this port for the season. The line has done an unusually large business in produce, fruit and cider. For about five weeks the boats were making from three to four trips weekly, and during that time have carried between thirty and forty thousand bushels of potatoes, from the bay ports alone, at a trip. In the bay ports it is estimated that between six and seven hundred thousand bushels of tubers were carried from these ports to the southern markets, by the lake route. Aside from this exceptionally busy time the boats have been running regularly and carrying large loads on each trip. From these figures some idea of the enormous potato yield in this region can be gained, especially when the thousands of bushels which have been stored or shipped in cars, are considered.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens in Dublin, where Billy Reilly is leaving the Irish Constabulary for Labrador and the fishing. Another man, Dale, is also leaving the force, but for the wreck of the upper ten. Reilly's father, a retired colonel, and his sister Kathleen, are at the station when Dale arrives. Dale is called a "remittance man" and is sent to Canada by his family. Reilly, Dale, Kathleen and Reilly's father have a farewell dinner at the Reilly home. Dale, drinking heavily, insults Kathleen and is knocked down by her father. Dale is sent to Canada. Reilly, Dale and Reilly's father are on the train. Dale, drunk, insults Reilly's father and is knocked down by Reilly. Dale is sent to the smoking compartment. Reilly's father gives his son a farewell dinner and he sails for Labrador. Dale, sobered, is released by Reilly's father and sent after his son. Reilly, Dale and Reilly's father are wrecked on the Labrador coast. Reilly's father is injured by falling from a cliff and Reilly goes for help. Dale, left with the injured man, is starved into insanity by the cruelty of Reilly's father. Dale is found by a trapper and taken to his cabin. Reilly's father dies and Dale is left to care for the body. Dale, escaping, is chased by a bear and reaches a trading post. Reilly, recovering, is told by the trapper that Dale has gone south. Reilly goes south and finds Dale in a saloon. Dale escapes and Reilly follows him to a gambling house. Reilly is knocked down and robbed. Dale, recognizing Reilly, helps him out of the house and they start for home. Dale, drunk, falls from a moving train and Reilly, thinking he has killed his friend, is about to return to the Canadian wilderness when he receives a letter from Dale's sister, Kathleen, who says Dale is not dead but has been injured in a saloon brawl and is on his way home. Reilly returns to the trapper's cabin and they go to the Dale home. Dale, recovering, is told by Reilly that he killed a man in Montreal. Dale, with Reilly, goes to Montreal to find the man he killed. They find the man, who is a detective, and he says he will not prosecute Dale if he will "go straight." Dale and Reilly return to the trapper's cabin and Reilly leaves for his home in Ireland. Dale, left with the trapper, is nursed back to health and strength and, with the trapper, goes to the Yukon. Dale, with the trapper, is caught in a snowslide and is rescued by a band of Indians. Dale is made a member of the tribe and is married to the daughter of the chief. Dale, with his Indian family, returns to the trapper's cabin and finds his father living. The father, who has lost his memory, does not recognize his son. Dale, with his family, goes to his father's home in Ireland. The father recognizes his son and dies happy. Dale returns to the Yukon and, with the trapper, goes to the Labrador coast to find Reilly. Reilly, with his family, returns to Ireland and, with his sister, Kathleen, and her husband, goes to the Canadian wilds.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

Soon he was scribbling on the smooth side of this paper, sort of reminiscing to the bull a fountain-pen stickin' big out of his vest pocket. If he's been writing with ink, it warn't the larger—but no, we use canned milk, and haven't got any either. I've heard tell there's somethings made in tubes, but I'm not conversant of things wrote in spittle, so I pounce on a bottle of ink and rinse the paper in the water-butt. Yes, there's the message plain as print.

"Dan to the bull. Ammunition running wise, no good. Get 45. Billy to wait with ponies under nearest pine N. of cave, when plough above N. Star. Send mop, gum for chief's wound—Bull."

Billy was mounting at the door to put out a signal, but he stopped, he knows I can't miss under two hundred yards, he was persuaded to come into the cabin. There I read him some of the etiquette about keeping his temper and not using coarse language. Also I told him politely what I thought of him, so where he'll go when he dies. He waited, stroking the little fur on his muzzle, till I got through, look me so damned patient with me that I came near handing him one in the eye. "Very, without these robbers to my grass?"

He nodded.

"Thanks to you, my wife had a gun muzzle screwed against my ear, eh?"

"Yes, and I'm sorry."

"Making a silk purse out of a sow's ear."

"You lop-eared, mangy, pig-faced, herring-gutted son of a sow."

"From the Fitzgerald?" asked Billy.

"I don't think much of you, anyway. Rather ain't got no use for you either, or any of the neighbors, you old cow-bell!"

Now if Billy talked so big as all that, it must be to astonish the natives. So she stood by at the keyhole, and sure enough I heard her grind her stump with the backache from stooping down. Happens Mrs. Smith has a garden spot which I hold a gallon, so while I kept young Billy interested with patches of etiquette, I took up the hoe, filled the squirt, and let drive through the keyhole into the widow's ear. At that she lifted up her voice and wept.

Feeling better, I resumed the conversation. "Billy," sez I, smooth as cream, while I filled the squirt from the shelf there you'll find a little small bottle in my dim eye, I aimed to get him wanted and talkative, divulging secrets with all his heart. Then afterward I can take another aim at mischief.

"Do your bottle yourself" says he, sort of defiant, so I let drive at him with the squirt.

"If you don't behave" said I, and he got the bottle all right.

"Do you don't behave" said I, "will you cast draw the cork?"

"And if I won't?"

I took my squirt and watched him pull the cork.

"Thank you," sez I, seeing how beautiful is the use of true politeness. "Now may I trouble you to spill a little jet in the bottle into that there gob-hat? Nice be so kind?"

"I refuse!"

"The squirt won't scare any horse Billy, it's negative."

"I regrets to remark, Mr. O'Flynn, that this gun is not sort of wooden."

"Blood and you go to hell!"

"But ma, my dear young friend, I've time to lop off a few fingers, one at a time—won't make them all at once. Now I request you to pour out the medicine—No—not on the floor, please, but into the goblet, while I observe that your first thank sounds tender afore that cut, and ought to be treated. So, a little more. That's right. Now, thanks me by adding a little water from the pitcher. Thank you. Thought feeling soothes. Well, that there laudanum soothes the fractious infant, and causes a whole lot of rapture. Quite without sugar? Yes, please, you'll lift the goblet to your mouth while I watch that nothing goes wrong with your pug nose. You want to throw back your head, my teacher says swine. Drink, or I'll splash your brains on the floor!"

"I dare?" It's poison!"

"It's bullets—you'd better! Drink! One—two—"

"I'ud! Drink! One—two—I ain't obliged, I'm sure. Hope you're happy!"

"Curse you!" he shrieked, and flung the glass at my head.

Then down came the widow like a landslide. She scarcely put her face confused my sine, sobbed over her darling Billy avick, prescribed for the future, twisted her wet frock, and made a soap emetic for her offspring and boss. Yes, she's a sure fact that widow was plenty busy, and what with slinging that emetic at the patient, and gently introducing the lady to the kitchen cupboard, well, I reckon I didn't have a dull time myself. Then disturbed shots brought us all up standing.

"Dan to the bull, Billy shouted, "they're off!"

"Who's off?"

"Father and his men—escaped while I keep you in talk, you fool, Jesse! Pooled! I fooled you to the eyes! My father's Larry O'Flynn, Captain Larry O'Flynn, captain of the outlaws! My, there was pride in that! He sat on the table in the dusk, fighting to keep awake, rubbing his eyes with his sleeve. "His eye are leave to join, and I'm hitting the trail tonight—hitting the trail, d'ye hear?"

"Dan to the bull, Billy shouted, "they're off!"

"Father and his men—escaped while I keep you in talk, you fool, Jesse! Pooled! I fooled you to the eyes! My father's Larry O'Flynn, Captain Larry O'Flynn, captain of the outlaws! My, there was pride in that! He sat on the table in the dusk, fighting to keep awake, rubbing his eyes with his sleeve. "His eye are leave to join, and I'm hitting the trail tonight—hitting the trail, d'ye hear?"

"That's so," says Dale, and in two shakes of a dock's tail he was throwing his men into line. Meanwhile the widow, wild and lean, had flew, so that left Kate without help, her job being coffee to keep the boys awake, and bold daylight to corner the robbers.

Men watching on a strain like that get scary as cats, so by moonset some of our warriors seemed sure of gun at stumps, trees, rocks, or just because they felt lonesome. After the moon went down, dry fuel got scant, so that the fires waned, and some of your young men must have seen millions of outlaws. When at last something actually happened, it was natural that Kanosme should have adventures. He wasn't built for solitude, and when he seen a flag wave from behind a bush he called the boys from behind a stump to bunch in and corroborate. The flag kept waving, and pretty soon two more of our men had to join the bunch because they couldn't show bravery and cover, leaving the robbers near every word. I was away to Apes Rock, Iron Ore, and the camps, and these blasted idiots talked.

Of course old Whiskers knew that Annique will always crimp up in respect any waving rag. Before the enlistment was properly begun he saw the robbers slipped through our broken line.

If Kanosme has time to aim he's dangerous to the neighbors, but since the odds were a thousand to one the gun would kick him as far as near Thursday, I'd have but my desire he wouldn't hit the party with that flag. Yet that's what happened. He got the widow O'Flynn.

With one heart-rending, devastating howl she went to grass, and she did surely shriek as if there was no here after. Mortbend in the limb she was, and as I rolt to follow the sounds—them escaping robbers, I didn't have time to sound a carpenter.

CHAPTER IX.

The Untruthful Prisoner.

Jesse's Narrative.

With creditors, women, robbers, and everything dangerous, you want to be chuck full of department and a whole lot tactful. Anything disturbing or screaching disturbs one's peace of mind, and one's peace of mind is a blessed gift when a bear trap may happen at any moment. I traveled for all I was worth to put that widow behind me, and compose my mind.

Maybe I'd gone a mile before remorse gnawed Whiskers because he'd abandoned the widow. He paused, and as I come cursing along, he jammed me over the head with a gun.

Yes, I was captured. They got my gun, and marched me along to Twentyten. Old man Brown was away, but as I'd left the news on the road back, the robbers were able to cross, and put the Fraser between us and rescue. That could to have cheered him up, since it gave them a heap of several hours toward safety, but instead of skinning out of British Columbia, as I advised them with powerful strong talk, they'd got to stop for breakfast on old Brown's bacon and eggs, leaving most plentacous because he wasn't there to cook hot hassles.

After breakfast they wasted an hour dressing his pay for old Whiskers, and wondering whether they'd waste one of my cartridges on me, or keep them for my friends. On this I divulged a lot of etiquette out of my book. I told these mishegoshes of sparring they'd been brung up all wrong, or they'd have enough deportment to make tracks. "Now," says I, "in the land of the free and the home of the brave you have been appreciated, whereas if you linger here still scrap you'll be shot."

That made poor Whiskers still more simplotive, wondering what sort of heartrape guileful Smith was projecting. "Wants to put us up on the bench," says he, "that means wire traps. We'll stay right here, boys, by daylight, when we'll be able to see ourselves, how to save them cuttle."

"You're dead idiot, Whiskers!" says I. "Hair on you!"

But he being fearful with his wound, I let him be. Hot coffee was brought to us, and we ate breakfast, while I sat on the floor, with my back against the door, and my gun across my knees. Whiskers, since the liquor made his wound worse, lurched groaning against the shack. At the first glint of dawn, he ordered Bill to take out the peg and let down the key to unlock the door himself.

"It's a pity that Dale, our leader, a sure fine shot, has a slight cast in his near eye, which throws his lead a little to the right. That's why, when Whiskers went to the door, Dale's bullet only whipped off his left ear. I'm afraid of being grateful, Whiskers slipped around holding the side of his face, with remarks which for a poor man was extravagant. The shot made Bill bolt clearances behind the stove, to look for a bandage; he said, "Good day," and the greaser ran up on their tails looking sort of depressed. Not one of the four was injured, so I guess that they'd bolted themselves in the cabin instead of taking my advice and clearing for the States.

"Prisoner," said Whiskers, dolesome, holding his poor ear, "you can talk to your friends across the barricade."

"Why, certainly, Captain."

"What way?"

"Signaling!"

"Can the catcut, Colonel!"

"So Ginger! Ginger!"

"Show a white sou, Colonel, and I'm ready to parley." Bill and Dale replied with a white scarf and I made for him by—

"Dan!" I called, "you've hung that picture of the Lord upside down! Just look at it."

"That's just what I say, boys," returned the domestic dolefully. "Look at it! You can't say you can get that to stay lower to hang straight! to hang the picture crooked."

Mrs. Shapiro testified that Mrs. Steiner had visited her on July 2 and was advised of an heirloom in her room, which Mrs. Shapiro had occasion to place once or twice in a drawer of the dresser reposed the ring. On July 7, when Mrs. Shapiro missed her ring she called on Mrs. Steiner, and learned she had gone to Paterson.

"I am sure as I am upon your honor," said Mrs. Shapiro, "that if my father appeared to me, I could get him to identify the ring."

"Why, certainly, Captain." "What way?" "Signaling!" "Can the catcut, Colonel!" "So Ginger! Ginger!" "Show a white sou, Colonel, and I'm ready to parley." Bill and Dale replied with a white scarf and I made for him by—

Crops on Same Land For Between.

Though tobacco is the chief product of North Hornco, the land produces best crops of all the product in seven or nine years, with the result that new fields must be cleared every year. After the jungle is cut and burned an army of Chinese coolies is turned on the land with hoes to dig it and prepare it for the tobacco. No plows are used. The young tobacco plants are set out by hand and kept clean with hoes. It is necessary for a tobacco planter to possess thousands of acres of land, one-third of it in reserve, and to employ 200 to 1,000 coolies.

INDIANS NEW ROLE

Chief Fish Wolf Robe Becomes Dancing Master.

Picturesque Blackfoot Tribe Head, With an Eye and a Foot for Business Takes Advantage of Big Trespicherson Crase.

Denver, Colo.—In these days of discontent regarding poly demons and rhythmic motion and tango and turkey trot it is interesting to discover that one of the most distinguished of the chiefs of the Blackfoot tribe of Indians in Montana announces to the world that he is open to engagements. Fish Wolf Robe is businesslike and his card reads:

Fish Wolf Robe is a little, well dressed Indian and the various tribal costumes that he wears while dancing are beautiful. Money cannot purchase them, for they are ancestral robes which have been handed down from generation to generation.

In one dance he wears a headdress of eagle feathers tipped with colored horse hair and ornamented with a few small mirrors and quills. Many beautiful white wound robes have come down from the past and back of his bonnet, and at his side is a bustle in a heavily painted design of quills. The moccasins are decorated in black with designs symbolic of his tribe.

In other dances the chief wears his hair in long plaits bound with green and decorate his neck and large circular ornaments from the neck. Soft eagle feathers are fastened to his head.

When he dances every movement has a meaning that it is impossible for an outsider to understand. Sometimes he dances alone. At other times he dances with the other chiefs or in the center of a circle of warriors by chiefs and squaws. At Glacier National park his movements are in great demand and he is often engaged to entertain for an evening.

Hide hat in hand, a distinguished face and steps gracefully forth, swaying his body to and fro and keeping time with the beating of the tomtoms.

The costumes worn in these ceremonial and rhythmic folk dances are striking and the war bonnets are beautiful. Often the feathers extend from the head in a long train, which is a prominent feature of dress and bodies of the Indians who take part in the dances are painted.

Chief Fish Wolf Robe uses at times a sacred brown and black paint in his dances. In the dances his tribe Fish Wolf Robe and other chiefs wear elaborate sports and dresses, some beads and rattles made of deer and bison hoofs. Every painted design, their face and bodies and their costumes represents some war or corn, money, and love are particularly noticeable on the bead dancer, Fish Wolf Robe, who is consigned to the hot forever because of his lightness and agility.

Fish Wolf Robe dances the sacred hymn, the war song and the bison and corn dance. In the bison the crane song, the swan song, the strange antelope dance, the buffalo and the grass dance. Queer dances are these, with singular and graceful movements and many gyrations.

DEER IN WASHINGTON TOWN

County Jailor Kills Two—Other Hunters Also Big Game in Limits of Burg.

Montesano, Wash.—The hunting season is on in Chehalis county, and some interesting tales of game have been reported. Hank Hildebrant, county jailor, killed two fine deer within the limits of Montesano, while other hunters report getting game in the hills.

The bags of ducks and pheasants were not large, there being very few birds left, but the hunters report a yet. Chinese pheasants in the valleys are quite plentiful and the game birds are exceedingly active, endeavoring to prevent game violations.

Eight Policemen to Arrest One Man.

New York.—Eight policemen, called to arrest Pritz Mitch, who weighs 300 pounds, and who was surveying a new hot dog stand, found it impossible full to take the man into custody. Mitch, who was dubbed the "czar" of Pritz's place, his neighbors made bond at his when he was bent for a can 25 hour.

TRICKED A FRENCH WIDOW

Elegant Stranger, Said to Be a Priest, Got Her Rare Books and Disappeared.

Paris.—A man named Polpon, said to have been a priest at one time, has been arrested on a charge of being concerned in matrimonial swindles.

A month ago a wealthy widow met with an automobile accident and an elegantly dressed man, who said he had been an officer, took her to a cafe for refreshment. She fell in love with him and consented to marry him. He introduced her to Polpon as his nephew.

A week later the confiscator told his fiancee he had been appointed to a high position in Morocco and he asked that the marriage might be celebrated soon. He proposed selling the lady's furniture and sending to Morocco in advance her fine collection of rare books. She accepted and the books were packed up and taken away by "the bridegroom." That is the last that was heard of him for some time, but it was afterward found that he sold the rare books.

The ex-priest was arrested, but he professes his innocence, saying that he himself was the victim of the other man.

Servant Girl Gets Verdict for Blows Received When She Reproved Boy for the Theft.

New York.—A verdict of $7,000 damages against a thirteen-year-old boy has been returned by a Supreme Court Justice Cohalan, and the court refused to set aside the verdict. The plaintiff was Anna White, a servant employed in the family of Walter B. Crosby, a wealthy child, lived at 119 Broad street, who lives at 161 East Sixty-fourth street. Some time ago Walter, for jam on the ground that three years ago he struck her in the breast when she reproved him because he was helping himself to jam in the pantry. It turned out that a heart disease developed from the boy's blow.

As the boy will have no property from which the judgment can be collected until after he is of legal age, the plaintiff will be compelled to wait for some years, unless the judgment is settled in his behalf before that time.

PORT OF LAMBETH NOW GONE

Depicts Favorite Walk of Late George Tinworth, an Eminent Eng. Fish Sculptor.

London.—The above sketch of a part of Lambeth now gone depicts one of the favorite walks of the late Mr. Tinworth, the eminent sculptor was a deeply religious man, and had a fondness for the building shown in the illustration. Locally it was known as "Bunyan's Mission," and Mr. Tinworth evidently cherished the tradition that at one period Bunyan lectured in the building, and he used regularly to weed his way from the embankment through the archway to his studio at Doulton's. In the yard he built the church of St. Mary's, Lambeth.

SUICIDE SWAYS THIS FAMILY

Numerous Succession of Domestic Tragedies in England Puzzles Officials of London.

London.—A remarkable sequence of tragedies has been brought to light by the identification of the victims of poisoning in a hotel at King's Cross, London, as Mrs. Emily Cows, thirty-six, and her son, Alexander, twelve.

The boy was dead when discovered in the bedroom of the hotel, and his mother was unconscious, but she was revived by prompt medical aid.

Her husband, a York silk merchant, committed suicide by drowning himself in a bath.

Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ethel Cows, who was found dead in her room, the coroner's jury returning a verdict of suicide.

Mrs. Cows, who at the hotel gave the name of Alexander, was identified by the London Free hospital by Miss Clara Hicks from York, as her sister, who for some time had been a participated nurse in Lancashire. Mrs. Cows of York with her son on September 18.

When the other brother ended his life Alexander, who occupied the same bed, had a narrow escape. His brother had attached a tube to the gas bracket and placed the other end between the bedclothes. Alexander, when he awoke, felt ill, but was able to get up and turn off the gas. He was unable to awaken his brother, who was found to be dead.

The authorities made an analysis of some chocolates which were found in the room of the deceased hotel, and state that they contain morphia.

PRETTY KNICK-KNACKS FOR CHRISTMAS

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

There are so many designs in neckwear to choose from! Here are a few of them which are so artistically pictured by the artists that it seems almost unnecessary to describe them. They set forth some of the attractive styles that the season has brought into vogue.

The berthas and collars combined, made of net and lace, are among the most popular of styles. Plain or dotted net alone, or net combined with shaire lace, makes the body of the collar and the bertha as a rule.

Plaitings are usually of net and are adorned on many of the latter models. The fashion of using a band of lace as a stole or scarf, in shadow lace and other patterns, make it possible to produce these neck-pieces at a trifle of cost.

For wear with either dresses or coats the stole or scarf shown in Figure 1 is made in the designs pictured here. Plain fine net is liked for edging the allover lace. It is used as a fine binding in place of a hem and the addition of a fine cord or silk make an elegant finish at the top of the binding.

Little bonnets to be worn with silver covered with silk, are liked on neckwear and they appear in all the designs.

Two jabots with silk turn-over collars are handsome designs for older women. These collars are boned at the sides and often adorned with small sparkling rhinestone buttons or silk covered buttons matching the collar. Laces and sets are used for the jabots and when very sheer the plaitings are made double—that is, one falling over another, as shown in the picture.

High, close-fitting collars of net and lace are liked by young people. They are easy to make and a small bit of net and lace will furnish material for any one of a number of designs. They are usually finished with a tiny cravat bow of velvet or silk ribbon. Buttons, too, play a part in their makeup.

Such pretty ties are worn at the sides and back. These ties are finished with tiny bows and are very effective.

Very elegant little cravats of velvet, ribbon serve as a background for medallions of hand-crocheted lace. These are worn in the same promiscuous, young or old, and make most acceptable Christmas gifts. Frequently these are in the Irish lace patterns and very dainty. The cravats are made of black velvet, and stand laundering week in and out. The same medallion may be linked to cravats of different colors from time to time. Bright green velvet ribbon, lace and a pretty yellow rose are favorite past now.

Small fat cravat bows of silk are liked. They serve as a background for the new brooches and bar pins in novelty jewelry.

Neckwear will help out the Christmas shopper and are also less time to make up than more attractive finishing touches to the toilette at home will be also in golden many hearts at Christmas time with little expenditure of money.

PICTURE FRAMES OF CRETONNE.

Picture frames are cut out of heavy cardboard and covered with cretonne. The cloth is covered with a strong plain paper. Rings are added by which to hang them. Of dog may be made with a support, hinged to the back by means of a pasted bit of cloth, like as seen.

Useful Christmas Gift.

A clothespin apron is a useful Christmas gift. Buy one and a quarter yards of plaid linen toweling, and make a plain overday apron, saving the hem on the right side. Then fasten turn up the apron at the bottom, half way to the belt, and sew the sides together to make a large pocket. If you prefer two pockets, stitch through the center.

This design also makes a useful embroidery apron. Cut the apron and trimmed in the same manner, and decorated with rows of stitch. Mitten with fits the gift.

To Remove Paper.

A good way to remove old wall paper is to use the following solution: A thick pasty solution should be made by adding flour and a few ounces of acetic acid. This pasty solution should be applied with a brush to the old wall paper in quantities, after a few minutes the old paper can be removed in strips very easily and with very little dust or dirt.

The Fact Remains

No amount of misrepresentation by the peddlers of alum baking powders, no juggling with chemicals, or pretended analysis, or cooked-up certificates, or falsehoods of any kind, can change the fact that

Royal Baking Powder has been found by the official examinations to be of the highest leavening efficiency, free from alum, and of absolute purity and wholesomeness.

Royal Baking Powder is indispensable for making finest and most economical food.

Under the competition following the inauguration of the parcel post system the express companies of the country have sustained heavy losses in their earnings according to Representative David J. Lewis, co-author of the parcel post law. In making public figures he had collected on the earnings of the corporations, Mr. Lewis prophesied this within the near future the postoffice department virtually would have a monopoly of the transportation of small parcels and that eventually the government might take over the express corporations in their entirety.

Hoyne City Journal: The management of the Charlevoix high school football team is much put out over reports coming from Cadillac, making it appear that Charlevoix refused to play either the Traverse City or Manistee teams at all. The situation is not as Cadillac states. Manistee did not ask a game with Charlevoix until after suffering a defeat at the hands of Traverse City. Charlevoix turned down the proposition and waed for a game with the Traverse City eleven and could not arrange one. The game would have been played in Charlevoix and many followers of the county seat team are inclined to think that is the reason for Traverse refusing Charlevoix a game. The only game that Charlevoix has lost this season was last Saturday when the Soo boys got the big end of the score.

As the result of a law passed by the 1913 legislature, every school in the state is required to include in its curriculum such humane education as shall include the kind and just treatment of horses, dogs, cats, birds and other animals and also the important part they fulfill in the economy of nature. It is the purpose of the law not only to have kindness inculcated in the minds of children but also to have them appreciate the worth of birds and various animals in dollars and cents. It is estimated that a toad is worth about twelve dollars annually to the farmer on account of the number of injurious insects he will destroy. Many kinds of birds are even more valuable in their active warfare against destructive insects. In order to aid the teachers in this work, the department of public instruction has available for distribution a bulletin concerning the common birds of Michigan.

Quaer Taxes Abroad.

There are some queer taxes imposed in some of the countries of the old world.

In Servia vanity is taxed, a 40 per cent tax on wigs, on false hair on pride and bustles.

Bachelors are heavily taxed in several countries, but spinsters everywhere escape this impost.

Mayence [illegible] consider the bridegroom is thus the bride the greater the tax levied on him. In the idea Chinese theory that when an old man gets a young wife he is necessarily a fool, old men and one well able to stand a heavy tax.

In Italy salt is taxed. Matches are taxed in France. These things yield an enormous revenue, and the tax is very little felt.

Germany takes honey. If you prefer the plain you must pay a tax, and if you sing you are taxed again.

G. M. Dame, representing the Boughey & Dame Montmorency Cherry Orchard, says that more been are needed in the western Michigan country to insure the pollenization of the fruit blossoms. Thousands of trees have been set during the past few years and the number of colonies has been increased but little. The point has been reached where the present bee population is unable to render the service expected of it, and more colonies are needed. Mr. Dame believes that at least 50 new colonies should be established in his immediate neighborhood and several times that number should be located within what is properly known as the Northport section. Mr. Dame is sure that what is true regarding the needs of the Northport territory, is also true regarding sections of western Michigan where there have been heavy settings of fruit trees. He considers the need of bees so great, that he suggests that colonies be allowed to increase until all the blow trees in the woods are filled, as well as a goodly number of hives.

New Advertisements

This week the new ads that deserve attention are as follows:

H. R. Fowler, A. E. Mason, S. M. See & Sons, J. L. Crane, S. Orlowski & Son, C. Danto & Son, W. F. Graham, M. A. Levinson & Co., Argo Milling Co., Lomleurs' and Floyd Hettes.

December was ushered in with bare ground for Charlevoix.

Mrs. Gray and son, of this city, are keeping a hotel at St. Augustine, Fla.

Miss Dorothy Armstrong is in Chicago visiting her sister, who is in school there.

Whitefish spawn fishing is creating the usual flurry among fishermen, and the game wardens are busy.

Fletcher Empey, of East Jordan, was in the city Saturday in his auto, calling on old friends and acquaintances.

Mrs. O. D. bears left Wednesday morning for Battle Creek where she joins her daughter. Later she will visit friends at other places.

There is no finer line of job stock or a better equipment for executing fine and plain job work than you can find at the Sentinel office. Come in and investigate.

H. L. Decker was called to Croswell, Mich., Friday, by the sudden death of his mother. Deceased was expected here daily to visit her son when the sad news came.

The "House of David" steamer Rising Sun, which, by the way, was formerly the Minnie M., which once had the Mackinac-Soo run, was in port Saturday, with a load of slabs from High Island.

Charlie Gonser, who, with Mrs. Gonser, is touring the south in his car, writes us from Chattanooga, where he arrived the 26th. He is taking in the battle-fields, and then moves on to Florida. Both are well.

Farmers in central Michigan will be asked to stand a reduction of 50 cents a ton for sugar beets over the 1913 figures. says Manager George Wait of the Lansing branch of the Owosso Sugar Co. Secretary of State Martindale says the estimated yield of sugar beets in the state this year is 757,511 tons. The crop in 1912 was 528,490 tons.

Assessments are being mailed to property owners on South Main street, covering the matter of a sewer along that thoroughfare. There must be a small sugger in-the-fence in that State street sewer assessment, if we may judge from the high pitch of the boiler that is going up along the line. The kick almost amounts to an open insurrection.

The engineer of the State Highway Commission was here this week, and in conjunction with the county commissioners, work for next year is being laid out. The progress and character of the work this year has been eminently satisfactory to both the state and county. The county commissioners have made good, but will do better next year, after a traffic test of those sections of road which have been built.

George H. Van Pelt left here Sunday for Chicago, where joins a delegation of 100 prominent Chicago citizens, which left Chicago Monday morning by special train for Washington for the tenth annual convention of the National Rivers and Harbors congress. Questions of great importance to the interests of Chicago, and incidentally to the entire region of the great lakes, will be discussed. Mr. Van Pelt of course will apply his usual energy to the cause.

Michigan can feel proud of the progress that has been made in the line of agriculture in the past few years, and which is going on with an increasing rate in the future, says the Traverse City Record-Herald. Farmers have awakened to the fact that unless they get the most out of their farms they must keep in touch with the most modern ideas in regard to the business. As an indication of how the farmer is progressing it may be of interest to note that the enrollment at the state agricultural college is 50 per cent greater in the farm courses than at any other period, and in addition there are 140 students entered in the new two-year course that has been established.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Strachan left Friday morning for their winter home at Port Orange, Fla.

You cannot keep Dick Hammet away from Charlevoix. He is here with his family for the winter.

A. H. Buttars and wife, of Fulton, spent Thanksgiving in this city as guests of Hon. A. Buttars and wife.

The steambarge Schoden lately released from the beach here is taking a cargo of lumbering supplies to Beaver Island for W. E. Parmelee.

Alonzo Powers and wife are autoing through the South. They have been at Atlanta and last Saturday they were at St. Augustine moving toward Miami.

Mrs. W. Francis entertained a party of lady friends Saturday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Mrs. J. O. Plank, who is spending a month here, before going to Arkansas for the winter.

Wareham winter harvest has begun and good catches are reported. A. S. James fished down brought in a ton Friday. Mr. Stewart of the fish hatchery, has opened a campaign of pawn gathering both here and at the Island, and good results are looked for.

The steamship Illinois made her last trip when she left here Sunday for Chicago. She returns to Manistee and goes into winter quarters. The steamship Missouri has already laid up. The Manistee is being thoroughly refuelled at Chicago. This marks the close of navigation for Charlevoix, leaving lumber carriers and the Beaver and fishing tugs.

Well over $3,000,000,000 will be the total cash valuation of all property in Michigan next year when the state board of equalization meets. This is due to the work of the state tax commission, which during the last two years has been especially active all over Michigan and which proposes to remain active during the time between now and the meeting of the state board of equalization in August, 1914.

Improvements are being made all about town. The large cement addition to the Francis building, occupied by Danto & Son, is being roofed, the new built B. W. Miller house on Park avenue is nearing completion, and will be one of the best residence properties on that avenue. The rebuilding and enlargement of the Fowler building is about done and the opening is advertised in this issue. There is nobody idle in Charlevoix.

Since Warden Gaskin's return from Chicago there are signs of lively and quite extensive operations on the Chicago Club grounds for a month at least. Several changes and improvements are to be made on the golf course and a large new boat house is to be built on "the old river" front. Fifteen men will be employed for a month or more. The work embraces a new 36-foot dock on the present dock site, and ten boat houses, with a frontage of 151 feet. Mr. King, of the committee was here yesterday. Price Bros. of East Jordan have the contract.

Congressman Lindquist of Greenville, when asked whether he would be a candidate for re-election said: "Sure thing. I will be a candidate for renomination. I recognize that I will have an awful fight on my hands, but let it come. I was not given a fair deal in the redistricting when all but two of my counties were taken away from me and those two put in with Joe Fordney of Saginaw in the Fifth district. He is a strong man but the last election showed that his district is no longer the rock ribbed stronghold it once was.

It is a lamentable fact that there are people even here, in God's country, who will take and read their local paper for years, yet unpaid for, and when the publisher, just as the grocer or butcher would do, attempts collection, the paper is stopped, and forever after he has nothing but anathemas for the paper and its publisher. We have a score of such, and money well into the thousands, just as about every country publisher has. Such people now take the other paper and call it the best paper in the county, "just because somebody wanted what belonged to them." The grocer puts such people on the dead beat list. Why should not the publisher?

Judge and Mrs. Hogan were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keegan at Mackinac Island Thanksgiving day.

H. H. Harsha has moved his Real Estate and Insurance office to the Hartshorne Block over Blanchard's hardware store.

Circuit court came to an abrupt close Tuesday morning, when Judge Hogan discharged the jury, all cases but a few non-jury going over to next term.

A. F. Lewis, U. S. engineer, who has been here two weeks superintending repairs to the pier, received news Thursday of the sudden death of his father at Cincinnati. Mr. Lewis left by next train.

Thank the Lord, Charlevoix county is no longer interested in Mr. Lindquist—the "man from Michigan." Political destiny has removed him from our "sphere of usefulness." We cannot express the opinion that occupies our mind that Mr. Lindquist's name is "Danielle." Traverse City Record. There is a good deal of comfort in the thought that in order to get the Northern Michigan responsibility away from the Traverse City high school football team the other elements will be compelled to come here and take it away from its present owners. So far none of the self-styled champions have expressed a willingness to undertake the job.

Paul, the Indian printer, employed in this city was arrested here Wednesday, charged with being the man who assaulted Miss Ruth Miller at Petoskey one night recently. In the struggle he lost his hat, which was secured by the officers. To the hat was attached the tag of a Charlevoix dealer, and it has been shown that he bought a hat at the store in question. It looks dark for the Indian.

The city council had a high old time Monday night over the water and sewer extension proposition. A large lobby of taxpayers on that street invaded the council room and vigorously protested against what they consider a wrong. There may be an equitable longer which justifies the course of the council, but if we may judge by the excitement caused, there is reason for the protest. On Friday night of this week the matter will be threshed out.

There is a shortage in the ice supply of the Great Lakes, which is increasing the demand greatly from the usual November proportions, and there is a fair price. The Booth Fisheries Co., the enormous shipments of which have consumed nearly the ton, was the first to feel the pinch. Monday they brought a boat-load from the Stuart farm, near Ironton, established a container, is and is buying from Beaver Co. to supply his customers. But a cold snap will end this trouble.

Thanksgiving night a party of young folks held high revel and made merry at the home of J. A. Cameron on Water Boulevard, with Mrs. Ada Monty as chief entertainer. Mrs. Monty received a number of French and English selections with her inimitable charm and perfection of expression and everyone delighted her audience with a French dialect version of "Old Mother Hubbard," appearing in costume. Candy making, games and music helped to make the occasion memorable as a real "old fashioned good time" peculiarly expressive of the true Thanksgiving spirit of cheer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rachow left Wednesday for Copemish, Mich. They received word that Dr. Alex. S. Cornwell, their personal friend and former family physician, has been killed in an automobile accident. The Doctor had been out and run his large car into his barn, and stopped to put additional supplies preparing to go out again on a hurried call. He had failed to put the machine out of gear and when he cranked it to start the car for going out, it jumped upon him, jamming him through a work bench and the end of his garage and it is reported the Doctor died a short time.

THAT STATE STREET SEWER

An Insurrection Against What is Alleged to Be an Unjust Special Sewer Assessment—Action Will Probably be Rescinded

Friday night at the council room may be termed a Kick, and it is no wonder. The previous action of the council in spreading an assessment on south State street property owners seemed to involve an inequality of taxation that was out of harmony with the general principle of justice.

But there are two sides to the question. The proposed sewer was and is a public necessity, but therugon hangs a tale. The main trunk line is through State street. There is already a sewer on every east and west street, upon which every corner lot is entitled to an extension of 135 feet. Added to this are the Dechaine street exemptions.

This necessitates what they call a "blanket" assessment on State and Newman streets to make up the shortage. How the difficulty will finally be fixed it is difficult to say, but there is little doubt that the council will be compelled to rescind its action.

"The Public Be Damned."

The Pere Marquette P. R. is governed by three receivers. If it can by any possible means be construed as one of their functions they should be compelled to "receive" some of the exceptions that are daily sent in their direction by a long suffering public, or that important portion of it which depends upon railroad freight service for its daily bread.

Our loading industry, the Rock Product Co., has, during the past year, to our individual knowledge, lost contracts because of the failure of the R. R. Co. to supply cars, or move them after they were secured and loaded. Times without number the plant has been temporarily shut down from these causes, and as we write the Rock Product Co. has cars of perishable chemical lime and gondolas of best sugar stone on its tracks that have been there three days awaiting the P. M. switching engine.

And the second lesson to the regular service usually is that the cars are from a week to ten days in transit to points in the state. At this writing a permanent shut-down is imminent because of the absolutely rotten freight service on the P. M. Ry.

This not only affects the stockholders of the Rock Product Co., but it touches every employe. We hope the time is not far away when Charlevoix will not be entirely dependent upon the P. M. Ry. The service of that road is serious handicap to the development of this region on this shore between Petoskey and Traverse City.

It is "The Public Be Damned."

"Come On Fellers"

Charlevoix boys are no worse than any other boys, but they, in common with all boys, pass through a period of life that, for want of a better name, may be called the "soft" period, when they want to cuff everything that crosses their path.

It is period when their lungs are the strongest and their sense of courtesy the weakest. It is the period when, as a rule, the grown-ups should have charity and exercise forbearance.

But there are boys in Charlevoix, as elsewhere, who need spanking. They regard nothing as entitled to respect but their own dear selves. They are rude and discourteous to their seniors on the street, and that means that they are rude and discourteous at home. They are in the rowdy period; they may outgrow it, or some husky lad of decent proportions may sometime knock it out of them.

There is an idea in everything, and we have in our mind an ideal boy. He is a boy who carries his head high looks you squarely in the eye. He has the brains that God has given him, and they are not clouded by cigarette smoke and the minor vices that follows in its wake. He can defend his just rights with his fists if necessary, and will take his chances in every athletic contest that has danger in it. He is clean of speech and respects gray hairs. He never refers to his father as "the old man;" He is "mama's boy" only in that quality which honors motherhood—masculine but manly. He resents an insult to himself or his friend at the drop of the hat. Every inch that he grows in stature he grows in sterling character. He "ponies" nothing, but gets everything first hand and turns it to good account. He is not afraid or ashamed to work where he sells his hands or his clothes.

These are the boys that move the world. Oh, for more of them.

Croup and Cough Remedy.

Croup is a terrible disease, it attacks children suddenly,often at night and they are very apt to choke unless given the proper remedy at once. There is nothing better in the world than Dr. King's New Discovery. Lewis Chamberlain, of Manchester, Ohio, writes about his children: "Sometimes severe attacks we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for coughs, coughs and colds." So can you. 50c and $1. A bottle should be in every home. At F. G. Hines & Co.

TUG MARTIN SINKS

Old Charlevoix Craft Put Out of Business By Local Inspectors and Then Sinks

Information has come to Captain Charles H Westcott, United States supervising inspector of steam vessels for the eighth district, says the Detroit Free Press, that the United States local inspectors in Marquette have revoked the certificate of the tug James H. Martin.

The Martin is the tug, which, in a bottle message bearing the name of United States Deputy Marshal Chas. Kennon, was charged with having abandoned the barge Plymouth, near Gull island, Lake Michigan, during the great storm of Nov. 9-11, in which the barge and her crew of seven persons were lost.

Action of the local inspectors in Marquette, in revoking the Martin's certificate of inspection, according to their report is based on the unseaworthiness of the craft and her equipment.

A dispatch received Monday night from the correspondent of the Detroit Free Press in Manistique, announced that during the day the tug had mysteriously sunk at her mooring place there.

In the controversy between Captain Louis Rotensky, master of the tug and D. L. MacKinnon, her engineer and owner, which has followed the investigation of the circumstances of the tug's departure from the Plymouth, the former alleges that the condition of the tug forced her to seek safety while Mr. Kinnon is reported to have declared that the manner in which the tug was handled seemed to him to indicate incompetency and unskilled seamanship.

The Martin was for many years a Charlevoix towing tug, owned and sailed by Capt. T. D. Smith. She had strong power, but was old enough to vote when she left here fifteen years ago.

SHAKSPEARE CLUB

Annual Banquet a Society and Literary Event Auspiciously Ushered the Winter Study

The annual banquet of the Charlevoix Shakspeare Club, with Mrs. Iddings Thursday evening, was one of the greatest literary and social events of the waning year. The floral decorations of the beautiful home were of a abundance and beauty that added interest to the occasion. They were simply beyond description.

There were 29 members present, and the president, Mrs. Hirsch happily opened the banquet, introducing Dr. R. B. Armstrong as toastmaster. The first number was by Lizie Shanahan, whose topic was "Charity," and his text was "Charity Pulls the Law," from "Love's Labor Lost." Mr. Shanahan concedes that his address was scholarly, and nobody denies it.

Miss Constance Iddings, accompanied by her sister, rendered a vocal solo. H. S. Harsha also responded to the toast "The Optomist." Geo. W. Priest talked about "Modern Eve" and got himself into trouble.

Then a special attraction was pulled off by the banquet committee, which was wierd but satisfactory. It was "Bacon Day" at Shakspeare's Plays. Shakspeare on Bacon," and both then ancient celebrities were brought from their graves, from which they had "burst their cerements" to settle the vexed question. It is unnecessary to state that the "Bard of Avon" was out, and the last seen of Bacon was when he emerged from the south end of the park going rapidly in the direction of Norwood.

Miss Dorothy Iddings furnished piano music during the banquet, and musicians Paul Harsha, Willie Hampton and Lloyd Auld served the tables.

The banquet was a most elaborate affair, and the service was beyond criticism. It was a splendid social gathering. A pleasant incident of the event was the presence of Mrs. Lizie Shanahan, who has been so seriously ill for nearly a year.

FUTURE OF MICHIGAN TIMBER

We Have Only to Wait 50 to 75 Years For Second Crop

Great as has been the slaughter of Michigan timber which has ranged from three to five billion feet annually for last 50 years, State Forester M. Bohan believes that within 50 to 75 years the timber in the forests will be valued at $75,000,000 to $225,000,000. This is report shown that the state at this time owns 200,000 acres of timber land. The timber land is in several reserves, but the trees will be of sufficient size for timber cutting will begin in 25 years. Trees are being planted yearly and within 50 years all of the state land will have growing trees upon it. It is figured that in 50 to 75 years there will be an average of 20,000 feet of timber on every acre of state forest land. Norway and white pine and Norway pine, which is now being set out on some reservations, are each 35 feet high and feet on the stump on about. It is likely of by the experts that the timber will be worth from five to ten times as much in 50 to 75 years as it is now selling for. With these figures the forestry experts declare that the state now has Eden lands which will bring the commonwealth the treasury millions of dollars.

Part of the money will come to the state annually, beginning in a few years when it is believed the state owned its trees or a part at least, on second reserves, will be ready for cutting. As soon as these trees are cut young trees will replace them and after a lapse of a century the state will be cutting the old trees and setting out new ones yearly.

Michigan has several large forest reserves and many smaller ones. The Lake Superior and Lake county forest has 89,000 acres, the Roscommon forest 15,000 acres, Houghton county 40,000 acres, Grand Traverse 7,500 and a number of smaller ones ranging from 5,000 to 10,000 acres each.

The state is purchasing all land within the forests which is not owned by the commonwealth and within a few years it is claimed that the reserves will be composed of land owned entirely by Michigan. In several instances the state has traded land on the outside of its reserves for land in the interior owned by private individuals and it will do so in the future whenever possible. As soon as all the land in a reserve is owned by the state, roads leading through the forests no longer necessary in many cases, and as a result are closed, thus doing away with the danger of fire.

CLAIM $20,000,000

Michigan Indians Think They Have Found Holes in Treaty Signed in 1833

Approximately 500 Ottawa and Chippewa Indians in Michigan early this month expect to enter a claim for $20,000,000 against the United States government for alleged deprivation of valuable lands and fishing rights in the great lakes. Several attorneys who have investigated the claim which is said to be the most gigantic ever entered against the public domain by Indians, say it is valid.

Two former claims of similar nature made by these Indians were recognized as valid by the government and something over $200,000 paid to the tribes.

The validity of this latest and largest demand against the government is based upon the interpretation of the treaty of 1833 between the government and twelve Indian tribes, including the northern Michigan Ottawas and Chippewas.

Until recently it was supposed that under the terms of this treaty the red men had signed away all rights to land where South Chicago is now located, to all the great lakes' islands and to unrestricted fishing rights in the lake waters, as well as other property of common values in Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan. It now develops that through faulty wording of the treaty and through oversight the South Chicago land, the great lakes islands and the fishing rights were not included in the treaty.

Some of the lake islands involved in the fishing rights' claim are: North and South Manitou, North and South Fox, Beaver with its cluster of lesser islands, Mackinac island, Bois Blanc and numerous fishing bays.

Calumet Trouble Renewed

The strike terror at Calumet is renewed with violence and murder.

On Sunday night three non-union men were shot dead and a little girl probably fatally injured by Western Federation gun men. All the victims were asleep in their home when the attack occurred.

Any cause, be it that of union labor or non-union, that depends upon violence and murder to sustain itself should and must fail.

The strong arm of military law is the only thing that can check this bloody trouble, not Gov. Ferris should send troops with orders to do a little killing on account of the state of Michigan and the supremacy of the law.

START MOVE TO PENSION TEACHERS

BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF STATE FEDERATION MEET IN LANSING.

DR. CHADSEY MAKES ADDRESS

Declares Age Limit Should Be Placed at Fifty-Five for Women and Sixty for Men—Many Retire Too Early.

Lansing.—A movement to place the public schools in charge of the teachers pension law was started at a meeting of the board of directors of the State Federation of Teachers close in Lansing at which Miss Ione Lamun, president of the Detroit Teachers association, is representing Detroit.

The pension bill defeated in the last legislature by a small vote on the ruling of Attorney General Grant Fellows that it violated the state constitution in providing for payment for services not rendered, is expected to be reintroduced shortly by a bevy of state teachers and a bill in which it is proposed to place the teachers retired under the pension.

The present campaign will be waged with the view of educating the public and members of the legislature to the worthiness of the cause. Many other states have such laws.

"Pensions for teachers are practical and commendable," declared Dr. Chadsey. "In Colorado there is a law which permits the payment of teachers pensions by special tax levy of one-tenth of a mill. This has been complished much by a levy of one-twentieth of a mill. In Michigan there is fifty-five for women and sixty for men and I think it a fine thing for us.

"Many Detroit teachers are retiring under the provisions of the local pension plan when they are but forty-five. I think that is too early for a teacher to retire, as a teacher is at his or her best between the ages of forty and fifty.

"I think most teachers should be retained in active service until they are at least sixty. The greatest intellectual work is done in the prime of life. Look at the Mexican border. Adjutant General Vanfleet tells us that there will be 700 officers of the National Guard present.

Reports of the company commanders show that no men lost their positions as the result of service in the copper country.

Lansing Gets Next Meeting.

At the closing session of the biennial convention of the Michigan Retail Vehicle and Implement Dealers Association in Grand Rapids, William A. Decker of Grand Rapids presented plans for an extensive campaign to promote better relations between dealers and farmers. One of the prominent features of the plans is an automobile trip by all of the counties of the state.

The next annual convention will be held in Lansing.

Governor Praises Guardsmen.

"I am here to pay a tribute to the Michigan National Guard," declared Governor Ferris, speaking at the dedication of the new $80,000 armory in Kalamazoo.

"I do not believe there is a state in the Union that has made better progress for its guard.

"I am not here to defend the governor of Michigan in his course taken in the north. It was his duty to act and he acted. Instead of sending four or five hundred men, he sent them all, so that if there was work to be done, it could be done quickly.

"During the strike it was necessary not to destroy, but to preserve life. When we lost one life by accident I felt grieved, beyond my power to express. I don't believe a single citizen was not fair with the men down in the National Guard. They have rendered the state of Michigan a service which up to this time has not been appreciated. I do it now it because my feelings are hurt, but because I want the people of Michigan to think.

"One of the elements of manhood I prize most highly is loyalty. If everybody could be loyal we would have no vice problems to solve. Social crimes are due to disloyalty. The National Guard was loyal to its principals and loyal to its chief, and I want to say I appreciate its loyalty. I am a friend of the laborer and as big a one as there is in the state. I was born in a log cabin, but I have no credit in that. I had to take what was coming to me.

"So far as I am in power, because I am a friend of labor, I propose to informe the authorities at Washington of the injustice done the Michigan National Guard. I want the men who have done the work of Michigan to have the praise due them and not the slander which has been circulated in the east and in other quarters. I am tired of it. My time is too valuable to waste money. Enjoyment is the great aim in each man and hope how to enjoy the fruits of their labor.

"Last of all, I wish personally to thank your citizens by proxy, I forgive Governor Gallery, for the work he has done for me in the north."

Banks Show Gain In Three Months

According to the report of State Banking Commissioner H. H. Dean, Michigan state banks and trust companies show a gain of $7,000,000 in aggregate business since the last report, August 9, 1915. During that period there was a gain in deposits amounting to $1,353,[illegible]62, which total represents deposits amounting to $[illegible]464,34. State banks increased capital stock $[illegible].

As compared with a report made by the department November 26, 1912, of a year ago, the report shows an increase in loans amounting to $[illegible]6,173. In the same period the deposits for the year amounting to $19,572,942.29. The capital stock increased for the period mentioned to $1,369,820. For the year ending November 14, the year the commercial deposits increased $457,385.87, while the savings deposits increased $446,078.47. Taking the last report as compared to the August report, a three months' period, and comparing with the report of a year ago, it will be found that the banks have gained in resources about a fallog off during the last three months.

The total resertve maintained by Michigan state banks and trust companies on October 31, 1913, was $[illegible]5,[illegible]5, or 19.13 per cent. The total reserve on October 14, 1914, was $[illegible]706,07, or 18.7 per cent. It will thus be seen that the reserve maintained by Michigan state banks is 11.04[illegible] per cent.

Based on savings deposits of $217,[illegible]27,[illegible]8 the reserve required and bond investments of at least 11[illegible]. The report shows that the mortgages and bond investments exceed the requirements of the law by $3,[illegible]4,[illegible]6. Savings investments together with the savings reserve exceed the savings deposits by $5,[illegible]2,[illegible]5.

During the period of January 1, 1913, to November 14, 1913, 14 new banks and one trust company with a total capital of $[illegible] have been organized. They are: Au Gres State bank, at Gles Lake; Commercial State bank, Newport, $20,000; People's Savings bank of Cooperville, Cooperville, $20,000; People's State bank of Carlo, $40,000; Arenac County State bank, Omer, $25,000; People's State bank of Belleville, Belleville, $20,000; Legacy State bank, Dearborn, $20,000; First Commercial State bank, Royal Oak, $25,000; Waterloo State bank, Waterloo, $25,000; Hamilton State bank, Romulus, $20,000; Rose City State bank, Rose City, $25,000; Farmers' Bank of Linwood, Linwood, $20,000; Port Austin State bank, Port Austin, $20,000; Pittsford State Savings bank, Pittsford, $20,000; Central State Bank of Indiana, Indiana, $20,000; State Bank of Cedar, Cedar, $20,000; Springville State bank, Springville, $20,000; Commercial Bank of Stambaugh, Stambaugh, $25,000; Grand Rapids Trust Company, Grand Rapids, $500,000.

Kalamazoo Man Heads Dentists.

Officers were elected by the 700 delegates to the annual convention of the Southwestern Michigan Dental association in session here. They are: President, Samuel A. Lewis, Kalamazoo; vice-president, Dr. B. B. Parrish, Battle Creek; secretary and treasurer, Dr. R. A. Steele, Three Rivers. The next meeting place is to be chosen by the officers. The association voted to affiliate with the American dental association. It also appointed a board of censors to pass on all applicants to practice.

Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION

Detailed Proceedings of the Saginaw Convention, Written by a Charlevoix Boy Delegate

Friday afternoon, Nov. 28th, the delegates registered from two to four o'clock at the Auditorium.

There was a meeting of the Nominating committee at four o'clock.

At five o'clock the opening business meeting of the Conference was held at Jefferson Ave. M. E. Church. Thirteen hundred Michigan boys were served at the banquet by the Saginaw girls and boys. Music was given by the Y. M. C. A. mandolin orchestra. Following this the invocation was given by Rev. Frederick Spence.

A number of songs and yells were given for a few minutes by the different delegates.

The Alpena Boys' Band played a few pieces, then the song, "Michigan, My Michigan," was sung and whistled by the boys. The rest of the evening was spent in words of welcome and responses by 1912 officers, addresses and music.

Mayor Albert W. Townsend, of Saginaw, welcomed the delegates, as did also Rev. Francis C. Steffer, in behalf of the churches, and Mr. M. N. Brady, president of Saginaw Y. M. C. A., in behalf of the Y. M. C. A., and from the boys by Mr. W. C. Humphrey, Jr. Mr. Donald Wells, president of Grand Rapids Y. M. C. A., and Mr. Frank Dane, secretary of Croswell Y. M. C. A., gave responses. Then followed music by Alpena Boys' Band.

The addresses were: "Michigan Boys," by Wm. H. Gay, Grand Rapids; "The Season's Challenge," by C. C. Robinson, New York. "What's the Use?" by A. E. Roberts, New York.

Saturday morning breakfast was served at Y. M. C. A. building for the leaders from country fields, lead by A. E. Roberts, and leaders from city fields lead by J. M. Artman.

At 8:30 Conference divided into two sections—country and city, in the city boys' section we had song service for one-half hour. Eugene C. Foster, of Detroit, gave an address, "At the Fork of the Road."

Following papers were read by the boys: "High School Boys and Cooperation," by Robert Bennett, Grand Rapids; "Working Boys and Cooperation," by Wilson Morrison, Detroit. "Sunday School and Y. M. C. A.," by Ralph Waldo Lankanaster; Co-operation in Winning Boys to Christ," by Reuben Fenner, Cadillac.

Following these papers was a discussion, led by C. C. Robinson. A city boy said, "One advantage the farmer boy had of him, was that he could g.t more pure air than he could." A country boy said, "The city boys and people co-operate more than they do on the farms. Boys should co-operate more in the country."

At 11:00 both sessions met. After a few songs by the boys, A. E. Roberts of New York gave an address on "Conversation." He told us a message from other conferences of certain boys who are now doing great work now, making their first start from the Y. M. C. A. conference. He said, "The country boys and city boys should co-operate more together." In this way the farmers would get better prices, and city people in general would not have to pay so much. The loyalty of a boy at home—that he should co-operate more with his father; work with him. In this way he would be more like his father wanted him to be. The habit a person should in school to co-operate with the teacher in getting help.

"The Close Relation of the Y. M. C. A. With the Churches."

After the meeting Saturday morning the boys got tickets to go to different churches for dinner and supper. Then the Conference Parade, headed by the Alpena Boys' Band, was photographed by H. N. Nelson, of Detroit. Then we marched around by the different churches and the fellows went to them readily.

Saturday afternoon the fellows visited the gymnasium and swimming pool at Carl Manual Training School on the east side, and the gymnasium and swimming pool at Y. M. C. A. building on the west side.

In the evening discussion groups met in six groups as follows: "Church Clubs and Sunday School Classes," led by E. C. Foster; "City X. M. C. A.," led by S. B. Johnson; "Country Y. M. C. A.," led by A. E. Roberts, "Employed Boys," led by C. C. Robinson; "Boy Scouts," led by Dr. J. H. Sowerby; "Adult Leaders," led by J. M. Artman.

At 7:30 a band concert was given by the Alpena Boys' Band, followed by an organ recital by Earl Mellen, Bay City. Then a paper, "Work Done in Schools and Churches." Can get ahead better by leading a Christian life.

Invitations for the next convention were received from Ann Arbor and Kalamazoo. Kalamazoo crowd won in the center of Auditorium and on each side a large crowd for Ann Arbor—who got 500 votes, Kalamazoo 240 votes, and Bay City 11 votes. Moving pictures were shown of educational and athletic.

Coach J. F. Macklin, of M. A. C., talked on the Christian Side of Man in Athletics. He told of a man, who was a Christian, in a large football game and the coach wanted them to do some dirty work; the man told the coach he could count him out if they did not play square. Said of a man thinking of the Bible when he gets sick. Also said, "That a boy should do what his mother expects of him."

C. C. Roberts, of New York, talked on "The Working Boy." Told of boys going out to work because they had to. Told of one smart boy from a smart family trying to get a job. The gentleman applied to, asked him several questions and was about to hire him, asked him if he smoked cigarettes; the boy did not answer then—he finally said "No." The gentleman asked him to hold up his two fingers, then told him he did not want him because he could not trust him after telling a lie, and having bad habits.

This is to show that a boy should become a Christian, and that he would get along much better than the other fellow.

He asked everyone to be quiet. For about three minutes it was so quiet that one could hear a pin drop, then he gave a prayer.

Sunday morning the delegates attended church with their hosts. Sunday afternoon, at 3:30, the older boys' meeting was held at the First Congl church. The address, "Can It Be Done?" by A. E. Roberts, of New York. He said, "That a person should be clean in every respect." Told of a "Sunday" when asked what character was repeated, "that it was the fellow in the dark, and would play square in a game." Told of a boy who was a bad boy, but he was a good fellow. Said, "That a person should be clean in every respect." Told of a "Sunday" when asked what character was repeated, "that it was the fellow in the dark, and would play square in a game." There is a great price on character now days.

The 20th century chimly was to treat another's mother or sister as you would want yours treated.

The large power of Jesus Christ helping the people.

About one hundred boys went forward that afternoon.

The conference closed officially Sunday night with a well attended farewell meeting in the First Congl church. State boys' secretary J. A. Van Dis of Detroit and Coach Upton of Grand Rapids gave talks, and C. C. Robinson of New York made a short address. Rev. N. S. Fenske, D. D., led in prayer. The meeting was the last and the words of Messrs. Van Dis and Upton were listened to closely by the boys. Both administered the boys to go home and lead clean straight lives.

Closed by joining hands across the aisles and singing, "Blest be the Tie That Binds."

Canals of Venice as Sewers.

One of the illusions of life are shattered. Was has not heard of the moonlight rides of Venice, the sweet singers who are wafted across the waters in river guide their graceful craft through the canals of the street. Isle city? "I need to think here poetic," said a polite Italian traveler, "but I forget the real reason for their singing was a very practical one. Venice has absolutely no sanitary regulations, and the little canals are just so many sewers into which is dumped all the garbage from the houses. There is no system of plumbing, and the refuse is simply thrown from the windows, so unless you let the boatmen know you are passing by you are apt to get a dose of dirty water or garbage."—New York Volume.

Agents of Gout.

An English nobleman in a London club one evening gave some of the following metaphorical description of that gout:

"You lie in bed," he said, "with the gouty foot stretched out, and you feel as though the sole of it was pressed against the bars of a redhot fire. In the middle of the fortune is a fellow with a gun loaded to the muzzle with redhot needles. Presently he fires the gun at your foot, and you feel the redhot needles travel up your leg and come out at the knee, not all at once, but like the animals that went into the ark, two by two. When the last redhot needle has finished the course you find yourself exercise with foot and wondering how long it will be before the fellow fires the gun again. Presently you find he is under contract to fire it every five minutes, and you are ready for the discharge, but you can never be sold to get accustomed to it, because the last ignorant bungler with a new kind of redhot needle every time and sometimes adds half a dozen redhot corkscrews. That's the gout."

Who would patronize gout after this?

The Spider and the Bee.

A correspondent of Countryside was sitting one day upon an English moor watching a large leather spider, as he crouched expectant in its web. Suddenly to save the spider from entry the web with its feet and shake it with all its might. After awhile it repeated the operation, and soon the reason became apparent. Whenever a bee came near the web the spider gave this warning signal. It did not want any such visitor. If a bee happened to get entangled in the web the spider at once cut out that part and so rid itself of the unwelcome guest. Surely any creature can weave a web more intricate than a honeycomb, and moreover, that it should possess the brother of a peaceful power to cut the web in the best place and there immediately avail its prey suggests that the blother fine between instinct and reason is far from distinct.

The Word Lady.

Connected, no doubt, with the cheapening of the word "lady" has been the practical disappearance of the "gentlewoman." The distinction between the two was brought out in the seventeenth-century rules of civility, which declared that "in visiting a lady it is not enough to admit her, but her gentlewoman also, if she be then present." At the beginning of the nineteenth century "one who has mixed with attentive observation the into velvet Indies in kingdoms and governments, said, with a precision almost prophetic, foretold what would happen" when tired in the Tower Bible resolution to "give such advice to persons of rank as may prove of the very utmost importance to them." When a lady requires an interpreter," said the author, "a gentlewoman will give her the meeting."—London Mail.

Joseph Didn't Get It.

It is related that Napoleon ordered from Bremont the famous Paris watchmaker, a watch for his brother Joseph, who was at the time king of Spain. The king was of blue enamel decorated with the letter "J" in diamonds.

In 1815 Napoleon was present at a military parade when a messenger arrived bearing a brief dispatch, in which it was stated that the French army had been completely defeated at Vittoria. It was manifest that Spain was lost. Always severely practical, he put Napoleon dat after glancing at the dispatch, was to turn to his servant and say, "Write to Bremont and tell him that I shall not want that watch."

It is believed that the watch was eventually bought by the Duke of Wellington.

CHARLEVOIX PROTESTS

Claims That Ranking Sawdust City First in Northern Michigan is Injustice.

Charlevoix special to Grand Rapids Herald. Members of the team and followers of the squad throughout the most successful football season the local high school has ever experienced are up in farms over the statements made in the state press by the Cadillac management regarding the results of the football season in northern Michigan and the absolute elimination of Charlevoix and Petoskey in the mythical eleven of the district. Cadillac's action has probably caused the severing of athletic relations with schools in the extreme northern section of the district. The situation is deplorable as is not desired by the local management, but comes after many years of continual squabbling by Cadillac.

The Charlevoix followers fail to see what Cadillac is gaining for herself in ignoring the local high school's claim the championship of northern Michigan. Cadillac was severely trounced in her two important engagements with Traverse City and Manistee, which put her at the foot of the ladder, as far as the title is concerned. Charlevoix defeated every team that faced her this season with the exception of the Sons, and made repeated efforts following that defeat to secure a game with Traverse City to settle the championship.

Early in the season Cadillac absolutely refused to couple up with the local aggregation, owing to the defeat at the hands of Manistee. Following Manistee's defeat by Traverse City, Cadillac then claimed the N. M. L. title by virtue of her victory over Traverse among her first dates, which went Cadillac's way by a fluke. Traverse City in the second game of the season humped Cadillac, but as usual, the later city claimed the game by forfeit because one of the Traverse men was a little off color. Nothing authentic, however, has ever been started by Traverse City in this regard.

In making out the mythical eleven which is supposed to be representative of the section of the state, no consideration was given by the Cadillac sport ing scribe to Charlevoix or Petoskey. In Quarterback Ned Durance Charlevoix has a youngster that has caused every team in the north to worry. Traverse City acknowledges his superiority as a pilot man, as do others. He is light, barely weighing in at 140, but possesses a knowledge of the game that allows him to run his team in a manner that for cuteness any quarterback in the district. He has captained the Charlevoix team for two seasons and his work during the past two years justifies its being placed on the chosen eleven.

Without doubt the fastest halfback in northern Michigan is Wright of the Petoskey squad. Wright plays a heavy game and is strong on the defense and offense. It has been his work that has allowed Petoskey to make the showing she has. Last year Atkins, Boyne City, and Bennett, of Petoskey, were severed between Cadillac and Petoskey, and it is for this reason, it is thought, that Cadillac refuses to recognize Wright.

Two other men from the Charlevoix squad have not been considered by the Cadillac sportsmen, and who, it is thought by Charlevoix critics are equal to any of the men occupying the same positions in this district. These men are Scroggie, a halfback, and Sinnico at the pivot position. Scroggie should have recognition because of his excellent open field work and tackling. Sinnico's defensive playing and his true passing places him far above the man considered for the position.

Judging from the ranking of the teams made by Cadillac no team is given a place unless it has scrapped up with the Sawdust city. Thus Charlevoix and Petoskey are down and outers. The only team Cadillac defeated by any big count was Boyne City. The score was 50 to 7. The boots were from Boyne City 60 to 0, and are not considered above mediocre by Cadillac. According to unbiased reporters the rank is as follows: Traverse City and Charlevoix share equal honors as toppers. Cadillac holds the second berth, with Petoskey and Boyne City split up the third place. Manistee and Big Rapids are not rightfully in the N. M. L. title race and for that reason are not considered.

Carl C. Mace passed away at his home in Traverse City, Wednesday. Mr. Mace was born in Ohio and moved to New Boston, Michigan, when a few years of age and lived there until he moved to Traverse City in 1901. In the early days he was a painter, but nearly all his friends knew him better with his violin, for he was the one who played at almost all the social gatherings for years. There is left the wife and one daughter, Miss Lola Moir, of Portland, Oregon, who has been in the city for the past two months. The cause of death of that section of the Grand Traverse region will remember "Mace orchestra." Thirty years ago it came here frequently on "big" organization occasions, when Fox's hall was the ball room.

A doe shipped from the north woods got supposedly dead, gave birth to a fawn in the Battle Creek freight house. How the animal could have lived so long as it did in transit and show no signs of life, is a mystery, but it was pronounced dead after the birth of the fawn, which is apparently strong and healthy.

This year Michigan led the country in its potato crop, which totaled something over 20,000,000 bushels. New York which always had led the states, was distanced, over Wisconsin coming at second place, with 19,000,000 bushels against New York's 17,000,000.

A Man in the Open

COPYRIGHT, 1912, THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

"The story opens with Jesse Smith reading the story in Chicago of his father's death at the hands of Cyrus Tolliver, Jesse becomes a sailor. His mother died in his absence. Jesse returns home to the home of Tolliver, the murderer of his father, and falls in love with Tolliver's daughter Lucy. Jesse is accused of a murder committed by Tolliver and is forced to leave civilization. He joins a party of men who are going to the Canadian Northwest to take up a homestead. Kate Tolliver, daughter of the murderer, joins the party and is married to Jesse. Kate was married to Jesse by a justice of the peace, having been induced to return to the state and force away with Jesse by her father. Tolliver, Kate and Jesse are in a Canadian town, where Jesse is accused of the murder of a man who tries to get in a place of safety. To his surprise he finds the murdered man is his father. He calls on neighbors and asks them to help him find the slayer. The men, who are strangers, but latter make their promise to help him. Jesse feels he owes his life to a stranger who makes prisoners of the soldiers.

CHAPTER X.

Kate's Narrative.

At Hundred Mile House the long table had been removed from the dining hall, the benches set back to the log walls and at the head of the room, an enormous Union Jack draped a very small portrait of Queen Victoria. Beneath was the chair, in front of it a table set with writing materials and the Bible, while at one end the school ma'am looked very schoolmistress as chirk in clothes black, with large red bows like signals of distress.

On the right sat Trial Judge Jesse, and myself, and all our posse, very ill at ease. On the left were two guard American stockmen, both wearing hats, while one had the star of a United States marshal. Beside them sat the general public, consisting of Coastal George, two ranch-hands, an Indian, and the captain's bulldog. Wee Jamie, the captain's grandson, sat with the dog at first, but presently he interrupted the court to say that he would like to sit on me. To our well considerable weight for so small a person.

At Captain Taylor's entrance the constable ordered us all to stand. At sight of the two strangers he mount of a single eyeglass and stared with growing wrath until they removed their hats. Then, taking the chair, he permitted us to be seated and ordered his constable to "fetch the prisoners in."

Had our captives been washed and brushed, they might not have looked so scrubbed or so guilty. Old O'Flynn, disarmed by Jesse as Whiskers, with his head in a blood-stained bandage, his right hand in a gory handkerchief, looked so ill that he was given a seat. Pete Maniac, whose beautiful leather dress, and soft dark eyes reminded the sharply of the opera-bouffe, seemed like a trapped wolf, only thinking of escape to the nearest woods. Still Pierre's swaggering gallantry was marred by obvious regret of a black eye.

"Prisoners," said our justice of the peace, laying his hand on the Bible, "this book contains the only law I know. I'm not here as judge or jury, but as one of Her Majesty's officers trusted to do the sporting thing, and so God help me! Tell your tale, three innocent men who have the misfortune to be mixed with Whiskers. You've only to prove to me that you're innocent. And I have power to let you go free. But I warn you to tell the truth."

"Sound as a mature deal, Cap," said Whiskers.

"It is a square deal. Now, would you like to have some one of your companions to represent you?"

Whiskers looked responsibility at the United States marshal, who demanded his extradition, and the representative of stock associations who offered bailing rewards for his bodily "dead or alive."

"Well," he drawled, "not exactly."

"You other prisoners. Do you accept this man as your spokesman?"

"Sit, sonny."

"That's all right," said Bull.

"Prisoner O'Flynn, you are charged with assaulting a woman, you others with aiding and abetting. Guilty or not guilty?"

"It's a fact," said Whiskers sadly, "and all three of us wishes to say we wishes we'd let be said. We drew lots well up in the full height—by proxy, mind! We tried to force a lady to give her husband away. She shamed us, and we honors Mrs. Smith for what she did. She told us to go to ride with the prisoners and the cattle. By the door stood Mr. Brooks, explaining something at great length to our bored constable. At the head of the long table Captain Taylor was letting me now difficult it was to find a suitable nursery governess for Wee Jamie. At the foot of the table I saw the Mackinaw whispering to his unfortunate, handcuffed companion for escape on doubt "then Jesse joined them, with a process of pipes, matches, and tobacco to ease the journey.

"Mr. Smith," said poor old O'Flynn, "this over Sebastian Blue has been with me these twelve year. He's only a grayer—

"Medio Sangre, senor!" said the half-breed proudly.

"But he's got the heart of a white man. He's like a son to me."

"I'm proud," said Jesse, "to make your acquaintance, both of you. You are, all right."

"We fought the rich men that had wronged us, them and their breed. We put up a good fight. Yes, sir! And we couldn't have missed a single of that twelve years' trail. It wasn't our way to insult women, Mr. Smith. We had bad to get that information somehow," said Jesse, "and Mrs. Smith forgives you."

"That's off our minds, Mr. Smith."

Mostly known as Jesse," said my husband.

"Jesse. We his consulting, and we agree you're the only man here we'd care to ask favors of."

"I'm your friend, all right."

Jesse, if we don't escape we are due to pass in our chips."

"I'm not going to help you escape."

"Well, you haven't helped our enemy any great extent, so far as I know."

Jesse chuckled.

"But I'm asking you to look after my wife and my son."

"I'll do that."

"You'll save the boy from his father's trade?"

"I reckon."

"Put her than."

And they shook hands.

"Them horses we was riding," said the outlaw, "is for my son."

"That's all right."

"And one thing more. That Brooks has an eye on your good lady. He's trying every from times for back in Abilene. Hell live to do you dirt. That, I sort of hates to talk so of one of my men, and I won't say so more.

"Say, my hands being hurt, will you just reach into my off hind pocket? That's right. There's a gold watch. Take it, for times ago. Give that to your lady from us as a sort of keepsake. Good-by, partner."

"Goodby, friend."

"Adios" said the Mexican. "Vayasted con Dios!" And the English of that is, "May you ride with God."

CHAPTER XI.

Billy O'Flynn.

Jesse is cruel to young O'Flynn. Perhaps he is justly, richly cruel, siding in this young cow-boy, taunting him until the lad is on the very edge of murder. "Got to be done," says Jesse, "I promised his father that I'd break the cold unit! here for up with I robbers. So just you watch me fling the dust from his hide, and don't you get excited and come on my trail with your fool sympathies." Billy does not understand that he tormented his victim.

My heart aches with his humiliation. His mother is my cook, not a princess, as the boy's pride would have it.

"Billy, I'm one of the most dangerous leaders of the Rocky Mountain outlaws so there his war glory, and I don't blame him. But all the glamour was stripped away when Jesse tricked O'Flynn and his gang into surrender, handed them over to justice, and showed poor Billy his sorrid scrawn for what they really were. His father has been hanged.

"That night the lad had come from Hundred Mile House, with Jesse's pack-trick bearing a load of stores. There was a dress length, music for my dear dumpy piano, spiced rolls of bacon, much needed flour and coffee, and an orange. Sacrilege for Billy. From his saddle wallets he produced my crimpled letters and the Weekly paper a Vancouver, reporting Jesse's labors among tangles of provincial politics, I goat over the cooking recipes of America's nice cut stick, and spare maybe just a step over the London letter. Billy's portion consists of blood-curdling dime novels, pleval he can't see through and all and showing off his learning and pride as a Sunday.

"But, how does he get on the door?"

"And why for should I not draw pictures on the door, seeing hell never drown! It's hung high for a reprinting the fatherless and the widow and burn he will either for a Protestant. Yes," she flashed round on her boy, "feed buttermilk to than calves, and bend up our head aliash, 'cause you inherit glory while he's frying!"

Away from the widow's hate and her son's vengeance, I hid my man out under the stars. I gave him his cigar, that black epistle charged with deadly fumes. Hooked him a sulphur match. It soothe his wounds, and the pasture scent makes him gentle, but when I fear my grizzly bear, and hardly dare to stroke, I lead him by the keen silver spring, across the hollow where our flowers would make a devil smile, and on through the old rose bushes, to my cathedral pines. Tonight he seemed suspicious, even there, biting off tags of the vindictive Indian. Perhaps I would sit on the father tree until I sang to him.

"What do you want?" asked Jesse then, all the rancor gone.

"Tears do you know that it's nearly a year since we married?"

"Ten months, Kate, and fourteen days. (So you think I don't reckon!)" I sat down on the root of the tree, governess tree, the humblest in the grove, and I took the Bible, dear, who was the son of Jesse!

"David, of course."

"Do you remember, dear: 'for I have provided a king among his sheep.'"

He looked away across the than drous misty depths of the canon, and I thought accusing: "Lad, he profile in all this panorama of peace and glory!"

"And why should not Western Canada be the home of the meek? Man can make? Many are the decrees of nature, and one is that the earth to give up its possibilities, and it is generous to those that be meek. When the harvest comes it means more labor of a different sort. The railroads clamor for shipping, and steamers can only touch at fixed ports. Then, in the secondary, more substantial, lasting highways, that will make the rich of speedier motor trucks bearing heavy loads, that will save horseflesh and wagon wheels, that will help answer the urge of speed and bring closer to the spending dollar of the field and orchard the waiting consumer of a great country. Now clear out, and let me finish my lecture. Where is the use of my talking to a man who's asleep?"

"I'm not going to help you escape."

"Well, you haven't helped our enemy any great extent, so far as I know."

Jesse chuckled.

"But I'm asking you to look after my wife and my son."

"I'll do that."

"You'll save the boy from his father's trade?"

"I reckon."

"Put her than."

And they shook hands.

"Them horses we was riding," said the outlaw "is for my son."

"That's all right."

"And one thing more. That Brooks has an eye on your good lady. He's trying every from times for back in Abilene. Hell live to do you dirt. That, I sort of hates to talk so of one of my men, and I won't say so more.

"Say, my hands being hurt, will you just reach into my off hind pocket? That's right. There's a gold watch. Take it, for times ago. Give that to your lady from us as a sort of keepsake. Good-by, partner."

"Goodby, friend."

"Adios" said the Mexican. "Vayasted con Dios!" And the English of that is, "May you ride with God."

As it is, I'll be hanged, drawn, and quartered by the politicians, damned by Prince Rupert's tribe for theaters of opinions. And I missed all the fun."

After dinner the crowd broke up into little groups. In one corner the American officials were bargaining with Mr Tate for his Hundred Mile

OLD FORT BUILT BY RUSSIANS

Archeologist's Explanation of Ruins of Building on the Northern Coast of California.

Ruins of buildings on the old Weeke ranch, near Windsor and about thirteen miles north of Santa Rosa, Cal., hitherto unchronicled, now are thought to be the work of people of unchanical skill, probably Russians, who erected the buildings 100 years or more ago.

That the edifices were not the work of the Spaniards is taken for granted, as the history of the country under Spanish rule is sufficiently complete to give assurance that some record of the construction of the buildings would have been left.

The construction of the ruins is have been the work of the Indian races and local investigators have decided that the ruins are those of a large fort or fortified settlement built by Russians early in the last century.

The ruins have the appearance of being parts of a once massive fortification. In one place there stands a wall, known as the Indian wall, thirty feet long, thirty feet thick at the ground and tapering to a width of ten feet. It is built of basaltic slabs about twenty feet in length and irregular prismatic shape.

Russians under Admiral Kuskoff, Count Rumiantzoff and Count Hasan off made a determined effort to establish themselves along the northern coast more than 100 years ago.

Pocket Telephones in Use.

A serviceable pocket telephone is the latest innovation of the Hungarian post and telegraphs administration. The appliance weighs only 12½ grams, is no bigger than a card case, and can be had by any one on payment of the price of 40 ordinary telephone conversations, which cost a penny each. The pocket telephone is adapted for insertion in a wall plug either in a private house, on street walls, or in a lamppost. When the user has finished his conversation, he simply removes the telephone from the plug and puts it back in his pocket.

Urges Use of Wheat Bran.

A well-known authority of dietetics has recently taken to urging his patients to indulge in quantities of wheat bran, which, he says, is one of the best regulators and builders in the whole list of foods. It is a mistake for persons to turn up their noses at bran as an article of food because it is cheap. If it were put up in fancy boxes and packages and in price to a point where it would be regarded as more or less of a luxury, there would be a great deal more of it consumed, for it has a number of health-giving qualities which recommend it to all ages and conditions.

Old Cathedral Made Safe.

Winchester cathedral, England, built in 1079, in recent years showed many breaks and cracks in its walls, and the foundations of the historic edifice have now been thoroughly rebuilt and the walls restored. The beech logs which had formed a kind of raft foundation for part of the structure were in a bad state, but it is in an excellent state of preservation when the new foundations of concrete were put in.

Western Michigan

A Region that Is Rapidly Developing as a Fruit Growing and General Farming Section

Threshing Outfit Owned and Operated by Indians.

INDIAN THRESHING OUTFIT IN LEELANAU COUNTY.

The last census gives Leelanau county an Indian population of 60, which is less than five per cent of the population of the whole county. The Indians in this section, however, are civilized and many of them are as good farmers as the whites. Many of these Indians have their farms, their orchards, and take pride in keeping them up. Some of them have been particularly successful in the fruit growing business and have been able to accumulate wealth sufficiently to obtain a threshing rig and he makes the round of his part of the county every summer and fall doing threshing. This entire new is made up of Indians, and it is needless to say that the grain files when the steam is turned on.

WEST MICHIGAN PIKE

ON ALL SIDES IS SEEN PEACE AND PLENTY.

Western Michigan Should Boast of the Best Roads Man Can Make—Frank Hamilton, Good Roads Advocate, Tells Why.

The Hon. Frank Hamilton, the pioneer "better roads" man for Northwestern Michigan, was one of the speakers at the big national road meeting recently held at Detroit. He was given the subject, "The West Michigan Pike." He spoke in part as follows:

During the last summer a journalist of no mean caliber was sent to look over the country on the western side of the state. He had heard of it in a vague, disconnected way, but never before had it been his fortune to see it. He had let one conservative friend glimpse of his experience typifies the tour. The automobile drew to one side of the road and stopped in a stop. Away to the right the country dropped with a swoop to a body of water, which was its brilliant coloring. Down on the shore, nestling among the trees, was a summer resort hotel raised its head. Behind it a rippling grain field the color of the sun gold, bespoke of richness back at the sun. On the field's edge, bespectacled and in shirt sleeves, stood a farmhouse, the lines of which yelled of comfort. "Why, I understand now what I meant," he said, "I understand what I meant. But one thing—HOME! To toward the rear, protected by orchards, trees symmetrical, vivid green, bounts dropping under the weight of coloring fruit, well filled and, even then, a pair of spotted horses drawing a load of hay, cross the land. To the left of the motor the country climbed higher. The distance blended gently of the mass from the shade of maples. Behind, more orchard, more homes more evidences of constructive progress. The sun shone, the birds sang, fruit packages, roared past, over the hill and out of sight. The trail, by journeyed, was a fit, best adjectives of the camera that he had made ready for use. "I can't use that here," he cried. "No plate will register all this—this panorama of peace and plenty!"

And why should not Western Michigan boast of the best roads man can make? Many are the decrees of nature, and one is that the earth to give up its possibilities, and it is generous to those that be meek. When the harvest comes it means more labor of a different sort. The railroads clamor for shipping, and steamers can only touch at fixed ports. Then, in the secondary, more substantial, lasting highways, that will make the rich of speedier motor trucks bearing heavy loads, that will save horseflesh and wagon wheels, railway, between Grandville and Zeeland. The celery grown in this region is said to be of such an excellent quality as to command exceptional prices in the markets.

Picking on Shares.

An excellent way to get the fruit picked especially when the market is good and money scarce is to hire people pick on shares. Many who do not care to pick for their own, will be only too glad to be paid in perfectly fresh product.

Improving a Section of the West Michigan Pike.

portable to the best in civilization and the best work in high way construction is something that must not be."

COUNTY SCHOOL FOR MASON

Supervisors Asked to Issue Bonds for Purpose of Establishing Agricultural School.

Petitions have been circulated in the several townships of Mason county, requesting the board of supervisors to submit a bonding proposition for the purpose of establishing a county school of agriculture. The proposition is being urged by the township supervisors, who believe that this county is logically located for such an institution. Commissioner Minehart has been working on the proposition for more than a year, and he has worked up plans which call for a bond issue of only $15,000. The amount will buy the land and erect the buildings necessary to start the school, and once the school is started, it will be entitled, according to the state law, to the last session of the legislature, to state aid to the amount of $4,000 a year. This amount with such annual appropriations as the board of supervisors may make will be sufficient to make the school a success.

This is the second proposition being urged before Western Michigan supervisors at the present time. At the meeting of the Grand Travers board in October, last year, a committee was appointed to investigate the subject of county school of agriculture. Both propositions are being urged and there are in need of institutions such as are proposed.

If the present agricultural development of Western Michigan continues as it has done for the last five or six years, many county schools of agriculture will be needed to train the people who will be required to take care of the farm or orchard propositions which are being started.

THOUGHT NIGHT HAD PASSED

Tired Farm Hand Lost All Track of Time in His Sleep and Evidently Deep Slumber.

Even when you are wide awake it is frequently hard to estimate the passage of time. The difficulty you find it hard to believe that several hours have elapsed, and on going to the day may drag so slowly that the clock seems to have stopped. Yet while you are asleep, the calculation of time is, of course, almost impossible, as the incident, told by a farmer's son at the corner store one rainy morning, will illustrate.

Father hired a new hand last night—a big, good-natured Dutchman. Evidently the poor fellow was tired from tramping about the country, for he went to bed immediately after supper.

An usual father went down to the barn about 9 to do some more work in the forenoon and adjust the drafts in the stove. Evidently this made enough noise to rouse the new hired man, for neither who was sitting beside the table in the dining-room, saw the door open cautiously open and close the broad form of the Dutchman. He stole drowsily before the light, he exclaimed:

"Good morning, Mamie! Good morning, Jakey! Good morning, Sadie! Sit down you hour aso if you had only woke me up!"—Youth's Companion.

Couldn't Break Off Cigarettes.

King George, he confesses, he knows, is very fond of his cigarette. Once his mother said to him, "Now, my dear, when I was years younger, I got an idea that upon my nineteen—or thirteen. The second day I smoked all five before lunch, and felt miserable for the rest of the day. The third day I smoked the five judiciously, but still felt a great wanting. On the fourth day I could stand it no longer and so smoked twenty, 'tage' to make up for my self-denial.

"I'm a Rich Woman, Dear."

Prudent in matters, and a man of wealth.

"Jesse, I've got such a confession to make. When you settled Mr. Tyler's estate—

"His estates were debts, and we paid 'em. There aren't no estate, Jesse."

"You paid the debts. You were hard driven to meet the interest on your mortgage."

"That's paid off now. Besides we're a clear 'tile to our land, mother's diamonds off my chest, we don't owe a cent in the world, and there's not a worry 'cept, maybe, I'm sorry for them poor robbers. Why Jesse?"

"You earned six thousand dollars, at goodness knows what perii. I let you still imagine that you were poor.

"We got plenty wealth. Kate, wealth enough for—for David."

"I wanted you, Jesse, just you. I wanted poverty because you were poor. I have been content, and now you've won the capital to free the ranch, to buy a thoroughbred stallion, to stock the place.

"Jesse, sakes!"

"Jesse, under my dear father's will, I have seven thousand five hundred dollars a year."

A what!

"I'm a rich woman, dear. I've been saving my income, and there's ten thousand gold dollars in the bank."

So I gave him my check which he pocketed thoroughly with a kiss. It is so rough, too.

"Here or thereabouts," he said. "Now, now boys to handle our stock, a man real connected with the constant, as irrigated corn field, and winter feed, two to the weight of cutting hay, and have! that we would quite despondent over ways and means. Jesse mortgage Vancouver on business, and has after much preamble I came at last to the point.

"Take Billy with you.

"That I go, his a get to look after the ranch."

"You preach at Billy," I said, "you pray in him. Remember how will as Drew winds, son of a dangerous felon. His mother coach him on, and threatened Jesse. Jesse?"

"I knew while I spoke the folly of appealing to his sense of fear. He chuckled softly.

How to Detect the Alum Baking Powder

"Which are the alum baking powders; how can I avoid them unless they are named?" asks a housekeeper.

Here is one way: take the can of a low-priced powder in your hand and read the ingredient clause upon the back label. The law requires that if the powder contains alum that fact must be there stated. If you find one of the ingredients named alum, or sulphate of aluminum, you have found an alum baking powder.

There is another and a better way. You don't have to know the names of the alum powders. Use Royal Baking Powder only; that assures you a cream of tartar powder, and the purest and most healthful baking powder beyond question.

Annual Athletic Benefit

At the end of the most successful football season that a Charlevoix team has ever experienced we find that our bank account is a liability. This is a season of the year when the stringer of various pocket book naturally become loosed, and we feel that the citizens will patronize the Annual Benefit that will be held in the Charlevoix opera house Thursday of next week.

If you believe that athletics tend to develop manly characteristics as well as physical strength you must also realize that it takes money, and lots of it, to run a successful schedule. We feel sure that your generosity in the past is only an indication that you are interested and believe these things worth while. There, are to be exact, 471 seats in the local play house. The Association is going to fill the house on Dec. 18th and there is going to be no discrimination. The first come, the first served. There are just eight more days before the festivities so it behooves everyone to carry around and procure their tickets early. BUY ONE WHETHER YOU COME OR NOT. WE NEED THE MONEY.

The benefit this year will take the form of play and motion pictures. Manager Loskot of the opera house has secured several special reels of good educational value and excellent moral tone.

The play is four scenes from the dramatization of Dickens' Christmas Carol. The entire cast will be composed of members of the high school student body. It is a realistic production showing clearly how a man ought to live and the views of life that are worth while. Come and see the squeezing, grasping, covetous, old skinflint, change to the spirits of the underworld, to a man who could really enjoy Christmas.

LOCAL • AND • PERSONAL • NOTES.

Lawrence McCann is quite seriously ill at his home.

The Charlevoix life saving station will be closed Dec. 20th.

Egbert Carpenter leaves this week for his winter home in Fort Orange, Fla.

Mrs. L. A. Henry recently returned from a trip among her relatives at Alma, Big Rapids, and Cromwell, Iowa.

The tickets for the "Princess of Pos" may be exchanged for reserved seat tickets at the Central drug store after seven o'clock p. m. Friday, Dec. 12.

Supplementary to the article on the same subject in another column, we announce the fact that the State street sewer action of the council was rescinded at the last Monday night's session of the council.

Lee Howland and Sid Henry at last accounts were in Kentucky, bound toward Florida, where they expect to spend the winter and, incidentally pave a few streets somewhere in that benighted section.

The Majestic Theater has a specially fine moving picture attraction in a three reel story of "Half a Chance," a great drama from a famous novel, by Frederick Isham. Don't miss it, Thursday night of this week.

The lumber is on the ground for two bungalows on the Belvedere avenue terrace. One is for Capt. Geo. Weaver, and the other for the captain of the steambarge Stephenson, the construction of which is in charge of Capt. Weaver.

A rabbit hunting party went to Beaver Island Saturday, returning Monday afternoon. The party consisted of Olaf Nordrum, Ralph Washburn, R. A. Kinney, E. E. Frances, Archie LaMour, Amos Webster, Roy Ripley, D. A. Herman. The weather was rather unfavorable.

Last Tuesday evening a concourse of friends surprised Thos. Shawley at his home on the occasion of his 70th birthday. It was a very pleasant social event, and wound up by presenting Mr. Shawley with a fine chair. Mr. Shawley's friends will regret to learn that he has been quite ill since Sunday.

A very pleasant afternoon was spent Dec. 7th at the home of Mrs. M. A. Stewart, on Mason street, where about twenty of her friends and relatives gathered to celebrate her birthday. A sumptious lunch was served and all departed wishing the estimable lady many happy returns of the day.

If people spent as much time in trying to strengthen their own characters as they do to picking to pieces the characters of others there would be no need of so many reform movements as the world is burdened with at the present time. Reform must first be a living force in the hearts of the reformers themselves in order to prove effective.

That the administration is determined to place the country on a war footing at once, was shown Thursday when the house leaders took under consideration the naval militia bill, which provides that this branch of the reserve forces can be used for active service. They indicated that the measure will be passed next week. Its enactment, together with that of the Hay militia bill, which was passed, will give the government reserve force of about 500,000 men ready for action in Mexico.

Mrs. L. B. Hartlett, of this city, who is visiting friends at various southern Michigan points, had what may be termed a "coincidental" experience last week. Her first visit was to be with a friend in Grand Rapids, and she went to the number where the friend was formerly and found, to her dismay, that the friend had moved to another part of the city. She was well out in the suburbs, and, to avoid going back to the hotel, she concluded that she would seek a shelter somewhere in that vicinity until morning. Then she met a little girl, of whom she inquired if she could find a room near by for the night. "I will ask my mama" And together they went to the home, and who should come to the door but "mama" in the person of Mrs. Chas. Dipple, (nee Edith Lewis) daughter of Dr. Levi Lewis and sister of attorney R. L. Lewis, of this city. You may be assured that Mrs. Hartlett was taken care of that night.

MILD WINTERS MAY BE RULE

Suggestion Advanced That Very Probably It Will Be the Rule Hereafter

The continued mild weather has caused many people to wonder. In the light of history and tradition this is most unreasonable weather and Weather Observer Towdrick of the Houghton station increases the wonderment when he advances the suggestion that very probably it will be the rule forever more.

The observer bases his suggestion on the fact that it is now generally conceded the Japan current, which for ages has given Alaska and the Canadian northwest a temperate climate, has been diverted by volcanic disturbance in the ocean bed off the Aleutian island, Alaska. He says that about this season of the year the high barometer area to which can be traced weather conditions in this latitude has been found in Alaska. But latterly it has been found in the latitude of Puget Sound, and this would indicate warmer weather in this latitude if the condition continues.

Mr. Towdrick ventures the assertion that the winter of 1913 will be the last that will be considered an exceptionally severe one. He says that if the condition continues the winters will be the rule for the upper country hereafter.

For the immediate future, Mr. Towdrick believes that the present snowless season will continue for some days. He hopes this year to beat the existing record for the late date for permanent snow, Dec. 6.

County Normal Notes.

(RHODA CLIFF)

Miss Edna Seigley attended to the ventilation and Miss Lila Howe did the housekeeping for the past week.

Esther Walker, Lila Howe, Edna Seigley and Marjorie Weare were excused from writing Normal Notes for this week because their papers have been accepted for three times in succession.

The "pot-luck" supper in Miss Himes' rooms was enjoyed by all last Monday night. After the supper several games were played. At an early hour the students departed for home. A good time is reported by all.

The students just assist Miss Jarvis in the forenoon row. The children are becoming better accustomed to their school work. Miss Jarvis thinks she will be able to do the work alone after holidays. Rhoda Cliff assisted her last week.

The students have begun their work in practice teaching. Miss Hattie Hamilton teacher reading to the chart class. Miss Gladys Johnson teaches reading in fourth grade. Miss Velma La Count and Mr. Willard Howe have the fifth grade which is divided into two parts.

The agricultural class have been studying the various kinds of insects. A plant in the normal room was infested with plant lice. Miss Himes made some kerosene emulsion to sprinkle the plant with that would kill the lice as it came in contact with their soft bodies. This experiment was very interesting.

Petoskey special: A. F. Roth, aged 76, was in a serious condition as the result of a fall down the elevator shaft in the Darling & Sohn seed warehouse today. When found he was in a dazed condition in the basement with a broken hip and other injuries. He was unable to explain his presence in the building or the manner in which he got over the guard. Roth is a pioneer house decorator of this city.

SUMMER CHAUTAUQUA FOR CHARLEVOIX

Action Taken That Insures a High Grade Summer Entertainment Course

A meeting of citizens occurred at the council room Monday night at which the preliminary steps were taken to secure a Summer Chautauqua Entertainment Course of the same order as that which has been held at Bay View for several years. An agent of the Redpath Lyceum Bureau has been here several days, recognizing the importance of Charlevoix as a summer town, has promoted a proposition that reigns any thing of the entertainment kind that has ever come to the people of northern Michigan.

There are to be 21 entertainments of a high order, embracing such attractions as the Ben Greet Players, the Bonhura Band, eminent statesmen, distinguished singers and lecturers. The management brings a tent with a seating capacity of 3,000, electrically lighted, with all the accessories for dramatic performance or musical events.

At a meeting held Tuesday evening the proposition was formally accepted, and the thing is a certainty. It involves the sale of 750 season tickets at $2.00 each, and it can be done. The name "Redpath" always assures excellence, because it is the greatest concern of its kind in the world.

At the meeting Tuesday night the following committee of 21 was appointed, which is termed a "public welfare committee." The duties and powers of which shall include everything covering the advancement of the interests of Charlevoix: Harry Nicholls, A. F. Bridge, W. R. Barney, R. W. Paddock, Lisle Shanahan, W. J. Rachow, S. W. Wright, M. M. Cohoes, A. L. Pitch, F. S. Myers, Chas. E. Sog, J. L. Crane, Earl Miller, R. R. Armstrong, L. W. Kriwet, A. L. Ferguson, Olaf Nordrum, A. M. Wilkinson, W. L. Hampton, D. S. Payton. Mr. Payton is the permanent secretary, and W. H. Miller treasurer.

After the adoption of by-laws the meeting adjourned subject to the call of Mayor Nichols.

Suggestions For Christmas....

Furs are the hardest thing in the world for the average man or woman to buy intelligently.

At the very best, your knowledge of furs is superficial. In buying furs there is only one safe course to persue. That is to select a store in whose reliability you have implicit confidence, and whose word of honor you will accept without qualification. We sell furs here on honor, and are ready to stand back of every statement we make concerning every article of fur we sell.

Local and Personal Notes.

Mrs. George Gaston spent Sunday with friends in Grand Rapids.

Services will be held in the Baptist church next Sunday at the hours of 10:30 and 7:00.

Among the home comers to arrive this week are Arba Cameron, wife and child, of Minneapolis.

Special communication of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282 F. and A. M. Friday evening, Dec. 19th, for work in the first degree.

Capt. Peter McCafferty, who has been master of one of the Dunham Towing Co. tugs the past season, returned home Saturday.

Spaeth & Starr last week removed their portable saw mill to Beaver Island, where it will cut the W. E. Parmelee logs.

The steamer Beaver is still doing business, averaging three Island trips per week, but the Captain will soon surrender the mail to a tug and retire.

W. E. Parmelee left today for Beaver Island where he will remain through the winter to superintend his lumbering operations. Camp has already been established.

On and after January 1, the limit of weight of parcels for delivery under the parcel post system in the first zone, 50 and zones will be increased from twenty to fifty pounds, and in the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth zones from eleven to twenty pounds.

The Robert Boutel Estate, wholesale fish dealers, have bought the C. C. Gallagher dock at St. James. On Monday local manager Eckinger and surveyor Nettleton went to the Island to establish the lines. The fish company expect to considerably improve the property with a view of enlarging its business there.

Capt. Sanford, of the steambarge Stephenson, has been here a few days looking after the work on the residence he is having built on the Belvedere avenue terrace. Capt. Sanford's present residence is Sandusky, but he intends to make Charlevoix his future permanent residence, and the headquarters for his steamer after the opening of navigation.

Talking about rabbits! The men who were recently turned loose from a week's imprisonment on north Fox Island state that the island has a population of 100,000,000 rabbits. They claim they counted 27 in view from their camp. The rabbits climb trees and are easily brought down with stones. Many of them weigh 25 pounds, and they have been known to drive a dog into the lake. The above statement is verified by Capt. Silas Swailes.

Anyone who has a heart under his clothes, or a smack of human kindness in his soul, thanks God for Christmas. "A child is born this day in Bethlehem," and the Day comes down through the ages weighted with blessing for all the world who look toward the Star in the East. Christmas means the homecoming of the loved ones: the yule log and—and Santa Claus. It means joy in many a household, but it also means misery and suffering in some, when the angels of mercy are not there to minister. SENTINEL wishes for every Charlevoix home the fullness of Christmas happiness.

The "welfare committee" recently created, has made a good start by getting a load-pipe cinder on the summer Chautauqua course. The enterprise is now a second fact. We are not offering the committee any advice as to what it should do next. As it is a gigantic body it might, as a "flying wedge" attack the rapidly approaching snow drifts, or, deploying itself into a skirmish line, gather in the dead beats and drown them. Twenty-one men constitute five sets of fours with one to spare. Make the old one a drill sergeant and send the outfit to Calumet or Petoskey. Oh, we can think of a lot of nice things for that committee to do.

Holiday window displays in Charlevoix were never so elaborate and artistic as they are this year. It is a difficult matter to particularize when all are so excellent. But some of them are visions of beauty. The Marcus department store has precipitated a contest between groceries, shoes and dry goods for supremacy; the Central Drug Store windows cause you to pause as you pass and admire the beautiful laidscape water colors, one of which should adorn your mantel. Crane's windows have already set the ladies on our street crazy, and are positively useful in their captivating enticements, when Petoskey is so near and the train service so clever. Levinson's big expanse of plate glass presents a kaleidescope of blending of colors and lovely texture, the Charlevoix Hardware Co. has a pair of windows that call you across the street and cause you to gasp as you view the game killing weapons and man-killing culinary tools; Blanchard's windows glitter with utilitarian practicals; Fox-Sale's windows make your mouth water, and forecast the Xmas dinner of your life; Bergeon reveals to you the work of a window artist in temptations; Danto's store front is an exhibition of business enterprise and attractive bargains. It all goes to prove that you don't have to go away from home to find what you want to make the good wife and the children happy Xmas morning.

Wanted, a full house at the High School Athletic Benefit, Thursday night. Two shows—7:00 to 8:30 and 8:30 to 10:30. Admission 25 cents.

Prof. E. J. Dodds, the music teacher, left Friday to spend Christmas with relatives in southern Michigan. He expects to return by the first of January.

Guy Myers, an engineer on one of the big freight liners, and whose home is now in Lorraine, Ohio, is here visiting his mother and brother for the holidays and possibly longer.

John S. Baker left yesterday for Lake Forest, Ill., to bring his daughter home home for the holiday vacation. Miss Baker is attending school at the Convent of the Sacred Heart.

The harness store stock of Frank Hitchcock, which has been in charge of Chas. Zeitler, was last week sold under the hammer to Oldham, of Petoskey, who will turn it over to Mr. Zeitler's farm implement repair business has also been removed to Brown's store.

Rev. J. G. C. Irvine returned Tuesday noon from his drive across the state. He left his horse and buggy at Mill, near Deckerville, in the "thumb" when the family came here, and last week for them. The 50-mile drive was done in seven days over good roads, but it was very lonely through the forests and unsettled parts.

The magnificent weather that has crowded itself half way through December has made a great big hole in the winter. Wrapped up in a small package, we were presented with a blizzard sample on the 6th, but old Boreas promptly apologized by quieting the elements with autumn leisurey. Of course the "oldest inhabitant" has the usual remarks to make.

A. T. Stewart, of the U. S. Fish Commission interests, concluded his work here and left Monday for the central hatchery at Northville, Darlow the fall spawning season he has shipped to Northville forty millions of lake trout eggs and thirty millions of whitefish eggs. This is the largest harvest of eggs ever gathered here in any one season.

There is considerable agitation at Petoskey concerning a proposed golf club, something that has long been desired as a resort attraction. There are 40 acres between Petoskey and Bay View suitable for the purpose, also in the near future an organization doubtless will be perfected. The Harbor Point and Woodmansee golf links are the only ones now available to Petoskey home and summer residents.

According to the report of the comptroller of the United States the people in Michigan are saving the most money of any state in the union. In the face of these figures there are still to be found in every locality in the state people who think that they can better their lot in the west or some other section. The figures set forth in the annual report of this government official furnishes some valuable food for thought for the discontented.

Eubile Advertising.

A successful hotel manager is partial to the advertisement of a hotel in a fashionable resort. The advertisement read:

"Special rates to single men."

"The proprietor of that hotel" said he, "deserves to succeed. He signs his advertisement a subtle trap for bachelors with marriageable daughters. They read the advertisement and think that their given name refers to the hotel, single men will be plentiful. They therefore decide that there is no place undesirable to take their daughters."

Facts, doubtless, be considered.

"There motives quite correctly believe that as far as their daughters' chances of matrimony are concerned the more the merrier."—Washington Star.

Not Immune.

Mrs. Martin met an acquaintance one morning while on shopping.

"How is Mrs. Gallaway, that lives near you?" asked Mrs. Martin. "Of course you know she has a child very ill, poor woman."

"Oh, yes, indeed," replied the other "I know it, but I don't dare to go and see her."

"Why not?" inquired Mrs. Martin. "There is said to be no danger of taking the fever, you know, after one is ill."

"Oh, not that, you know," replied the other woman. "I'm so young in my feelings"—Lippincott's.

Gasoline Boat Lucie A. C-st Up By the Angry Waves on an Inhospitable Shore

The gasoline boat Lucie A., manned by John Weideman, Hugh Reely and Melvin Brady, fishing out of Beaver Harbor, and having nets in the region of "the Foxes," were shipwrecked a week ago last Sunday on the east side of the uninhabitated Little Fox, and were "Crowed" there a week on short rations.

Saturday night they were under a good lee with the wind southwest and gradually rising. During the night the wind shifted to northwest and rose to a gale with a blinding snow. There was no recourse was to beach the boat, which they did, working her to a position which they considered safe. Up the beach to the south they found a fisherman's shanty, which they occupied. In their return to the boat they found her adrift, and well out in the current and pounding hard. They again succeeded in getting her out of the heavy sea. Monday morning the same thing occurred, but this time they succeeded in safely but her condition was mighty close to a wreck. All her ribs on one side and three strakes of planking were stove in, and her interior in a badly demoralized condition.

They at once set about patching her up. They had some tools aboard, but the only material they had was what they could pick up on the beach, and the boards from the floor of the boat. Provisions were running low, but with the knowledge that their situation must surely be known at St. James they waited patiently for relief. Saturday night found them with but the small portion of a ham and three rabbits. Luckily they had a gun and twenty shot cartridges. But the heavy weather continued.

Saturday the tug Margaret McCann came out to lift her nets in that locality and found the party, which preferred to remain with the boat until they could get here. Saturday evening the McCann returned to St. James, and Capt. McCann called the particulars. At nine o'clock the night Roy Keeper and a good crew left this port for Fox Island in the gasoline boat Rhine in fairly good weather. The Lucie A. was afloat in the water and taken in tow by the Rhine for her home port.

The crippled boat leaked badly, and in the passage of four hours across the crew worked every minute at the pumps, and it warmly with heroic and exhausting effort that the boat was kept afloat. When they passed through the bridge the boat was in a sinking condition, and was beached in a safe place. The Rhine had taken with her a good supply of food, which was sorely needed.

But it is all in the work of a fisherman, and the crew of the Lucie A. only speak of it as an incident, and they say they had a good time.

Not a Matter of Politics

"Conditions in the mining districts of the upper peninsula seem to be growing more chaotic every day. Possibly the present state administration expects to let the matter drag along until it can be settled by the Republicans when they again come into power."—Harbor Springs Republican.

The man who will drag the Calumet trouble into politics lacks the elementary elements of good citizenship. The publisher of this paper is a Bourbon Republican, but takes this opportunity to say that the course of Mr. Ferris, as governor and commander-in-chief of the Michigan National Guard, has been wise. His firmness coupled with rational conservatism have been a credit to himself and to the commonwealth.

In several other states the executives have been confronted with like conditions, and some of them have displayed greater wisdom or patriotism, while more than one of them have lost their heads entirely.

On the Calumet issue we stand squarely by Gov. Ferris.

Lo, the Poor Indian.

Lo, the poor Indian, is no very extravagant luxury for Uncle Sam in Michigan. The secretary of the interior has made public what the redman has cost the government during the past year.

The itemization for Michigan follows: For Ottawas, Chippewas, L'Anse and Vieux de Sert Chippewas, per capita payments in money, $179.37; for salaries of employees, $8,970.03; for support and civilization, $1,880.68. Total, $5,029.68.

It is just the same in Michigan as elsewhere, the chief item of expense in maintenance of the redman consists of payments to the white man. The government servant who is not up to snuff after the aborigines, gets the big end of the outlay. Nearly $4,000 for salaries of employes and less than $2,000 for support and civilization of the redman in Michigan caused a hearty laugh when the report was submitted to congress.

Croup and Cough Remedy.

Croup is a terrible disease, it attacks children so suddenly that they are very apt to choke unless given the proper remedy at once. There is nothing better in the world than Mr. King's New Discovery. Lewis Chamberlain, of Manchester, Ohio, writes about his children: "Sometimes in severe attacks we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear." We may as well go and avoid it. No man, no, for and 11. A bottle should be in every house. At T. G. Hines & Co.

FEDERALS FLEE CITY

GOVERNOR OF CHIHUAHUA IN FLIGHT WITH TROOPS TOWARD U. S. LINE.

MEXICO CRISIS IS NEAR

Report From Huerta's Capital Says Urrutia Will Be Recognized as Provisional Governor—Rebels Seek to Reopen U. S. Negotiations.

Mexico City, Dec. 3—It can be said on the basis of authoritative data that is expected within two or three days will that Urrutia will head the new cabinet as minister of gobernacion.

The report that President Huerta had fled from the capital and country is untrue. He remained at the palace on Monday, after passing a few hours on a farm near the city.

A provisional contract between the Mexican minister of war and firms in Vienna and Zurich, signed, calls for 50,000 rifles and 100,000,000 cartridges. It is understood that the firms

Houston, Tex., Dec. 3—Henry Allen Tupper received from Nogales Sonora, a message signed "V. Carranza," requesting him to return to that place "as soon as possible." It is believed this means a reopening of rebel negotiations with the United States government.

Juarez, Mex., Dec. 2—Rather than suffer capture the federal Mexican troops have evacuated Chihuahua City, which has been under siege for weeks, according to advices received on Monday by Francisco Villa, a rebel leader. The evacuation left the city open to possession by the rebels.

The report received by Villa said that Salvador Mercado, military governor of the state with 3,000 federal troops, had left Chihuahua on foot for Cuiteca, 30 miles southeast of Chihuahua near Marfa, Tex.; that Gens. Jose Ines Salazar and Pascual Orozco with more than 1,000 federals, had retreated to the mountains west of the city and that hundreds of civilians, including women and children, who were on the evacuation train, had started to walk to the United States border.

Neither in the Madero revolution nor in the present uprising has Chihuahua been taken from the federals. Its geography and its commanding position for sharpshooters and machine guns have rendered the city and its adobe buildings had always presented a formidable barrier to invaders.

General Villa telegraphed details of the evacuation to General Carranza at Hermosillo, stating the proposal and advance of the rebels southward to Mexico City would be expedited. The possession of Chihuahua, he said, would soon enable Carranza to send a country straight through to Zacatecas and operations would begin about that city and S. Luis Potosi.

General Villa said Frederico Moye, a prominent merchant, had been named provisional governor of Chihuahua state. He added:

"We will be nearing Mexico City within a month."

Five hundred thousand dollars' worth of provisions and clothing and 100,000 in the bonds of Minero were confiscated in Juarez by Villa. He says part the rebels

Max Weber, German consul, denied that Abraham Gomez, Castro, former federal commander, was a refugee in his home.

"I have not seen Gomez since the day before the fight, more than two weeks ago," said Mr. Weber. "Nor do I know where he is hiding."

The Mexican federal gunboats Tampico and Guerrero bombarded the port of Altata, in the state of Sinaloa, again Sunday and destroyed the entire city, all a building being left intact.

Washington, Dec. 3—How the American border patrol has found it with high impossible to enforce the embargo against shipment of arms and ammunition from Texas into Mexico was described in a report from Major General Hills, commanding the forces on the border.

General Hills complained of the vagueness of the law declaring the instructions to the army were so general that one can see no place to impose on the troopers and Junior officers.

BANDIT KILLS RAIL AGENT

Robber Boards "Sunset Express" and Slays Passenger Official Who Plays on His Trail.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 3—Train No 9 on the Southern Pacific, the Sunset Express, was held up just west of Los Angeles on Monday. The holdup man boarded the train at Pomona. H. B. Monroe, traveling passenger agent of the Southern Pacific, tried to interfere with the holdup man and was shot dead. A sheriff's posse is searching for the bandit.

Two Union Miners Wounded.

Hartman, Ark., Dec. 1—Two union miners were wounded here.

Girl Convicted of Murder.

Prince Albert, Sask., Dec. 1—Catherine Oka Simmons, aged thirteen years, was convicted of murdering her nine-year-old playmate, Julia Jones, on the afternoon of June 21 last. The little girl told the court of her crime.

HANISH FOUND GUILTY

FEDERAL JURY CONVICTS MAN ON OFFENSE BOOKS CHARGE.

Head of Sun Worshipers Accused of Violating Law Through Sending Volumes Over U. S.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—Otto Zar Hanish, the "little master" of the Mazdazan sun cult, was found guilty on Friday by a jury in Federal Judge Mack's court following an sensational trial on a charge of violating the interstate commerce law through the shipment of his book, "Inner Studies," via express.

Counsel for Hanish made the usual motion for a new trial. The date for a hearing on this motion will be heard by Judge Mack upon his return to this city. Fixing of the penalty rests with the court. The conviction carries with it as a maximum penalty a fine of $1,000 or five years in the penitentiary, or both.

At the same time that this action was taken in regard to the motions for a new trial the Hanish was told that the defendant be permitted to remain at liberty on his present bond of $10,000 until such time as the question of the new trial motion is disposed of.

The Mazdazan sun cult of which Hanish is the founder, long has been before the public eye. It is regarded by the government as one of the most powerful of cults, its membership embracing 14,000 men and women in the United States.

MAYOR S. L. SHANK RESIGNS

Indianapolis Head Was Threatened With Impeachment by Business Men in Books Was Closed.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 1—Samuel Lewis Shank on Friday resigned as mayor of Indianapolis.

Shank offered his resignation after he had conferred with a number of leaders of business men. Pending strike of teamsters, who told him there would be no end of violence during the strike. He had announced Wednesday that he would resign if the threatened strike could not be stopped. He was waited upon by a committee of business men Tuesday night and was informed that impeachment proceedings against him were being prepared and would be fined if the impending teamsters' strike could not be averted. His attitude during the street car strike, were he let it be known that he did not wish policemen to be on the cars manned by strike-breakers, caused the resignation of Superintendent of Police Martin J. Hyland and President William E. Davis of the board of public safety.

LABOR LAW IS VALID

U. S. SUPREME COURT HANDS DOWN IMPORTANT AND FAR-REACHING DECISIONS.

INDIANA CASE IS DECIDED

Upholds Right of State Court to Prevent Government From Submitting to People New Constitution Forced by Legislature.

Washington, Dec. 2.—The Illinois child labor law, which prohibits employment of boys under sixteen years of age, at dangerous occupations, was declared valid in a decision of the Supreme court Monday.

Justice Hughes, who delivered the opinion, said that manufacturers of Illinois could be compelled by the state "at their peril to ascertain the ages of those employed by them and declared there could be no possible constitutional objection to the law.

That the state courts of Indiana had the right to prevent the government and state officials from submitting to the people for adoption a new constitution framed by the legislature, which had refused to include part of the surplus of $45,000,000 expected to the postal service for the fiscal year just closed.

That the government is entitled under the federal corporation tax act to collect income sums of revenue from the business operations of the United States was the substance of an opinion by the court.

The right of the so-called book trust to maintain arbitrary sale prices on copyrighted books culminated in a decision in the Supreme court in which the court held against the trust. The main question at issue was as to whether the trust should have a "copyright monopoly" in the sale of such books.

The Supreme court decided that the city of New York has the right to tax the land upon which the Statue of Liberty stands.

The Supreme court decided that the Kentucky law taxing credit companies was constitutional and constitutional and therefore is not an interference with the interstate commerce regulations.

Affirmed the right of the United States customs officers to seize and declare forfeited goods imported without the knowledge of the consignees and undervalued by the consignors, even though the consignee may be entirely innocent of any wrong. Government attorney contended that such goods may be seized the minute they reach the United States. The decision was rendered in a New York case in which the government libeled and declared forfeited 25 packages of Panama hats consigned to Miss Camille Castillo.

A complaint system of railroad accounting prescribed by the interstate commerce commission to all railroads within its jurisdiction was for the first time approved in a decision of the court.

ARMY DEFEATS NAVY

SOLDIERS SPRING SURPRISE BY DEFEATING SAILORS.

Annapolis Boys Are Outclassed From the Start by the West Pointers.

New York, Dec. 2.—The president of the United States and members of his cabinet, together with 42,000 spectators witnessed the defeat of the gridirons in the Brush stadium on Saturday and saw the West Point football eleven furnish a stunning surprise by converting the midshipmen from Annapolis by a score of 22 to 9.

From the standpoint of the spectator the game and its setting lost nothing of its thrilling grip and interest as a result, and the 42,000 persons present witnessed a game which for sheer kaleidoscopic playing scenes depicted on the gridiron, brought into vivid relief by the cadets opened up the play to far greater extent than the more conservative line attack and runs of the middies.

DIES IN STRIKE RIOT

ONE KILLED, ANOTHER FATALLY WOUNDED AND TWO SHOT IN INDIANAPOLIS.

GUARDS ON WAGON FIRE

Special Policemen Employed by an Ice Company Shoot Way Through Crowd When Attacked on Street.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 4.—One man was shot and killed, another was probably fatally wounded and two wagon shot and wounded during a strike riot at Indiana and Capitol avenues on Tuesday. The dead man is Claude Lewis, a negro.

Joe M. Mason, a negro barber, was shot in the abdomen and is not expected to live. John Ashley, a white man, was shot through the foot. Archie Smith, a negro saloon porter, was shot through the shoulder.

The shooting was done by three negroes and two white men—employes of the Citizens' Ice company, who had been deputized with special police power.

The men on the ice wagon drove up to a saloon on Indiana avenue and started to unload some ice. A crowd gathered around and some works were thrown. Suddenly some man in the melee pulled a gun and shot and then four or five shots ran out in rapid succession.

Hysteric policemen rushed to the scene and other emergency police soon got there. They found one negro dead, two others wounded and shot. They took the five ice company deputies to the station.

The special police on the ice wagon claim that one of their number was first hit, but witnesses to the accident declared that no one in the crowd fired at—that the shots came down from the men on the ice wagon.

While Coroner Dr. Dodd's Medicine Co. was taking the morgue it was discovered that he was not yet dead and he was rushed to a hospital, where he died within a few minutes. Lewis was a spectator.

NO PEACE UNTIL HUERTA LETS GO USURPED POWER

President Says in Message Presage of Dictator Is Crumbling and End is Near.

WANTS MONEY BILL PASSED

Urges Enactment of Legislation to Make Farming a More Efficient Business.

LET SHERMAN LAW STAND

Primary Elections for Selection of Candidates for Congress Urged—Ultimate Independence of Philippines an Obligation—Duty of Daily Toward Mexico—Employers' Liability.

Washington, Dec. 2—The following is President Wilson's complete message delivered to congress today:

In pursuance of my constitutional duty to give to the congress information of the state of the Union, I take the liberty of addressing you on several matters which I regard as vital to me, particularly to engage the attention of the congress at this time, and of all who study the welfare of the nation.

I shall ask your indulgence if I venture to depart in some degree from the usual custom of delivering my message in formal review the many matters which have come to the attention and called for the action of the several departments of the government or which look to them for early treatment in the future, because the time for action is very long, and would suffer in the abbreviation to which I should have to subject it. I shall venture to ask you the reports of the heads of the several departments, in which these subjects are set forth in careful detail, and hope that they may receive the thoughtful attention of your committees and of all members of the congress who may have the leisure to study them. Their obvious importance, as constituting the very substance of the business of the government, makes comment and emphasis on my part unnecessary.

Allowed to Lag.

The country, I am thankful to say, is at peace with all the world, and many happy manifestations multiply about us of a growing confidence and sense of community of interest among the various peoples of the world in the settled peace and good will. More and more readily each decade do the relations of civilized nations and the relations of civilized men to one another take on the character and relationships which have been put into operation in Further, the committee is already prepared to report. Its report ought to be made ready to be acted upon at the earliest practicable moment. Its work and its methods will be best suited to our own farmers. I hope and believe that the committees of the senate and house will address themselves to this matter with the most fruitful results, and I believe that the studies and recently formed plans of the department of agriculture may be made to serve them very greatly in their work of framing appropriate and adequate legislation. It would be indiscreet and presumptuous in anyone to dogmatize upon so great and many-sided a question, but I feel confident that our farmers will produce the results we must all desire.

Let Sherman Law Stand.

Turn from the farm to the world of business which centers in the city and I think that all thoughtful observers will agree that the immediate service we can render the business communities of the country and the country at large lies in putting effectually into it has yet been presented. I think it will be easily agreed that we should let the Sherman anti-trust law stand, unaltered, as it is, as the definite ground upon which, but that we should as much as possible reduce the force of that debatable ground by further and more explicit legislation; and should also supplement that great act by legislation which will not only clarify it but also facilitate its administration and make it fairer to all concerned. No doubt we should also, if we would do our best for the business world, we should expect, this to be the central subject of the deliberations during the present session; but it is a subject so many-sided and so deserving of careful and discriminating discussion that I shall take the liberty of addressing to it a part of a separate message at a later date than this. It is of capital importance that the business men of this country should be relieved of all uncertainties of law with regard to the application of the Sherman act and a clear path indicated which they can safely follow. It is as much important that they should be relieved of all unnecessary burdens if they are to prosper as that private monopoly should be destroyed. The one is as essential as the other to free competition. The resources in question must be used, but not locked up or wasted, used, that the monopolies upon any narrow idea of individual rights as against the rights of masses of communities. That a policy can be worked out by conference and concession which will release these resources and yet not destroy or dissipate them; I for one have no doubt; and it can be done on lines of regulation which need be no less acceptable to the people and governments of the states concerned than to the people and government of the nation at large. Whence better resources are to come. We must bend our counsels to this end. A common purpose ought to be conceived and Specially Important.

Times of four matters of special importance and significance I beg that you will permit me to mention in closing.

I.

Our bureau of mines ought to be equipped and empowered to render the practical service which it is now prepared to improving the conditions of mine labor and making the mines more economically productive as well as more safe. This is an all-important part of the work of conservation; and the conservation of our human resources is more dear to our interest than the preservation from waste of our material resources.

We owe it, in more justice to the railway employes of this country, to provide for them a fair and effective employers' liability law, and a law that we can stand by in this matter ought to be no less to the advantage of those who administer the railroads of the country than to the advantage of those who their employes. The experience of a large number of the states has clinched that point.

We ought to devote ourselves to the practical demands of plain justice like this as earnestly as to the accomplishment of any political reform whatever. Social justice comes first. Law is the machinery for justice. Government is for the expressed and embodied Safety at Sea.

An international conference for the discussion of all questions that affect safety at sea is now sitting in London at the suggestion of our own government. We shall be very much surprised if that congress can be learned and considered enough to address ourselves to other things than the prompt alleviation of the very unsafe, unjust, and burdensome conditions which now surround the employment of sailors and render it extremely difficult to obtain the services of spirited and competent men such as every ship needs if it is to be safely handled and brought to port.

May I not express the very real pleasure I have experienced in conferring with the commerce and fisheries committee of the senate and the house upon the business of legislation? Surely it is a proper and pertinent part of my report on "the state of the Union" to express my admiration for the patience, the good temper, and the full comprehension of public duty which has already been manifested by both the houses; and I hope that it may not be deemed an impertinent intrusion or myself into the picture if I say with how much and how constant satisfaction I have availed myself of the privileges of putting my time and energy at their disposal alike in counsel and in action.

MANY DEER ARE KILLED IN STATE

MORE THAN TEN THOUSAND SLAUGHTERED DURING THE HUNTING SEASON.

ELEVEN PERSONS LOSE LIVES

Smallest Number of Human Beings and Largest Number of Animals That Have Fallen Victims to Rifle for Many Years.

Lansing—The hunting season which closed, set a new record for the upper peninsula of Michigan, with more than 10,000 deer slaughtered and but 11 fatal hunting accidents.

The largest number of deer and the smallest number of human beings that have fallen victims to rifle and shotgun in north Michigan woods for many years.

There were more hunters in the woods this year than ever. There were more for hunters in the woods this season than has been known in recent years. Fully 6,000 deer were shipped to southern Michigan by lower peninsula hunters north of the straits, 4,000 being sent across the straits and 2,000 by way of Chicago. It is estimated that 20,000 hunters, 10,000 of them Michigan, visited the woods this year.

All but three of the victims of fatal hunting accidents came to their deaths by bullet wounds, one being drowned and one falling from a tree, one or two were killed by unknown hunters, who deserted their victims, and a member were responsible for their own deaths.

The known dead are: Hjalmar Linnemen, killed at Stark, by falling from a tree; Henry Parsons, Alger county, found in woods with bullet through neck; Walter Gordon, Delta county, found by unknown hunter; Alfred M. Johnson, shot through breast while hunting, gun being discharged when dropped; William Wirtanen, Negaunee, drowned and his hunting companion, Lawrence Lake, drowned in Lake Superior; Lloyd Hilmar, Blankikpe, shot in stomach by companion; Frank Metiraw, Ironwood, killed by muzzle of gun and fatally wounded; John Bruno, Champion, killed while cutting wood for hunting camp; James MacDonald, Escanaba, section hand, killed by a stray bullet while working; William Carlier, Escanaba, lost in woods several days and found dead with bullet wound in chest, supposed self-inflicted; Leslie Atwell, Gogebic county, shot through the chest while playing with father's shotgun.

New Y. M. C. A. Officers.

At the business session Friday of the eleventh annual state Y. M. C. A. boys conference held at Saginaw, 1912-1914 officers were elected as follows: President, Charles S. Gray, Saginaw; first vice-president, Howard Stagrall, Bay City; second vice-president, Leonard Homans, Ionia county; secretary, Louis Lockwood, Jackson; assistant secretary, Van Patterson, Calhoun county.

The conference closed with a complimentary banquet by Saginaw boys at the Auditorium, where over 600 were seated representing 100 boys organizations in 150 Michigan cities and towns. R. B. Perry, Jay City, was toastmaster and addresses of welcome were given by Mayor Harley C. Tanseud, President M. N. Brady of the Saginaw Y. M. C. A., Rev. A. Lincoln W. S. Humphrey, Jr. in responding. Retiring President Donald Wells, Grand Rapids, declared this was the best meeting ever held, and Secretary Frank Dorr, Jackson, suggested the formation of state conference clubs in each city and county. City and county boys hold separate sessions, followed by a parade, of which motion pictures were taken.

U. of M. Debaters Selected.

The men representing their respective debating societies in the contest between the University of Michigan in its debate with Chicago and Northwestern universities on the evening of January 16: Webster, Lucius Hoskins, Detroit; Athenian, Paul Pekin, Ill. Alpha Nu, B. Willing, Hubbart, Ann Arbor; Philomathean, Ralph D. Hall, Adolph; W. Schroeder, Kankakee, Ill. The alternates chosen were: R. E. Fuller, Coldwater, Ralph Adolph, and J. H. Klinger, Pittsburg, Pa. of Alpha Nu.

The question to be debated is: "Resolved, That the states should establish a scale of minimum wage for unskilled labor, constitutionality conceded." Each debater from Michigan will receive a testimonial of $50, provided by H. E. Otto of Lansing, and the Alger gold medal, provided by the family of the late Russell A. Alger of Detroit.

Michigan has the affirmative against Northwestern at Ann Arbor, and the negative against Chicago at Chicago.

Game Law Test Case.

At Leonard of Hainsville township, from whom Deputy State Game Warden Otto Reber of Ypsilanti took over 150 muskrat hides, and sent them to Lansing, Leonard claims that he is his possessor before the muskrat season opened but he was not. Officials for damage by the confiscation of the hides.

Leonard declares he has a right to kill the rats as they were destroying the property of himself and neighbors. This is a test case.

Free From Disastrous Epidemics.

According to the reports received in the state board of health the state of Michigan is in better shape as regards contagious and infectious diseases than it has been at the beginning of winter for some time past.

"So far," said Mr. Dixon, "we have been almost entirely free from epidemics. In former years at this time we have been worried considerably over the fact that smallpox was rampant in some certain localities. There is considerable diphtheria in Detroit, but it is under control, I understand."

Commissioner Talks on Highways.

"A county which does not avail itself of the advantages of the county road system is not doing its opportunities in the matter of highway improvement," said Highway Commissioner Frank P. Rosser, who gave an instructive discussion of Michigan's highway situation before the Christian theology class of First Baptist church, Lansing.

"Progress in highway building has not been as great as we sometimes think," said Mr. Rosser. "As early as 715 B. C. the Prophet Isaiah prescribed a specification for highways which have not been departed from even to this day, when he said, 'Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be made straight, and the rough shall be made plain.' Even in the time of Joseph had excellent highways, and Moses leading the children of Israel out of Egypt came upon a trunk line highway and chased over it pursuers from a king to cross upon it. Solomon is credited with building a highway of their success.

"Every ancient nation which rose to a high state of civilization, and every nation of road builders, if America had been discovered during the days of the Roman empire, we would have had better roads and earlier than we have today. Unfortunately, it was not until after the dark ages that the Roman roads were discovered and we did not know how to build roads.

"Michigan's highway system has been a growth. Early roads were built exclusively with the thought of the immediate locality in view. Later the extension westward of such roads as the Chicago road, the Detroit, Indiana and the wilderness turnpike in Kentucky settled those states. The early settlement of Western Michigan is due largely to the opening of the Kirkland road, which connected the west with the east in the north and south parts of the state.

Educational Board Meets.

Members of the state board of education held a preliminary meeting at Detroit, where Fred L. Keeler of Saginaw was appointed the appointed secretary of the board attended his first meeting since his appointment.

Mr. Keeler was appointed to the office of secretary when Governor Ferris appointed Luther L. Wright, who resigned to take a place in Flint.

Members of the board were appriled of the fact that Smith, Hinchman and Grylls, architects, had completed plans for the Ypsilanti auditorium, to be erected at a cost of about $150,000.

Mr. Wright, who has been called upon to give Potts, the plumber, a call at his office, and to have a talk with him, was not attending to his duties at the time of the board meeting.

Twelve o'clock came and no Potts, so Mrs. P. was driven to enlist the services of another knight of the soldering iron, who soon had things in shape.

When Potts called at 2 o'clock he was informed that the job was done. Potts was not to be pacified, however, thinking you were too busy." Mrs. P. said to him:

DR. COOK'S CAUSE

Stenographic Report of Dr. Cook's Lecture Taken for the Sentinel by a Charlevoix Lady

What I am about to say to you now is not to challenge Mr. Peary's polar claim, nor am I trying to pull him down, but you don't understand the polar controversy unless you know about these things.

Two months after the pole had been reached two ships left New York for the pole, fitted out at public expense. At the same time my companion, Rudolph Francke, left in Greenland to guard supplies, started south. He was sick and was aiming to get south to meet the whale ships in North Star Bay about three hundred miles south. He went south, but reached North Star too late; the last ship had gone and there would not be another for another year. Francke went to the underground houses among the Esquimos, and they nursed him back to his health, partly, and aided to go north, aiming to get back to our camp where there was some food. He got back to Etah, twenty-five miles south. The man was unable to go another step. He laid on the rocks and expected to die. While lying there two ships came into the harbor flying the American flag. He went out and boarded the ship Roosevelt, and asked for a cup of coffee. He had not had a bite of civilized food in two months. That cup of coffee was refused and he was put off the ship forcibly. That was done from a ship flying the American flag, fitted out at public expense, Francke went back to his rocks and prayed that he might die. He stayed there two days. The ships stayed there two days and Mr. Peary changed heart. By this time he had learned that Francke was not a beggar, but had in his possession furs and ivory worth $10,000. He had directions for my camp north of there, which was worth $25,000. Here was $35,000 to gain and Mr. Peary changed heart. He took Francke aboard of the ship and showed him the hospitality of the ship; gave him a good square meal, gave him two bottles of whiskey, and had the ship's doctor examine him. After that Peary called Francke to his private cabin and 12 following conversation took place. Peary said, "Francke, you are a very sick man. If you stay here you will die. If you go home, you may live. You can go home on this ship, but before you do so, you must turn over everything that belongs to yourself and to Dr. Cook." The man's life was at stake. He did it, but what law of what land would allow it—this attempt to steal $35,000. It was a deliberate attempt to starve one out, because to take my camp and my supplies, he attempted to prevent my return to civilization. That was done by a naval officer.

After that one of the ships went south and the other went north. Francke returned to civilization; Mr. Peary went north and stayed north for a year, returning on the following year. He came to the same place at Etah, and there, from my Esquimos, Mr. Peary learned of my attainment of the pole, and all the facts connected with it. He stayed south, putting on full speed. He reached the wireless station at Labrador and there he sent a messages saying he had also reached the pole, a year later than my date. At the time the message came, I said, "Good; there is room enough for two." I was in Copenhagen. My report had been sent about a week before. That message had gone all around the world; it was public property. Mr. Peary got it at the wireless station at Labrador; went back behind the rocks and stayed there for a week. Then he came forth with his full report of having reached the pole. His report, when seen by practical explorers, was pronounced a scientific duplicate of mine. Everyone said it proved my position, or proved that he had followed my previously published report. The day after that the wires burned. I was called a liar and a thief and a maker of gold bricks. You are asked to accept this man's report as the truth, and asked to take mine as a lie. Ask why? You cannot understand that unless you understand this pole propaganda, unless you understand the man who did it. Mr. Peary's whole pole effort from beginning to end has been a grab for dollars and cents, and would be going on today had it not been spoiled by my success. Ships were sent north year after year, paid for by government and private expense. Peary took from the government over $50,000 of unaccounted money. That money and the money from the public was used to promote a trade for ivory and furs, out of which Mr. Peary has realized at least $1,000,000. Pole chasing to this man was profitable, delay was profitable. Ships we's going north and coming south loaded with furs and ivory. The pole might have been reached in ten years if real honest effort had been made, but the intention was to get the trade.

And there is worse to come, and I would not refer to this except you must know the character of the man, how our most sacred institution was betrayed. From the backbone of our innocent school children there was taken money for this pole propaganda. I am ready to show that the money was used to promote an immorality that puts the white slave trade to shame, and that by a naval officer.

When the man took my camp in the north, he did that for which he would have been hung, and rightly so, in a mining camp.

Twenty-five miles south of Etah he deserted two innocent, helpless little children, his own flesh and blood, and if they were left there to starve and freeze, and they are there today crying for bread and milk and a father. The meanest thief in all the world would not do that. Admiral Peary did it. Can that man be honest in anything? This is the kind of man who is stirring his and about the other pleasant mostly the other place—to dishonor us.

He went down to Washington to be refitted as a rear admiral, with more easy money. His polar work was not sufficient. In Washington we have what is known as a National Geographical Society. It is neither national nor geographical. It has no connection with the national government. It is a public lecture bureau with Mr. Peary as its lecture star. They rallied around and got busy; they appointed a jury, three personal friends of Mr. Peary, to pass upon both claims. That jury promptly gave a verdict upon Mr. Peary's material, without an examination of his instruments, with but a verbal examination. On observations shown to be worthless they gave a verdict in favor of Mr. Peary. A year later, in congress, the same jury admitted that Peary's proofs were not proofs. In the meantime, my material was sent to Copenhagen. They examined my material and came to the conclusion that there was no positive proof. The Danish verdict has been sent all around the world. Mr. Peary's press propaganda has sent it all over to dishonor me. Still the public was hitched to credit my theory. Anything to blacken my character, to destroy my reputation for veracity. If what I tell you is not true, the prison doors are open to me.

Mr. Peary now found it convenient to deny my climbing of Mt. McKinley. I climbed Mt. McKinley in 1906. The record of this climb was given in my book, "To the Top of the Continent." In the last part of the climb Mr. Edward Burrell, of Darby, Mont., was with me and he was with me at the top. Now we find a man in Darby, Mont., who offered Burrell $1,000 if he would say Mt. McKinley had not been climbed. We do not know what Burrell's reply was, but we next find him in Hamilton, Mont., and there another offer of $1,000 of Peary's money is made if he would say Mt. McKinley had not been climbed. Burrell's reply was that he wanted the $5,000, but to take it he would have to sell his soul. We then go over to Seattle, and there in the office of the Seattle Times, and in the presence of the editor, Joe Blether, an offer to sell his soul is made for $10,000. Again the deal is not closed. They go to Tacoma and there we find a lawyer by the name of Ashton. He says at the time that he was engaged in the Mt. McKinley business, but didn't know whether by Cook or Peary. He was engaged in a business so contemptible that he did not dare to tell the source of the money. We find Burrell there. We next find him back in Tacoma and there in the presence of a man that I am ready to bring forth, that man is mankind. He said Bill, you and there are other considerations that probably amount to $25,000. In consideration of that money, Burrell made an affidavit then and there denying the climbing of Mt. McKinley. That affidavit we find in the possession of the Peary trust. If he is not the meanest coward in all history, let him come forward and explain the Mt. McKinley bribery.

I am ready to meet every word I have said tonight by legal statement, by my own money and by my fist, if necessary. How will it all end? As far as I am concerned, it has ended. My claim from first to last has been indorsed by the leading Arctic explorers, by such men as Rear Admiral Schley; by A. W. Greeley, by Capt. Amundsen, by Capt. Scott, and by Capt. Roald Amundsen. In a long campaign of bribery and conspiracy, not one line of my report has been truthfully discredited. Broadly speaking, the pole has been honestly reached and I want the credit for it. That is all I ask for. I want no money, no medals, no government favors. I want fair play and to get the honor of my own effort.

The Sugar Beet Situation

That the beet growers of Michigan will be offered contracts for the 1911 season at a lower price than the factories have heretofore met, seems to be an assured fact. None of the Michigan companies have made contracts for beets next year.

Capt. James Davidson, has ordered his plant at Jacksville, Wis., closed permanently. He has taken this action in view of the present situation. The plant has been operated for the past two years, but has not been a profitable venture. The plant is located in a place where the overall crop is not grown in quantity to make the factory a paying proposition. The plant is located at Jacksville, Wis., a place where the overall crop is grown in quantity, but the factory

The story opens with Jesse Smith, relating the story of his birth, early life in Lincoln County, Ontario, and how he became known as the "Kid." Jesse's father was the master of the ship and both are lost in the wreck of the "Cedarbough." Jesse's mother, a Scotch woman, dies of a broken heart. The boy is adopted by a childless couple, who had expected to have purchased, instead, a little helpless girl. Jesse's foster father, Uncle Jim, takes up the motherless boy, and he and his contemporaries subdue his chums—Jim Kale from far Gilmour, Tommy Ross, Dick Ellis, Ed Ellis, Harry Kane, Jack Ellis, Ed Ellis, Harry Kane, Jack Ellis, Ed Ellis, Harry Kane, Jack

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Is the Housewife's Greatest Help.

WHAT so tempting to the laggard appetite as a light, flaky, fruit short cake or a delicate hot biscuit?

Royal makes the perfect short cake, biscuit and muffin, and improves the flavor and healthfulness of all risen flour-foods.

It renders the biscuit, hot-bread and short cake more digestible and nutritious, at the same time making them more attractive and appetizing.

Royal Baking Powder is indispensable for the preparation all the year round of perfect foods.

The Right and Wrong of It

For the past two weeks and since the troops have been reduced to a small detachment at Calumet, conditions have been steadily growing worse. One night last week three non-coms were killed outright and a little girl fatally wounded. Last Wednesday four men were shot.

All these outrages, besides innumerable smaller offenses, have been under the inspiration of the Western Federation of Miners, locally represented by the notorious anarchist Haywood. In a public address in the west, far from the Michigan copper range, this Haywood pride the assertion that soldiers of the National Guard had insulted and "outraged" women on the street. He uttered a cowardly lie.

And now, in the face of all these irrefutable facts, the Western Federation has appealed to Gov. Ferris for "protection." Protection from what? From nothing less than from the efforts of the civil and military authorities to preserve order and protect life and property. But the most amazing action yet reported is the resolution adopted by the Pike Grange last week condemning the governor's action in sending troops to Calumet.

At a period of the strike before the trouble was well developed, the writer of this served nine days at Calumet as a soldier. He saw turmoil and some bloodshed. He had ample opportunity to observe the character of the strikers and agitators as well as that of the soldiers. From that time to the present there has not been a single instance of a soldier committing an act of violence except in the line of duty as a preserver of order; and it was very gratifying to read a recent speech of Gov. Ferris, in which he expressed his pride in the Michigan National Guard and the manner in which they discharged their duties at Calumet.

And now that the Guard is practically withdrawn a condition of anarchy prevails and a Citizens' alliance has been formed. Last Thursday a battle was fought between the deputy sheriffs and two score strikers barricaded in the headquarters of the Western Federation at Houghton. A deputy was killed and others wounded. An entrance was made and thirty-nine arrests made. Thirty rifles and shotguns, many revolvers and more than a thousand rounds of ammunition and seven red flags, were found.

Can the State Grange reconcile these facts with its resolution? The action of this honorable body is of northern Michigan interest, inasmuch as the resolution was introduced by Niles, of Antrim county, who lacks either brains or ordinary horse sense.

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY

For Western Michigan Fruit Growers To Advance Quality Standard

Essentially, it appears that the best way to do a thing is to do it right. This fact is being earnestly discussed at the meeting of the Michigan State Horticultural society in connection with the raising and marketing of fruit and the work that has been started in this direction is found to bear results in the future. Every man who grows good fruit should not be satisfied to place his name upon the package, for it will not only benefit him in the long run, but will help the industry at large. An honest name will sell fruit that is well grown and honestly packed and the more honest men that are engaged in the business the better will the business prove from the financial end.

The doom of the dishonest packer has been sounded, not only in a legal way, but through public sentiment as well. When a customer orders a quality article and pays full price he expects to get value received. If he does not then not only the reputation of the man who furnishes him with an inferior grade is injured, but the other growers in the vicinity suffer as well. The great majority of fruit growers are honest and endeavor to treat their customers fairly, but they are constantly hampered by a certain few who believe that it is a mark of shrewdness to cheat the purchaser, especially if he lives at a distance. Honesty is the only paved road to success and the closer this route is followed the greater will be the rewards obtained by the ones who travel in this direction.

Michigan is the premier fruit state of the Union, and as soon as the growers can be educated up to the point where they will be willing to stand behind every box or barrel that is packed upon their premises the markets of the world will be searching for Michigan-grown fruit. The fruit itself is far superior to that of other states and with this legislation to work upon a mighty marketing structure can be erected that competition cannot break down or western advertising weaken. The opportunity is at hand, and it is a. to the growers to seize it and pluck the golden harvest that await them.

PLEASED WITH FANCY APPLES

American Pomological Society Wishes Larger Exhibit Had Been Made at Western Michigan Orchard Products.

The fame of western Michigan fruit, particularly apples, says the Traverse City Record-Eagle, is slowly spreading over the entire American continent. A few weeks since, about two dozen plates of western Michigan fancy apples were forwarded to Washington for exhibition in connection with the annual meeting of the American Pomological society. Yesterday's mail brought a letter from the secretary of the society, in which he comments upon the apples that came from this section. The letter says: "The committee of awards reported that the exhibit by Hugh Scott was of special merit." This exhibit from the Hugh Scott place consisted of a plate of Winter Banana apples, the same having been forwarded at the close of the Grand Traverse Region show. It will be noted that these apples after having been on exhibition ten days, and having been forwarded half way across the continent, were still of sufficient quality to be entitled to "special merit."

The secretary of this association makes several comments upon Grand Traverse apples that are of interest. He says: "One point I have noticed is that the skarsen on your boxes, "Fruit With Flavor," is certainly well put. For I had the pleasure of sampling a few western Michigan Baldwins this afternoon, a few having been left over after the scramble at the close of the exhibit. I want to tell you that I have not eaten a Baldwin for many a year that has had the snap like these."

The secretary also thanks the Western Michigan Development bureau for gathering and forwarding the apples to the national meeting. He should write, as, "Certainly the society feels grateful for the part that you performed in making this event a positive success. I only wish now that we could have had a larger display of fruit. I am sure it would have been worth it to western Michigan, since the exhibits were in special and marked by thousands from all parts of the country and foreign lands.

Human Derelicts.

This is the invariable history of such cases. Let an unidentified body of a man or woman, young or old, be discovered, and from all directions will come inquiries looking to the fact that many persons have disappeared from the knowledge of their friends. Tragedies and heartbreaks are thus uncovered, for the mere act of inquiry proves that some one in each case has suffered anxiety over the missing one and has felt keen sympathies. Crime, shame, melancholy, discontent, unhappiness, desire for adventure, are among the causes that lead to the disappearance.—Indianapolis Star.

He declares he left because of serious accusations, which white false, would lend his cause in this community.

The Traverse City Business Men's association which for several years was one of the strong organizations of the city has passed into history. He stepped directly in front of the rapidly moving car and was ground to pieces beneath the wheels.

Capt. Albert Miller, one of Petoskey's oldest residents, and for almost forty years an operator of fish tugs out of that port, was drowned about 8:45 Friday forenoon, when the small boat in which he and his son Lloyd were using while attempting to lift a fish net, was upset on the Arlington reef. Capt. Miller and son had gone out to the reef and were progressing rapidly with their work when a huge wave literally lifted their boat into the air and turned it upside down. Lloyd was thrown some distance from the bow of the boat and Capt. Miller near the stern. Both managed to get hold of the boat and clung to it until they could touch bottom, when they let go and started to wade to shore over the rocks. Lloyd reached shore safely but his father was caught by a huge wave and washed under. The undertow, which is very strong at this point, caught him and apparently carried him out into deep water.

DISASTROUS EAST JORDAN FIRE

Lumber Company's Big Red Mill Totally Destroyed—Loss $200,000

Fire of an unknown origin Thursday evening destroyed the sawmill of the East Jordan Lumber Co. at East Jordan, and threatened the planing and flooring plants of the same concern. The loss is estimated at various sums up to $200,000. The blaze was first discovered about six o'clock and it was not until four hours later that the flames were under control.

It was the most disastrous fire in years at East Jordan, and the fire fighters were assisted by many of the townspeople. The destroyed building was known as the "Red Mill," and was valued, with the machinery and contents at about $100,000, according to W. H. Porter, president of the company. It was one of the best in the lower peninsula.

The employes had just completed the day's work and left the mill when the fire broke out. Because of the intense heat and the flying of burning brands, little hope was held out for the nearby planing and flooring plants. The fighters, however, by desperate work prevented either of these buildings burning, although they caught fire several times. At ten o'clock the men had gained mastery over the fire, although at midnight the ruins still smouldered.

The company, besides operating these three plants, also owns the East Jordan & Southern railroad. The loss will be keenly felt by both the owners and the employes, a large number of whom will be thrown out of work. It is probable the plant will be rebuilt.

A remarkable feature of this fire is the fact that the first knowledge of a fire anywhere in this section came to Charlevoix from Beaver Island. The blaze was seen from St. Jamet, and an inquiry came from there by cable as to its cause. Soon after that East Jordan gave the information.

What About the Good Resolutions

My boy, this issue of the SENTINEL goes to you or your people on Christmas day. It is a day when good cheer favors the atmosphere and love is stimulated. It is a day when you draw closer to the home heartstone and revel in happy memories of childhood.

You have resolved, or must soon enter, a field of endeavor which shall be to you either success or failure. Which shall it be? Failure is easy; success can come only through hard knocks and the application of a spirit of manliness. You cannot begin to cultivate this spirit too early in your life. Manliness embraces every quality that insures success. Anything you will be true, and it shall follow as the night follows day, thou canst not then be false to any man."

Be true to yourself; this covers all. To be manly you must be strong—strong and courageous. Turn your back upon every influence that degrades. Have your head to the world that come from the mountains; breathe not the miasma that come from the desert of dead souls.

When this paper reaches you again a new year will be ushered in. What about it? Shall each day of the year mean a step forward, or shall they measure but the passing of time for you, without progress?

Think it over for a week.

Coulter Leaves Public Service

A. L. Coulter, deputy collector of internal revenue, has handed his resignation to Internal Revenue Collector Geo. Clayperton to take effect Jan. 1.

Mr. Coulter has been in the department for several years and always under civil service. In the urgency deficiency bill passed by the Democrat congress, however, a rider was attached removing from the civil service list all deputy collectors of internal revenue and deputy United States marshals. This removed the protection of the civil service from Mr. Coulter.

A good business offer was presented and Coulter decided the time was ripe to beat the Democrats to it and so accepted the offer.

Mr. Coulter has entered the service of the Prudential Casualty Co., of which A. F. Young, of this city, is state agent. Mr. Coulter's work will be chiefly on the road, soliciting business and inspecting agencies. Mr. Coulter's wide acquaintance throughout the state will make him a valuable man for the company. He is already "on the job."

Manistee Has Nothing On US

Manistee has adopted a new charter which provides for a mayor, five aldermen, and a general manager, who runs the business of the city.

Charlevoix already has that arrangement, and we did not have to change the charter either.

Manistee has nothing on US.

Masonic

The Festival of St. John the Evangelist, Dec. 27th, will be celebrated by Charlevoix Lodge No. 293 F. and A. M. by the installation of officers.

An ocean fish dinner will be given by the new officers in the Lunquist hall at the close of the ceremonies.

GROWERS PROTEST

Fear Contagion to Crops If Diseased Potatoes Are Imported

A strenuous protest has been drafted by the potato growers of Michigan against admitting into the United States diseased potato stock. The potatoes in the western Michigan country are practically free from disease and it is the desire of the farmers that such it will remain the case for years to come. The gravelly and sandy soil of this region produces a potato which in many respects is superior to the potatoes grown in many parts of the world, and it is for this reason, that the demand for western Michigan stock is so great. Should some one of the contagious diseases get into the country, however, it would practically ruin this big industry. The annual potato crop for western Michigan is approximately 15,000,000 bushels, and this is grown on 150,000 acres. This means an average return of 100 bushels to the acre. There are records of many acres which have produced two and three hundred bushels each and there are in western Michigan today, many men who have paid for their farms with the profits from their one potato crop.

What About This?

Several months ago the Charlevoix common council passed a weight and measure ordinance. We have heard nothing about it since. All the bald bushel measures in the state of Michigan are short measures.

The standard measure, which has been in use for more than 50 years and is made of brass, was sent to Washington a few days ago to be passed on by the government bureau of standards. After a careful examination the bureau refused to O. K. it, returning it to State Dairy and Food Commissioner Helme with the information that it was short weight. Mr. Helme declares a new measure will be ready in a short time. All persons using the present half bushel measure in Michigan for commercial purposes will be forced to discard them at a date to be determined by Commissioner Helme and purchase full measures. The change necessitated will cost in excess of $100,000 to the grocers and merchants of the state, it is estimated. All quart and two-quart measures are also short measure, according to the United States bureau of standards.

Monroe Steam Pile Driver Damaged

The steam pile driver of John Monroe, lying at the Chicago Club dock, was badly damaged by the early Monday evening while the crew were at supper. The upper works, or "house," was burned to the deck, and the deck somewhat damaged. The machinery etc. has not been much damaged and will require overhauling and re-rabbiting.

The structure was well ablaze when discovered from the side of the harbor. The fire department responded, but was compelled to run a line of hose from the Mesch corner, on Dixon avenue, a distance of over a quarter of a mile.

The outfit was at work on the new club house dock. The work will not be greatly delayed, as a land pile driver will be used until the damaged plant is repaired.

Since the alleged discovery of a flock of passenger pigeons in Emmet county was published about the country, state game warden has received hundreds of inquiries from every part of the United States urging him to either disprove or prove the story. It is said, however, that it will not be possible to take any steps towards verifying the story until next spring. If the birds are not nesting done as many authorities claim, measures will be taken to afford the birds every protection and allow them to propagate. There was a time when there were thousands of passenger pigeons in Michigan, but ruthless hunters slaughtered them for New York markets and suddenly they disappeared entirely. Authorities claim there is only one live passenger pigeon on the North American continent and that is an old bird in the Cincinnati zoo. Game warden Oates is intensely interested in the reported discovery of passenger pigeons in Emmet county and plans to secure the services of an authority on birds and visit Emmet county next spring.

A Missouri Editor Says:

"To have been in the newspaper business 27 years is to have been in close touch with every phase of life of the community for that period of time. To had been to run the gauntlet of disappointments and joys; to have met success and encountered defeat; to have observed and to have been caused; to have rebounded it up for the town is before each day to have fled like a gem; to have for one's friends, the bride and the dead; to have kept the mantle of charity over personal and community defects and the spotlight on the virtues; to have taken no against trusts and then trusted everybody; to have denounced the mail order houses and to have been denied patronage by the local merchant.

That Missouri editor has saw-thin' on US.

SHEEP RAISING

May Develop into Big and Profitable Industry in Northern Michigan

The prophecy made by former Gov. Chase S. Osborn ten years ago that northern Michigan and especially the upper peninsula would develop into a great sheep country is to all appearances coming true, judging from information that the field men of the M. A. C. extension service are securing from active work in those sections named.

There is a general turning of the sheep breeders of Montana, Wyoming and Nevada to pastures new. Inquiries are now coming in from those states relative to prices of land in northern Michigan and its adaptability to sheep raising. The west is filling up and the land is being cultivated instead of being utilized for grazing purposes. Much of the public lands formerly used by sheep breeders has been placed on the market and sold. Acres that were formerly devoted to sheep raising are being settled up and cultivated.

The western sheep breeder is now looking up the prospects in the state just as predicted he would by the former governor of the northern sheep raising. It is said, however, that it will not be possible to take any steps towards verifying the story until next spring. If the birds are not nesting done as many authorities claim, measures will be taken to afford the birds every protection and allow them to propagate. There was a time when there were thousands of passenger pigeons in Michigan, but ruthless hunters slaughtered them for New York markets and suddenly they disappeared entirely. Authorities claim there is only one live passenger pigeon on the North American continent and that is an old bird in the Cincinnati zoo. Game warden Oates is intensely interested in the reported discovery of passenger pigeons in Emmet county and plans to secure the services of an authority on birds and visit Emmet county next spring.

Will Build Beaver Island Tug

For some time, Frank Left, the well known Beaver Island fisherman, has been figuring with Capt. Silas Scales, the Charlevoix marine architect and shipwright, for the building of a new tug.

On Tuesday Capt. Scales went to St. James with designs and specifications and came back with a signed contract. The tug will be 55 feet long, 18 feet beam, and six feet eight inches depth of hold. She will be driven by a 70-h.p. engine and a Scotch boiler of 150 pounds steam pressure. She will be used exclusively for fishing and will have every modern requirement for both of that class.

Capt. Scales goes to Chicago Friday of this week to order the engine and boiler and buy the timber and other material required. He will have the boat ready for delivery by the opening of navigation.

Mussolman Will Run

Amos S. Mussolman is more than likely to announce his candidacy for State Senator, notice given the proper authorities of his intention for governor soon after the first of the year. From all over the state Mr. Mussolman has been receiving letters urging him to enter and he has about made up his mind to do so.

Traverse City special: At a meeting of fans here Wednesday night it was unanimously decided that Traverse City will not remain in the Michigan State league, unless a change of some sort is effected in the league administration. Resentment has been strong against the present incumbent of the presidential chair since the recent country bird in Grand Rapids. The withdrawal was made in the hope of gaining a release from the Michigan State in which case a new organization probably consisting of four towns will be formed. No officers or directors were chosen for the coming season. The association is now in debt. The most that can be raised by public subscription is about $2,500, and this amount would not insure a season's run for a ball team the coming year. Figures show that with year the local team has run from $2,000 to $2,500 behind the gate receipts, and this crowed up only by the fortunate sale of players, a factor which can not be counted upon in present or future years. The salary list has this year been raised. It is a known fact that every club in the circuit has increased its salary list, and the Traverse City if she stayed in, would necessarily have to comply in order to play ball in Michigan State league class.

Rev. A. Vande Meer, who disappeared from Harbor Springs, Thanksgiving day, and for whom officers have since been searching both in this vicinity and in Chicago, has been located in New York through the efforts of Miss Pearl Konig, of Chicago, his fiance. All of his business matters were put in shape by Vander Meer before he left, but he neglected to leave behind any indication as to where he was going and why. Believing that he might have killed himself, citizens spent two days in dragging the waters of Little Traverse bay until it developed that the man had in all probability left this part of the country. Information is meager regarding his being in New York but a suitable answer will in all probability be made by the minister upon his return.

Croup and Cough Remedy.

Croup is a terrible disease. It attacks children so suddenly that they are very apt to choke unless given the proper remedy in time. There is nothing better in the world than Dr. King's New Discovery. Lewis Chamberlain, of Manchester, Ohio, writes about his children, "Whenever any of my children are taken sick we give them a few doses and they would die, but we were proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup, coughs and colds." Why can you not? and if it is worth about $1 to you in every house. At F. G. Hines & Co.

Pounded a Cartridge With a Stone

Donald McLean, the 10-year old son of Wm. McLean, the cemetery sexton, had an exciting time Thanksgiving day, so he says, and the thumb and index finger of his left hand on Sunday. He was investigating a cartridge and pounded it with a stone.

The convention indorsed the international movement to stop the build ing of battleships for one year.

Michigan in the Lead.

Lansing ranks seventh among Michigan cities in financial advantage during according to reports for the past fiscal year which have been sent out from Washington, D. C.

Michigan's increases are credited with being more pronounced than greater than other states, according to reports submitted to secretary and trustees of the system. The increase in this state has been approximately 76 per cent, as against 50 last year, while that for the whole country was little more than 50 per cent.

The total payments to the postal savings bank at Washington, June 30, 1912, were $1,180,000, and on June 30, 1913, $635,000. The amount placed at interest in the banks of Michigan at the beginning of the current fiscal year was $1,167,199. The number of depositors in Michigan on that date was 8,326. The interest paid them during the last year was $3,500.

Banks in Michigan which had deposits of more than $1,000 at the beginning of the current fiscal year are as follows:

Ubion $79,372; Battle Creek, $11,[illegible]; Bay City, $71,[illegible]; Bangor, $5,124; Bessemer, $15,042; Detroit, $20,937; Crystal Falls, $6,218; Eau Claire, $7,[illegible]; Flint, $6,000; Grand Ledge, $5,[illegible]; Gladstone, $6,878; Grand Crossing, $11,[illegible]; Hancock, $6,[illegible]; Iron Mountain, $15,822; Ironwood, $16,[illegible]; Jackson, $11,[illegible]; Kalamazoo, $20,[illegible]; Lake Linden, $4,[illegible]; Lansing, $4,[illegible]; Marine City, $4,[illegible]; Marquette, $6,[illegible]; Marshfield, $5,[illegible]; Menominee, $8,[illegible]; Muskegon, $[illegible]; Newberry, $[illegible]; Niles, $[illegible]; Norway, $27,000; Owosso, $[illegible]; Petoskey, $[illegible]; Pontiac, $[illegible]; Port Huron, $[illegible]; Saginaw, $[illegible]; Sault Ste. Marie, $5,[illegible]; Marquette, $[illegible]; Stambaugh, $[illegible]; Sturgis, $[illegible]; Wyandotte, $[illegible]; Ypsilanti, $[illegible].

$2,000,000 Asked by Indiana.

Approximately 500 Ottawa and Chippewa Indians in Michigan for the last month will enter a claim for $200,000, now against the United States government for the alleged destruction of valuable lands and fishing rights in the region. Several of the attorneys who have investigated the claim, which is the most sizable one ever entered against the public domain by Indians, say it is valid.

Two instances of similar nature made by these Indians were recognized as valid by the government, one for something over $200,000 paid to the claimants.

The validity of this latest and largest demand against the government hinges upon the interpretation of a treaty of 1833, between the government and the Ottawa and Chippewa of Northern Michigan Ottawas and Chippewas. Until recently it was supposed that under the terms of this treaty the red men had signed away all rights to the lands in Lake Michigan in now located to all the Great Lakes islands and to hereditary fishing rights in the lake waters, as well as other property of extreme value in Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan.

It now develops that through faulty wording of the treaty and through oversight, the South Chicago land, the Great Lakes islands and the fishing rights were not included in the treaty. Some of the lake islands involved in the fishing rights claims are: North and South Manitou; North and South Fox; Beaver, Fox, Hog and Garden of lesser islands; Mackinac Island; Bois Blanc and numerous fishing bays.

University Pharmacists Elect.

At two meetings called because of the ineligibility of the officers chosen at a former meeting, the following were elected by the University of Michigan pharmacists: dentist pharmacy, secretary, T. H. Wordhouse; Priendship, N. Y., historian, D. South; Swanton, Ohio, and treasurer, Oscar C. A. Maddon, Grand Rapids.

Preachers Are Elected.

Greenville, Ohio; treasurer, W. E. Fook, Detroit.

Exhibit Children's Books.

A wonderful exhibit of fine editions of children's books has been placed on display at the new library, on the second floor of the capitol building and is open for public inspection.

This is said to be the most complete collection of children's books ever shown in Lansing and the public is invited to inspect them.

Those who expect to make Christmas gifts to children are urged to visit the library in the capital city.

14 Killed; 31 Hurt

The human toll of the fall hunting sport in upper Michigan, opening when ducks became legal game and ending with the close of the deer season, according to an authentic tabulation made in Marquette, shows 14 persons killed and 31 wounded, many seriously.

The following roster of the dead is believed to be correct:

Gogebic county.—Frank Metirath, thirty; one years old, of Ironwood. Sidwell white hunting dress. A. J. Noah, ironwood, died from exposure; Harry Mulvey, chief of police of Gimlet, shot by small boy; Leslyn Seldon of Bear Lake, southern Michigan, killed by his nephew Stanley Seldon, for a deer.

Marquette county—Leslie Atwill, ten years old, of Princeton, killed by accidental discharge of gun; William Yeck, Jr., twenty-four years old, of Waterford, killed by unknown hunter; Clayton Pomeroy, eight years old, of Turin township, accidentally shot by older brother.

Mackinac county—George E. Mowral, real estate dealer, of St. Pleasant, shot after a deer by C. A. McKoll, a member of his party; William Westen, seven years old, of Cedarville, accidentally shot by brother.

Iron county—Paul Hilber, twenty-four years old, of Wells, formerly of Oconto, Wis., accidentally shot by fellow hunter.

Houghton county—James McCarthy, thirty-five of Hancock, shot himself.

Schoolcraft county—Floyd Reiman, fourteen years old, of Manistique, accidentally shot by companion.

Ontonagon county—Alfred M. Johnson, twenty-two years old, of Ironton, shot himself in drawing his rifle through a fence.

Chippewa county—Walter Goshke, eleven years old, of Sault Ste. Marie, shot by companion.

The list of wounded follows: William Bessemer, Ishpeming; Ed Langer, Sault Ste. Marie; Miss Mamie Shutte and brother, Joseph, Lake Linden; Joseph Matte, Eagle River; A. J. Sackett, Iron Mountain; Alma Hamalainen, Pine River; Frank Polonski, Saunders; Theodore Hasen, Garden; Andrew Nelson, Ishpeming; Sam Sifolle, Manistique; Peter Miller, Escanaba; Isadore Juliani, Norway; Thomas Lindsay, at Ishpeming; Joseph Dick; Reuben Lassaig, Foster City; Axel Anderson, Norway; John Martin; Guy Simmons; Edward Miller, Gladstone; Herbert Morrency, Gladstone; Alfred Lotesous, Perronville; Richard Carlson, Marquette; Albert Wallen, Ishpeming; Joseph Dunn, Sault Ste Marie; Arvin Tonsingant Jr., Iahpeming; Joseph Overman, Jr., Baraga; John Durabine, Bessemer; Hemo Rissdeolovem, Marquette; Martin Lucas, Reed River and Hiadon Martin, Ironwood.

Compulsory Industrial Training.

Compulsory industrial training in all city schools, compulsory training in agriculture in schools of all rural educational centers throughout the state, and the establishment of a school in both is the tenor of a bill that will probably be introduced at the approaching session of the legislature according to Dr. Charles R. Lindley, superintendent of the Detroit public schools. Doctor Lindsay returned from a teachers' convention in Indiana, where a similar law, just put in operation, was discussed. Speaking of discussion Doctor Chadsey made an address at the convention, on the City School System to Adjust itself to Modern Life. He was elected to succeed Chadsey.

Without a state law or without state financial aid we already have in operation in Detroit schools the industrial training that has just been made compulsory throughout the state of Indiana. To have a state law in Michigan that will extend the Detroit system to all the other cities and towns of the state is likely to be the next step forward to be taken by the Michigan educational system. I think we have reached a point here where the step should be taken."

When Doctor Chadsey arrived home he was informed that some of the members of the board of education who voted to reconsider transfers and promotions of teachers made at the suggestion of the superintendent, had changed their minds. The board of superintendent settled significantly, but would make no comment. The reconsideration was carried at the meeting of the board against the protest of Doctor Chadsey, who declared that it meant the breaking down of the system he had established in getting the best efficiency out of the teaching staff of the schools. Inspector Mayhew, a member of the teachers' committee, who voted at the board meeting for reconsideration, has announced that he will breather vote in the committee for a resolution to the board of the former report of a new report that shall leave the disturbed schools of promotions as they were they are at present.

The leaks in the teachers who have stirred up this commotion just where they are would be pretty funny. So declared Superintendent Chadsey to the teachers' committee.

Michigan Corporations.

Wayne Pulder company, Detroit, $10,000—principal stockholders, John Kaul Auditorium, Detroit; Wyoming Spring Lake Savings bank, Spring Lake, $25,000; Gottlieb & son, real estate agency, Milford, $10,000; Sterling Detroit Motor company, change of name to The Sterling Motor company; Keenan Construction company, $6,000—Leo J. Keenan and Thomas J. Lee, Trombley & Crossbeck Construction company, Mt. Clemens, $15,000; Alex Anderson, Norway; John Martt, Ironwood.

MULTIPLANE THAT MAY FLY ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

Capt. Matthew A. Batson's "aero-yacht" or multiplane, which has been under construction near Savannah, Georgia, for the past two years, and its designer is planning to fly it across the Atlantic ocean, probably next spring. The craft is 74 feet long and has 12 big planes and two 11-foot propellers, one at either end. There are three engines in a cabin aswing amidships.

Florida State Bank Suspends.

Pensacola, Fla., Dec. 8.—After an all night conference the Pensacola State bank, capitalized at $100,000, suspended business pending examination by the state comptroller. The bank has about $100,000 deposits.

Egg War Hits the Capital.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—Eggs are to be banished from the tables in the homes of nearly all the cabinet officers, whose wives have pledged their support to the egg boycott campaign being waged to reduce the price.

TELLS BOMB PLOTS

CONFESSION OF GEORGE E. DAVIS CAUSES STIR IN NEW YORK LABOR RANKS.

WAS M'MANIGAL OF EAST

Member of Iron Workers' Organization Gives Particulars of Bomb Outrages Committed at Behest of Union Officials in Alleged.

New York, Dec. 9.—George E. Davis, the dynamiter on whose evidence the federal grand jury at Indianapolis has just found indictments in numerous cases in which officers and members of the International Bridge and Structural Ironworkers' association are defendants, made one of the most remarkable confessions ever made.

David and Harry Jones are among the new men indicted, in addition to the many connected with the union already convicted on previous charges.

Davis gives dates and places of dynamite outrages. He relates how he was hired to blow up bridges, viaducts and other structures erected by nonunion labor.

The confession is a document of extraordinary interest. It shows how small the reward was that Davis received for the destruction he caused. In one case he got $20 for a dynamite outrage, in another only $10.

The confession shows the peril to which hundreds of persons were subjected by the conspirators. Davis carried the dynamite in suitcases through cities, traveled in railroad trains and steamships with it, deposited it here and there in saloons over night, and it was the most harmless substance in the world. Yet he carried enough of it, sufficient to wreck a dozen cities, in suitcases through the world. He carried it in his hand, men and women knowing that he was carrying it, and not one of them was injured.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Hobey Baker, Princeton's All Around Star.

Hobey Baker of Princeton is some football quarterback we all know, and he is a good sprinter and an effective hockey player as well.

As soon as the gridiron season is over Hobey will polish his skates and start in pursuit of the elusive puck.

Cochran to Build Defender.

Alex Smith Cochran will take up single handed his part of the defense of the America's cup. The Yonkers (N. Y.) sportsman, who for nine years has been a member of the New York Yacht club has commissioned William Gardner to design a seventy-five foot sloop yacht to take part in the trial races. Mr. Gardner has designed many fast racing yachts, and the only condition imposed by Mr. Cochran is that he shall not accept an order from any other yachtsmen or syndicate to design another sloop for the same purpose.

No limit is placed on the amount to be expended for the new boat, the orders being to produce the fastest yacht possible under the present rule of the New York Yacht club. The builder of the yacht has not been announced.

Mr. Cochran is by no means a novice in the racing of fast yachts. He had the schooner Westward designed and built for him by Herreshoff in 1909. This yacht crossed the ocean and defeated the best boats in England and Germany. After winning the kaiser's cup at Cowes the Westward came here, raced for one season and then was sold to a German gentleman.

New Baseball Deal?

In Philadelphia was circulated a story that Connie Mack of the Athletics had traded Outfielder James Walsh to the New York Americans as part of a deal by which Frank Chance and Claude Derrick to the Baltimore club, partly owned by Mack, last year. When President Farrell of the New York Americans was asked about the supposed deal he declared that while he hasn't actually signed papers that would make Walsh his property, something might come of it later on.

"The report is a trifle premature," said Farrell, "and I only wish that I could confirm it. It is true that last summer when Chance let Derrick go to the Baltimore club he asked Mack to let him have an outfielder, one of six then wearing Athletic uniforms. Mack at first couldn't see it, but as he needed Derrick in Baltimore he finally named three players from whom Chance could make a selection, and Walsh was among them."

Wrestler Mahmout Killed by Bandits.

Yusuf Mahmout, a Bulgarian wrestler, who met a number of Americans not non, including Frank Gotch, by whom he was defeated, was killed by a band of Bulgarian bandits in the mountains near Sliatitsa, his home, according to a story told by two Turkish wrestlers who arrived in Chicago recently.

Mahmout was a petty officer in the Bulgarian army during the late war and, according to their story, went to the town to draw some money to pay off the men in his command. Sixteen bandits, learning the purpose of his trip, waylaid him on his return, but because Mahmout had procured only orders instead of gold coin they killed him.

In the Federal League.

The Federal leaguers claim that Tommy Leach, Roger Bresnahan, George Stovall and Wilbert Robinson will manage teams in the outlaw circuit. Bresnahan has a three years contract with the Cubs at $10,000 a year. Robinson couldn't be hired to leave his old pal, John McGraw, and the Giants. Leach may not remain with Evers because of attracting jealousy. Stovall's threatened defection will not cause an earthquake in St. Louis.

To Release Brickwell.

John, four years old, was trying to run the lawn mower, which he had been forbidden to touch.

His mother came to the door and told him to stop it but John ran the mower down the strip of lawn and back again before he stopped.

"You will have to come into the house and stay for an hour," said his mother.

"Why did you run that mower after I told you to stop?" she asked.

"Well, mamma," said John, "I'd rather have run it twice and have to stay in the house for an hour than not run it at all."—National Monthly.

Author Who Wrote Legibly.

No author, or any one else, for that matter, could possibly have written more legibly than Francis Thompson. He wrote frequently in pencil in a cursive round hand that would have got a schoolboy at the top of his writing class. His copy was always "good" for the compositor, which was fortunate, for there was always the great difficulty in getting him to correct the proofs of his reviews. I have the manuscript of one of his later poems, which a child of ten could read with ease, though it is written partly in pencil and partly in ink. Col. Cockerill stuck together where lines have been missed out with scissors. He was probably the only writer of poems who used penny exercise books as manuscript paper.—London Spectator.

Tennyson and a Telescope.

Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree in Thespian and Adventurer tells this tale of Lord Tennyson: The poet was invited to a certain country house, and all the neighboring litterateur of the county had been invited to meet him. After dinner his host asked whether he would like to look at the stars. Tennyson took up the telescope and, forgetting all else, gazed for twenty minutes at the wonders of the heavens. "Well, what do you think, sir, Tennyson?" inquired his host. "I don't think much of our country families," Tennyson replied.

NOTACLES IN THE LIMELIGHT

Congressman William C. Adamson of Georgia.

Congressman William C. Adamson of Georgia, chairman of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, has given his best efforts to promoting the completion of the Panama canal. Since the inception of the plan to construct a waterway across the isthmus he has been indefatigable in aiding to facilitate the great work of connecting the eastern and western oceans. Now that the canal is practically finished he believes that its builders should be fittingly recognized.

For many years Mr. Adamson has been a member of the interstate and foreign commerce committee, becoming its chairman when the Democratic party won its way to power. He is a native of the state he represents and is serving his ninth term as a member of the national house. In early life he was a farm hand and teamster, finally accumulating enough money to take the collegiate course at Bowdon college. Later he studied law and in 1875 was admitted to the bar, hanging up his shingle at Carrollton. From 1885 to 1890 he was judge of the city court of Carrollton, having previously been city attorney. He was elected to the Fifty-fifth congress and has since been regularly returned to represent his district, most of the time without opposition.

Mrs. Pankhurst, Suffragist.

The invasion of the United States by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the noted militant suffragist of England, has apparently had little effect on the "votes for women" propaganda on this side of the water. Her initial reception at Madison Square Garden, New York city, was wholly devoid of spectacular interest, and, while she was warmly welcomed by some of the suffragist leaders, others were conspicuous by their absence. Mrs. Pankhurst has twice before visited this country on woman suffrage campaigns and on each occasion was extended every courtesy by the leaders of the movement.

Mrs. Pankhurst was born in Manchester and educated in Paris under refined influences. In 1879 she was married to Dr. Pankhurst, a member of the original women's suffrage society founded by John Stuart Mill, the economist. Throughout the stalwart Mrs. Pankhurst was on the executive committee of the society. When her husband died in 1898 she went into business. She served as secretary of births and deaths in Manchester and was twice elected to the national council of the Independent Labor party. In 1905 she organized the Women's Social and Political union. She has two daughters, Christabel and Sylvia, both of whom are ardent advocates and workers for woman suffrage.

Homemade Hair Tonic.

An old fashioned hair tonic, that is really helpful in starting new growth and preventing falling hair, is made from 3 cents worth of castor oil, 2 cents worth of pure grain alcohol and 5 cents worth of bergamot. Shake all well together until thoroughly mixed, and apply by parting the hair anywhere, and rubbing the tonic right into the scalp, with the tips of the fingers. Only a very little of the mixture at the upper ends and over the ears and temples should be needed to get it right into the scalp, not the hair, rubbing thoroughly. It is of course very crude, although claimed by the alcohol and for a few days afterward the hair is likely to look rather more "slick" than modern fashion approves, and a little rubbing with bay rum removes this stickiness.

Freshening Furs.

To freshen a fur piece that has become flat and lifeless brush it the wrong way with a moist bakerman containing the spell the fur is dry. Brush it with a gentle hand, or with a dry brush, or with a gentle heater attachment. It is claimed that this device will wash anything from lace curtains to cupola (usually without necessitating any rubbing by hand on a board.

Baked Pickerel.

Cut out the backbone of a good sized pickerel and fill the small house which can be removed without tearing the flesh too much or getting the fish out of shape. Brush the fish with lemon juice and olive oil and let it stand about an hour. Then put very thin slices of pork across a rack in a dripping pan and place the fish side down over the pork. Brush with pork drippings and bake in a covered pan for forty minutes. Baste it once or twice while cooking, and serve with melted butter prepared thus: Four tablespoonfuls of butter, one of vinegar, one of lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoonful pepper, one teaspoonful chopped parsley. Heat the butter to a cream, and gradually heat in the seasoning, the parsley last of all. This sauce is nice with all kinds of fish and also with lobsters.

Good For Lunches.

Nut bread.—One cup, one cupful sugar, one cupful milk, one cupful raisins, three cupfuls flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder. Let rise twenty minutes and bake about one hour. Excellent for school lunches.

Raisin bread.—Four cupfuls flour, four teaspoonfuls baking powder, half a cupful sugar, one teaspoonful salt, one cupful raisins, one egg, two cupfuls milk. Let rise twenty minutes and bake one hour. If an open pan is used cover the bread with oiled paper.

Gingerbread.—Half a cupful sugar, half a cupful butter, one cupful molasses, one teaspoonful each cloves, cinnamon and ginger, two eggs, two teaspoonfuls soda poured with sweet milk, one cupful boiling water, two and a half cupfuls flour. Bake in slow oven.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with Jesse Smith, ex-Indian scout, and his little daughter Joy, on a grand prairie trek. He and Joy meet Jesse Beaumont, engineer, and his wife, Ruth, on the trail. Jesse Smith is in the employ of the Beaumont family. Mr. Beaumont, who lacks a "backbone," is a "sport" who plays at "ranching" on the prairie. Jesse Smith takes up the narrative. Joy's mother died when she was born. Jesse Smith, for years after leaving the Indian service, had been a "bad man." Joy, who he calls the "little rapids," keeps him on the straight and narrow. Joy's grandfather, a wealthy Boston man, who had disowned her mother, wants Joy to live with him. Jesse Smith, fearing the child will be "spoiled" by the "soft" life, refuses to let her go. Joy's father, a "sport" in the English sense, is killed in a fall from his horse. Jesse Smith, Joy and Ruth Beaumont are left in the Rockies and are "rescued" by a "sport" named Billy Blake. Jesse Smith, Joy and Ruth Beaumont are taken to Blake's ranch. Jesse Smith, Ruth and Joy

BANKERS MEET IN KALAMAZOO

SOUTHWESTERN ASSOCIATION CLOSES MEETING WITH ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

SESSIONS WELL ATTENDED

Charles C. Green Is Chosen President —Sturgis Man Is Named Vice President—Battle Creek Gets the Next Gathering.

Lansing.—The southwestern Michigan bankers' association convention which closed in Kalamazoo was well attended. The following were the officers elected:

Charles C. Green, president of the City bank of Battle Creek, was elected president. J. S. Shawman, cashier of the National bank of Sturgis, vice president; William A. Marsh, Benton Harbor, secretary, and George T. Wolfe, president of the First National bank of Three Rivers, treasurer.

F. Williams of the First State bank of Allegan was named as a member of the executive staff to serve with B. S. Stafford, president of the Branch County Savings bank, of Coldwater. The officers of the association will constitute the remaining members of the executive committee. George Clapperton of Grand Rapids, internal revenue officer, spoke to the bankers on the federal income tax.

Bertrand L. Chaffee, Kalamazoo, Allegan, St. Joseph and Van Buren counties were represented at the meeting. Seventy-five bankers were present.

The next meeting will be held in Battle Creek.

Educational Rally Planned.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Fred Merrill has issued an order for a rural rally for Michigan.

Plans have been made whereby 60 counties in the state will be able to hear prominent Michigan speakers and a number from other states.

The expenses of the campaign to be borne by teachers institutes fund will amount to more than $2,000.

The educational campaign will start January 25 and will continue through February.

Meetings will be held in the 60 counties and Governor Ferris has arranged to speak at a number of points in the state. Superintendent Merrill will also speak at a number of places. Here are a few of the topics there from out the state: President B. B. Bean, Ottawa university; Hon. O. T. Corson, state superintendent, Columbus; Hon. Miss P. P. Claxton, commissioner of education, Washington, D. C.; Dr. Ernest H. Hoag, Berkeley, Cal., superintendent of schools; Dr. M. V. O'Shea, university of Wisconsin; President H. W. Shrock, Northern Illinois State Normal university; President Jonathan Hadley, Wilson college, Indiana; Dr. F. M. Green, Westchester State Normal school, Pennsylvania; Prof. Albert H. Harrop, University of Denver.

The institute which has been arranged is as follows:

In the south will speak at Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Holland, Grand Haven, Allegan, Cadillac, Reed City, Big Rapids, Greenville and Ithaca, P. P. Claxton at Ionia, St. Johns, Lansing, Hastings and Flint, M. V. O'Shea at Ann Arbor, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Charlotte, St. Joseph and Niles, T. Berrien county, not yet determined. F. H. Green in Coldwater, Hillsdale, Adrian, Monroe and Jackson. O. T. Corson at Alpena, Saginaw, Bay City and Mount Pleasant, Houghton, Crystal Falls, Marquette, Ironwood, Caro, Battle Creek and Ironwood. H. W. Shrock at Bay City, Bad Axe, Mt. Pleasant and in Sanilac county. Jonathan Hadley at Traverse City, Manistee and Ludington. Dr. Hoag at Iron Mountain, Crystal Falls, Marquette, Ironwood and in Marquette, Houghton and Delta counties.

Governor Ferris will speak at Lansing, Port Huron, Charlevoix, Port Huron, Owosso and Lawton. Superintendent Merrill will speak at Iron Mountain, Crystal Falls and in Delta, Houghton, Alpena and in other counties. A large number of other speakers will appear in various parts of the state, it was announced.

Superintendent Keeler has been here since assuming his office in getting the program in shape and Superintendent Merrill and Mr. Wright worked over a year on the campaign. It is expected the campaign will be nearly over by January.

Convention in Upper Peninsula.

The executive committee of the Michigan library association met in Lansing and it was decided that the annual convention next year should be held in the upper peninsula, but the city was not named.

U. of M. Editors Are Named.

The following have been chosen as postale editors of the 1914 Michigan Union, the senior yearbook:

Literary department, Leo Burnett, Ann Arbor, Dwight Mitchell, Detroit, Fred W. Ade and Irma Pogsdone, Grand Rapids. Engineering department, George Ballentine, Detroit, Francis Dubois, Washington, D. C. Law department, Ross Lee Finney, Flint, and John Ober, Rockford. Medical department, J. O. Gilbert, Ann Arbor.

State Incorporations.

Williamston Telephone company, Williamston, $7,000. Kalamazoo Stamping & Supply company, $6,000. Earle Card Implement company, Detroit, $10,000. M. Earle, E. C. Card and E. H. Kennedy, National Stock Food company, Bay City, $10,000. American Baking Specialties company, Detroit, $1,000—William G. Hemkes, Theodore W. Gushing, William P. Adams. Lone Star mining company, increase from $200,000 to $400,000. Simplex Leader company, Buchanan, increase from $7,000 to $12,000.

1914 Convention to Battle Creek.

Battle Creek was chosen as the Michigan State Grange at Flint as the next meeting place, after the delegates had voted to break a precedent before announcing the result of the balloting the committee that canvassed the votes stated the result was the closest in the history of the order. Battle Creek had 137 votes, Muskegon, 133, Ann Arbor 102.

The executive committee members, chosen in a primary, several weeks ago, were ratified as follows:

N. P. Hull, Dimondale; Harr Lincoln, Harbor Beach; Thomas Marsh, Vaughnsville, Ada.

A report by Secretary Hutchins, showed 119 subordinate granges, with 19,500 members in Michigan, and the state treasurer's report showed $10,970 in the treasury.

Representative James McBride of Morton was present on behalf of the Michigan Association of Farmers' clubs, which claims a membership of more than 25,000. He is chairman of a committee appointed to take up several matters with the Grangers and farmers organizations. The association favors the tonnage tax on minerals, the Torrens system of land transfers and the establishment of a system of conciliation courts. The last is especially desirable from the farmers' standpoint, as it aims to settle neighborhood differences without the aid of lawyers.

To Get More for Sugar Beets.

The threatened reduction in the price of beets to the farmer by the sugar companies of the state has been announced, and on analysis, it does not have the average terror at all. Rather, it helps him a little. If this is the only readjustment which the removal of the tariff on sugar forces, the sugar beet business of Michigan will not be "ruined," as some of the critics of the tariff have so loudly proclaimed, nor will the industry be curtailed. The standard price for sugar beets for next season at all Michigan factories will be a raise of five dollars per ton for beets delivered to the company at welsh stations, and $2.50 per ton for "wagon beets" that is beets delivered by wagon and unloaded into the sugar factory bins.

The farmer with average beet land and the big majority of acreage in Michigan may be classed as average farmers, will not lose by the change. On the contrary he will make a little. Beet growers about Mount Pleasant, St. Louis, Owosso, Flint and other places in the clay belt, who have been raising on average acreages for years have barely averaged five dollars per ton, while the average wagon beet delivered has been $5.50 to $6.00.

In the Saginaw valley, about the Saginaw, Bay City and Kawkawlin plants, the sugar average is lower than here, but for per ton beets which did not pay as much as the flat rate prices which will govern next year, were the rule. Around Caro and Vassar, however, the farmers will have a different story to tell.

The Tuscola county farmers will have considerable cause for the new arrangement. They have the clay beet raising land, and are flat, and their tests run from 17 to 22 per cent. of sugar, which is phenomenally high. The beet is true to the three dollars per ton on the new flat rate, but they will have enough to make beet raising a profitable crop.

The companies in putting through the flat rate have considerably for the abolishment of their beet-setting lieutenants, with their forces of highpriced men. Also, there exists no further necessity for paying expense accounts on sample beets.

It will cost the farmer less to haul over the crop than it has in the past. On acreage where the rows are 22 and 24 inches apart, the cost with the two dollars less per acre, where the rows are 18 inches apart, the cost will be one dollar less. The beet workers who are imported for the planting and harvesting will have to stand the cut.

State Beekeepers Gather.

It is an ill wind in business as any in which to get "stung." Believing O. H. Schmidt of Bay City, secretary and treasurer of the Michigan Beekeepers' association should be holding his annual convention in the M. C. A. in Detroit.

One of the foreigner who conscientiously devotes himself to the study and care of bees will find his efforts well worth while. Affairs of the industry is still in its infancy, there are more than 200 beekeepers in Michigan, and the Michigan clover honey is acknowledged to be the best in the world. New York, Texas and California alone exceed Michigan in the production of honey.

Jesiner E. Morse, president of the association, opened the convention with an address, followed by talks by A. D. Wood of Lansing, Lamont Griggs of Flint and F. B. Cassnach of Hebron, Ind. The session closed with a talk on diseases of bees by the Isolation of the Beekeeper to the Fruitgrower, by R. H. Pettit of Lansing.

Enrollment at Jackson Breaks Record.

Jackson prison's population reached a highest mark in its history with an enrollment of 821 convicts.

A total of 35 convicts were entered upon the prison records in November.

With the purpose of studying prison conditions 30 members of the sociology class of the law school of Michigan, and 10 from Hillsdale college visited the penitentiary in the city of Jackson.

Many Fires During Six Months.

Fire losses amounting to $3,016,325 fires have occurred in Michigan, according to statistics compiled by State Fire Marshal Wisehip. Since July 1 Wayne county has reported 817 fires, while 239 have been reported from Kent and 179 from Bay. These counties report the largest number of fires. Oceola county failed to report from the time the last six months, from $200,000 to $400,000; Sanilac county, Buchanan, increase from $7,000 to $12,000.

WILSON IS ANGERED

"DAMN THE INSURRECTOS" SONG AT ARMY AND NAVY DINNER RESULTS IN INQUIRY.

CALLS ADMIRAL ON "CARPET"

Secretaries Daniels and Garrison Told by President to Reprimand Officers Responsible for the Burlesque—Resents Play on Bryan.

Washington, Dec. 17.—An investigation was ordered on Monday by President Wilson in the war and navy departments of the satires on the administration's Philippine policy which featured the annual banquet of the Order of Caraboo, an organization of army and navy officers who served in the islands.

President Wilson suggested to Secretaries Garrison and Daniels reprimands for those responsible.

The secretaries conferred and called for a statement of explanation from Rear Admiral Howard and Quartermaster General Aleshire, the highest ranking officers at the dinner.

Secretary Daniels at the same time suggested to Admiral Howard that he decline the presidency of the order, to which he was elected last Thursday, and informed him that the song, "Damn, Damn, Damn the Insurrectos," which was sung at the banquet, would never be sung again under the present administration with officers of the navy present.

The president expressed his indignation to members of his cabinet after he had read published accounts of the banquet. He felt particularly displeased over the travesty on the administration's peace policy and criticisms aimed at Secretary Bryan when presents in the models of battleships borne by concealed boys, were carried into the banquet room.

The models of the guns were stuck sideways, and the milk-white dove was perched on the fighting top. They were named the "U. S. Peltbowlsky," "U. S. S. Friendship" and "U. S. S. Pipe."

Another satire was a moving picture show showing the progress of a Filipino colonel, who time and again escaped capture, and hardly had been apprehended when he was made governor of a province.

The performance, according to advance statements given out by the women's society, was designed to show the lack of sympathy for recent developments and tendencies in Philippine government."

President Wilson himself was not satisfied by the dinner, but he made it plain to his associates that he felt blame for the burlesque on members of his cabinet. Secretary Daniels and Secretary Garrison shared the president's feeling in the matter.

Secretary Daniels said that he felt that immediately after making his speech in order to keep another Bryan incident, and that the song "Damn, Damn, Damn the Insurrectos" was particularly offensive to him.

The opinion of the president and members of the cabinet is that satires cannot be delivered to when coming from persons outside of the government but if to permit to go unnoticed the criticisms of officials of the army and navy is likely to be misinterpreted and to cause a severe breach of discipline.

Secretaries Daniels, Redfield and Postmaster General Burleson and Justice Vandeventer and McKenna of the United States Supreme court were among the guests. Major General Wood did not attend.

The news of the proposed investigation fell like a bombshell in army and navy circles. There were hundreds of officers present.

FAIL TO AMEND CURRENCY

Senators Reject Amendment Offered by Hitchcock by Vote of 40 to 35.

Washington, Dec. 17.—By a vote of 40 to 35 the senate on Monday defeated the amendment to the currency legislation currency bill as framed by the Democratic caucus. The vote sent to the table the first amendment proposed by Senator Lithcock of Nebraska, which would have fixed the number of regional banks in the new system at four and would have made the regional banks publicly owned institutions. With the exception of Senator Hitchcock no Democrats voted against the administration bill and supporting Senator Owen's resolution to table the Hitchcock amendment. Senator Norris listed as a Progressive, voted with the Democrats. The Republicans voted solidly for the Hitchcock amendment.

FAST TRAIN WRECKED

PRESIDENT OF N. Y. CENTRAL ESCAPES AN ACCIDENT.

Fireman Is Killed—Reward of $1,000 Offered for Capture of Men Who Did Deed.

Cleveland, O. Dec. 15—Partial derailment of train No. 16 on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad, bound from Chicago for New York, near Wickliffe, east of this city Saturday was the result of a deliberate act of train wreckers, in the belief of Lake Shore officials. Two cases of the spikes had been removed from the rails. The company has offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest of the person tampering with the rails.

Around to train No. 16 was the private car of the newly elected president of the New York Central system, Alfred H. Smith. Mr. Smith, after a visit to his aged mother in this city and a hurried western trip, was returning east. The private car was not derailed.

The fireman of the locomotive was killed.

President Smith, after a talk with the engineer, Joseph Lamb, issued this statement:

"The engineer told me that when the train was about a mile from Wickliffe the engine suddenly struck something violently that an obstruction had been placed on the track. The accident is mystifying in view of the fact that I added fact that it was a perfectly straight stretch for two miles.

Mr. Smith helped to operate a hand car four miles up the road to a telegraph office to summon aid.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRE

Tuesday—Potato vacations, the bane of the lives of teachers and county school commissioners in Michigan and northern Michigan, are scarcely known in the southern part of the state. About here they are an institution, a quite necessary evil. Evil so far as the school work of the county girls is concerned, but no evil when you consider the money who own the potato crops. Until the day comes when the north has plenty of labor the potato vacation must endure.

In October of every year in this county by the time the potatoes are ready for the dugs of stalk and eighteen quit the job to help the farmer take care of the potatoes. The smallest boys and the girls are utilized to pick up the spuds and carry them to the wagon and be paid during the vacation, some earning $20 in a day. Now in any country town during the year could not earn one dollar a day. The boys and girls are always glad to get in on this work as it gives a financial position that otherwise would have to go unsolved.

In wealth's hand engineer will be here in a few days to take charge of the building of the mammoth junction dam which is to be constructed at a point in Manistee county where Pere Marquette joins the Manistee river. Within a few days from now the dam center will be engaged on the dam center. The dam will have a length of 50 feet and will be the largest on the west side of the state.

Manistee and Cadillac business men will benefit greatly through the power that will be developed at this dam, and there are farmers will be beneficiaries to a great extent.

38 DEAD IN MINE

EXPLOSION OF BLACK DAMP WRECKS VULCAN COAL PROPERTY AT NEW CASTLE, COLO.

ONLY TWO SAVE THEIR LIVES

Most of Victims Americans—Miners Are Trapped by Deadly Fumes. Set Off by Concussion, 1,500 Feet From Entry of Tunnel.

New Castle, Colo., Dec. 18.—Black damp—the volatile, death-breathing gas that is the terror of all coal miners the world over, added 38 victims to its long list in the Vulcan mine of Hartley, Scottish Fuel company, a mile and a half from here.

Of the 40 men composing the day shift at work only two, W. J. Finley and John Dawson, escaped.

Thousands of frantic women and children entombed at the mine watched rescuers bring out the bodies of victims. All the 38 victims were at work in the lower level, every nook and cranny of which was penetrated by the single, all-overpowering crash of mine explosion. The two survivors worked above the two upper levels in which no casualties occurred as the collecting of the deadly dust particles.

Father J. P. Carrigan of Holy Ground Springs parish, formerly a Denver priest, descended into the mine workings while the work of bringing out the bodies was starting and went down through the level.

J. W. Cummins, district manager of the Rocky Mountain Fuel company, definitely announced a dust explosion as the cause of the disaster after an investigation. He said the force of the blast shook the whole mountain and caused considerable damage to the timbers. He said the explosion occurred in room 12 of the lower level and extended all the way to room 57.

The first men into the mine were Superintendent Charles W. Meredith and Jack Stone, a miner, who "plugged" a ventilation door. They went all the way through the workings and reported no survivors. Stone caused the hopeful throng at the mine mouth to lose all hopes of ever seeing their relatives and friends alive.

"The work of taking out the bodies commenced shortly after the explosion occurred. The men were horribly mangled and identification was difficult, but they were gradually checked off from the time card.

No alperishing was the explosion that it swept the mine free from dust and the rescue work was conducted by men with open lamps in their caps and without the oxygen helmets.

The scene at the mine mouth was more distressing than customary in such disasters, for the last flicker of hope for life had died away. A majority of the dead were American, and nearly all young men from the vicinity of New Castle, sons of prominent ranchmen and business men, who had replaced the Italian miners that went on strike.

A snowstorm added to the difficulties of the rescuers and the confusion of the scene.

DEATH CALLS NOTED PRELATE

Cardinal Rampolla Who Possessed Large Wealth and Gave With Liberality, Expires.

Rome, Dec. 18.—Cardinal Rampolla, formerly papal secretary of state and of the death of Pope Leo XIII, the man most well-liked as possible successor, died here on Tuesday. MONA LIZA IS FOUND

SEARCH FOR PAINTING ENDS WITH ARREST IN ITALY.

British Government Once Offered $5,000,000 for Da Vinci's Work—Offer Was Refused.

Florence, Italy, Dec. 15.—"Mona Lisa," Leonardo da Vinci's masterpiece, the mysterious disappearance of which from the Louvre in August, 1911 threw the art world into confusion, was found in Florence on Friday. The man who stole it was arrested. He is an Italian.

The famous "Joconde" was found when the picture was offered by an Italian resident of Paris to an antiquary.

Both the picture and the Italian are now in custody of the police.

"I stole the picture," said the man, "in order to avenge the thefts which Napoleon I committed in Italy."

When the Mona Lisa disappeared from the galleries of the Louvre various stories were told of its going. It is not a large painting. It is painted on wood, much rotoached and the paint badly cracked, so that little of Leonardo's original brush work is in view, although everyone could see the mysterious smile.

The "Mona Lisa"—more properly known as "La Joconde"—is one of the world's most famous paintings, if not regarded as priceless.

The value of the work can only be measured by what all offers to buy it were refused, among them one report of $5,000,000 from the British government of $5,000,000.

U. S. SHIP DISABLED AT SEA

Battleship Vermont Damaged While on Way Home From Cruise in Mediterranean.

Washington, Dec. 15.—With her starboard main shaft broken and several bulkheads sprung, the battleship Vermont is limping toward Hampton Roads on her return from a Mediterranean cruise under convoy of the battleship Delaware and the collier Orion and Jason.

A radiogram to the navy department on Friday from Rear Admiral Fletcher, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, describing the accident, said there was no cause for alarm. The Vermont made to Hampton Roads under her port engine, making eight knots in comparatively smooth sea.

FERTILITY AND PRODUCTIVENESS OF CUT-OVER LANDS

Manistique.—The present-day timbermen in northern Michigan are for the most part unlike the old pine barons in the same territory for two reasons, at least. They are remaining in the field where they have cut off the timber, and they are transforming thousands of acres of their own cut-over lands into various fields of oats, alfalfa, clover and potatoes, as well as the smaller stuff on the farm.

In some instances the lumbermen are improving their lands as farms as an object lesson to the smaller farmers, and to show the world that the so-called useless and worthless cutover lands are just as good lands for general agriculture as can be found in the wide country. Others are doing it as a matter of dollars and cents, because they have found that somewhere can land be cleared so cheaply, nowhere else can such a paying crop be raised the first year as on this northern Michigan light soil, and nowhere else can good land be bought so cheaply.

Other lumbermen have improved large acreages in order to induce others to come in and buy up land, and vast areas have been sold throughout all this region from Cadillac north finally to the Straits.

The action of the lumbermen in the matter of clearing up parts of their own cut-over lands is not recorded in the light of a philanthropy, but it results just the same of untold value to the northern half of the state. Some of these men have lavished in this conservation have been the Antrim Iron company, whose headquarters are in this town. They have a mammoth farm and are interested in general farming and in raising thoroughbred cattle. The Cummer-Diggins company, of Cadillac were among the first to engage in farming. Their farm on Cadillac lake near that city is a model farm. And one of the best Germany cattle is all Michigan. The W. H. Comstock company of Royne City and the Tiedle & Jackson company of Ludington have spent whereon fruit is receiving much attention.

The D. H. Day farm at Glen Haven on Lake Michigan in Leelanau county is one of the most attractive places. Mr. Day specializes with fruit, and cattle, and has one of the largest and most modern barns in the state. He is the president of the Western Michigan Development bureau and devotes fully as much time to his farm as to his lumber business. Near the village of Onaway in Onaway county the Bay City lumber firm of Kirchland and Hanson have a large and growing farm, or ranch, as they are called in northeastern Michigan. Frank Harding, a resident of that city, once owned the town of Wenzell. A couple of years ago he had completed his timber cut, his mill was dismantled and today there is nothing left of the once big lumber camp except several empty buildings. However, all is not going to waste, as Mr. Harding is setting out thousands of fruit trees. Vernon, near Vanderbilt in Otsego county, are interested in one of their cut-over acres as farms, and eventually, they hope that they will own the largest farm in the state. That honor today belongs to N. Hitchcock of Grayling, who has a farm and ranch of several thousands of acres at the foot of Houghton lake. H. Hanson of Grayling has extensive farm holdings which he worked with the big mills and camps of the Hanson company.

The little village of Empire in Leelanau county on Lake Michigan points with pride to all comers to the Ethmer peach orchard of the Empire Lumber company of Chicago, whose mill is in that village. pioneer says, is probably due to the fact that some of the land has been spent in the open. Kingsley was his first charge and he spent his time to spend his remaining days in this little village, in spite of his years, cheerfully to calls for an occasional sermon in this part of the state.

Embargo on Potatoes.

Bloomfield—Ionia city, the home of Congressman Francis O. Lindquist is proud of the result that have attended the efforts of Mr. Lindquist to keep the embargo on foreign potatoes. He has direct word from the agricultural department that no such action will be taken in the near future, at least. The potato wart, the disease which has affected so much of the foreign product, is said to be very general, especially in Ireland.

Greenville is probably one of the largest potato shipping markets in the world, and the Greenville commission men and the people generally are fully interested in the question of whether diseased potatoes shall be allowed to come in and contaminate the domestic crop. Government officials say that the embargo will be extended rather than raised.

School work suffers, but the powers "Hi! Hi! Hi!" Hundreds! Know ing that there is no other way out of it.

Considerable Burden.

I expect to see the railroads owned by government," said the office seeker prophet.

"Well, replied Mr. Dustin Stax, "all I've got to say is that if the government undertakes to shoulder all the burdens it's going to be a lot more business it's going to complicate politics quite a lot."

Port Huron.—A report was received here that the body of a sailor was found several miles north of the mouth of the Sanilac river. The man was slashed by the crew of a downbound steamer. This report came from the fishing tug Brooks started out to search for the body, but was compelled to return because the lake was too high.

Lansing.—The legislature recently passed a law authorizing a mining lessor for the owner of fowls to allow his brood to wander into and occupy a cemetery. Many lessors have been received from residents who say they are bothered by their neighbors' chickens or geese and have asked the attorney general for ways that they can be "working for them." He says he will do so.

Port Huron—Two alleged forgers, Albert Schreiber of East Tawas, and Joseph Lewis, of Detroit were arrested here. Schreiber is wanted in Detroit on charges of forgery. Lewis is wanted here on charges of forgery, having served as a salesman and underbidder and he is a brother of the former. It is said that notes which he allegedly forged were forged will amount to between $6,000 and $7,000. Schreiber is said to have victimized a number of salesmen here.

Coldwater.—Chalon and Alva Mayhew, the Quincy boys, charged with arson and attempts to extort money by letters, were released by Judge Knowlton, the former to Ionia reformatory for a term of two years, with a recommendation to one year and a half, and the latter to the reform school at Lansing. The boys admitted the stack of corn stalks of Oliver Crouch by Harmon treasure and by letter demanded $1,200 with a threat to burn his barn if he failed to respond.

Detroit.—I do not know. I had no idea that the Detroit Tigers was spread that I was dead," said Mrs. Charles A. Lane of Detroit when apprements, who was made the victim of a practical joke which perverted sense of humor. An unidentified person telephoned in a notice of the death of Mrs. Lane to a local newspaper, using the name of an undertaker. Numerous friends called at the condole with Mr. Lane. Flowers were sent in profusion. While called by telephone and in person knew Mrs. Lane, she visited apart part of the night. She instructed her attorney to make no investigation to disclose the identity of the joker and will prosecute if possible.

A Region that Is Rapidly Developing as a Fruit Growing and General Farming Section

A LAKE COUNTY HAY CROP.

Although much of the land in Lake county is sandy nature many excellent crops are produced. This is particularly true when the land is handled in a scientific manner. The above is a view of a hay crop grown by Pindler Robertson, whose farm is near Baldwin.

FOR BETTER METHODS

FEDERAL AGRICULTURISTS TO TEACH IN MICHIGAN.

Specialists Being Employed by Various Counties to Help the Farmers and Fruit Growers Get Better Results.

At least one more assistant agriculturist from the federal government will be at work in Western Michigan in 1914, as a result of the several meetings of the boards of supervisors held during October. The supervisors of Mason county at their annual meeting received petitions from many parts of the county asking that an appropriation of $1,200 be made for the employment of a federal man. The petitions were so generally signed and were backed up by such representative people that the supervisors made the appropriation. This amount will be put with an equal sum contributed by the national government, and will pay the salary, office expense and traveling expenses. The agent will be located in Ludington and will be held responsible for the working about a steady development in the agricultural conditions of this county.

Two of the Western Michigan counties have had federal men, Kalamazoo and Newaygo, and two federal men are stationed in the territory as district managers of fruit growing interest at Manistee.

Mason county is a general farming and fruit county. The fruit lands are particularly in the south and the southeast of the city of Ludington, within six miles of the shore of Lake Michigan, and the general farming lands occupy the greater part of the county. Fruit, particularly apples, the large fixed area in the vicinity of the villages of Scottville, Custer and Fountain. There are other towns in Mason than the big sections to the south of Ludington, for instance there is a range of hills in the southern part of Custer township that are most entirely occupied by orchards and there are some fine orchards in the vicinity of Freesoil village in the southern part of the county. Furthermore, a large part of Hamlin township, particularly that portion bordering on Hamlin lake, is occupied by farmers who are fruit growers. Among the large fruit growers in the Mason county farm again will have to be both a fruit man and a general farmer. As a rule of the interior of the county is well suited for stock raising and for the dairy industry he will also need to be well posted on these subjects.

TEST FOR MICHIGAN APPLES

Specimens to Compete With Samples From Other Sections in College Judging Contests.

Perfect specimens of 14 varieties of Western Michigan apples have been sent to Washington, D. C., for examination and classification. These apples show with others from the different sections of the United States at the annual exhibition and judged by representatives from the agricultural colleges of the country. The Northern Spy apples from Michigan will be compared with the Northern Spy from New York state and with the Spys from Kansas, Nebraska and Oregon, and the Michigan Baldwin with the Baldwin from the other Baldwin growing sections. Only perfect apples will be used for the contests. The results of the judging will be highly beneficial from a scientific point of view. It will be positively known at the end of the contest which section of America produces the best apple which the best Baldwin, which the best Jonathan, the best Grimes, and so on down the list.

Duckies Does Good Work.

M. E. Duckies of Six Bagels, who has made a reputation for himself during the last two years because of his work along agricultural lines in the big and rifle of Antrim county, has been selected to help with the farmers institute work in Michigan this winter.

Limestone in Horses.

COAL IN LEELANAU COUNTY.

Leelanau county, which promises to be the greatest fruit county in the state of Michigan within the next ten years, is in a state of excitement. It is whispered that there is a big bed of coal underlying the eastern side of the county and that the bed is sufficiently good quality to warrant mining. The promulgators of this theory are so sure of a big find that they are quietly providing up the proposition in their own behalf. A drilling machine has been set up at the corner of the village of Traverse City and the work is being carried on day and night. There are now four years old and are all that could be wished. The Mammoth Black Tulip Bulb Farm is a stalwart variety in Michigan there being but few trees in the state. The results of the growing of this variety will be carefully noted by the fruit growers who are looking for something new in the apple line.

Would Build Dams.

The Western Michigan Power company with offices in Cadillac has petitioned the supervisors of Wexford county for permission and authority to construct eight dams across the Manistee river at different points in Wexford county. These dams will have a total head of 274 feet.

CHILDREN ALL SICK WITH COLD.
COUGHING, FEVERISH, AWAKE ALL NIGHT

Use Pure and Pleasant Dr. King's New Discovery. Relieves the Cough, Loosens the Cold, Promotes Rest and Sleep.

When your family is visited by a cold epidemic and your home seems like a hospital, your children all have colds, cough continually, are feverish and restless at night, sleep little and then not the sound, refreshing sleep children need. You yourself are almost sick and awake most of the night, caring for them. You need Dr. King's New Discovery.

It quiets the children's cough instantly. It is pure and pleasant. Children like it. By relieving the cough promotes sleep and gives you and the children the much needed rest.

Get a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery from your druggist. He will refund your money if it doesn't give relief.

W. H. Knowles, of Ozco, Fla., writes: "We have given Dr. King's New Discovery the most thorough tests for coughs, colds and various bronchial troubles for six years, and have never found it to fail."

"For about three months I had the worst kind of a cough," writes W. T. Rinehart of Asbury, N. J. "It would keep me awake for hours at night. All the medicines I took did not help me till at last I used Dr. King's New Discovery. Three doses gave me the first good night's rest I had in months and further use completely cured me." Sold by

MURDER RECORD SHOWS DECREASE

Figures For 1912 Show Rate Is Still Very High.

THIRTY CITIES INCLUDED.

Rate Per 100,000 For 1912 Is 8.1 Against 8.4 For 1911—Memphis Is the Worst With Advance of 11.6—United States Homicide Ratio is Highest in World, Says Report.

The annual murder record for the United States, while showing a slight improvement over previous reports, still suffers by comparison, according to statistics of homicides published in the current issue of the Spectator. Compilations made by Frederick L. Hoffman show that there were 5,914 homicides in thirty large cities of this country in 1912, a rate of 8.1 per 100,000 of population.

Similar records for 1911 were 8.4 per 100,000. There is a corresponding decrease in the relative number of suicides, amounting to 10.8 per 100,000, or 14 per cent. The highest homicide record reported occurred in 1907, when the rate was 8.8 per 100,000, and the lowest, 7.6 per 100,000, in 1908, when 2,946 persons were killed.

Of the large American cities Memphis, Tenn., with 46 homicides, shows a rate of 64.3 per 100,000, an increase of 11.6 over 1911. It is explained that suburban murders are counted in with the city percentages.

New York Rate Increases.

The New York city record does not show the same improvement that the average suggests. There were 105 homicides during the year, a rate of 6.6 per 100,000, or an increase of 1.4. For the ten years ended in 1911 there were 1,703 deaths of a homicidal character, with a rate of 5.4 per 100,000.

The high rate of homicide shown by Memphis is carried out when the cities are taken by geographical groups. The thirty cities of the three of the southern group reported 111 homicides, an increase of 45.5 in the rate of 24.5 per 100,000. The eastern cities had the lowest rate, 4.16, or 4.6 per 100,000, while the western group showed 10.2, and the central group 8.9 per 100,000. All three rates showed an increase over the average for ten years.

Of special interest in the tabulation is the inclusion of a record kept by the Chicago Tribune of the causes of homicide from 1906 to 1912. According to this, 49.9 per cent of the whole number were caused by quarrels, while unknown causes were responsible for 14.1 per cent. Liquor is given as the cause of 10 per cent of the total, while murders by thieves was caused in 6.7 per cent of the deaths. Jealousy, incidentally, was responsible for the remaining 19.3.

No Homicides in Reading, Pa.

In Reading, Pa., is given the distinction of having no homicides reported within its limits in 1912, while in Philadelphia there were only twenty to three homicides, a rate of 1.4 per 100,000. For the ten years ended in 1911 Hartford, Conn., had the lowest number of homicide deaths, twenty-six, although Minneapolis showed the lowest rate, 1.9 per 100,000. The far west number of deaths from homicide in the ten years is shown by Chicago with a total of 1,790.

In support of its comment on the unfavorable record of this country, comparisons are made with the homicide records in foreign cities. In Italy especially, where it is generally assumed by homes life is held cheaply, the rate for the latest year available, 1909, is 3.4 per 100,000, a five year average shows a rate of 3.0. In other words, to every 100 homicides in the United States there are only sixty-six in Italy.

London, including only the city proper, shows a five year average of 1.31 per 100,000 as compared with the same period for New York or 4.6. In Berlin in 1910 a rate of 3.5 was recorded. The city of Copenhagen, Denmark, is always the safest European city, with a record in 1910 of one one homicide and a five year rate of 0.65.

MOTOR HOSPITAL NOW.

Bureau of Mines Makes New Use of Auto Truck.

A thoroughly equipped motor hospital recently completed for the bureau of mines for use in Pittsburgh district is now one for the auto truck, a view of which might find an another in the work on water supply projects such as the Catskill and Los Angeles aqueducts.

The first fully equipped vehicle of the sort ever purchased by the bureau, two pulmotors, six oxygen tanks, fifty respirators and oxygen masks, two stretchers, a life line, a box of oxygen, lanterns, tents, fire extinguishers, a complete telephone system and a full complement of hand axes, shovels, tools and medical and surgical supplies. Even the bird and cage used in detecting poisonous gases in mines mines are to be found in the equipment house.

Finds Foot Imbedded in Rock.

Wonderful Cough Remedy.

Dr. King's New Discovery is known everywhere as the remedy which will surely stop a cough or cold. D. P. Lawson of Eufaula, Tenn., writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery is the most wonderful cough, cold, throat and lung medicine I ever sold in my store. It can't be beat. It sells without any trouble at all. It needs no guarantee. This is true, because Dr. King's New Discovery will relieve the most distressing cases of coughs and colds. Lung troubles quickly helped by its use. You should keep a bottle in the house at all times for all the members of the family. 50c and $1. Recommended by F. G. Hines & Co.

CHAOS IN BOUNDARIES.

Frontiers in South America Are an Uncertain Quantity.

The frontiers of Bolivia, like those of most South American countries, are very uncertain, and a map of South America made in Bolivia includes a vast portion of the level lands east of the Andes called the Chaco. A map of South America made by the Argentine Republic shows Bolivia as an entirely different country, with no Chaco within its boundary. Then a map of South America made in Peru includes a vast hinterland in Amazonia, while one made in Brazil shows the Brazilian frontier away over in the territory marked Peru on the Peruvian map, while the map makers of Ecuador and Colombia show an entirely different disposition of the lands at the headwaters of the Amazon from that disposed by the Brazilian and Peruvian map makers.

There is, however, a commission composed of Brazilians and Peruvians who are at the best of friends at the Amazon delineating the frontiers of Peru and Brazil and incidentally rectifying the claims of Ecuador and Colombia. Meanwhile Bolivian officers are flooding Argentine soldiers on the Chaco and on the question stands. In 1907 Edward VII delimited the frontiers of Chile and Argentina, but the Chileans thought he gave the Argentines too much, so they sent the adventurers and bad men of Chile to go into the disputed territory, and they sweep down from the hills and capture the cattle upon the Argentine ranches. This is the Bolivian way to do it Scotland.—Peter MacQueen in National Magazine.

FOOD AND FUEL ARMIES.

What the Increasing Population of the World May Force.

According to Professor H. N. Dickson of the University college, Edinburgh, the world is beginning to feel exhaustion of food and fuel. The professor tells the scientists gathered at Birmingham to attend the annual meeting of the British Association for the advancement of science that the human race was in the position of a family which had occupied the same farm for centuries and had so increased in numbers as to compress the production of the farm, making a removal to other land necessary. Only in the case of the human family there is no means of migrating to another planet.

Wheat acreage, the learned geographer tells us, is not keeping pace with the increase of population, and the cereals will be upon us before the end of the century. The supply of coal will last less than three centuries. The only course open to us, he says, is a stock taking of our resources and a redistribution of population, with an emphasis on the raising of food.

While Professor Dickson does not say so, his line seems to be that as we get off of the main track, men to serve in defense of the world of the future will have to put off so much time in active service for food raisers. Evidently the raising of food products will become as important as town planning—which seems to be reason enough for a celebration.

Radium and Mesothorium.

A short time ago we were told authoritatively that radium has no value for the medical profession. Now we learn that the German authorities are taking the whole matter seriously for this very purpose, and German medical men are to make a comprehensive inquiry into it. Some million dollars has been voted by various German municipalities for the purchase of radium, and there is about the value of the whole existing supply. It seems that there is another product similar to radium and with the same medical value. It is called mesothorium, and its price is only $50 per gram. It is said that the housing government has a practical monopoly of both radium and mesothorium.

The Englishman's breakfast of cereal and eggs is condemned by the London Lancet, which recommends coffee and rolls as more suitable for "brain workers." Saltpeter Magic.

Few things will create more interest for a simple home entertainment in the evening for young people than what is known as saltpeter magic. It will amuse their curiosity to the highest point when tried before boys and girls who have never heard of it before and will "keep them guessing" for a long time.

Dissolve saltpeter in water until the water will take up no more. Then take the end of a pocketder of any small stick dip it in the solution and write some word in thick letters on a piece of blotting paper.

You must take pains to see that every letter is joined together so that there is a continuous line. If you write more than one word on the paper they must be connected. Now let the paper dry and the writing will be invisible. Fold down half an inch at either end of the paper so that you can make it stand on one edge. Now set it upright on a platter or something which will not catch fire and apply the tip of a bit of lighted punk to where the word begins, over which you have previously made a tiny mark. You will see a tiny glowworm of fire travel all along the lines traced, not stopping until the complete word is burned out. No other part of the paper will be disturbed. If you can require several pieces of paper in advance, put on the names of your friends, being careful, of course, to remember that there must be no break in the line.

A Trick For Boys.

Most boys like to do tricks of magic and "sleight of hand," so here is a very simple trick that any one of you can do after a little practice. It is called "spinning the handkerchief."

Of course you wouldn't use your own handkerchief. Ask some boy to lend you his, and ask him to select one of his great cars, saying, "It is first of all necessary to get the right kind of handkerchief." After you have picked out one throw it in the air, catch it on the end of a stick that you may twirl, and when the handkerchief spreads out to its full size spin it around rapidly.

The secret of being able to do this is that there is a needle or pin in the end of the stick, which catches the handkerchief and prevents it from falling off. The pin should be put in so that the sharp point extends out about a half inch.

The stick should have a smooth surface, so that it will rotate easily in the hand. It is polished or varnished so much the better. It will require a little practice before you are able to catch the handkerchief in the middle and with the pin going through one thickness only. If it goes through two or three thicknesses a fold results and your audience will notice the pin. You need to do some practicing before attempting to do this trick in public.

Honesty in School.

"You and I know that there are boys, and girls, too, who write," writes Walter Prichard Eaton, taking up a delicate but important subject in an article on "The Scout In School" in Boys' Life.

"A girl in my class had a geography under her feet covered by her skirt to do an examination and keep dropping her pencil. She got 98, and I never had my one foot far after that.

"A good scout will never crib... A good scout ought never to have any use for a boy or girl who does crib.

"I don't mean that you should spend on a crib... There is a better way than that.

"Just let him know what you think of him, and just let him understand that he is no better than any other liar; that he has stolen, and money, but you are always sure of your place. Scouts should lead in school in creating a sentiment for honesty, for honor. If you do that you will be amply well dare to crib, and you will have brought about greater results without turning squealer and tattler or teacher."

The Bird Sellers.

A jolly game for children is called "the bird sellers." Arrange the players in a row, having two outside. These two are to represent the bird buyers. Give to each child the name of some bird. One will be a crow, one a crane, another a canary, etc. One bird dealer says to the other:

"I wish we had a bird."

"What kind?" he replies the other.

"A bird that can fly swiftly," says the first person.

"Very well, take what you wish."

"Then," says the first buyer, "I'm sure a robin."

As soon as he says this the "robin" should start from out of the row and run around, trying to escape. If the dealer catches the bird the captured one stays until the other "birds" have been selected, and chosen.

The Elephant and His Trunk.

A game some elephant minus his trunk is tacked on the wall, then to each child is given a paper trunk and a pin. Each in turn is blindfolded, taken to the end of the room and turned around three times and told to pin where the elephant. The one who pins the trunk on nearest the proper place is given a prize.

WILSON WEDDING CEREMONY

Historic Mansion Scene of but Twelve Ceremonies In a Century.

WHEN Miss Jessie Wilson, second daughter of the president, becomes the wife of Francis Bowes Sayre on Nov. 25 she will have the distinction of being the thirteenth young woman in the history of the republic who has been married within the historic walls of the White House. "All the world loves a lover," and a love affair that finds its denouement behind the doors of the president's official residence holds an interest to the public that is quite above and beyond that of ordinary, everyday romances. In some the executive mansion is the people's own house, and so it naturally follows that one who is married there is in some degree the chosen child of all the great family of whom the president is the oft-tai head.

For generations the White House has been a familiar figure to the American people. It has stood a central landmark in the national capital since the time of its founding and is known the world over as the home of the chief executive of the republic. Critics in its architecture, it stands a monument to the stern simplicity of the true ideals of the nation.

So it happens that whenever a wedding takes place within the White House the nation is prone to weave mystical webs of romance and romance about the principals that sets them quite apart from other bridals and pedestals them high in the court of the country's affections and regard.

Previous White House Bridals.

Prior to Miss Wilson's wedding there have been just twelve young women fortunate enough to have their wedding celebrated within the executive mansion. The first of these was Miss Alice Roosevelt, the daughter of President Roosevelt, who was married to Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio on Feb. 17, 1906. Little than two years before, a White House wedding for nearly twenty years, the previous nuptials being those of Miss Frances Folsom, now the wife of Professor Thomas J. Preston of Princeton, to President Grover Cleveland on June 2, 1886.

The marriage of Miss Alice Roosevelt was one of the most brilliant functions ever held in the White House, differing much from some of those in the last century. Some of the White House marriages have been severely simple, and the approaching wedding has been partaking largely of the delicate simplicity which is the dominant note in the life and character and her family, but Miss Roosevelt's marriage, like the best both in the White House, which was in President Madison's administration, was accompanied by much display.

Early Administrations Bridals.

In the early days of the republic, when the nation's capital was located at New York and Philadelphia, there were no weddings at the executive mansion. Dolly Cutts, the beautiful and charming stepdaughter of General Washington, was going to be married during the period that he occupied the presidency, and the second president, John Adams, was unfortunate in having no young people in his household during his incumbency.

President Jefferson's administration was the first that began and ended in the White House. He was a widower, and whatever across the administration had of a social character was due to the presence of Mrs. Madison, wife of the secretary of state and the greatest social factor of Washington official life.

The election of James Madison brought this most popular of American women to the highest social position in the republic.

There were two weddings in the White House while she was its mistress, and she took as much delight in making these happy occasions as she was a bitter disappointment to those who thought they had a right to expect from the White House family.

MISS JESSIE WILSON.

Monroe Marriage Simple.

Mrs. Monroe was a city bred woman. She had been brought up in the society circles of New York, and she did not approve of the Virginia style of the wedding of her daughter, which was the forerunner of a grand style.

"The circular or blue room was chosen for the wedding, and the Rev. Dr. Hawley, of St John's church performed the ceremony, which took place at noon.

"The fourth marriage celebrated in the president's house was that of John Adams, the son and private secretary of President John Quincy Adams. He was married to his cousin, Helen Jackson of Philadelphia. Mrs. Adams was a niece of Mrs. Adams, and her brother, Walter Jackson, was a secretary to the president and lived in the White House.

"It was an evening affair, and the ceremony was performed Feb. 10, 1829 in the blue room. In the presence of a distinguished gathering Dr. Hawley officiated on the occasion before but once at the Monroe wedding, and the president and Mrs. Adams, thought it was meant that they did not wish to assume a state of mourning, made the wedding a private affair.

The Jackson Administration.

Andrew Jackson's administration succeeded that of John Quincy Adams and in it resulted as the darkest affair there were three weddings.

The fifth marriage in White House history was that of Miss Delia Lewis of Nashville, Tenn., whose father, William B. Lewis, was one of President Jackson's most intimate personal friends. He practically lived in the president's home and was a member of that famous kitchen cabinet created so notoriously in that day.

Miss Lewis was married to Lieutenant Joseph Tyler Pageot, a petty officer in the navy, who was secretary of the French legation at the time of his marriage.

President Jackson was interested in all his office seekers and, being a fastidious widower and having no relative in the world of his own, and cared about him only social propriety.

Medical Specialists in England.

What makes a doctor a specialist? Two or three years ago a man in Harley street or Wimpole street, or in Cavendish square, was a specialist, but it by no means follows that he will be recognized as a specialist by the profession.

Specialists in medical states of opinion, a man must spend or have spent a number of years as a house surgeon in connection with a hospital, and be recognized by the profession.

Further, he must conform to certain rules of professional conduct. He must not take a fee less than 1 guinea, or advertise in the newspapers, and must charge 2 or even more guineas in certain cases. In extraordinary circumstances. He must not see a lady patient except in the presence of her husband or a male relative. If called to a case he must be prepared upon meeting another specialist will decline to see the sufferer.—London Telegraph.

Public Health.

Diseases which were used to be counted as "acts of God" in the old days are now in the main matters of sanitary science to discover that the most dreadful of all, yellow fever, and that a good portion of the rest may be overcome by the exercise of man's power over nature. The United States government has been a pioneer among the nations in demonstrating the power of modern sanitation to save life. It went to Havana, it made it a city of health, and it gave life to no dismay. It has a fever station there, and it has made the yellow fever mosquito, the most dangerous insect in the world, the most innocuous reptile of the world. The whole history of modern sanitation tends to drive home public responsibility for public health.—Los Angeles.

A Fair Good Reason.

"Why do you want to be a soldier, Mr. Wiggins?"

"Because I want to see the world, sir."

"Why don't you enlist in the navy?"

"Because I want to see the world, sir."

Impatient to Hear.

"Jones seems to be in a great hurry about having his wife joined."

"Impatient to Hear."

"Yes, sir. I hear he is anxious to have it done."

Nothing Personal.

"Mr. Pessimist, I hear you are going to be married next week."

"Yes, sir."

"Well, I wish you congratulations on being about to be married."

"Congratulations? Why, what do you mean by that?"

Express companies are now willing to admit that the expansion of the parcel post system is putting them out of business and in order to stop the flood of business that is going from them a wholesale reduction in rates is promised the first of the year. Had the companies been far sighted they would have made this reduction before the parcel post went into effect and thereby prevented the establishment of the system.

An apple orchard, covering better than 100 acres, has been started at Crofton, in Kalkaska county, western Michigan, by Squires & Co., of Rockford. This location was picked out because of its great altitude and because the soil contains elements that are favorable to apple growing. Fall and winter varieties have been set. They are Wolf River, Winter Banana and Mammoth Black Twig. Some of the trees have been set two, some three and some four years. This is largely an experimental orchard, and if it proves as profitable as its promoters believe that it will, thousands of acres in the interior of the state will be utilized for orchard purposes.

Appropriate Excuse

"Before the establishment of right con courts and trials by jury where justice could be obtained," explained the teacher, "persons suspected of certain crimes were tried by what was known as the 'ordeal.' One of these was the 'ordeal of fire.' Hot plowshares were laid at short intervals along the victim's path, and the suspected person was blindfolded and compelled to walk over them. If he succeeded in doing it without stepping on the hot iron he was declared innocent. But if he received burns he was adjudged guilty. Who would submit to such an ordeal now? Johnny would you?"

"No, ma'am," said Johnny.

MISS PUTNAM MARRIED

Unique and Impressive Service and Exquisite Surroundings Make Wedding Beautiful (Indication Daily News.

In the presence of a large crowd of assembled friends, the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Putnam, the lovely and talented daughter of Rev. and Mrs. H. A. Putnam, and Malcolm Edward Millar was solemnized at five o'clock on the afternoon of New Year's day, at the Congregational church.

The church had been made beautiful with decorations of white and green by the ladies of the congregation. The altar rail was almost completely hidden behind a profusion of ferns, white roses and lilies, while a wealth of ferns and evergreens, tastefully arranged at the rear of the rostrum, formed a most artistic altar before which the vows were plighted.

As the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin pealed forth from the organ, played by Mrs. Fisk, the groom, preceded by the bride's father, approached the altar from the rear entrance of the auditorium, while the other members of the bridal party advanced from the front of the church, Miss Ruth Hutton and Wm. Knapper, Miss Margaret Burns and Albert Waney preceded Mesdames Putnam and Millar and Miss Mary E. Clark the group being created next the altar.

The bride, a lovely vision in white, was unassisted save by Mary Haskell, the ring bearer and by ushers, the Misses Helen Hoskeal, Gertrude Hutton, Catalina Dunwoody and Jessie Burkhop ham, who carried white ribbons entwined with smilax and so grouped themselves that the bride and her little ring bearer were surrounded as in a charmed circle by the ribbon wreath.

The words of a marriage service, composed by the bride and groom, yet in conformity with the church service, was pronounced by the bride's father with a double ring service, uniting "these twain" with a service at once impressive and unique.

The proud young bridegroom looked exceptionally handsome and the bride was a vision of loveliness. Her delicate beauty was enhanced by the dainty bridal gown of white over miraline, with unprofuled shadow lace and the long train was caught back with orange blossoms. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held in the church parlors, where the friends availed themselves of the opportunity to express their congratulations and good wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. Millar left on the evening train for Grand Rapids.

Mr. Millar, who came to Ludington in February of last year, has since been engaged as efficiency expert for the Stearns Salt & Lumber Co., and has acquired an enviable position in the social and business circles of the city. Both he and his bride have exceptional musical talent (both trained, Mrs. Millar is a graduate of the musical conservatory of Oberlin and after serving for some time as musical instructor in the public high school of Saginaw, was director of the musical department of the Benzonia academy. Delicate health compelled her to rest for a time, so that since her father accepted the pastorate in Ludington, she has been at home and the people of Ludington have thus had opportunity to learn to know and love her.

Many beautiful and valuable gifts were showered upon these favored young people, among them being a purse of $25 in gold and a set of sterling silver spoons from the teachers of the church.

Upon their return from a brief wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Miller will be at home at 208 North Harrison street. It gives their friends great pleasure to know that the new home is to be in Ludington.

Emmet County Historical Society

At the New Year's day pioneer reception tendered by the historic committee of the Federation of Women's clubs, to the old residents of Petoskey and Emmet county an Emmet County Historical society was organized.

C. J. Faithorn was chosen the first president of the society and R. C. Ames was elected secretary. J. A. C. Rowan was chosen treasurer and Rev. John Kotpatz chairman of the historical committee.

The editor of this paper can claim eligibility to membership in the above organization. He came to Charlevoix in March, 1880, when Charlevoix township was a part of Emmet county. The law setting off Charlevoix county took effect the first Monday in April of that year.

SUMMER ALL THE TIME

The Big Blair Greenhouses Biggest and Best Plant of Its Kind in Northern Michigan

There is one spot in Charlevoix where summer prevails all the year and frequenters tickle your nostrils as persistently in January as in July, and that is the big Blair greenhouse plant up on Dixon avenue.

There is no doubt that this the largest enterprise of its kind in northern Michigan, its seven enclosures cover an area of 18,000 square feet, and every square foot is utilized in the work of supplying the demand for plants and cut flowers. Parenthetically we observe that almost entirely surrounding the greenhouses are the fertile gardens, which, in summer bloom with color and scatter voluntary fragrance to the air.

Just now, Mr. Blair is preparing for summer demand. There are 35,000 geraniums, 9,000 vines, and a score of other flowering and foliage growths. Cut flowers, of course, serve their best purpose in winter, and for the winter and summer they grace the hymenial altar and the funeral pall. It may be said that flowers are secondary in the year's output of the plant. The early summer demand for plants to adorn the lawns and gardens is enormous, and keeps the force busy. Private homes, hotels and lodges are made beautiful with the fresh growths from Dixon avenue.

One entire house is devoted to carnations, and it is a little garden of Eden. The plants are in fine condition. One house is ready to plant to roses, and next summer these magnificent flowers, in the most approved varieties, will shed their fragrance and charm the eye.

Continuous labor and infinite care are required to make the enterprise a success. One careless midnight hour with the outside temperature at zero or lower, and disaster is certain. But there are no careless hours.

The Apple Tree Tent Caterpillar

As a result of an inspection made of the northern part of the Western Michigan territory by Prof. Myron A. Cobb of the Central Michigan Normal School located at Mt. Pleasant, an active campaign is to be started against the apple tree caterpillar, which caterpillar was so greatly in evidence last year Prof. Cobb in traveling through the several counties of Western Michigan, discovered that there were literally millions of egg masses fastened on the limbs of the fruit and forest trees. He also discovered that these egg masses could be gathered and destroyed at this season of the year with but very little trouble, thus reducing the number of caterpillars for next season. He is now at work upon a bulletin giving the life history of the caterpillar and showing pictures of the caterpillar in the various stages. This bulletin will also tell how the damage that is likely to come from the pest, can be greatly reduced by burning the egg mesnet that are now to be seen throughout the country. The bulletin is to be circulated by means of the county school commissioners, the rural teachers and the children. In this connection, it will be suggested that the teachers become familiar with the egg masses, point them out to the children and urge the children to gather and destroy them. It is believed that by following this course, the number of caterpillars scheduled for next year, can be reduced by one-half or three-fourths.

Last year the caterpillars were preceded by the million. In some cases they nearly cleaned fruit trees of their foliage. There was hardly an orchard tree that was without a tent, and many contained 2, 3, 5 and some as many as 15 tents. A campaign was conducted by the fruit growers against the caterpillar by means of torches, the tents and contents being burned. Many farmers went from tree to tree and pulled the tents off the limbs and ground the caterpillars into the earth by means of the foot. As the caterpillar is a large animal and easily seen, it is certain that eventually the Western Michigan territory can be rid of the pest.

Threatens the Recall

We read in the papers, as Dooley says to Hennessy, that the murderous dynamiters of the Western Federation of Miners, threaten to resort to the recall of Gov. Ferris does not obey their behests regarding the Calumet trouble. Should it come to this it is your Uncle Willard who will vote for a democrat, strange as it may seem. Moyer and his gang are anarchists, and we have personally seen enough of their work to know what we are talking about.

Should it come to this, politics would be buried very deep.

In the Calumet matter Gov. Ferris' record is clean.

SUPREME COURT REVERSES

Action of Charlevoix Council in Center Avenue Highway Matter Held Good

A bill of complaint, filed July 29, 1911, by attorney Ira C. Mosher, representing John Curtis and others, to obtain an injunction restraining the Charlevoix Golf Club from occupying and using a certain described portion of Center Avenue, embracing a distance of two blocks, between Elm street and the Petoskey road, the said golf club being abutting owners of property adjacent to and on each side of the above described highway at that point. It goes without saying that the said Center Avenue is a regularly laid out highway. Attorney R. W. Kane represented the city in the suit.

Shortly prior to the time of filing the bill action was taken by the common council of the city of Charlevoix looking to the vacation of that portion of the highway above described. Following this action of the council the golf club assumed ownership and gave notice of its intention to close the same. Hence the suit.

The judgment of the circuit court declared that the action of the city council discontinuing the street was illegal, and that the city took it to the supreme court on appeal. Last week the higher court handed down the decision reversing the decree of the circuit court, "dismissing complainant's bill with costs of this court, only, in favor of defendant."

Blossett Charges Wife Embezzlement

Frank N. Blossett, for several years clerk at the Hotel Elston, is in the custody of Sheriff Robbins at Baker's Ford, and as we go to press is having his hearing in Justice Cooper's court, on a charge of embezzlement.

Mrs. C. E. Noble, proprietor of the Hotel Elston, who swore out the warrant, charges that during the several periods that he officiated as clerk and manager, he appropriated to his own use sums of money aggregating $6,000.

Two weeks ago Sheriff Robbins went to Chicago, where Blossett was living, arrested him at a population on the outskirts of Illinois for the sum named, and he arrived back with his prisoner Tuesday morning. Blossett put up a hard fight against extradition, but Robbins finally got his man.

The accused puts in a general denial of the charge.

Labor's Greatest Curse

"It seems strange that, after treating so much poverty and crime direct to the saloon, that the American people do not rise en masse and obliterate it from the face of the earth. No one who keeps pace with the times can deny that the saloon is responsible, either directly or indirectly, for nine-tenths of this poverty and crime. No one can deny that it is whiskey that has made the coward a demon who took the life of his fellow man. No one can deny that in nearly every walk of life its baneful influence can be traced from the United States senate to the alms-house and the penitentiary. No well-advised unionist can deny that a greater part of the infernal quarrels and dickerings among the trade unionists have been connected in the bar, back room of saloons. The greatest curse to the labor movement, has been the saloon, and it is high time that the labor leaders and loyalists and citizens generally realize the situation and the saloon influence." — President of national brotherhood of blacksmiths.

Northern Michigan Notes.

Petoskey residents who have been there 35 years or more, and New Year's day is the anniversary for many, say it is probable that, as a result of the meeting a Pioneers' Historic society will be organized.

Elk Rapids Progress: Last week E. B. Noble received his bond for association and notice that his commission as postmaster at Elk Rapids would issue on the 22. His bond properly executed was mailed to Washington last Friday, and it is expected that the change will be made in a few days.

Elk Rapids Progress: The Ultimate spent Christmas with their father in Traverse City. All the children were at home, Frank of Grand Rapids, arriving with E. Conley home in the bakery, and Mrs. Frank of Muskegon. Mr. Conley's mother in the Soldiers' Home at Grand Rapids, spent the holidays and New Year's with her son and family, and took in a little of the fun herself.

Kalkaska Leader: We understand that there was a meeting of the council of supervisors on Jan. 5, just called for the purpose of consulting the road commissioner, and that the people at the county seat will have to come to the circuit judge. This will put the supervisors all on record as telling the county to settle on whether they want their county ordination, or have the county take over the two-mile piece of road in question.

The potato situation remains unchanged and the wonder is everybody is better than the prevailing 17 cents for the present and may remain around 20 cents. Dealers and local buyers are verified by the trade and their supply is in fair shape. A considerable extent in the hands of the farmers, and probably are stored in very warehouse and very available place on the farm. Thus, too, we have prevent potential transportation facilities for transportation that have been tested of being slight one is really above the yearly average.—Kalkaska Leader.

Elk Rapids Progress: J. B. Wilson has formed a partnership for the insurance business with Geo. Ingersoll, of Judson, one of the best known and strongest companies of Charlevoix county, certainly one of the best known patronage as great as any office attorney of the county. Rob has for months been recognized as a coming lawyer without a superior in all northern Michigan, and he has the advantage of being a native of the strongest companies of the adjoining counties. Surely it will make a strong team. Mr. Wilson plans to be at his Elk Rapids office every Saturday of each week. On other days he will be in East Jordan. He will continue his residence in Elk Rapids.

Petoskey News: Indian residents of Petoskey and Emmet county are interested in a suit now before Judge Sessions, of the United States district court of Chicago, recently instituted in the interests of over one thousand Indian residents of Michigan, to recover title to a valuable strip of ground along the lake front of Chicago. K. B. Stark, who was in Petoskey several years ago in the interests of the same suit, is now in Petoskey on a lengthy arrive in the Hotel Petoskey. Day Book, a publication of Mr. Stark claims to be the first white man to discover that the Indians claim to this valuable strip of ground and not been extinguished, and will continue his efforts to prove the Indian claim to the strip. The suit involves millions of dollars.

Petoskey News: Now has reached Petoskey of the death of James H. Stone, which occurred at his home in East Chicago, Dec. 26. Mr. Stone was 68 years of age and had been ill in Chicago for more than a year. Old Petoskey residents will remember Mr. Stone and his family well for at one time they were residents and Mr. Stone was in the employ of Judge Newberry, of this city. While here Mrs. Stone and her two daughters were active workers in the Presbyterian church. Mrs. Stone died in Chicago in December, 1910. Mr. Stone since moving from Petoskey, has been interested in the lumbering industry and has been located in southern Michigan and kentucky. The remains have been taken to his old home in Holly, Mich., to be interred beside those of his wife in the family cemetery. Mr. Stone leaves no family there other than his wife and Mrs. M. M. Bonham, of Mr. Bonham performed the marriage ceremony, in Chicago, Dec. 26. At the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Jacobs at East Jordan, Mich., Mr. Stone returned the courtesy by performing the ceremony at the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Bonham.

CLEMENCY TO FIVE PRISONERS

GOVERNOR FERRIS COMMUTES SENTENCES OF TWO AND PARDONS THREE.

ONE TO BEGIN SECOND TERM

Charles McCard, Sentenced to Life Imprisonment for Murder, Among Number—McCarty Paroled on His Good Record.

Lansing.—Clemency in the following cases has been extended by Governor Ferris:

Frank Gallagher, Michigan State Prisoner, sentenced from Ingham county, December 19, 1912, for from four to fifteen years on a charge of burglary. Paroled in Lansing.

George Morgan, sentenced to from one to ten years, from Kalamazoo county, March 2, 1906, on a charge of assault to rob. Received a commutation of sentence to expire December 13, 1915, so that Morgan can start on a record sentence of from five to fifteen years for burglary.

Howard McCarty, sentenced from Clinton county December 20, 1910, for from three to seven and one-half years for a statutory offense, was paroled because he acted only as an accomplice, and did not take part in the crime.

Charles McCard, sentenced to life imprisonment from Kent county, July 22, 1904, for murder, was given a commutation of sentence to expire 22 years from date of sentence, less good time earned.

Martin Jankowski, sentenced from Wayne county, January 13, 1905, on the charge of breaking and entering, warrant was given a pardon.

Gallagher was convicted in Ingham county and was let go on parole by Judge Collingwood. He broke the probation and was resentenced to Ionia. Since that time he has reformed and Judge Collingwood and a number of friends interceded both asked the governor to parole him.

Jankowski is paroled because he has served more than half of his maximum sentence.

The case of Morgan is peculiar. He was paroled on his first sentence and broke his parole, at the same time committing a second crime.

McCarty was paroled on his good record.

McCard, with a man named Prim, bound and gagged a woman in Grand Rapids of $13 which he first turned state's evidence, and both were convicted for life. Prim was paroled several years ago from turning state's evidence.

Nine After Dixon's Job.

A man who accosted Dr Robert L. Dixon as superintendent of the board of health will be named by Governor Ferris soon, according to apparently reliable information coming from the executive offices. The governor is convinced that the man who will be appointed agrees upon a secretary and has described to Dr Dixon the job with a map of his own choosing.

Among those who have announced their willingness to accept the place are Drs. D. M. Griswold of Detroit, John L. Burnham of Big Rapids, James W Inches of St. Clair, F. W. Shumway of Lansing, Glen Dow Carr of Hart, F. M. Turner of Lansing, H. D. Baker of Holland, C. W. Hilton of Ludington and E. A. Gosler of Saginaw.

Holstein Breeders Name Heads.

One of the most largely attended annual meetings ever held by the Central Michigan Holstein Breeders' association was called to order in Lansing by President John Hull. The association, which embraces Eaton, Clinton and Ingham counties in its membership, has a roster of 160 members. Twenty-five new members were present and the afternoon interurban cars and steam roads added to the attendance.

The business meeting was devoted to praise and eulogy of the retiring President Hull was reelected, as was Secretary Fred R Wentworth of Lansing. William Stoll, Lansing, was elected vice-president, and Leonard Lewis Nelson. The board of directors is now composed of A. B. Niles, Grand Ledge; H. L. Haines, Okemos; George H. Gillespie, Mason; Frank Severance, Mason; Lewis Schaub, Lansing; Mr. Schaub succeeds C. D. Woodbury of Lansing.

The matter of compiling a roster of the members of the association was taken up. The committee has decided that each member name and postoffice address is given. The secretaries of other associations have done much to advertise their associations, and it gives various men who travel and who are interested in stock breeding an opportunity to distribute their wares to prospective purchasers of stock.

Teachers Select Kalamazoo.

At the meeting of the executive committee of the Michigan State Teachers' association, at Ann Arbor, it was unanimously decided to accept Kalamazoo's invitation to hold the next annual session of the association in that city.

The meeting will be held October 29 and 30. Grand Rapids had a representative here to ask for the meeting. Battle Creek was also represented and intended to ask for the meeting in case the vote was a tie between the other two.

State Phone Managers Meet.

One hundred managers and cashiers of the Michigan State Telephone company held a conference at Cadillac.

Decrease Shown in Births.

The mortality report for November, compiled by the office of State Statistician, shows that 7,004 deaths and 4,173 births occurred in Michigan last month. This is a decrease of 32 deaths and 1 birth in the number of births as compared to the October report, while there was a decrease of 325 deaths for the same period.

Central State Poultry Show.

Plans for the seventeenth annual exhibition of the Central Michigan Poultry and Pet Stock association, to be held at Lansing from December 27 to January 3 inclusive, gives promise of doing justice to the annual slogan which terms it "the crystal show." The premium list and program recently issued in cooperation with the Flint and Pontiac exhibits, contains an unusual number of cut glass and other expensive trophies, while the entries promise to be much larger and more attractive than at any of the previous shows.

Officers of the association, under whose auspices the week's exhibit is to be conducted, include: President, J. Otto; vice-president, Arthur Hurd; treasurer, Harry Lebuhn; secretary, L. D. Mason, directors, C. B. Colvin, Frank Mitchell, Robert McKim, O. J. Otto and Henry Siekert; judges, William Wise; superintendent, C. B. Colvin; banquet committee, Arthur Hurd, Robert McKim, A. G. Gross and George Davis.

An innovation for this year's exhibit will be the vat show. Lansing and nearby cat fanciers have formed a permanent club, which is to be sponsors for the cat department. Mrs. H. J. Otto, 417 South Chestnut street, is secretary of the association, and Mrs. J. S. Owen, 1021 East Michigan avenue, will be judge. Mrs. Owen has judged in a number of leading shows throughout the country.

Classes are to be provided for all varieties and colors of cats, from the highest grades of pedigreed felines to the waif or tramp cats and "old faithfuls" which are mascots for many cities and offices.

The poultry exhibits will be especially elaborate. Displays are to be classified into the American, Mediterranean, English, Asiatic, Dutch, Polish and French classes, bantams and games. Club specials are listed by the National White Wyandotte club, the American Buff Plymouth Rock club, National Buff Cochin club, Houghton club, Rhode Island Red club of America, American White Orpington club, White Plymouth Rock club, American buff Leghorn club, American Partridge Rock club, Rhode Island White club of America, National Single Comb White Leghorn club, National Partridge Wyandotte club, National Black Langshan club, American buff Wyandotte club, American buff Plymouth Rock club, National Columbian Wyandotte club, American Cornish club, American Single Comb Brown Leghorn club, Black Orpington club, American Black Minorca club and Silver Laced Wyandotte club.

Premium for the best display in the American class will be a $25 silver cup donated by the Gordon Store works; for best display of all varieties in the Mediterranean class, a $15 cut glass bowl by the Bush Glass company; English class, Black Crest buff Orpington department, a $15 cut glass rose bowl, offered by the Houghton department; Black Orpington department, the American White Orpington club's offer; best state cup; for the best display of all varieties in the Asiatic class, a $15 cut glass urn dish is offered by Vice President Lambert of the board of display in Dutch, Polish and French class, a $15 cut glass tray dish offered by the National Buff Cochin club; Single Comb White Leghorn club, a $15 cut glass tray dish offered by the National Buff Cochin club; Single Comb White Leghorn club, a $15 cut glass tray dish offered by the City National bank; Judge William Wise will offer a silver cup for the best pair of bantams, and the association offers a $5 gold plate dish for the best exhibit of games.

Governor Wants Names of Dentists.

If the Michigan State Dental society is to comply with the law which it helped to pass at the last session of the legislature, it must come to the front with a list of 25 state dentists from which the governor can select a member of the state board of examiners in dentistry.

The appointment must be made by the governor before the first of the year, as the term of Frank L. Haynes, of Manistee, will expire.

At the last session of the legislature the members were instrumental in having an amendment to the dentistry act passed providing that the Michigan State Dental society should on the 15th of September each year hand the governor a list of 25 of the dentists of at least five years' experience in the state from which he may choose from in naming a member of the board of examiners.

So far the society has failed to produce any such list. It has been in the hands of a committee and in the shuffle of official papers. The governor has been hounded to fill the vacancy and wanted to see the list. It could not be found and the secretary of the society was notified that unless the name be given by the governor until the usual time it will be forthcoming. He is known to make the appointment before Christmas.

The law provides that the names must be selected by the society in question.

Minimum Wage to Be Investigated.

The committee which is to investigate the minimum wage question is preparing two blanks which will be sent broadcast throughout Michigan.

Will Inspect Measures.

Recognizing that Illinois government decided that Michigan official habitual, irregular and unscientific methods are not correct, Dairy and Food Commissioner Helme has started an inspection of all the milk and cream samples sold in the various cities of the state. He is going to send for all of the sealers of weights and measures, have them bring their measures and weights with them and then officially seal them. The first case investigated was that of Battle Creek, where the weights and measures were approved.

Monthly Mortality Reports.

Tuberculosis caused the death of 112 persons in Michigan during the month of November, 1913. The information is taken from the monthly mortality report which just has been issued. The November death list is smaller by 365 than the October death list, but the birth rate is also smaller than that for October by 691. Of the deaths 94 were of infants under one year of age, 945 were of persons more than sixty years old. One hundred and ninety-five died from cancer.

U. S. RUSHES WARSHIPS TO PORT OF TAMPICO.

Federals at Guaymas Stain by Rebels for Treason—Still Hold Terrazas, Jr.

Mexico City, Dec. 24—The Bank of London and Mexico closed its doors Tuesday. It had been unable to get currency with which to pay depositors who sought to withdraw funds.

Washington, Dec. 24—Upon receipt of dispatches from Rear Admiral Fletcher, in charge of the American battleships in Mexican waters, the navy department on Tuesday ordered the gunboat Wheeling to proceed from Vera Cruz to Tampico, where the department was informed hostilities between the federal and rebel forces have been resumed. The English cruiser Suffolk also was reported to have been ordered by Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock to go to Tampico.

Hermosillo, Sonora, Dec. 23—The commissioned officers and many sergeants and corporals of the Tenth battalion of the federal garrison at Guaymas were executed for treason at sunrise Sunday in that city, according to word brought here.

Officers and men of the Tenth were disarmed several days ago by General Ojeda, federal commandant, who he discovered they were plotting to desert to the insurgents.

Washington, Dec. 23—Anyone who hereafter loots or molests property of Americans in Mexico will be executed. The right to confiscate property belonging to the rebel government," said an order issued by Consul Francisco Villa, and as showing his intention to maintain strict military discipline he executed on the plaza of Chihuahua a man who had been found guilty by court-martial of sacking the home of a wealthy Mexican.

Juarez, Dec. 23.—Although negotiations have been under way for the payment of $250,000 for his release, Luis Terrazas, Jr., was held prisoner by General Villa at Chihuahua. The division of 1,000,000 acres of Terrazas' land among the rebels is one of the planks in the revolutionary platform.

WILSON HITS U.S. MEN

PRESIDENT DECLARES THOSE RESIGNING FOR CARABAO DINNER DESERVE REPRIMAND.

ASKS IT BE ADMINISTERED

Chief Executive Says Program Was a Violation of Some of the Most Dignified and Sacred Traditions of the Service.

Washington, Dec. 24—President Wilson on Monday approved a reprimand for the officers involved in the Carabao dinner incident here.

He took this action on recommendation of Secretary of War Garrison and Secretary of the Navy Daniels. His letter to the two secretaries follows:

"My Dear Gentlemen—Allow me to thank you for your report on the action of certain officers of the army and navy at the recent dinner of the Military Order of the Carabao.

"The officers who were responsible for the program of the evening are certainly deserving of a very serious reprimand, which I hereby request be administered; and I cannot refrain from expressing my deep disappointment that the general body of officers assembled at the dinner should have proceeded to drink out of such a program with apparent indifference to the fact that it violated some of the most dignified and sacred traditions of the service.

"I am told that the songs and other amusements of the evening were intended and regarded as fun. What are we to think of officers of the army and navy who can regard as fun what I think I ought to bring their official superiors into ridicule and to poison of the government, which they are sworn to serve, with unquestioning loyalty, into contempt? If this is their idea of fun, what is their idea of duty? If they do not know that loyalty above all slilty, effervescence of childish wit when about their profession do they hold sacred?

"My purpose, therefore, in administering this reprimand is to recall the men who are responsible for this lowering of standards of the service, to remind them of the high conscience in which we expect them to live, to warn above personal indulgence and to think of themselves as representatives and trusted soldiers even while they are amusing themselves as civilians do.

Sincerely yours,
"WOODROW WILSON."

STATE TO SUE ROADS

MISSOURI TO DEMAND $26,000,000 FROM 13 RAILROADS.

Attorney General Says Overcharges Before Rate Law's Validation Reach Vast Sum.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 22.—Missouri will demand $26,000,000 from 13 railroads, whose injunction against the operation of the law limiting rates on passenger traffic to two cents a mile, and the law fixing maximum freight rates, were ordered on Saturday dissolved "without prejudice" by the U. S. Supreme court.

Papers in suits for $6,000,000, suits for $1,000,000 each from the Missouri Pacific, the Wabash and the Santa Fe, were sent by Attorney General Barker to the appropriate state courts.

Federal Judge McPherson on Saturday had ruled that both an order in conformity with the Supreme court decree, which ordered the dissolve of an injunction granted in favor of 12 roads against the operation of the two laws.

Late in the day the judge suspended the entry of his decree until January 10, upon the request of the attorney general, who said he would advise his client to appeal to the United States Supreme court if such a delay were made to compel the judge to retain jurisdiction of the case. The decree should be filed to cover claims of overcharges, the attorney said, because the differences between the rates charged and the rates under the laws which they contend are valid will be the issuance of the injunction.

Thomas Mills Morris, of Kansas City, the filing of a suit for $7,000,000 against the Missouri Pacific. Judge McPherson's later action, Mr. Barker announced that he would file similar suits against the other 12 roads. That would make a total of $26,000,000 sought by the state of Missouri.

The roads to be sued for $2,000,000 each are: the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Minneapolis, Kansas & Texas and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific.

REMAINS ON BODY

SENATE CONFIRMS J. J. CLEMENT'S NOMINATION TO COMMERCE COMMISSION.

WILSON RUSHES HIS NAME

Henry M. Pindell's Appointment as Ambassador to Russia Is Duplicated, But No Action Is Taken by Lawmakers.

Washington, Dec. 26—Judson J. Clements of Illinois was renominated as a member of the interstate commerce commission on Tuesday by President Wilson, who hurried the nomination to the senate, where it was confirmed immediately.

The nomination of Henry M. Pindell of Peoria to be ambassador to Russia was discussed at an executive session of the senate. No action, however, was taken, as the subcommittee had been unable to obtain from Representative Stone a copy of a letter Mr. Pindell wrote him relative to patronage. Action will be postponed one day until the senate meets January 12.

Republican senators, led by Mr. Smoot, precipitated a debate in the senate on the appointment of Winfred T. Denison of New York as a commissioner of the Philippine commission. Opposition was directed to the nomination of Dr. Vedder. Other nominations made by the president follow:

Secretary of embassy at Madrid—Fred Morris Dearing of Missouri.

Second secretaries—Thomas Hitchcley of Washington, at Vienna; Arthur Hugh Frazier, of Pennsylvania, at Vienna; George T. Summerlin of Louisiana, at Berlin; Henry Coleman May of Washington, at Berlin; Hamilton Mason Jones of New York, at St. Petersburg.

Assistant secretary of agriculture—B. Gibson of California, at Brussels; Gustave Hermann of Tennessee, at Brussels; Francis Munroe Endicott of Massachusetts, at San Jose, Costa Rica; M. "I decided to breakup and go to Canada, where at least I could fight my own battles and be master on my own land. I started out with a supply of seed grain and farming implements in the prairie-schooner with my wife and children. We came to a homestead of 160 acres to which I added by purchase gradually; now as a result I have about 2,000 acres all my own. The whole property is free of debt. I owe no man a cent to anybody. I bought my land for $2,440 per acre, now I could not give it up for $40 per acre.

"Do you mean to say that you paid for the whole land in the five years?"

I interrupted.

"Yes, I made the first payment on the land, some already by the first harvest, and at longest in 3 years I had paid for it. Do you mean to say that you paid for it in five years?" I interrupted.

"Yes, I made a crop every year," replied the farmer. "The land paid for itself, some already by the first harvest, and at longest in 3 years I had paid for it. Do you mean to say that you paid for it in five years?" I interrupted.

JANUARY CLEARING SALE!

From Saturday Morning, January 10th to Saturday Night, January 24th, 1914.

This will be two weeks, including THREE SATURDAYS, of the BIGGEST BARGAIN SELLING ever seen in CHARLEVOIX.

During December the manufacturers and jobbers gave Clearing Sales at great reductions from regular prices, and feeling sure that we had the output for the merchandise, we bought their bargain offerings. These new purchases, added to our regular stocks, which are to be severely reduced, will make a bargain feast, that for variety of merchandise and values offered, is sure to please all customers who honor this sale with a visit. The store itself will be a veritable transformation scene with bargains—bargains everywhere. Everything will be marked in big plain price figures and put out where you can get your fingers on it to inspect and choose at will. At this January Clearing Sale you can well afford to anticipate your needs for months to come, for it will be a very unusual bargain event, and the opportunities for saving in many instances border on the phenomenal. Only a portion of the values offered can be mentioned in this advertisement. For your greater convenience we advise shopping early in the mornings.
